GERMAN MOTTOES IN ENGLAND

London Newspaper Objects to Display on Schoolhouse Stones.

Stones ornamented with German mottoes seem somewhat out of place in English board schools and yet the educational establishment in Ashford pathos comes several of these striking aspirations. Mr. Thompson asked Viscount Morpeth, chairman of the works committee, whether he was aware of their German origin, and whether the inspectors had proposed to remove and educational visitors. Mr. Morpeth replied that the mottoes in question were not to be had in Lion character and that he had not seen the tablets when giving the order. He did so gladly, but was glad that the stones are there, the philologic occasion may flat as well to improve matters the London Telegraph. Suppose school one of his boarders to spell wonder, and being acquainted with the word, told him to go and clean it. Perhaps among the precepts there is Wilhelm II's favorite one, "Immer Immer ohne ruhe." After having examined a pupil on the orthography of the inscription, the teacher may either note his pupil the stone, in order to compare the lesson the country German match are equivalent to British shillings—few of the former have the fatherland. The shilling of the former always should be respected by those who have the spending of them.

Age of Big Trees.

Referring to the age of the big trees of California, Prof. C. E. Bessey records in "Science" that he once counted with much care the rings of growth of the tree of which the stump constitutes the floor of the specialist dancing pavilion. This count was made from excellent cross-sections, and every ring in all the trees was obvious as entirely or possible being made. The result was that 1,127 rings were counted and accordingly it is safe to say that this tree, which was fully twenty-four or twenty-five feet in diameter and considerably more than 300 feet in height, acquired that dimension in 1,127 years. Prof. Bessey thinks, however, that the stumps represent the age of 2,000 years.

Circulation of the Blood.

The mileage of the blood circulation depends somewhat upon the health of the personal history. Thus it has been calculated that, assuming the heart to beat sixty-nine times a minute in ordinary heart pressure, the blood must at the rate of 7 miles in the minute or seven miles per hour, 168 miles per day and 61,320 miles per year. A man of 84 years of age would have one single blood particle floating in his blood all his life, it would have traveled in that same time 5,150,880 miles.

WORLD-FAMOUS BON MARCHE.

Great Emporium the Life-Work of Mme. Boucicault.

As many people are aware the Bon Marche, one of the greatest emporiums of Paris, was the life work of a woman, Mme. Boucicault, who died a few years ago. It was a woman who built the first emporium of the kind ever seen. Mme. Boucicault was a woman of the middle class, who married a well-to-do man, who was a great favorite of the Emperor Napoleon III. Her husband died and left her a widow with a small fortune. It was considered by her friends that she would be wasting her time and money if she undertook to carry on the business of her husband, but she was a woman of great energy and determination, and she was not to be deterred from her purpose. She had a small capital, and she began in a very small way, with a few hands, and she made a success of the business from the start. Mme. Boucicault was a woman of great tact as well as of a great brain, and her business grew and became a source of wonder and envy to the trade. It was considered by her competitors that she was fortunate in her employees, and that she was a lucky woman in her business venture. It was said that she was a woman who was fortunate in her employees, and that she was a woman who was fortunate

FACTORY FUND COMES TRUE.

Rich Gift from Stone Founding of Church Made in a Decade.

A gift from the Stone family to the Congregational Church and Society of Stonington, Conn., has come true. The money that church and society thought they would receive from the estate of the late Miss Ann Stone, who died in Stonington last August, has been received by the church and society. Mr. Hubbard, of Hartford, who is executor of the Stone estate, has notified the church and society that the money, $100,000, has been placed in the hands of the trustees, and now that it cannot be taken away from them by any contest, the church and society are thinking of building a new church edifice. The money was left by Miss Stone for a factory, which she thought would be built soon after her death, but the money was tied up in her estate by a contest. The church and society thought they would never get the money, but now it is theirs they are thinking of building a church with it, as Miss Stone's will stipulated that the money should be used for a church or factory. The church and society have been in a quandary for some time, not knowing just what to do with the money, but now they are thinking of building a church with it. The church and society have been without a church since a fire destroyed their church building a few years ago. The church and society have been holding services in the Congregational church in Stonington, and have been doing very well. Woman Sabbath School Teacher Hit by Object She Threw Vinegar.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Special.—Miss Ann Jones, a prominent young lady of this city, who is a teacher in the Sabbath school of the Congregational church, was recently married to a young man who was formerly a member of her Sabbath school class. The young man was a Hungarian, and his family, when they learned of the marriage, were very much incensed at the young man for his action in marrying a Christian woman, and they made it very hot for him. The young man, however, stuck to his wife, and they went to housekeeping. The young man's family then decided that the young man should be taught a lesson he would never forget, and they decided that the young man should be taught a lesson he would never forget. CAPSIZED BY SQUALL.

Disaster to Lighthouse Keepers.

THREE PERSONS DROWNED.

A Manistee special says: The steamer Manhattan arrived here today with W. H. Shields and Dason C. McCauley, lighthouse keepers on Squaw island, and the bodies of Mrs. Shields and her baby, Mrs. Mary Davis. They were picked up Saturday afternoon in the lake, where they were found lashed to an overturned yawl. They had been exposed since Friday, when they were capsized by a squall while sailing from the island to the mainland. Lucien Moulton, of Muskegon, Mich., was also an inmate of the boat when it capsized, and was drowned before he could be lashed to the overturned yawl.

The two rescued men are badly frozen, and it is thought they may have to suffer amputation of the lower limbs. They were taken to the Hall Family hospital here, where the following story of the experience was told by Mr. Shields:

"Upon receiving orders to cease the lighthouse for the season, we prepared to leave the island together with our keepers, Lucien Moulton, of Muskegon, Mich., Mrs. Shields and Mrs. Davis, my wife's niece. We left the island on Friday for the mainland, seven miles distant, bound for St. James. When out only a short time a heavy wind struck the sail of our boat, capsizing it and throwing us into the lake.

We all succeeded, after much hard work, in getting the boat righted, and myself, after much labor, finally succeeded in bailing both the women to the keel and then somehow Moulton, the helper, had in the meantime become delirious and refused to be landed or attempt to save himself, and soon fell off and was lost. My wife and her niece, McCauley and myself, lashed and clinging to the keel, were tossed about and suffered terribly from the cold and seas which washed over us.

"About seven hours after the accident, my wife succumbed, being unable to longer endure the terrible conditions which the exposure of winds and seas caused. Mrs. Davis, after holding up for several hours after my wife's death, also succumbed, and only McCauley and myself remained alive, with the two dead women lashed by our sides, floating around the lake with no chance being in sight.

"At daylight we were within a short distance of the mainland and would soon have been washed on the beach, when to our dismay and horror the wind changed, and we were gradually drifting out into the lake again. Fortunately, however, as it proved, we were taken by the wind into the north passage, which is often taken by boats coming up the lake. In this manner we passed Friday night, suffering terribly from cold and hunger, until Saturday at 1 p. m., when we succeeded in attracting the attention of the crew of the steamer Manhattan. Although the weather was very rough, the captain of the steamer after much maneuvering, succeeded in running in and also picking up the bodies of my wife and niece."

Squaw Island is six miles west of the north end of Beaver Island. McCauley is a Beaver Island resident, and is well known in Charlevoix.

LATER.

Yesterday the SENTINEL received a telegram from Lucien C. McCauley. He is in the hospital at Manitowoc, is much better, and all his limbs will be saved.

Resolutions.

The following resolutions were adopted at a recent meeting of Hackler Corps, G.R. W. R. A.:

Whereas, it has pleased the Supreme Ruler of the Universe to remove from our circle Elizabeth J. Boake, who has been a faithful member of the Corps and whose death we deeply mourn, be it

Resolved, that while we bow in humble submission to the hand of affliction, we extend our warmest sympathy to the bereaved family and may they realize that what is their loss is her gain, and may He who inflicts the blow to fall, comfort and strength on their hearts.

Resolved, that we as members of the Corps realize that we are drawing near the hour of final departure and so may we be prepared for the final summons that must come to us all, and be in readiness.

Resolved, that the Charter of our Corps be draped for the period of 30 days and these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Corps, and a copy be presented to the family of our departed sister.

Marine Notes.

The steamer Hackley went to Beaver Island to-day.

The steamer Columbia arrived and laid up here Saturday.

The steamer Pine Lake will be commanded next season by Capt. Lipinsaak.

The tugs Golden, Dalmelee and John Smith are all back from Michigan City.

The tug Kiarika, homeward from Detroit to Chicago, was in port Friday and coaled up.

The tug Taylor released the steamer Bergie Welcome at Grand Harbor Saturday, and took her to Manistee.

The steamer Golden is loaded and at Washburn's yard. Capt. Guard contemplates quite extensive improvements on the boat this winter.

The tug A. L. Riggie, which for a number of years was a Charlevoix harbor tug and owned by I. M. Thompson, was yesterday towed Sunday light, as she lay at the dock in Detroit.

Capt. Webb, owner of the Traverse City line of steamers, was here Saturday, and did not deny the report that he intends to build another boat for the line, to stand in time, enlisted last week.

The steamer Joe, owned by Neil Gallagher of St. Louis, was loaded by Henry Smith and others last week for copper hills. The tug Golden, with the Joe in tow, passed Manistee, went over Friday and brought the Joe here, and placed her in charge of L. C. Gocken as custodian. On Saturday night the boat stuck at Gocken's dock, with only her bow out of water.

Capt. Wm. Hannah, who gained the ownership of the Hackler last season, has just closed a deal with the Detroit Transfer Co. of Chicago, whereby he secures possession of the Hale and Ashland Narragansett. Capt. Hannah will sail the vessel himself during next season. The purchase price is not stated, but the hold is worth about $2,000 she is thirty-nine years old.

The proposed extensive improvement of Muskegon harbor of a "fifty foot" or $200,000, recommended by Congress by Capt. Harding, in charge of the engineer's office at Grand Haven, Mich., and endorsed by Secretary of War Elkin first, and many other officers in the engineering corps, is looked upon as an assured thing by the Muskegon people who have been pushing the project for years. The changes it is proposed to make are vast in their scope, as it practically is the intention to construct a new harbor, making Muskegon lake such a port, but a harbor of refuge as well.

Capt. Wm. Hulme, Sr., hands us the following: "I think if the marine editor of the Charlevoix Sentinel would spend a short term in some school of amateur instruction, it would be of some use to him the next time the schooner Maine runs away it should happen to reject the elegant remonstrance for in this last case, instead of coming through the bridge alone, she was in charge of her captain and mate, with the assistance of two or three of our citizens who kindly volunteered to help them drop the schooner through the draw and around the corner to Capt. Wilson's dock. At the dark Saturday night as the northwest gale was increasing and the heavy rudder was swinging the vessel heavy on her lines, other lines were put out and the schooner's bitts given low line was taken from her bow port forward, to away off aster, her stern, and make fast to three of the iron piles on the dock. Next morning early they went down to the schooner and found every line aft either parted or the pile pulled out, and all the breast lines forward parted, the head line alone holding, so they had no time to dropping her across the river and through the bridge to Wilson's dock and she did not go through alone, either."

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHAW, COMM'R.

The first recommendation made by the Conference on Mathematics appointed by the Committee of Ten, is that "the course in arithmetic be at the same time abridged and enriched. Abridged by omitting entirely those subjects which perplex and exhaust the pupil without affording any strictly valuable mental discipline; and enriched by a greater number of exercises in simple calculation and in the solution of concrete problems."

This Conference suggested the curtailment or entire omission of compound proportion, cube root, obsolete denominate quantities, duodecimals, and the greater part of commercial arithmetic. It further suggested that in such subjects as profit and loss, bank discount, and simple and compound interest, examples not easily made intelligible to the pupil should be omitted.

Pupils in the grammar grades have been required to memorize definitions, when, because of the immaturity of their minds, they were unable to see through the definitions the things defined. They have been required to solve problems of uses and applications they had no clear conception. Again and again they have lost sight of what they were trying to do in trying to find out how to do it.

The leading educators of the state of Wisconsin recently recommended the following in relation to the course in arithmetic:

Work in fractions below fifth grade mainly oral.

No long division below fifth grade with divisors of more than two figures.

Omit greatest common divisor entirely as a separate topic.

Omit longitude and time. Teach this in connection with geography.

Omit reduction, addition substraction, multiplication, and division of denominate numbers as separate topics.

Limit taxes, insurance, and duties to simplest cases and explanation of terms.

Give very little attention to problems in interest.

Omit true discount, take only the first cases in bank discount.

Omit cube root and its applications except such as can be done by inspection.

The process of simplification has been going on and we have not seen the end of it yet.

The Royal Arch Masons.

Charlevoix Chapter Royal Arch Masons under organization, will hold its long Regular Convocation Thursday evening, December 27, 1900, in the Masonic hall. The following is a partial organization of the same:

High Priest—H. L. Hidings.
King—George F. Brown.
Scribe—M. J. Sherman.
Captain of the Host—E. H. Green.
Principal Sojourner—H. C. Cooper.
Royal Arch Captain—A. Hottara.
Master of the Third Veil—E. H. Green.
Master of the Second Veil—A. Hottara.
Master of the First Veil—H. H. McCarthy.

The above with the following Companions are associated in the organization of the proposed Chapter, a charter for which will be sought in due time: Miles H. Lowden, Isaac Wolford, A. V. Clark, W. A. Smith, and John Watson.

The Degree or Chapter degrees of the Masonic symbol are four in number, being that of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master, and Royal Arch Mason, significant in commemorating the first building of that sacred model of excellence King Solomon's Temple, its destruction and ultimate reconstruction.

The degrees are also beautiful in conception, moral lessons and teaching, and lead the candidate into better states of thought and action, while also serving as a sequence to the ancient Craft Masonry and connecting the same with still more advanced degrees.

The Companions associated together merit the co-operation of all regular Royal Arch Masons as well as Master Masons who aspire to these degrees in the organization.

Regular Meetings occur the third Thursday in each lunar month, and special meetings for work will be called from time to time as occasion may require.

Our Own Ed. Warbler.

The following is taken from the Detroit Local News:

"Elias Wakfield, for many years associated in the law business with Mr. George W. Fulford, leaves Detroit January 1st, to open a law office of his own at Traverse City, where he expects to devote particular attention to probate and probate law. Mr. Wakfield has a wide wall carry with him the well wishes of a large circle of business and social acquaintances.

He is not a Detroit boy. He is a Charlevoix boy, and for a number of years previous to his going to Detroit, acted as stenographer to Judge Mayne. After reaching the city, he entered the office of the well known attorneys, Chamberlain and Conlon, where he remained until he became assistant to one of the Circuit Court stenographers. He next secured the position of stenographer for The Michigan Stove Company, where he remained some four years. He then entered the office of Mr. Fulford as a student and also took the regular three years course at the Detroit College of Law from which he graduated in 1897. Since graduation he has had charge of the trial and pleading department in the busy law office of Mr. Fulford. He brings to his new field not only a fine training as a pleading lawyer to a large city practice, but is also an expert stenographer and typewriter. Mr. Wakfield's rise has been the result of hard work, and if he attains success, which we predict he will, it will be well deserved.

Notice.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Farmers Mutual Fire Ins. Co., of Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan counties, will be held at their office in the city of Petoskey on the second Tuesday of January, 1901. Everybody come.

Good-Bye Fingree.

The gyrotechnic and pirotechnic political career of Hazen S. Pingree, for four years governor of Michigan, closed Monday night in the Republican party, according to his own statement. Hereafter he is a Democrat, with political aspirations in the Democratic ranks, and it would seem from his own statements, with apparently definite hopes of a Democratic political future.

On Monday the senate killed his tax bill, considering that its passage, in view of the new legislature convening January 1st, was too late. Besides throwing down the governor of this, the Senate refused to grant the governor the moral ex-shock for a whiskey "blow out."

And then, the republican judges of the supreme court and other prominent republicans declined his invitation to partake of his house at the aforesaid "blow out." Hence, everything republican is more rotten than ever.

The governor therefore says: "Truth this time on, I shall spend my time and money in behalf of the Democratic party. I am fed through with politics yet."

But it must be remembered that the governor has on frequently made this statement that little satisfaction is paid to it now. We sincerely hope it is true. Pingree was never a republican at heart; he is merely going where he belongs, and he cannot do any harm by so soon republicanizing.

Three years ago the Scientific and Pingree was started on the toboggan slide, he has now reached the limit, and may the hard luck camey on his year foul soul.

Only four days more of Pingree.

Another "chimney alarm" last sunday night.

Emmett lumber and wife spent Christmas at Traverse City.

L. Lisk, of London, Eng., is here visiting his sister, Mrs. Lewdson.

Ralph S. Milne call your attention to their new ad in this issue.

Frank and Allen Wilkinson, of Detroit, are spending Christmas here with friends.

Lewis Giddings, who has been assistant engineer on the steamer Siberia in the past season, is home for the winter.

Discovery and respectability will take the place of filth, profanity and rottenness in the executive office at Lansing next October.

Homer A. Fonder, of Ionia, was in town this week looking for a vacant job in the office. Mr. Fonder is fairly well impressed with Charlevoix and expects to come here before the first of January.

The Christmas gifts by the Sunday school and the congregations of church on Christmas eve, was in all judged a fine thing and an entire change from the usual Christmas Eve entertainments. It was entitled—"A Christmas Chimney, or Santa Claus had two Grandma's." The attendance was good and all, both young and old, were well pleased. The Christmas morning service was well attended though the weather was somewhat stormy.

As we write the bridge question is on the boiling point, and has now, July last, with 252 to 37. Whichton is still trying together, are wrangling with the representatives in seven bridge companies as follows: The Ballou Bridge Co., of Cleveland; Newkirk Bridge Co., of Cincinnati; the Massillon Bridge Co., the Turkish Bridge and Iron Works, the Hickson Bridge Co., the Wrought Iron Bridge Co., the Canton Co., and the Toledo Bridge Co. The bids are to be opened in the city of Columbus, and it is not expected that the award will be made for several days, so the matter is to be given detailed consideration.

Five men, the absentee commissioners for each of the 17 bridges, met in Columbus last week and found Cincinnati, $2,000; Fremont, $2,000; Zanesville, $1,000; Canton, $2,000; Massillon, $2,000; Dover, $1,000; Coshocton, $1,000; Marietta, $2,000; Hudson, $1,000; Steubenville, $2,000; Wheeling, $2,000; Bellaire, $2,000; Ironton, $2,000; Portsmouth, $2,000; Chillicothe, $2,000; Lockbourne, $2,000; Dublin, $1,000; Sunbury, $1,000; Mansfield, $2,000; Chillicothe, $2,000; Marion, $2,000.

A meeting of owners of bridge carrying county was held at Bay City lately with representatives present from Bullion City, Saginaw and Bay City. The purpose was to arrange the preliminaries for a meeting to be held in Detroit on January 17 for the purpose of an association for the protection of inter-bridge vessel property, with regard to aids in dealing with the exclusive company for dealing and insuring. The vessel-men claim they have been at the mercy of the stevedores for a long time and feel that they are privileged to organize to protect themselves. It was reported at the meeting that similar sessions were being held at various ports on the lakes for the same purpose.

Owen E. McCauley, the amusement keeper of Squaw Island light, who so narrowly escaped being his recent Judge Wade last week bound up on for requiring Governor Pingree to show cause December 20th, at our office in the afternoon of last day, why he should not be punished for contempt of court. The order is said to be affidavit of some Dr Spinner, reporter for the Detroit Tribune, to whom the governor is alleged to have made remarks of a contemptuous nature on December 7th, calling Judge Wead a "little cuss" charging him with commercialism, and making other remarks as to the character and standing of the court. Deputy Sheriff Cadwell served the order of the governor.

TALMAGE'S SERMON

(Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch.)

DR. TALMAGE touches a chord of Christmas patriotism in this sermon, which was preached in Brooklyn and Washington last Christmas day. Text, Luke ii., 14: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

The angels who sang these words of my text had been hovering over Judea for many days, and they had seen the star of Bethlehem, and they had seen the Christ child, and they had seen the Virgin Mary, and they had seen the shepherds, and they had seen the Magi from the East, and they had seen the slaughter of the innocents, and they had seen the flight into Egypt, and they had seen the return from Egypt, and they had seen the Christ child growing in stature and in favor with God and man, and they had seen the Christ child in the temple among the doctors, and they had seen the Christ child in the carpenter's shop, and they had seen the Christ child in the synagogue, and they had seen the Christ child in the Jordan, and they had seen the Christ child in the wilderness, and they had seen the Christ child in the Garden of Gethsemane, and they had seen the Christ child on the cross, and they had seen the Christ child in the sepulchre, and they had seen the Christ child in the resurrection, and they had seen the Christ child in the ascension, and they had seen the Christ child in the throne, and they had seen the Christ child in the glorified body, and they had seen the Christ child in the ten thousand times ten thousand and thousands of thousands of the redeemed, and they had seen the Christ child in the infinite, the eternal, the omnipotent, the omniscient, the omnipresent God, and they had seen the Christ child in the Christmas day of the universe, and they had seen the Christ child in the Christmas day of our world, and they had seen the Christ child in the Christmas day of our own land, and they had seen the Christ child in the Christmas day of our own city, and they had seen the Christ child in the Christmas day of our own church, and they had seen the Christ child in the Christmas day of our own family, and they had seen the Christ child in the Christmas day of our own heart, and they had seen the Christ child in the Christmas day of our own immortality, and they had seen the Christ child in the Christmas day of the ages, and they had seen the Christ child in the Christmas day of the eternities, and they had seen the Christ child in the Christmas day of the Christmas day, and they had seen the Christ child in the Christmas day of the Christmas day of the Christmas day of God

IN EXUBERANCE OF YOUTH.

Friendly Puppy Meets a Great Cat in a Restaurant.

He was one of those enthusiastic young dogs who want to make friends all around. He came into a great city restaurant and approached everybody in his most cordial manner, politely, for friendship (sometimes) flourishingly received him with inborn hospitality except the cat. The cat was a hateful cat. Perhaps she was that. It is their phrase to be disagreeable and quiet the interest of youthful spirits. This cat was black and white, was the brother of yellow. She was not very young, says the New York Mail and Express. The dog retired quickly to the front of the restaurant, the waiter softly. His feelings were hurt and he wanted sympathy. He was not used to such wilful treatment. It was because he was a young dog. The cat followed him cautiously, but warily every. She hit him again. Then the good gentleman who wants to prevent trouble opened the door and the puppy trotted out. He had up his tail and the blood dripped from it. It looked little if he doesn't get killed trying to make friends with a cat. He will go home to a big, surly, crass dog, throwing little kittles with his nose around and biting disagreeable cats with his strong teeth, or shaking them by the neck until they are dead.

Chinese Lunar Festival.

A schooner-rigged junk against the harbors who have made such a commotion fight against the grease, prance Chinese dress silks and long braids in an idiotic and stupid fashion. Not long after just just the junks have traveled the fields with gins and dogs after the grease and chewing until they have disappeared from the grass tops and they have followed the on with muzzle upon the mouth lately and sing little cattle birds are now to do area where they once labored on horse-boxes. Grasshoppers and other insects have increased with the excess of the birds.

The Siege of Khartoum.

The siege of Khartoum continued 317 days. Over 4,000 people, including Chinese Gordon and all his officers and all foreigners were slain, only the black troops were saved. The city was pillaged and the women were distributed among the Arabs, and it has been described as one of the most horrible orgies of blood and misery the century had known. This was in 1884.—New York Weekly.

Christian Endeavor to Defiant.

Belfast has in recent years become one of the strongest centers of Christian Endeavor work in the United Kingdom. Ten years ago there was but one society in all Ireland. Now Belfast has more than seventy.

This Was a Rainstorm.

During the unprecedented rainfall at Calcutta in the third week of September 15 people with 2112 and 112 brick houses, besides 400 huts fell to pieces. The rainfall in one week was 43 inches.

CORSETS SHOWN AT THE FAIR.

The Revolution in Women's Shape Made Very Plain.

In all the previous forms of and corsets there never was such a show of corsets as there was at the recent exposition. There are now all made straight in and down, so that bending the waist forward in the lightest in the back and forward in the front, a point of entertaining that particular the more the more the more. In the exposition there is the greatest of corsets which the Chinese women have adopted to the front and a portrait of the Chinese women with pattern. The cast from the Chinese women's shape is lately placed to which Hagelin introduced in the Chinese women's shape and is available for most of its tenant by camera drawing several foot. Hagelin's Exposition, will the time, the showing round between 1.0 great shown places of Vienna and the Atlantic seaboard. In other words it helps to make a narrower waistwear, and the Chinese women and be graded as the great coming lightwear between Bagdad and European point. Among the Chinese belts strongly accepted as well as of a great heart, and her business owed not a little of its success to the fact that it was conducted by her on really cooperative principles. It is only most of her shopmen and shopwomen, as well, of course, as all those concerned with the quasi-clerical side of the business, was admitted by her to a share in the profits. Not content with doing this she further established in connection with her employes homes of rest, holiday homes, a hospital and an annuity fund, and at her death it was found that she had devoted to our fortune among her workers, the sum left to each one being carefully graduated according to the time the legatee had been in the service of the Bon Marche. All these advance methods and ideas were new to Paris, and more than as variance with the lines of thought then prevailing concerning the relations of the employer and employed. But Mme. Boucicault pursued the plan she had thought out for herself and found her reward, for only in the financial sense where by her rattles were outstripped to one that her peculiar ideas had not brought her fashion, but also in the knowledge that she had partly solved the problem of her responsibility toward her dependents.

CHINOCO DELTA NAVIGABLE.

Most Important Highway Between Bengals and European Ports.

A dispatch from Caracas says Venezuela has declared all the mouths of the Orinoco delta open to international navigation. About 50 miles of river flow directly seaward but several of them are accessible to large vessels. The delta branch which is most frequented by steamers is the Macareo, which flows to the ocean opposite the island of Trinidad, and of four direct inland navigation to Ciudad Bolivar, far up the Orinoco, 200 miles from the Atlantic. The Orinoco navigation will make important business for Trinidad. The upper Orinoco is the Meta river, which rises on the eastern slope of the Andes, from which Magella ultimately passed to the Pacific. The Orinoco is navigable for large vessels to Ciudad Bolivar, 200 miles from the ocean, and for smaller vessels for 1,000 miles. Among the Orinoco belts strongly accepted as well as of a great heart, and her business owed not a little of its success to the fact that it was conducted by her on really cooperative principles. It is only most of her shopmen and shopwomen, as well, of course, as all those concerned with the quasi-clerical side of the business, was admitted by her to a share in the profits. Boom Furnished with Pets.

A large boom with manufacturer has a room entirely furnished with Irish pets. The largest on the floor the curtains at the windows and paper on the walls are made from this with chairs. For years he has experimented with the materials which is now very nearly exposed as fast and he has discovered that from it it is possible to procure almost any kind of fabric.

The Exodus of the Romans.

A population of the Romans has lately about eighteen can leave the lewes of Campania, and still deeper than that is buried the earlier London of its Britons. In nearly all parts of the city there have been discovered tessel and pavements, Roman bath, fonts lamps, vases, amulets, keys, ornaments, coins, urns, and statues of the ancient Roman gods.

Armies to Give Away.

One of the difficulties about dispatching China line in the face that the killing of a few armies merely means a sense of gratification in the government because of the relief to the consumption of population.

Origin of "Dorcas Society."

The application of the words "Dorcas Society" to a union of women for supplying the poor with clothing is in honor of Dorcas, who made clothes for the poor. The will find a reference in the charitable women in Acts ix. 39.

FARMER'S INSTITUTE

A Profitable Session at the Court House.

The Farmers Institute for Charlevoix county was called to order by Sec'y E. B. Ward at the court house on Friday morning last at 10:30, and in the absence of President Burton, Hon. Jedediah Nichols was called to the chair.

A good attendance of farmers were present at the opening session. In the afternoon the chairs were nearly all occupied by an interested audience.

"Strawberries and Small Fruits" was the opening topic, presented by S. H. Fulton of South Haven. The two diseases common to the small fruits are anthracnose and red rust, which can be prevented by spraying. Three-fifth enthusiasm, especially in these times, is necessary to keep the plant growing and to destroy the weeds.

Old wood of small fruits should be removed as soon as the plant is done fruiting.

Blackberries and black cap raspberries should be cut back or pinched back when the plant has attained a growth of two or three feet. The plant branches out and becomes more stocky. In planting strawberries, leave sod plant enough of the pollen bearing plants to insure pollination of the fruit blossoms. They can be planted in separate rows. Rows for planting depend upon manure. The Excelsior and Sharpless promise well.

"Peach Growing in Northern Michigan" by Hon. A. E. Palmer, was the next topic presented.

Michigan, in many respects stands in the lead among her sister states.

Mr. Palmer has a practical experience in pioneer life in northern Michigan, and recognized several old pioneers in his audience. The first settler came here to lumber, or to take up a homestead. The problems was considered whether this region would ever be fitted for agricultural purposes or not. The idea entertained by people in the southern part of the state or adjoining states has been wrong. The climatic conditions existing in this region cannot be excelled in any other part of the state.

The close that developed this region has been the farmer who came in after the lumberman. The corn crop has developed from the small flint varieties, until sentiment shows that the larger yielders, greater crops of corn than the four southern tier of counties in the state. Our sloping cleared lands to be taken into consideration in shows a great development. The outlook for northern Michigan is grand. One drawback to the development of this region is the false reports circulated by discouraged and unfortunate citizens. The portion of the state west of the water shed and north of the central counties are to be lands.

The grasses grown in northern Michigan are abundant and very succulent. Even in the sandy regions through the north central states the grasses are capable of developing into good grazing lands—by proper methods.

The climatic conditions are such in this broad Traverse region that we can compete in stock raising and general farming with any other region.

Thirty years ago we did not attempt to plant any fruit but the most hardy. Today we can prove that for raising fruit we cannot be excelled, and it grows to perfection.

The cold of winter and the frosts of summer do not interfere with the growth and development of our region; we have a more equitable temperature than some regions south of us.

The future for this region is great. The farmer should always be ready to speak a good word for his home, for all its possibilities and induce settlers to come into your midst.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

"Selection of Site for Fruit Orchard," by S. H. Fulton.

The site is of first importance; very often the ground occupied by the orchard should be devoted to other crops. The freeze of two years ago has taught us a lesson. Sites on the same farm produce very different results. The soil as well as surface soil, must be considered; a hard-pan subsoil should be avoided. The soil should be properly drained.

The year thrives on heavy soil; the peach on a lighter soil. The apple requires well to good conditions and a good soil should be selected, avoiding a hard-pan sub-soil. If the soil is underfoot with hard-pan it should be thoroughly sub-soiled by cultivation. In some instances timber protection may be good in case of winds, but not as good a protection from frosts. A western or northwestern slope is preferable in order to check the effects of the sun in frosty weather.

In the discussion of this subject the following suggestions were brought out: Do not plant too extensively, small orchards will produce better results to the ordinary farmer. Plant those varieties that have been found profitable in your locality.

"Shall Charlevoix County Farmers Keep Sheep or Cattle?" by Hon. A. E. Palmer.

The successful agriculturist is he who can raise a maximum crop and leave his soil in a fertile condition.

The conditions in the rich lands of the west are such that a succession of the same crop reduces the fertility.

The methods of rotation must be practiced. Every person must be adapted to his calling. The successful dairyman is the one who loves his herd. The successful sheepman is the one who loves his flock.

Remember that the best stock is necessary. Better livest [illegible] good animals than to buy anything that is cheap.

The male animal is the head of the herd. Be sure to build on a good foundation. Start with good stock.

The speaker would not advocate any particular breed. Select the breed adapted to your calling. Climatic conditions are so much in our favor for raising forage, we should certainly increase our herds and flocks.

The farmer should not be influenced by the upward and downward tendency of the market, but practice feeding about everything that is raised on the farm; to the class of stock that is most profitable to him, and adhe to his calling.

EVENING SESSION.

"Roads as Influence in Progress in the Development of a County" was presented by L. H. Ward.

Our Legislature has had building law last year, with other important points. The farmer must take hold and make the law work out, instead of suggesting radicals. The material is at hand after it properly utilized, which results in further work in road building.

"Our County Roads," by Hon. A. E. Palmer.

The speaker continued the subject of good roads along the lines of economy. We have passed the age when the reaching of distant points was a mere possibility.

Today, by means of steam railways, distant points are easily reached. It costs the farmer, as shown by statistics, 27 cents per ton per mile to place the products of the farm on the near market.

No one doubts the unsatisfactory conditions that exist under our present highway laws. It is impossible to build good roads at once. We need educated road builders, builders who understand draining, grading and leveling.

The township system is too weak. The county system is better, although under the present law several objections can be made. Public opinion must be changed.

The statute labor tax is the worst system that exists today.

Mr. Palmer closed his talk with some very interesting illustrations of the methods of construction.

Several members of the incoming legislature were elected solely on this issue. The probability is that an amendment to the constitution will be submitted to the electors in April that will enable the legislature to enact proper road laws for the state.

Saturday Session.

The first topic presented at the Saturday morning session was "The Care of an Apple Orchard," by S. H. Fulton.

In too many sections the orchard has been neglected. Continuous, for merly, were better than now. The neglect in pruning and starving the orchard by neglecting to fertilize, has caused the orchard to run down instead of keeping up to the original standard.

The orchard, for family use, should not be larger than the farmer can properly care for. The tree needs the same care that is bestowed upon any other growing crop. More care is necessary after the orchard comes in to full bearing.

The farmer must study his conditions and environments and proceed handle his orchards in an intelligent manner.

The apple from northern Michigan is noted for the high coloring and perfect form of the fruit.

The matter of cultivating the orchard must not be neglected. Conditions are such that occasionally an orchard will prosper in a search, but such always should not be allowed.

Spray first just before the blossom buds come. Spray just after the fruit is set, if you can give but one spray. This is considered the most important spraying time for all purposes. Do not delay, as the spraying must be done in the proper time to kill the codling moth, not later than one week after the setting of fruit. Killing off the first brood of codling moth very much reduces the injuries that may occur from the second brood which does its damage in midsummer. Bordeaux mixture is the proper spray for these two applications. It is definitely necessary that all the farmers spray.

Pruning should be done early and with the object of forming a good top. If pruning is properly done in the early stage, the necessity for cutting large branches will not exist.

"Relation of Drainage to soil Fertility," by A. E. Palmer.

Drainage is an element that has not been taken into consideration in this region. Many acres are being improperly cultivated for lack of drainage. The farmer must know where the drainage is necessary and do the work in a dry season. Drainage assists fertility by removing the surplus water from the soil.

Drainage releases the elements for plant growth to low lands. Surface water is not only removed, but the underlying water also. In clays, if properly drained, the soil is mellowed. Drainage for tile is expensive, but the increase in crops more than pays the expense.

Drainage by surface drains should be avoided. By under draining, loss of elements for plant food is avoided.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

"What Pomological Cherries shall we Raise, and How?" by S. H. Fulton.

Trees should not be grown too rapidly. In planting the soil is affecting the crop. Some varieties are affected more than others. The disease is not easily controlled. Thinning is good, preventing the diseased fruit from coming in contact with other fruit. The method of pruning for curculio together with spraying, is effective. Spray early with copper sulphate solution to kill curculio and the rot.

The speaker told of the good qualities of several varieties, but recommended the farmer to take into consideration what fit is fitting for home consumption or for market.

In choosing the same varieties are better than the same.

"From the Hay Mow to the Butter Tub," by A. E. Palmer.

The feed regularly for butter making is a good amount and good feed. Ideal conditions must be observed from start to finish. The dairy cow should be well cared for; kept clean in her surroundings. Vessels for carrying milk should be thoroughly washed and sterilized.

The deep-setting can is the best for diluting milk cans that is sold by agents to the farmers by the thousands, is a loss to the farmer. It is impossible to gather all the cream by that process. A loss of 15 to 20 per cent of butter fat is frequent.

The open pan process is a safe and sensible. The deep-shallow can with ice, is a good method for keeping the cream.

Do not try to make butter, and call it good, without ice. By the use of ice underneath to the temperature of the cream can be kept up.

Bad butter, on the market, is not always the fault of the maker. Butter is susceptible to all odors, and the conditions surrounding it often injure it.

At the business meeting the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: E. B. Ward, president; A. W. Chase, secretary and treasurer, and one vice president from each county.

—Mr. McCann returned from Chicago Monday, and spent Christmas at home on his way home to St. James.

Bob Newcomb, who had to come to school here on account of illness, is no better, and will have to give up teaching for the present.

Very many of our citizens have come to the conclusion lately that Pingree is a disgrace to the state as governor. It has taken them a long time to find out what was always true—that he never was anything but a disgrace to the state as governor—and the pardon of White and Marsh was only one more disgraceful act of a most disgraceful administration. Well, he got only eight votes in the town of Norwood two years ago. If other towns had done half as well, there would have been only two years of disgrace instead of four.

For the second time, the home of H. B. Bogard of Marion has been entered by fire. The last one occurred Saturday. Nothing in the home was saved; the family barely escaped with the clothes they wore.

The retirement of Judge Grant from the probate office does not mean that the Judge can hand his shoes to his Sulu boards, the Judge is found Master of Old Fellows of the state of Michigan, and has a long, or two to handle clothing his excellent force.

Attorney Hayes failed to appear before Judge Wilmot last Saturday, and the most prolonged the case till June 20th. The attorney is charged with neglecting Whitney's case, and Hayes has a case against the people of the state of Michigan for the same offense.

We think, in another item, we refer to D. F. Sloan as the only new county officer at the court house "Dick" Sullivan just passed the office, and the thought occurs that no county attorney has had the labors of plain, every-day lawyers, and sworn to as public prosecutor. A. L. Fitch is another of the official crowd, and he signs a great many announcements with his name.

Over at the court house yesterday there was more activity than usual. The board of supervisors convened to approve of bonds and to assume other business, and the outgoing county officers, Judge Strand and county treasurer Ward were closing up books and making bands. The office officers—Durkee, Cooper and Kempen—were just moving over from one room to another. The only new man, county clerk Monk, acted on the board of supervisors yesterday and swore in as clerk today.

At the present session of the board of supervisors the board will be asked to appropriate money to complete the building on the poor farm. At the last session $2,000 was appropriated, and the poor commissioners report that the amount will only enclose the building. Something more than $1,000 will be required to finish the building. It is expected that it will be done by June first, and it will be the best building of its kind in northern Michigan.

In the retirement of John Ward from the county treasurer's office, Charlevoix county loses one of the best public servants in the thirty-two years of county history. Entering county service after a long tenure of the office of supervisor of Marion, Mr. Ward has served the county with exceptional zeal and ability in twelve years, first as treasurer, in which office he served for four years, following which he was elected two terms to the office of register, and once again four years ago transferred to the treasurer's office. In those twelve years John Ward's official duties have been discharged faithfully. May he live long and prosper.

THE NEW BRIDGE.

The Board of State Contract Bridge Engineer Hodge and Iron Worker.

At the church Sunday afternoon the township board voted to accept the bid of the United Bridge and Iron Works for the erection of the new bridge across the lake. It also accepted, concerning such matters as expert testimony, for the sum of $[illegible].

The bridge is one piece and spans Sections 1st which were kindly given by the Petoskey Bridge and Iron Works, and accepted by the board last week. Among various plans submitted by other companies. The design of the Petoskey company, has been modified to length with a standard load of 75 tons.

It will have a roadway 20 feet in width, the floor of which will be laid with a five foot walk, protected by a strong railing. The steel work is to be painted and of sufficient strength to allow all possible loads crossing the bridge at any time. The bridge is to be completed and ready for travel by June 1st.

All parties interested are congratulate on the settlement of the bridge question, for any delay of the matter would have caused much loss to the township.

The contract for the building or setting-up of the bridge proper being a comparatively short and simple matter, the work will not delay the opening of the present one, will be commenced as soon as possible. It will cost up to the plans and specifications, less than the water bridge. The foundation piers will be of stone, and the abutments of concrete. The work will be done with the particular attention to the comfort of the people, and will accommodate the cost of office design, with the particular exception, it has merits and which, we hope, will be adopted. The plans for the substructure are which by C. J. Hodgkins, well, and have experience of all the work in the interest of the township.

The contract calls for the completion of the work by May 15th, and the contractors are expected to be on the ground at once, assuming material and commencing the substructure work.

On the side, the township has a contract of its own on its hands, and that is the construction of a temporary bridge. Piers for this have been made by Mr. Workman, and adopted by the board. The structure will span the river about early the last of the present bridge, and will be built of piles and timber. If everything goes before May 1st a portion of the road will be open across that bridge when we come to it.

In closing this article it is fair to mention that the township board has in mobilizing the bridge matter, proportionately given much time and very careful worthy. The adoption and acceptance of the Petoskey Bridge Works' plans and bid was only after a majority of the board were thoroughly convinced that these orders were for the best interests of the township. For this they deserve the thanks of the tax payers.

School Commissioner's Column.

The interest fund received by the legislature of 1899 was the result of a strong conviction that the state library was not doing all that it for the people of the state, and that the interest fund should be used to supply the people with a right to demand. The use of the library fund was forbidden by the constitution of Michigan and to those who could come to the capital.

The adoption of the law providing for a "traveling library," which consists of that machinery selected books, about twenty-five of which is in force, the balance being divided between others, religion, literature, biography, history and travels, interests us at this time as it is really applied to our county.

A life size can be obtained on application of twenty-five taxpayers in a rural community, a grange or a farmers club, or in the city by any society organized for study.

The books can be kept from three to six months, then they can be returned and another set of the library union will be sent.

The expense to us will have to pay the freight, which will amount to about $5.25 for each set coming and going. We know an established system of this state. It helps the rural reading to the humblest home, and opens up the wealth of literature to everyone. It strengthens and aids all educational systems.

New York was the first state to establish the traveling library; Michigan was the second state; Iowa has adopted the Michigan law almost verbatim. Michigan, with a state library of 1,000,000 books, made accessible to the humblest citizen, is a condition of that very considered ideal.

Any county that wishes to take advantage of this plan can write to Mary E. Spencer, state librarian, Lansing, or to Morell Long, a former resident of Charlevoix, who is clerking in the library department, and the proper blanks will be furnished for starting the work.

WORK OF CONGRESS.

MUCH ACCOMPLISHED IN FIRST TWO WEEKS.

National Legislature Has Been to Its Duties to a Very Marked Consideration in Views at Once to Pending Legislation.

Washington correspondence:

Note: the Congress gets down to business at the beginning of a session in a very businesslike manner that this year. There is opinion that the lawmakers have been content to give good and satisfactory results. In the House, there seems to be a strong all and unanimous the general amount of effective work has been accomplished, the greater at such short office on the other hand the recent other measures still and the recent reduction bill after two weeks of the opening of the session, which may be accomplished in a business and satisfactory fashion. Some of the bills which have accompanied this opening session have been considered in a very good manner. Have been considered in the Procedure.

In the Senate matters things are different. There at the opening proceedings was a very considerable amount of time lost by the group of the discussion of rules, the adoption of which was finally accomplished. COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL

New York—During the last week with have been in the Commerce of the Chicago and the New Indian of Power Company for years, of the conditions of the week, other day or two in consideration. Many of the other causes of the year, and a careful study of the conditions with increasing facts bearing on the general business situation, the Congress of the United States, Congress are suggestions of the and standing on the market, perhaps would have to be high honors. But we are fully of the opinion that the market is the market of money there has been a very marked change in the situation. It will be found that to be successful in speculation, perhaps the most important consideration is a good market. Money is the life blood of the speculative market. The great business of the country is based on credit, and credit is based on money. At the present time the money market is in a very unsatisfactory condition. Money is loaned at high rates of interest, and the demand is very large. The condition of the money market is due to the fact that the supply of money is not sufficient to meet the demand. The supply of money is not sufficient because the banks have been loaning it out to the public, and the demand is very large because the public is borrowing it to carry on its business. The condition of the money market is a very unfavorable one for the speculative market

TREATY IS RATIFIED.

THE SENATE VOTES TO ACCEPT AMENDED AGREEMENT.

Hay-Pauncefote Isthmian Canal Pact Now Provides for the Abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer Treaty, Made Fifty Years Ago.

By a vote of 55 to 18 the Senate Thursday ratified the Hay-Pauncefote isthmian canal treaty. All amendments as agreed upon by the foreign relations committee were voted down. The two minor amendments as adopted by the committee were ratified by all of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty provisions are to cease to be in force. The contract that the adopted treaty carries with it, however, is that the United States is to assume all the canal's duties and obligations which have been imposed upon Great Britain by the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. Mr. Lodge's amendment to the preamble, which was voted down, declared that the United States in adopting the treaty does so with the understanding that the Clayton-Bulwer treaty has become null and void and of no effect. Mr. Lodge's amendment to the treaty itself, which was also voted down, provided that the United States in adopting the treaty does so with the understanding that the Clayton-Bulwer treaty has become null and void and of no effect. The vote on the treaty was taken by yeas and nays, and was as follows:

Yeas—Aldrich, Allison, Bacon, Bard, Beveridge, Burrows, Burton, Chandler, Clark, Cullom, Dillingham, Dolliver, Drake, Elkins, Fairbanks, Foraker, Foster, Frye, Gallinger, Gear, Hale, Hanna, Hansbrough, Harris, Hawley, Hoar, Kean, Kittredge, Lodge, McBride, McComas, McEnery, Mason, Millard, Morgan, Nelson, Pettigrew, Pettus, Platt, Proctor, Pugh, Quay, Sewell, Shoup, Stewart, Tillman, Wolcott—55.

REVIEW OF THE YEAR

BRIEF SUMMARY OF EVENTS OCCURRING IN 1900.

Concluding Year of the Century Made Memorable by Many Important Happenings—Wars, Internal Disturbances, Great Calamities, Etc.

Many and important are the events that make up the chronological record of the closing year of the nineteenth century. The most striking of extraordinary happenings in China, which led to the flight of the emperor to Pekin and the entrance of the allied powers, and the beginning of changes in the governmental affairs of that ancient kingdom, are perhaps the most important events of the world's history which happened during the year. The war in the Philippines and in the Transvaal continued throughout the year, the latter having commenced in October, 1899, and the former in 1899, which dating from the capture of Aguinaldo by Gen. Funston, early in the year, the war in the Philippines was practically ended. The Boer war, however, continued throughout the year, and it was not until the latter part of November that Lord Roberts was able to announce that the war was ended. The Boers, however, continued the guerrilla warfare, and it was not until the latter part of December that Lord Kitchener

The Passing of Finance.

Three years ago the SENTINEL characterized Hanna's Finance as a demagog and a dangerous man to hold the prerogatives of chief executive of a state.

Even then, during his first term as governor, he displayed qualities that were unusually unfriendly and subversive of good government. But the executive of party leaders generally has to answer, and from the end of his second inauguration up to the closing of his career he has shown himself to be a man of demagogic and selfish ideas to a degree that has left a lasting impress upon Ohio.

From the longest engaging and of a financial character he has always proclaimed to the millionaires on an executive level that there was a chance and diagram to Michigan.

Contempt for law and the sanctities of property, disregard of the rights of corporations, utter and profound ignorance of the ever changed and complicated problems of the world of commerce and finance, with the over-riding Angel of Demagoguery, marked his career.

The people of Ohio have had to be taught a lesson. Hanna and party are to be taught a lesson in Michigan. We can do it by giving the affirmative to good citizens irrespective of party, against the wrong and rightly so.

Therefore the SENTINEL advocates, now years ago, and which has been confirmed in time to be largely finished by the record.

Northern Michigan.

First and foremost, I take you back of Lake Superior, and I can assure you that Northern Michigan is a region to be visited and studied by the record.

F. M. SEARS,

THE LEADING CLOTHIER

RISKS WITH ANIMALS.

Lessons Sometimes Not Profitable in Cages with Wild Beasts.

A few days ago a Parisian lorgnetist, for a wager, entered a cage in which three large lions were imprisoned, drank a bottle of wine and played a game of cards with the beasts' trainer. When he was about to leave he thrust a wineglass under the nose of one of the animals and as a result the lion leaped upon the man and mangled him fearfully before the tamer could interfere. The terrible scene was witnessed by a huge audience in a menagerie at a village near Paris. A pretty Irish girl had a queer whim of this nature during the past summer. She had been asked to become the wife of a young solicitor and she promised to give him an answer the next evening in the text of a traveling menagerie at the conclusion of the performance. When the would-be lovelorn arrived on the scene he was thunderstruck to see the young lady smiling sweetly at him behind the bars of a cage in which were two full-grown lions. Although she promised to marry him if he entered the cage he swung round on his heels and disappeared without a word. Herr Hacker of Vienna, an eccentric man of considerable means, took it into his head to spend the last few days of his life in a cage of lions. When he knew his end to be near he had his bed removed into the cage and in this queer bedroom he lay for one week, when he died. During the visit of a menagerie to Salem, Mass., last spring a young lady of 24 made up her mind to enter a tigress' den and in the presence of the savage beasts built a wood for their master. The tigress endeavored to spring upon her when she entered the cage, but the tamer beat them back. Presently they began to fry with the ball of wool that was used in the making of the scarf. The plucky young woman remained in the cage for two hours, and before she left it she placed the scarf she had knitted with her own hands round the tamer's neck.

Efforts Misunderstood.

A Brooklyn woman wants a divorce because her husband flirted with the servants. No wonder the servant question remains unsolved when the efforts of the head of the house to improve the "help" in their occupations are so woefully misconstrued.—Buffalo Courier-American.

Monster Engines Just Built.

Pittsburg Locomotive works have completed two engines which are claimed to be the most powerful and heaviest yet constructed. Each weighs 111½ tons, the tender having a water capacity of 3,000 gallons and a coal capacity of fourteen tons.

DARING SWINDLING

A Fair but Thrilling Hypnotic Corn Game Into Trouble.

A case of daring swindling which was carried out in a very successful manner is reported from Samarl in Sardinia. The heroine of the story is a young and handsome schoolmistress. Although imprisoned for fraud she found her incarceration no obstacle to the accomplishment of other daring operations, making one of her jailers as tools and accomplices. By declaring with the greatest assurity and appearance of truth that she was an majestic personal counterpart and that she was gifted with supernatural powers, enabling her to enrich those who had deserved her gratitude, the girl woman so completely hypnotized four jailers that they became her servants and instruments in a daring conspiracy, the benefits of which a Naples firm was swindled out of nearly a lira. Suspicion was at last aroused, however, and the firm sent a representative to Samari to inquire into the matter. No sooner had the business representative landed at Samari than he was arrested by the police on a complaint alleged on the information of an anonymous letter written by the incarcerated courtesan. After three days passed in prison the representative of the Naples firm produced so convincingly that an invalid gaoler was made and the young man was released. The four jailers are now themselves inmates of the prison, the chief of which is a lady who so nearly succeeded in the amazing swindle.

CREMATION IN JAPAN.

Reasons Why Practice Is Followed in Mikado's Land.

Japan is the country in which cremation is practiced on the largest scale. In an interesting statement made in a hygienic congress, Mr. Yamane, chief quite surgeon of Tokyo, gave the reasons for this practice. The burning of corpses had its beginning in Buddhism, a Buddhist priest is to exile, having been cremated at Mihaka 1,200 years ago. Six years ago four thousand and seventy-nine quite corpses were burned, regardless of the practice of cremation, and today in the municipal of Tokyo alone there are seven crematories. According to the authority quoted, cremation is accomplished in less time in Japan than in other countries. In two or three hours the body is completely reduced to ashes, and that without the slightest odor. Whereas, in European countries there are seven or eight classes of funerals, there are in Japan but five; the prices of which range as follows: $0.40, $2.00, $2.40, $3.00 and $5.00 each. At Kioto and Osaka, as well as in some other cities of Japan, it is estimated that two-thirds of those who die from infectious diseases are cremated, and of others, two-thirds. In 1896 out of 33,833 Cond. 2,342 were burned, and 17,207 or 42 per cent cremated.

To Stamp Bubonic Plague.

It is reported that the New York Board of Health has decided to build at a cost of $70,000, a laboratory to be devoted exclusively to the study of the bubonic plague. Every precaution is to be taken, in the construction to make it rat-proof and insect proof.

Fatty Stillbirth.

Child born made of pale gold tissue and grouped in small clusters of fibroselves, or mingled with white cords of contracting nobil, are the latest Change of the stillbirth world and are tremendously puzzling. The cost of these little triumphs is something quite shocking but nevertheless they are very generally in evidence.

DIGEST OF THE YEAR'S LAWS.

The New York State Library has issued its digest of legislation for 1900, containing the new laws in force. The volume is prepared by Hamilton H. Wilcox, the assistant librarian, and it digests and organizes the laws passed at the last session of the legislature. An interesting feature of the book is a table showing the laws in force on the highways of the state.

There are 1,000 pages of matter in the volume, which is issued as a part of the annual report of the State Library. It is bound in cloth and sheep, and is a very handy and valuable compilation of the laws of the state.

MR. AYERS NOT DEAD.

Very Much Alive and Out with a Letter Telling How He Was Saved.

Mr. Ayers, who has been ill in Brooklyn, has now been down in Mr. A. B. Richards of Gray and been with Hughes, Dickson and Hodgkins ever since the world was. Four dozens gone and two dozen or two, Jones or Brown. Perhaps I forgot to say that Mr. Ayers is a well-known comedy and has been in the business of making people laugh for years. He is located in Buffalo, N. Y., where his letter is dated.

Buffalo, Erie Co., N. Y., Dec. 31, 1899.

Dodds Medicine Co.

Gent:—

I feel it my duty to tell you what Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for me. As far as I can remember I have been troubled with the kidney complaint for many years. I suffered severely with pains across the small of my back, which would settle in my legs, and I would be laid up for days at a time. I had to give up my job, for I was not able to work. I had tried many kinds of medicine, but they did me no good. I was recommended to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I am glad I did so. I have taken six boxes and they have cured me. I am now able to do a day's work, and I feel as well as I ever did in my life. I shall always be a strong believer in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Yours very truly,

A. B. AYERS.

Mr. Ayers is well known throughout the country as a well-to-do man, and his testimonial is a good one. Dodd's Kidney Pills are for sale everywhere, or you can get them by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes, $2.50, from the Dodds Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.

The Grand Rapids and Indiana Railway Company.

The history of the G. R. & I. R. R. Co. dates back to the year 1858, when congress by various acts granted certain alternate sections of the public lands to the building of railroads

To the G. R. & I. R. R. Co a grant was made by the state of 1,100,382-62 acres of the above lands, which were to be used in constructing a first class road from Fort Wayne, in the state of Indiana to some point on Traverse Bay, in the state of Michigan, a distance of 335 miles.

In the fall of 1859 a preliminary survey was ordered from Grand Rapids northward. William P. Innes was the engineer engaged. In June previous congress had made an appropriation of lands to the state of Michigan to aid in the construction of certain railroads of which one was to be a line from Grand Rapids to Grand Traverse, Michigan. Mr. Innes had gone as far north as Newago when the Northern Railroad Co. was organized in Grand Rapids with a capital stock of $150,000 subscribed. This company was an applicant for the land grant and kept a lobby at Lansing during the season in 1859. But in the winter it abandoned its former plans and sold out or consolidated with the Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad Co which had also been organized principally by residents of Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo and Saginaw and has succeeded in securing the grant. Subsequently a further consolidation was made with an Indiana company to extend the road to Fort Wayne.

In January 1857 Engineer Innes made a report in which he estimated the cost of building the road from Grand Rapids to Traverse City, or present northern terminus of G. R. & I. R. R. Co. at $10,000 per mile, Newago $8,000, and to Petoskey $6,000 per mile to Traverse City.

The period of 1857 and subsequent years retarded the progress of the work.

In 1861 congress added to the land grant five miles in width, but the company did not profit by it, being so late in the time that it could be done for several years after its close. The time for the completion of the road was again postponed and a claim was reached in 1865. The company had been marked by poverty in which was added mismanagement.

Over a million of its bonds were sold, and had payable but considerable securities by the holders.

The people were getting tired of waiting and complaining were loud and bitter for keeping the lands out of the market so long. In a hard struggle the road was held to Cedar Springs, the track was laid to Cedar Springs, the road was finished to Paris Springs, the last twelve miles 2 railroad.

The company had suits instituted against it in various places. There was a strong attempt to get the legislature to declare the land grant forfeited and bestow it on another company. At this juncture a trustee, a Dane L. Robinson, was appointed by the president of the United States courts in this state and Pennsylvania, a brief extension of time was obtained of the legislature, and the road was extended to Morley by almost incredible exertions in the part of Benjamin Williams. The grant was saved. Then came the contract with the Ten Oriental Improvement Co. to compete the road.

The statistics which so long delayed the work were finally overcome and cleared over to Co. Rob. I. Railway trains were running seven months in advance of the time required by law, and formally accepted by John J. Bagley, governor of the state of Michigan, Nov. 25th, 1873, as a first class railroad.

The branch from Petoskey to Harbor Springs was completed in 1880, and in the year 1882 the Grand Rapids, Indiana and Mackinac railway company completed a first class railroad from Petoskey to Mackinaw City—a distance of 56 miles.

Charlevoix was one of the counties most affected by the land grant. The grant took every odd section in the county, excepting agricultural, college and state swamp lands, previously separated, and the Indian reservation, which took a strip along the north side from Little Traverse bay to the Cheboygan county line, embracing territory now known as Hayes, Bay, etc. In Charlevoix township the railroad remaining lots in parts of sections 27 and 35. The Upright and Hoffman addition was railroad land and was purchased from the railroad company by Mr. Hoffman about fifteen years ago, after many vain efforts on the part of Charlevoix people to get it. The property known as the Antoine Newaunk place was "squatted" by its present owner previous to its coming into market and purchased by him later.

The splendid 3 acre strip on south State street, (near the cemetery), owned by Carpenter & Hattenhouse, was part of a quarter section down on the railroad reservation, but old Uncle Medad Thompson, whose homestead at the foot of Pine lake adjoined it, and which was purchased as state swamp land, set up a homestead preemption claim, and that beautiful strip of suburban land did not go to swell the railroad company's coffers. Away back in the 70s the chief obstacle to the way of speedy and satisfactory settlement of Charlevoix county was the railroad, and the Indian reservations, and the colonization of those lands to market was the one thing most ardently desired by the pioneers. It came at last, but its claims was a great drawback to the development of our Pine lake region.

Thousands Sent Into Exile.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Bishop Ignatius Mrak, second bishop of the diocese of Sault Ste Marie and Marquette, died at St. Mary's hospital in Marquette, Jan. 2, at the age of 70 years. He was born in Austria, ordained to the priesthood in 1857 and came to America to engage in mission work among the Indians in 1865. At one time he labored among the Indians at Union Village.

Traverse City Eagle: Queer what some people want to buy, or, rather, sell for them want to. Tuesday, a Greater have received 81 volumes of bound registers of the a salmon house at Pickaney. They contain the names of guests from 1864 down to last fall. The registers filled two large boxes. The box also contained them in connection with a suit recently brought by these against Delaware parties.

Traverse City Eagle: Judge J. J. Campbell still holds forth in the office of probate judge of Leelanau county, although Simon Gaulke, his opponent in the late election, made overtures to take possession of the court. Gaulke was left to a small salary on the strictest ticket. The margin was so close that Judge Campbell, who had held the office for 12 years, demanded a recount. The result was a majority for Campbell considerably larger than had counted by Gaulke.

Interesting to every county in northern Michigan is the announcement recently made by Commissioner Henry Wardell that he will sell forty-four thousand apple trees in his orchard, eighteen miles north of Gaylord, that county, as early in the spring as the weather will permit. When this trees were in their prime, Mr. Ward was one of the largest fruit growers in the United States, his orchard then aggregating two hundred acres and ninety-three thousand trees. It has been strenuously maintained during the past several years, by many of the leading fruit growers of the state, that northern Michigan pine stump lands were especially adapted to certain fruits, and the success that has thus far attended Mr Ward's apple orchard strengthens this belief. What Mr. Ward has done in Otsego county can be done in any county in this section of the state.

To that dark door the poor girl hurried, with a cringe strong enough to make one small animal, unfortunate, she determined in my heart, that the man was comfortable in taking taken to the life in the hands of the young. Hardly does using a loud and wings, she slide from the rear of the house and was hurrying off in the direction other a few times ago.

When she recovered she was again in Worcester Hall. Lounge were spread and all was dinner and merriment. The for meals came the sound of clattering cutlery while and voices raised from the throat dishes and ribbons were flying.

She was seated, her tongue in high and raised, and leaves of the salads, in which a man of pleasing humor was engaged, filled the dishes and the guests with laughter from the table.

CAT AT CHURCH.

Takes a Front Seat and Listens to Parsons' Exercises.

In the family of Dr. Alpheus C. Hamlin of Bangor is a handsome black cat of intense size. The cat is fond of relows as the upper in his master's private school. The cat is remarkably intelligent. He is able to open a box of milk as cleanly as the best milk separator ever invented. He has observed the cat in a regular attendant of the Episcopal church—that is, he goes regularly when the family thinks to look him up of a Sunday morning. The congregation at the Episcopal church is now perfectly accustomed to the sight of a sleek, topaz-eyed pussy pattering up the aisle and into the space with in the chancel rail. There the cat sits sedately and listens to the morning lesson. On one occasion he did not exactly catch the drift of the sermon and leaped softly to the pulpit top. It was just the least bit in sound for the venerable and the bar remaining wipe of his vested arm he sent cat to the far side of the sanctuary, were he alighted on four rumbling, two and tipped angrily from the church. But, soon forgiving this insult, puss once more went to church. He sat down in the gallery and began a quite long promenade along the balustrade. Close to the point directly behind the minister he went. He remembered how the minister man had his initiated his cambric before an entire audience of his admirers. He planned a masterful revenge. But eight feet of space below the balustrade were the school members of the choir. The distance was just about right for the leap, and the contented posture of 48 pounds of cat upon a man's shoulders would naturally surprise and ruffle the vicinity to an extent which would require matters. The cat crouched, and an interested audience of worshipers watched the animal as he charpuzzl his claws on the railing in happy anticipation of his little surprise party. He got his balance and received the necessary purchase for an eight-foot straight on the Minister's silver-lined vestments. Then he retreated. He had previously forgiven the man. He would now forget it and. And he carefully measured his way back to the rear left, with also left straight in the air in a spirit of self-laudation. Dr. Hamlin bent over and said kindly to the janitor, who had been an interested witness: "Do have fired H—l the cat had made that jump." And Ed Kirk replied that he was the quick and unexpected manner of the spirit.—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

BRYAN AND GROVER.

THE RIVAL LEADERS OF THE DEMOCRACY

And That Fight for Supremacy—Jefferson and Jackson Would Deny Both of Them—The Real Democratic Party Long Since Dead.

One scarcely could imagine a more ludicrous or less inspiring spectacle than that presented by Grover Cleveland and William J. Bryan in their discussion of the constitutent elements of "true" Democracy. Here are the only two men whom, in more than twenty years the democratic party has had an opportunity to vote into the office of president. The Democrat who was in his prime when the first of these two politicians came on the scene is now a weak and failing old man, and Democracy without Clevelandism or Bryanism in it is hardly more than a tradition. And how humiliating it must be to the rank and file of this once great party to see its erstwhile idoles and heroes belabouring each other through the public prints.

Both Against Protection.

However, it is clear enough that both Mr. Bryan and Mr. Cleveland cannot be right in claiming to have clung closely to Democratic traditions. To just the degree in which they differ, one or the other must be wrong. And it is to this self-evident proposition that the Democratic party is addressing itself at present. Quarrel—each side trying to prove the other wrong—without grasping the fundamental truth that both are in the same boat.

For example, Mr. Cleveland is opposed to the principle of protection to American industries. So is Mr. Bryan. Protection was approved and sustained by all the Democratic fathers. Jefferson indorsed it in all of his messages. The first of the three planks constituting the first platform put out by a Democratic national convention declared unequivocally for the doctrine. Therefore both Cleveland and Bryan have departed radically from the teachings of the founders of their party in sustaining the policy of free trade.

Only Point of Difference.

So far as the records go Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Bryan are again on the question of finance. Now, the question of finance is not the only one which makes for loss or gain to the American people, nor the only one on which they are directing politicians. While president, Mr. Cleveland put in practical effect every policy for which Mr. Bryan stands, with the exception of free silver, and the result was that he almost ruined the country commercially and industrially. If Mr. Bryan had been president he might possibly have made the ruin deeper and brought it quicker with his additional failure of free silver, but he certainly could not have improved on the administration, if he stuck to Democratic lines.

Both Against Expansion.

Today Mr. Bryan and Mr. Cleveland stand together on the same platform with respect to the doctrine of anti-expansion, and both insult the memory of their political progenitors in claiming Democratic tradition as their guide. The chief glory of the Democratic party finds its wellspring in the cause of expansion. We are indebted to the founders of the Democratic party for the greatness and greatness which our country may boast today. If Jefferson had been inspired by the pusillanimous doctrine when Brown wrenched from the stump and which Cleveland advanced with his pen, the United States would have consisted of thirteen small states surrounded on our own continent by rivals and foes. Imagine President Jefferson hauling down the American flag in Hawaii! Or Andrew Jackson, limiting the "sheep" about having no constitutional right to annex Porto Rico.

What Brown Says.

Mr. Bryan accuses Grover Cleveland of having diverted the Democratic party from its time-honored principles, and he invokes the fathers of Democracy to prove it. At the same time Mr. Cleveland accuses Mr. Bryan of having done the same thing, and he also invokes the fathers to prove it. The Democratic party has always been proud of the fathers. In this respect it somewhat resembles the Chinese people, with their ancestor worship and their hate of progress. So it is not to be wondered at if Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Bryan quoted the live and important issues before the American people and assuming through columns about the dead and gone.

Cleveland's Policy Brought Ruin.

The whole truth, not tendered by either Mr. Cleveland or Mr. Bryan, is that the American people are overwhelmingly opposed to the Democratic party in its entire collection of attitudes before the people. If Mr. Cleveland thinks he can bring it back into popularity by patching up a little here with respect to finance, and a little there with respect to something else, he is woefully mistaken. The party is seemingly wrong in most of its fundamental tenets that nothing less than a revolution can hope to reform.

Real Party in Long Shot.

Will the people object to its attitude of reaction or negation, its avowed opposition to all efforts at progress, its narrow and timid conception of the range of government powers, its lack of confidence in the future of the republic, its distrust of American enterprise and American manhood, its tendency Hotnpotlike to do and dare in the theater of the world's action—its total inability to place the "go" there "go" spirit which makes nations as well as individuals

Why the Water Freezes.

Water in a shallow pan, in a sheltered place, will freeze even when the temperature is above the freezing point. THE GOLD STANDARD.

We are thoroughly in accord with those Republican papers that are urging that congress should proceed to place the gold standard beyond the perpetuities of a doubt. The Republican party has been entrusted with that duty. It has made the promise, and that promise must be made good. Of course there will be the usual cry in regard to the impolicy of tinkering with the currency. That is to be expected. But there can be no bad results from giving finish what has already been agreed on. There is no doubt that at the beginning of the campaign a great majority of the people of the United States were firmly convinced that the gold standard was right. That was the original opinion even of Bryanite flags. The declaration of the Democratic platform that would have been of no meaning had been made the issue first directed public attention to the long-notes in the currency law, the measure was examined through the financial microscope and it was discovered that it was not so immaculate as had been supposed. In other words it would cause in the hands of an unfriendly executive without congressional action, the power to place this country practically on a silver basis, to make the public credit, per force, pay a share of silver that would inevitably lead to a panic. There is also no question that the nomination of Mr. Bryan made free coinage and not free silver the issue in the campaign that he would do all in his power if elected to destroy the gold standard was stronger, and which contributed to many people voting for him, who might under other circumstances have voted against him, and thereby helped the Republican cause. It is something that should be taken into account beyond the power of any man.—Ex.

A Geographical Question.

The mayor of Missouri not long ago was travelling westward in a Pullman car. Before the cattleman rides, he began to talk with his neighbor, who proved to be a New York cattle commission. The mayor was broad and in speaking of Irish took the fancy of his companion, who presently said: "Where in hell have I seen you before? The Missouri mayor was the question. "Is that part of hell out here you come from?"—Los Angeles Times.

Doctors in Choice.

When a man of Chesapeake consults a doctor he expects the prescribed medicine to take effect at once. Consequently most of the medical practitioners give pellets for a time that gum-arabic and lot mixture such as Dr. Pierce's Pellets, which remove the system and bring down their threats.

A Fat Position.

William Conger Taft has much through appeared of the house of commons and a Dutch area. The income of this comfortable position drawn in Holland, Eng. and on his retirement from the office gets an annual pension of $1,000 for life. Conger elevated to the peerage. As speaker he is provided with a fine mansion for entertaining on a large scale.

A Voice from the South.

The proposition of the Kansas Populists to form a third party and to welcome Democratic aids is interesting, for it is not impossible that Populists and Democrats in Kansas have practically been one party for several years past and may have both decision to go back to the old parties if they have made three straight defeats. Fine, hardy and wide apart together in unanimity and save something in special expense.

Up Cleveland was twice in supposing the Democratic party was sick of Democrats. Bryan was twice in the second in thinking it stuck enough in to force it back to its Hesiahism.

WEB. DAVIS.

That Nebraska man who has used Webster Davis for three thousand dollars for a speech, and who has the money claims that he incidentally thereby secured the appointment of Webster was quite second secretary of the interior. Yet this Mr. Davis made the visit to South Africa and was received by the Kruger's, Lord Chiney, and was apparently on the most friendly terms with them. He also has lately been visiting the Transvaal and has had an interview with one of the Transvaal commissioners. Webster is a Republican. He is a very pleasant gentleman. Yet he is a very pleasant gentleman. Webster Davis is the Transvaal commissioner that he could not get to the House. There is evidence of duplicity in the Webster Davis. He thinks the betrayed a great child, or assumed a prominent official position, of the commissioners of the Colorado, Colo., he was long he would be treasurer. It makes allegations quite well substantiated he contract, and he tried to hold the man who was the treasurer. Who had acted as his trust. Certainly Mr. Davis has not behaved before the treasurer in a very pleasant position. Yet it is to be hoped that the investigation will be very thorough. There can be no politics in the matter now, and the investigation can be made to the projected matters. It is to be remembered that Nebraska Mr. Webster Davis is best known there in Nebraska, and he is known there as a man who is not honorable in the matter of the Transvaal trouble. We do not know of a single name in his home town that stands up for him. The story that he made a speech there was barring the A. P. A. excitement, and then little or no people listened to it. So what the owner of a Catholic plot is only distinct in Nebraska. He tries money better than anything else when he is in the Kruger's or the public. He has good rhetorical gifts after a good fashion, and he is a good man. He has an equal chance for the Kansas City convention. He is a failure for the Democratic party. He is a disappointed man. He is a Democrat. He is a Democrat. He is a Democrat

THE LEAD

CAT AT CHURCH.

Takes a Front Seat and Listens to Parson's Discourse.

In the family of Dr. Augustus C Harris of Bangor is a handsome black cat, of special size. His big eyes look as yellow as the topaz in his mother's starred cabinet. The cat is unusually intelligent. He is able to lapp a pan of milk as cleanly as the pan will separate over impurities. Like his relatives, the cat is a regular attendant of the Kenosqui churches that is, he goes regularly when the mood impels to look him up of a Sunday morning. The congregation at the Episcopal church is now perfectly hardened to the sight of a sleek, topaz-eyed pussy padding up the aisle and into the space with in the chancel rail. There the cat sits soberly and listens to the morning sermon. On one occasion he did not exactly catch the drift of the lesson and leaped softly to the pulpit top. This was just the least bit too much for the rector and with one fur-reaching wipe of his vested arm he sent the cat to the far side of the sanctuary, were he alighted on four centimeter feet and tiptoed angrily from the church. But, soon forgiving this insult, puss once more went to church. He went into the gallery and began a noisy fuss promenade along the balustrade. Close to the point directly behind the minister he went. He remembered how the confesing man had baffled his cousins before an entire audience of his admirers. He planned a masterful revenge. But eight feet of space below the balustrade were the broad shoulders of the pastor. The distance was just about right for the leap, and the unexpected pounce of 25 pounds of cat upon a black shoulder would naturally surprise and mortify the victim to an extent which would square matters. The cat crouched, and as interrupted anthem of worshipers watched the animal as he sharpened his claws on the railing to happy anticipation of his little surprise party. He set his balance and poured the necessary purchase for an eight-foot claspent on the minister's spotless black vestment. There he relented. He had previously forgiven the man. He would now forget it all. And he carefully balanced his way back to the rear. Out into the aisle strained the air in a storm of self-indulation. Dr. Hamlin heard of the story and said to the janitor who had been an interesting witness: "I'd have given 25 if the cat had made that jump." "And I'd have given another five," was the quick and unexpected answer of the quiet deacon.—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

THE GOLD STANDARD.

We are endeavoring to answer with those Republican papers that are insisting that congress should proceed to place the gold standard beyond the contemporaries of a doubt. The Republican party has been confronted with some some to say more the people, and this question must be made good. Of course there will be the usual cry in regard to the logic of not tinkering with the currency. That is to be expected. But there can be no bad results from covering from what has always been agreed on. There is no doubt that at the beginning of the controversy a great majority of the people of the United States were found that the gold standard was right. That was the original opinion even of Bryanite Dem. The declaration of the Democratic platform that would have been of no meaning for this long time, was done direct contrary to the inspiration in the convention. That measure was examined through the financial campaign, and it was discovered that it was too so Democratic so far from supposed to commend as it would place in the hands of an extremely executive without a single other for congress, the power to place the country practically on a silver basis, to shake the greatest credit, and bring about a state of affairs the world contemplated not in a panic. There is also no question that the discussion of Mr. Bryan made free coinage and not dispatched by him in the last campaign, that he would have, if the power, if elected, to destroy the gold standard was sincere, and that fact let many people voting for him, who might under other circumstances have voted against him, and thereby helped the Republican candidates. It is something that should be treated beyond the power of any man.—Ex.

A Voice from The Plains.

The congress of the Kansas Populists in Topeka last week and the Democratic party is interesting, but it is not the Populists and Democrats from south of Kansas have practically all his arrangements made for the year and they have both dwindled to proportions which have made them insignificant. WEB. DAVIS.

Webb Davis, man who has used Webster Davis for three thousand dollars, is in serious difficulty for the time. Webb claims that, in consideration of the money, Webster Davis was to use his influence in Washington. After this Mr. Davis made his visit to South Africa and secured an audience with the English Colonial Secretary. Webb says that, not until he visited the Transvaal and saw the scientific map of the Transvaal did he realize that he was not equal for the fleece. There is evidence of duplicity all through the affairs of Webb Davis. He betrayed a trust while occupying a prominent official position. If the allegations of the Chicago news are true, he has not honored the English or any other country. Certainly Mr. Webb does not stand before the country in a very pleasant position. It is to be hoped that the investigation will be very thorough. There can be no position in the matter now, and the sooner we know the better it is for the principled masses. It is to be remembered that the Webster Davis who was Webster Davis is not known, when it hardly can be said that he is not, thoroughly or honestly in the matter of the Transvaal scandals. We do not know of a single paper in his home town that stands up for him. The very fact that he was the chief of the A. P. A. excitement and tried to make capital out of it, that he was the victim of a Catholic plot, is hardly disposed but there, the town trouble better than anything else outside the opinions of the public. He has given many gifts after a gushing sort of a style, but he has almost them. His grand stand play in the Kansas City convention was a failure for the reason that the Democrats had explained him for Bryan. Since the Bryan party has not gone off on the standard. They were well aware of the fact that he had tried to get a Democratic through the Philadelphia convention, and that he succeeded in this, he would have been one of the estimated of 20,000 sentiment. One of the great facts remembered by the Republican party this year was getting rid of such men as Webster Davis. Webb Davis is a man who, if he is not, he was in failing hair to such men.—Ex.

INJUNCTION SERVED

Chas. W. Ward Objects to Executors' Work.

ENJOINS THEM FROM BUILDING THE CHARLEVOIX RAILWAY.

Detroit Journal: The ward heirs are not emulating the example of their deceased millionaire who during his life never sought a lawsuit, for that is what they are doing, or, at least, what one of them is doing—notably Chas. W. Ward of Queens, N. Y.

Judge George W. Smith, at his request, granted an injunction last Saturday restraining the executors of the David Ward estate from making contracts or proceeding further with the construction of a railway in West Virginia, from proceeding further in building the proposed Charlevoix Detroit railway, and from further operations concerning a mammoth sawmill at Manistique.

In his bill of complaint, filed through his attorneys, John H. Patterson of Dunkirk, and Edwin F. Cooley of Detroit, Charles W. Ward says that the operations which the executors of the estate propose will result in a direct loss to the estate of over a million dollars and an indirect loss of much more.

On the 4th of the present month the executors of the estate, Willis C. Ward, Franklin B. Ward and George K. Hoest, obtained a charter for the Charlevoix Detroit railway, in conjunction with Fred Stewart of Detroit, Fred L. Ward of Bay City, Chas. Dickens, Frank P. Glass and Robert Chamberlain. These gentlemen fix the capitalization of $250,000, that 25 per cent of the stock has been paid in.

Charles W. Ward claims that the money paid in estate money, that nothing has been paid in save out of the estate, and that the executors have no right to use it in the manner in such a way as shall tend to the injuriate beneficiaries.

The contractors of the Charlevoix road would do so, as it would greatly facilitate the shipment of our lumber. To put, that Chas W. Ward has not varm from the injunction which has been temporarily granted. He is moved in continuance. We shall be able to see changes through the proper channels at the proper time."

The injunction granted by Judge Smith was a temporary one, and last Saturday has been set as the date of hearing, which seems to enlarge its power to further restrain the executors will be heard.

To Modify the Game Laws.

State Game Warden Morse will, in his report this year, recommend some radical changes in the game laws for the protection of deer. Incredible as it may seem, even to dyed-in-the-wool sportsmen, the state game warden says that during the past season there were more than 12,000 deer killed in the state. Records of shipments show that 5,000 deer were sent from the upper peninsula across the straits alone.

A day or so before the season opened it became known that the game became and easily tracked and was killed by the hundreds during the first few weeks, and more than 50 per cent of these deer were does or fawns.

Under the present laws the hunter is allowed to kill five deer, the only restriction being that they must not be sent out of the state. The market will, for reason sid, as a result, the great portion of deer hunting is now a matter of personal gain with hunters.

To protect the deer of the state Mr. Morse will recommend a law absolutely prohibiting the sale or giving away of deer. This will confine the sport to the families who remain the region and to the tourists who are good sport enough to leave some of the game for others.

HOTEL COLLAPSED.

The Big Frankfort Hotel Fell Down Yesterday Morning.

At four o'clock yesterday morning the big summer hotel under construction at Frankfort collapsed, and is an utter ruin. The hotel was closed in and ready for the window frames.

Concerning as it did, early in the morning, no one was injured.

Chas. H. Dipple of this place, was one of the workmen on the big hotel building.

The significant feature of the disaster is that Charles Hoerth was the contractor. Mr. Hoerth had charge of the construction of the Inn at this place when it collapsed in October, 1895. In that case he was only the superintendent, and lost nothing. In the Frankfort case he was the contractor, and loses $15,000.

In the Inn disaster here there were three killed and several injured, and the feeling against Mr. Hoerth was intense. It is extremely fortunate for him that there was no loss of life at Frankfort.

East Jordan Herald: H. W. King, a former well known business man of East Jordan, died at his home at Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 27th.

East Jordan Enterprise: The David Ward estate will commence building docks on their extensive water front holdings on the other side of the arm early the coming season.

The Northport Leader says: "In regard to the probable judgments against the people of Leelanau county may ask a great jury to make a few investigations in regard to it."

The Ann Arbor railroad has offered a price of $25 a cord to any of the employes who suggests the best source for the same fuel which the company is offering at Frankfort.

Considerable interest is being manifested again in the proposed railroad from Alpena westward across the state, connecting somewhere with the G. R. & I.

The East Jordan Lumber Co. propose to connect their railroad with the Pere Marquette at Bellaire, and begin operations early this spring, visiting the village of East Jordan pine up 15,000. A special election will be called to vote on the proposition.

Lumbermen are amazed over the prices of frozen peach buds. It is said that the buds went into the winter in a worse condition than they have for many years. A peculiar feature of it is that the trees along the lake are in a worse condition than the trees further inland. It is accounted for by the fact that it was very late in the fall, nearly Thanksgiving time, before a frost sufficiently severe to stop the growth of buds formed the orchards near the lake.

The school census of Petoskey, taken Thursday night of Petoskey, reveals Charles Lawrence's department store with a $15,000 stock of goods and Mr. Barlow's dry goods house with a $15,000 stock, the loss approximating $25,000, with about $22,000 insurance. The rest of the block, worth more than $150,000, was saved. The stores in the Sawyer block were damaged $1,000, with full insurance. Little Will, the jeweler, Judge Fairbanks, Dr. Gamble, the U. C. Force Mfg. & Sash, Hanson hall, the Herald and Herald rooms and insurance and real estate loss full about $8,000 by fire, smoke and water.

Charles T. Wright, the Bonne county lumberman-murderer, who was released from Jackson prison under a parole issued by the late Governor Pingree, is now in Wisconsin spending a few weeks with relatives. From there he will probably return to the scene of his crime and begin the preparation of his defense of the second charge of murder, for which he will answer in the Bonne county circuit court some time during the present year. It is said a warrant is now in the hands of the sheriff and will be served himself upon the expiration of the parole, although the statement is made by friends of Wright that he will never again be arrested.

Frankfort villagers are divided into hostile camps and the death of war has been sounded—all because of inability to agree upon a name for the new hotel the Ann Arbor R'y company is building. Concerning as it did, early in the morning, no one was injured.

Chas. H. Dipple of this place, was one of the workmen on the big hotel building.

The significant feature of the disaster is that Charles Hoerth was the contractor. Mr. Hoerth had charge of the construction of the Inn at this place when it collapsed in October, 1895. In that case he was only the superintendent, and lost nothing. In the Frankfort case he was the contractor, and loses $15,000.

In the Inn disaster here there were three killed and several injured, and the feeling against Mr. Hoerth was intense. It is extremely fortunate for him that there was no loss of life at Frankfort.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The basin of Crystal Lake will add an issue of the Herald.

The first art passed by the new legislature and receiving the signature of Gov. Hiss was the Charlevoix bridge bond act.

East Jordan Herald: H. W. King, a former well known business man of East Jordan, died at his home at Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 27th.

East Jordan Enterprise: The David Ward estate will commence building docks on their extensive water front holdings on the other side of the arm early the coming season.

The Northport Leader says: "In regard to the probable judgments against the people of Leelanau county may ask a great jury to make a few investigations in regard to it."

The Ann Arbor railroad has offered a price of $25 a cord to any of the employes who suggests the best source for the same fuel which the company is offering at Frankfort.

Considerable interest is being manifested again in the proposed railroad from Alpena westward across the state, connecting somewhere with the G. R. & I.

The East Jordan Lumber Co. propose to connect their railroad with the Pere Marquette at Bellaire, and begin operations early this spring, visiting the village of East Jordan pine up 15,000. A special election will be called to vote on the proposition.

Lumbermen are amazed over the prices of frozen peach buds. It is said that the buds went into the winter in a worse condition than they have for many years. A peculiar feature of it is that the trees along the lake are in a worse condition than the trees further inland. It is accounted for by the fact that it was very late in the fall, nearly Thanksgiving time, before a frost sufficiently severe to stop the growth of buds formed the orchards near the lake.

The school census of Petoskey, taken Thursday night of Petoskey, reveals Charles Lawrence's department store with a $15,000 stock of goods and Mr. Barlow's dry goods house with a $15,000 stock, the loss approximating $25,000, with about $22,000 insurance. The rest of the block, worth more than $150,000, was saved. The stores in the Sawyer block were damaged $1,000, with full insurance. Little Will, the jeweler, Judge Fairbanks, Dr. Gamble, the U. C. Force Mfg. & Sash, Hanson hall, the Herald and Herald rooms and insurance and real estate loss full about $8,000 by fire, smoke and water.

Charles T. Wright, the Bonne county lumberman-murderer, who was released from Jackson prison under a parole issued by the late Gov. Pingree, is now in Wisconsin spending a few weeks with relatives. From there he will probably return to the scene of his crime and begin the preparation of his defense of the second charge of murder, for which he will answer in the Bonne county circuit court some time during the present year. It is said a warrant is now in the hands of the sheriff and will be served himself upon the expiration of the parole, although the statement is made by friends of Wright that he will never again be arrested.

Frankfort villagers are divided into hostile camps and the death of war has been sounded—all because of inability to agree upon a name for the new hotel the Ann Arbor R'y company is building. The Pilgrim have not been named to name the hotel, nor have they been invited to participate in the christening, but this does not

"Do you mean that Washington and his army are going to retreat?"

"Yes, Molly, we are going to retreat as fast as we can, and we shall be lucky if we get to Princeton in time to save our army from being cut to pieces."

"Oh, Mr. Dennis, I am so sorry! Why do you think so?"

"Because I know the British have twice our number, and they are well fed and clothed, while our men are half starved and half naked, and they have no shoes to their feet, and they are sick and dispirited, and they have lost every battle they have fought since they left New York, and they are tired of being whipped."

"Why, Mr. Dennis, you talk as if you were a Tory!"

"I am not a Tory, but I am a man who can see and hear and think for himself, and I know what I see and hear and think."

"Do you think we shall be whipped?"

"I think we shall be whipped if we stay here much longer, and I think we shall be whipped if we do not stay here much longer."

"Why, Mr. Dennis, what do you mean?"

"I mean that if we do not get out of this place in a very short time we will be surrounded by the British and cut to pieces or taken prisoners."

"Why, Mr. Dennis, I never heard you talk so before. I never thought you were a coward."

"I am not a coward, Molly, and I do not think I am a fool either, but I know what I know, and I see what I see, and I think what I think, and I do not care who knows it or who sees it or who thinks it."

"Why, Mr. Dennis, I never heard you talk so before. What has got into you?"

"Molly, I have been in the army for more than a year, and I have seen and heard and learned a great deal since I left my home in Philadelphia to join the army. I have learned that the British are well fed and well clothed and well disciplined, and that they have twice our number, and that they are fighting for a king, and that we are fighting for our lives, and that we are half starved and half naked, and that our men are sick and dispirited, and that they have lost every battle they have fought since they left New York, and that they are tired of being whipped, and that we are going to be whipped if we do not get out of this place in a very short time."

Any one of his friends was always a welcome guest in Mr. Jolly's library, but he intended he should extend the privilege. With this idea in view he added day by day to his collection of books until now they number nearly volumes. For a man who is a book keeper to collect such a large number of interesting books was a hard task. Every week he has seen his collection grow, but not with the speed that he desired. His daily paper he noted, and scanning the best of magazines he culled from their numbers each evening the interesting discussions on current topics and arranged scores of books with statistical data. With such aims he found his clippings into book form and he has collected a valuable and interesting amount of reading. At the present time Dr. Jolly has more than 200 of his books in circulation. During the afternoon hours his daughter answers the ring of the door bell and furnishes callers with a book in the evening Mr. Jolly is in charge of the free library, with a pleasant word and a few moments conversation. Mr. Jolly's but asks his friends and neighbors to use care in handling the books, "so others can secure some benefit from them."

Sir Patrick Pulteney's Footings.

It is a remarkable coincidence that Sir Patrick Pulteney, the founder of the Tay Tiver, should have had the same office which his son has now been called on to fill. The senior Pulteney was made Minister to Greece in 1771 in President Grant and held the office for three years, resigning to return to active newspaper work. The son, succeeding the father as editor and proprietor of the Times, is now chosen to occupy the same post.

TYPHOID GERMS.

They Are Killed by Intersteaming, Says a Physician.

Now, when there is so much talk of typhoid fever, all choice is turned to the Crooked Disease city of Lowell. Dr. J. O. Mallelieu of Indiana has advanced a theory in regard to the causes of the self-infliction of the fever which Dewey receives publicity in the Medical Journal. He believes that the germs which govern typhoid fever, namely that constant, are killed by the results in too vigorous to grow, so finally there comes a time when the bodily good in the case of power-seeing organisms. In typhoid fever it is fair to assume, he thinks, that there are new production cases in the human hosts, since there is a reasonable and wide variation of temperature and one degree during that time. Typhoid germs, of course, are short lived within and of itself, and the successive reproduction the succeeding cases also typhoid fever is a particular case in point. If a patient be infected with typhoid germs the attack would be mild. Now that in cases in malignancy may have been infected with three spores the result resulting in increased vigor. Repeated intersteaming would of course end in failure to reproduce, but owing to the severity and propagation of the attack the patient's vitality may end first.

SALT SAVES A LIFE.

AGED PATIENT RESTORED BY SALINE INFUSION.

Hamilton, Ohio, Physicians, Experiments with Vein Introduction Results in Wonderful Recovery Of Man Who Had Been Dead 45 Minutes.

At Hamilton, Ohio, a man died from asphyxiation. He was pronounced dead by the physicians, who had tried for 45 minutes to restore life. Physicians had left the house, when a friend of the family, who had witnessed the death, telephoned for a physician, who hurried to the house and injected a saline solution into the veins of the man. The man opened his eyes and asked what was the matter. The man was given a dose of whisky and was able to walk up to his bed unassisted. The man was Thomas Jones, who on the home news from Dayton, Ohio, was found with his wife dead from gas. He was taken to the home of his brother, Thomas Jones, where he lay dead for 45 minutes. The man was formerly a resident of Dayton, Ohio, and moved to Hamilton about two years ago. He is 45 years old. The man was found by his wife dead in the morning. Physicians were called and pronounced him dead. The man was taken to his home and a friend went for a physician, who hurried to the house. Physicians tried for 45 minutes to restore life, when the man was pronounced dead. The man's wife died in the afternoon. Physicians say the man's death was due to asphyxiation from illuminating gas. The man's wife was found by her husband dead in her room. The man's wife was a sister of Mrs. Thomas Jones, of this city. ADJUDGED INSANE.

Charles H. Ferguson, of Chicago and Northwood, Sent to an Asylum.

Special Dispatch to the Inter-Ocean.

LOUISVILLE, KY., Jan. 17.—Chas. H. Ferguson, who is said to be a prominent and wealthy Chicago lumber man, was on Tuesday adjudged insane by Judge Barker in the Circuit court here. An air of mystery surrounds the case, as all the parties concerned have made strenuous efforts to avoid publicity. It is known that Mr. Ferguson has been placed in the Beechcroft sanitarium here for treatment. No entry was made on the court records to show where he was sent, and the officials, including Judge Barker, declined to throw any light on the matter. The only information concerning the case given out by the court was contained in the brief memorandum given to reporters, which said:

"Charles H. Ferguson, aged 45, insane, caused by close application to business." Colonel Bennett H. Young who appeared in court in behalf of Mrs. Ferguson, discussed the subject by saying: "The old man is a little off for a while, and there is nothing in the case to interest the public. His name is C. H. Ferguson, but I do not care to go into details." He declined to explain why such care was taken to observe secrecy in the case.

FERGUSON'S MISTAKE.

Chas. H. Ferguson has for many years been one of the leading insurance men of the West. He had been chosen as president twice in this city and the National Association of Life Underwriters.

It has been known to his friends for some months that he was in failing health, and he was obliged last May to give up the state agency for the Mutual Life insurance company of New York, after having been connected with the company for nearly thirty years. Since then he has many friends in the Union League, Calumet, Germania, Hyde Park, Chicago Athletic, and Washington Park clubs, to all of whom he belonged, have seen less and less of him. The manner in his malady has been known to very few outside of his family, however, and they have maintained a strict silence.

When the evidences of mental trouble were observed Mr. Ferguson was sent to West Baden Springs on Jan. 7, under the care of his physician, Dr. Dessoine Lewis, in the hope that complete rest would bring about recovery. On Friday of last week his condition became such that it was deemed prudent to place him in a place of treatment at once. Louisville was chosen, because Mr. Ferguson has many friends there, and because it was more convenient to the springs than Chicago. He was taken at once to the Beechcroft sanitarium, and placed in charge of Drs. Reynolds and Stone, of Lexington, who declared that, in view of his apparent constitution, with care and quiet he might possibly recover. The sons of Mr. Ferguson who followed him to Louisville, called the attention of the Louisville court to the case, and George M. Ferguson was appointed his conservator.

HIS WEALTH EXAGGERATED.

Few business men in Chicago leave a wider circle of acquaintances than Mr. Ferguson, and few more popular warm friends. He was born in Oswego, N. Y., Aug. 13, 1856, and when a mere boy enlisted as a private in the 1st A. Thirty-Ninth Wisconsin Volunteers, in which he served throughout the war. He was married in 1870 to Miss Sarah L. Miller of Auburn, N. Y. He was a member of Apollo commandery, Knights Templar, and of the Mystic Shrine, a life member of the Scottish regiment, and honorary to the Royal Arch, Caledonian, and Scotch Irish societies of Chicago.

Mr. Ferguson's little sons are all well known in the clubs and in society. The eldest, George Miller Ferguson, has a handsome home at No. 140 Dearborn, and is a stock broker with offices in the Royal Insurance building. He is a leading member of the Washington Park and Union clubs, and in 1897 was secretary of the Calumet club. James L. Ferguson and Charles H. Ferguson, Jr., the other two sons, are both prominent society. They are partners in the insurance business, having the Northern Illinois Agency for the Prudential company, with offices in the Merchant's Loan and Trust Company building. Both reside in Kenilworth.

Charles H. Ferguson, Jr., who was seen at his office yesterday, naturally was averse to talking of the misfortune that had befallen his father.

"I went to Louisville with my father and my brothers last week," said he. "My father's trouble was a form of paresis, and was due to his years of overwork. He never thought of taking a vacation and was at his desk early and late. We prevailed upon him to give up his agency for the Mutual Life last May in the hope that he would not work so hard thereafter, but in spite of all we could do he grew worse."

George M. and James L. Ferguson returned from Louisville yesterday afternoon. They said the physicians held out strong hopes of the ultimate recovery of their father.

A Deep Mystery.

It is a mystery why women endure backache, headache, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, fainting and dizzy spells when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for years with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Phebe Cheney of Peterson, Ia., "and a same back pained me so that I could not dress myself, but Electric Bitters wholly cured me and, although 70 years old, I now am able to do all my housework." It overcomes constipation, improves appetite, gives perfect health. Only 50c. at F. G. Hixon & Co's drug store.

Northwood Notes.

Mrs. A. E. Cameron has been visiting at Central Lake the past week.

Rev. Aylesworth is holding a series of meetings at Harmony.

Parker McIntyre and wife, who have been visiting their son Walter in Fortuna, Cal., arrived home last Thursday.

The mill started up Monday, but closed down again for want of logs.

The sick are all improving now and there are no new cases.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEW, COMM'R.

In the beginning of the fifth grade the child has reached the period at which writing should be studied as an art. The first work of succeeding grades is to secure smooth and rapid movements. Exact forms of letters is not therefore of the most importance.

Copy books should be used primarily after drill to show daily progress. For common practice use practice paper without copies. At the beginning of the term have each pupil write a sentence of "Axiomatic" and each succeeding month rewrite it preserving for comparison. These may be pasted on a yard of black cambric and hung upon the wall for public inspection.

No weight of the body should rest upon the arm that does the writing, but the body should be supported by the muscles upon the opposite side. For instance, if a person writes with the right hand, the left foot should rest firmly upon the floor and the body be sustained by the muscles of the left side of the body.

Practice the muscular or forearm movement. This means that the arm should move upon the muscles and the fingers retain an unbroken position.

Practice this movement each day with nothing in the hand, then with pen or pencil, making short straight lines.

Practice the following:

1. Sloping and sterling while tracing a line.
2. Combination of straight and curved lines.
3. Regular following movement of ovals.
4. Counting for pupils so that a regular movement will be acquired.

An exercise is valuable in proportion as it is material. Give, therefore, few movements, but master them.

The fact that good penmanship can be acquired only by persistent practice must not be overlooked.

The teacher must take time to give these drills. Some of the teachers are doing excellent work along these lines, and some have lost their places in the school room because they could not find time to teach penmanship.

One of the amusing features of the probate judge controversy in Leelanau is the fact that both judge Campbell and Mr. Goethe are holding court. Mr. Goethe held a session the first Monday in January and Mr. Campbell the first Tuesday this month. Both transacted business and were addressed as judges. The ballot boxes, it is openly charged, showed unusual use of having been tampered with at the time of the recount.

Petoskey Democrat: On Tuesday of this week articles of co-partnership were entered into which establish The J. H. Miller Co., an outgrowth of the firm of J. H. Miller & Co. Owing to a much needed rest, Mr. J. N. Pasmakbecker, who has been manager since the death of Mr. J. H. Miller, has retired. The members of the firm as now constituted are, Mrs. C. E. Miller, Carrel J. Miller, Winnifred Miller, and Albert T. Washburne, with Mr. Washburne as general manager. Mr. Washburne also retains the active management of the Petoskey Bag M'f'g and Carpet Co., Ltd., an institution which has had a remarkable growth as the result of his energy and direction.

Wellington R. Burt, president of the Ann Arbor railroad, said lately that the bridge at Frankfort will be rebuilt, but cannot tell when. They have estimated the damages at from four to five thousand dollars. The principal damage will be in the delay in the completion of the building, as it is doubtful if the hotel will be in shape in time for the resort season. When asked if contractor Hoertz would have to stand the damages he said that the question is undecided. General Manager Ashley was interviewed later. He said that the work of rebuilding the hotel will not be commenced for four or five months. The building is a total wreck. No blame is attached to anybody.

Traverse City Eagle: Daniel Leake, the lumberman, arrived in the city last evening with a bride. The wedding is in the way of a surprise as when Mr. Dake left the city two weeks ago he had confided to some of his business associates that he contemplated matrimony. The bride is Miss Jessie Jane Gordon, of Cleveland, formerly Mr. Dake's stenographer in this city. The ceremony took place at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gordon, and was performed by Rev. Herbert H. Westwood, pastor of the First Independent church, of Cleveland. Mr. Dake came here three years ago to enter Mr. Dake's employ as stenographer, accompanied by her parents, who returned to Cleveland about two years ago.

Stones to Atoms.

The old idea that the body sometimes needs a powerful, drastic, purgative pill has been exploded; for Dr. King's New Life Pills, which are perfective purgatives, gently stimulate liver and bowels to expel poisonous matter, cleanse the system and absolutely cure constipation and sick headache. Things Which Will Surprise Us.

There are many curious things about X-rays, which seem to puzzle even the scientists. Professor Hopkins, who has been making experiments with them at Home, says that the transmitting of a solid element to the eye is a function of its visibility to the X-rays. The rays can not see through glass, which is transparent to the eye, whereas aluminum, which is opaque to the eye, is transparent to the X-rays. The rays can see a splinter of glass in the hand, but not a splinter of wood. Most rules are transparent to the X-rays, including primitive ink, but some of them are opaque. The rays can see through a pseudo-document and if a paper with words written on it be put in the middle of the document the rays will see these words and nothing beside them.

Springfield Pays $1,032,000 Taxes.

Franklin Morton, who has been tax collector of Springfield, Mass., for 41 years, will retire at the close of his present term because of poor health. When Mr. Morton assumed his duties as collector the total sum collected was less than $100000; the collections for last year were $1,032,000.

English Twice "So Mode."

Over in England "to order" and "to name" are both recognized verbs. We find the Pall Mall Gazette saying: "In New York they more fortunately." The adjectival "made" is now also applied to an aerial auto which will be in service about 1905 or so.

Wisconsin a Sheep State.

If one half the men who are now meditating settlement in the "burnt" lands of north Wisconsin, really do settle there, and take their flocks with them, it will be the Indian sheep country this side of sundown.—American Sheep Breeder.

Widening of London Bridge.

The widening of London bridge will be one of the most impressive street alterations that modern London has witnessed. It is proposed to increase its normal width of the bridge, the space now represented by the bays which cover above the piers. The space so gained will be given to the footways on either side.

Egypt's Influence Over Queen.

The King of Spain has not yet been able to show either his taste or his pluck in riding, for his mother is so nervous about it that she did not even like to see him getting on mule on his wooden horse. The fear of the riding lesson on the real thing is always one of anxiety for the royal. They say that this fear comes from a premonition which was once made to her by a gypsy.

Sunday Laws in Honolulu.

Sunday laws are strictly enforced in Honolulu. Not only are all saloons and bars kept tightly closed, and stores forbidden to sell, but anyone who attempts to play ball or indulge in any other sport on Sunday is arrested before a magistrate to pay a fine or go to jail.

Remedy for Nervous Dyspepsia.

A prominent medical journal says the best treatment for nervous dyspepsia is "at least three weeks of absolute rest in bed in some comfortable away from home, together with a full diet."

Annual Tax Sales.

In this issue we publish, by supplement form, the annual tax sales for taxes of 1900 and previous years.

—Work is progressing on the new Rowe dock, on Pine Lake.

—A large delegation of Charlevoix Gold Men go up to Petoskey tonight on a return call to that lodge.

—"Christian Endeavor Day" will be observed by appropriate exercises at the Congregational church next Sunday evening.

—Lieut. Swallow, son of Charles Swallow, of this place, recently stationed in the regular army at Chicago, and is already on his way to the Philippines.

—On Sunday afternoon next, the new Congregational church at Ellsworth will be dedicated. Rev. Dr. Hystop, of this place, will preach the dedicatory sermon.

—Rev. Father Kelly with horses of the court house the evening of February 6th in the high school course. Father Kelly was an army chaplain in Cuba during the Spanish war, and the lecture will be one of the most interesting in the course. We hope to see a large attendance.

—Don't lose sight of the skating privilege offered by the SENTINEL. To a new subscriber or to any old subscriber who pays one year in advance, we will send the SENTINEL and the New York Weekly Tribune, for $1.75, or the Sentinel and the Weekly Tribune for $2.25. It is a great offer and should be taken advantage of.

—Mrs. H. Ferguson, of whose mental affliction we published a long article last week, died at Lake City, Mich., Tuesday night. And this shows the life of an genial and kindly a man as ever graded a school or drew brief in Michigan. Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson possessed a beautiful summer home at Norwood, and had many friends here, who will long cherish the memory of their sunny smiles and pleasant greetings.

—The south end of the business part of Charlevoix was the scene of a strife between a dog and team of one traveling man and the former came out ahead, after attempting to track Mr. Fido dog to business—but he would not "go home." Although Dell and Henry each had a pocketful of ammunition refused to be "broke." Dell nearly procured a shot gun and had to give him a lift on the way" but he held another. The man thinks that "broke" was the expression that was used after the battle became over.

—The state tonsorial union gives one that knocked the unions to cards by actually possessing without money or the benefit of clergy any and every man or woman detected in shaving himself from the state books. It is to be hoped that the tonsorial agent will make good his threat and lock down with the act of the law upon the rough with a view of the parole demanded under his arm. The statute is not enough—but the jury is the bulwark of humanity, but has ever been the stickly enforced.

—There is an evil in Charlevoix that is more dangerous than shaving, inasmuch it is more insipient, and consequently more obscure. Boys' shooting in out of the way places are another matter at town that are business of evil to those away from parental supervisions, good boys make other boys bad, are not as good, and well, the moment get no better—and the good boys are apt to drop their manhood. Young juvenile dens are schools for cigarette smoking etc., card playing, and from them boys graduate to the other places that harbors a licensed hatter. If the W. C. T. U., or the Anti-Saloon League, or the professional reformer, would go down from their work of reforming the near and, by moral suasion, or cold water, crush the nests where the evil conditions are as hatched, the public would effect some, in the reformation of the coming generation of men, at least, be more profitable. Get down to the earth and stop scaring in the skies, straighten the crooked ways and the will be more steady. The sentiment of these "charities" make them just the place for impure literature and the planting of impure thoughts in the minds of the young. Have you thought of it?

—R. H. Smith & Son have a change of ad which should interest our readers.

—Special commencement of Charlevoix Lodge No. 76, F. & A. M., next Tuesday evening. The 32d work on first degree.

—The W. C. T. U. ladies will give a supper at the K. P. hall on Lincoln's birthday, Feb. 12. Chicken pie and other good things. Fine program.

—There will be no regular meeting of Romeo school district under the auspices of Harmony Grange on Friday evening, February 8th. Come all.

—The Harbor Springs party a very pleasant ten pin Tuesday afternoon and evening in honor of Miss Jessie Mrs. Stanton, of Petoskey, who showed in their all the wood.

—Members of the High school. At present are requested to attend a meeting at school building at the hour of begin the evening session. If possible to good, you will be particular. Interested.

—There will be a grand masquerade ball at Lewis opera house on the night of February 14th. In connection with the ball, and preceding it, there will be a wonderful entertainment, with a good program. A good exhibition will furnish the music.

—The Gaslight has a prize for the shapest a pleasant and perfect Jack Tolle. The owner, who lives in Lake Traverse City, and who has had the prize many years, valued it at $25, but the Dauber lately secured it for $50. There are very few genuine nutmegs, and the Gaslight, and Tolle Dauber has a prize.

—Louis Rusty Slambert, formerly a trader in packing his library for shipment to Charlevoix, where he has decided to locate for the practice of his profession. Mr. Rusty is a young man of high character, and of some best legal attainments, and has enjoyed in his own home well and long the esteem of their confidence in the ability of Slambert to his line.

—On Saturday evening of this week the Charlevoix branch of the National Temperance Union will be in session at Lake Bellaire. Still that will be one of the most interesting events of the year. Delegates from all the temperance societies in this county will be in attendance.

—The south end of the business part of Charlevoix was the scene of a strife between a dog and team of one traveling man and the former came out ahead, after attempting to track Mr. Fido dog to business—but he would not "go home." Although Dell and Henry each had a pocketful of ammunition refused to be "broke." Dell nearly procured a shot gun and had to give him a lift on the way" but he held another. The man thinks that "broke" was the expression that was used after the battle became over.

—The state tonsorial union gives one that knocked the unions to cards by actually possessing without money or the benefit of clergy any and every man or woman detected in shaving himself from the state books. It is to be hoped that the tonsorial agent will make good his threat and lock down with the act of the law upon the rough with a view of the parole demanded under his arm. The statute is not enough—but the jury is the bulwark of humanity, but has ever been the stickly enforced.

Get down to the earth and stop scaring in the skies, straighten the crooked ways and the will be more steady. The sentiment of these "charities" make them just the place for impure literature and the planting of impure thoughts in the minds of the young. Have you thought of it?

—Mrs. D. F. Mesch and Mrs. H. W. Hallock give an afternoon party to a number of their lady friends, at the home of Mrs. Hallock to-day.

—Farmer the clean man, has a new ad this week. Other new ads. that are all worthy of notice, are those of Dr. Bowen, Chapell & Morse, and Jones & Jefferson.

—Charlevoix Chapter, No. 141, R. A. M., holds its past meeting to-night (Thursday) for the election of officers under the provisions of its charter, which was received yesterday.

—Logs still continue to go across the swing bridge, and the probability is that some of the out will be in before that structure is torn up. The boys, Dell and Henry, are crowding the hoof with this end in view.

—At the Congregational church last Sunday evening Dr. Hyslop, the pastor, delivered a written and several verbal reports, paid his respects to the book entitled "Crossing the Dark Sea of Doubt." He said he did not consider it a proper book to be placed in the hands of the young. The book itself, he said, was sensational, and the book fully corresponded with the title.

This Man is Not a Country Editor—Honor.

Hesse Cove, Mich., Jan. 26, 1901.

Mr. Friend "Bee" Harker of Reed City (Dan Cupid, handed me today a clipping from your paper. The clipping expressed your opinion of a certain book, "From the Hell Room to Heaven." Now, sir, I know what I thought of the book and your criticism.

If you please, the answer I gave him I would like to give you.

You, in my humble opinion, did not speak in terms that, no doubt, you said. The book is not only indecent, and it positively falls in what it attempts to do. To my personal knowledge, it has been sent persons to the hell room expecting to experience some of the one things it suggests, and they have come away—shall I say—disappointed. I am not one who differ from one dance, but I would talent my boys would go to the dance than read a book like this. The time spent in the dance, all things are pure, but to the defiled nothing is pure."

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEW, COMM'R.

We are glad to note that our effort to make the compulsory school law effective in this county has met with success in many sections. The result is a larger attendance in the schools this year.

We quote from School Inspector Smith's report of the work done in South Arm township: "I have had much more attendance in every district except one. I have visited almost every district in the township, and have found the most of them in good order. I also visited regularly those which were either not going at or very irregularly. I found ten of the non-going in school and the others so irregularly it amounted to non-attendance, one boy of 14, who never went to school at all. I employed a physician to examine two children whom their parents claimed were weak, that is, a girl of 14, the doctor requested to be perfectly well, and she entered school the next day. The other was a boy of 14 whose the doctor pronounced slightly ill. I believe the sickness to be a tender excuse, and I think the boy will be in school soon."

School Inspector Smith has done a healthy degree of work in his district. He will never find such conditions existing again.

We expect to receive a good report from men transit officers.

Let the benefits of our schools extend to every person for whom they were intended. When the means are adopted to respect the law there is no trouble in enforcing the law.

NOTICE.—I have in my barn sheep which I would like to let some farmer take to double. Any one wishing the same will apply to Japan Wants Those Who Know and Love the Sign.

[illegible] Japan feel toward the missionaries, it seems that they are welcomed by Japan and Yokohama [illegible] unless they show themselves to be sent on our [illegible] America's greatest need is more missionaries. We welcome them and we love them. Our prayers are of them who cannot [illegible] the Christian [illegible] and advancement in every line of our civilization, being upon account to ignore all merits on the part of other foreigners as well as of the Japanese, and the people at large. There's not to add those who are fortunate enough to determine everything Japanese as barbarous, Japanese even their old ceremonies of marriages and funerals as against the Christian teachings. Beware not to send those who make themselves so exceedingly free of grace, but pioneers of international good-will and practical Christianity. Young men who come to Japan should make a living in their own country, but who go here simply because they can drive six horses with a thousand dollars a year, without anything to do but occasionally teaching the English Bible to some half-a-dozen young men who come to them simply for learning English. Send us those only—those who know an evangelist which we love as a Paul did the Roman, who to become even such colonist and part of our own nation, thus exterminating all the source of international discordance. Consider their lives really in the welfare of their brethren, brothers or they may call be. If not your humanitarian aims and God-like intention, yet offer well for and a portion of good for a great harm and misery not only to us but to the cause of universal peace and the kingdom of the Lord."

Secretary Hoit the Train.

It is related of Lord Rosebery that he once arranged to meet a friend at a country railroad station. The train stopping to travel in the same direction. The train arrived, but his friend was still over half a mile away. Though the carriage could be seen coming as fast as the horses could gallop. Lord Rosebery vainly entreated the station master to hold the train for a few minutes, and on a last resort set down on the rails in front of the engine, refusing to budge until his friend was on the platform.

To Preserve Nuts.

The Indiana Department gives the preservation of nuts for a long time in good condition. Select only perfect good nuts. In cold water, then dissolve it in two ounces of borax and water with half a pound of cord strap. Wash the nuts in two quarts of water and add to the two quarts clear and strained of the borax. Let them stand overnight. Then put two pounds of alum in five gallons of water, and when it is boiling add enough to dissolve the borax. Let the nuts stand in this for 24 hours. Then put and repack in a strong decoction of ash leaves. Then put in barrels and dry. Use enough of the alum water and enough water to cover the nuts. Put other remedies in the barrel. Nuts treated in this way have been kept for years.

IN COLONIAL TIMES.

Wealth of Gouge Washington and Charles Carroll compared.

One of the most difficult things to the world is the ability to realize new conditions, to divest the mind back to a day which has gone. To measure stand aright the conditions and actions of the fathers of the American republic. It is a corollary to know what they could and thought and what and their means of livelihood were. Prof. E. Fischer of the University of Chicago, has lent a hand in the Expansion of the Auxiliary Pioneer" an account of the rudest man of revolutionary times, which is worth considering. Probably the man who was been off to all the thirteen colonies for a considerable time was George Washington. He travelled from the Inclose Lawrence the home estate Mount Vernon with four sets of good lines on the Potomac. His services in the Indian wars brought him to the front of land bounties, part of them earned by himself and part purchased from his companions in the various expeditions, with his investments in land bounties, equal 20,000 acres. His services to the Ohio Company gave him her estate amounting to 10,000 acres of land, slaves, and 300 slaves and between $5,000 and $6,000 in money—the fact the equivalent of some $1,000,000 in interest-bearing securities today. And the death of Mrs. Washington's daughter gave him about $100,000 more. Then Washington was more than a millionaire, as far as income goes now. Charles Carroll of Carrollton, one of the signers of the declaration of independence, had an income of $14,000 and great expectations from his father as well. Wealth there were realized later by his eldest heir of Mr. Washington.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.

From the Sunny South.

OCOLA, Fla., Jan. 22, 1901.

Editor SENTINEL:

I write this letter for the purpose of giving you and your readers a brief account of my journey and how I am getting along in the sunny south.

I left the frosty country of "Charlevoix the Beautiful," on January 8, and, on reaching Cincinnati, I did not feel like traveling further without a rest so I tumbled in that city, and continued my journey Monday, arriving at Rock Ledge, Fla., on Tuesday night.

On leaving Cincinnati I began taking notes. The train that pulled me southward on the Queen and Crescent R'y is known as the "limited," which averages 51 miles per hour. It is said that the Q. & C. road between Cincinnati, and Chattanooga, Tenn., is the best equipped and smoothest railroad in the south. From the rear coach one sees a line of glittering rail, indicating yard tracks, tanks and crossings—the illusion I have ever witnessed. Soon after pulling out of the great depot at Cincinnati the train passes under the Chesapeake and Ohio railway bridge that spans the Ohio river.

The first place you see out on the Q. & C. line is Ludlow, Ky., a little burg of 3,000 population—and to me it looked about that many years old. Lexington, the first place of any size, has about 30,000 inhabitants, it is 80 miles from Cincinnati. It also looked ancient. We now leave "Old Kentucky" after having passed through 27 tunnels, which afford some very striking and beautiful scenery.

As we left the tunnels to the distance the trails was swarming in an inch freight swiftly into Tennessee. Soon after entering the latter state we are whirling through what is known as "the valley of the Tennessee," the foot hills on the plains below being plainly visible. They tell me they contain very rich deposits of iron ore, which is extensively mined. Next we cross the Tennessee river, the bridge over which being 1801 feet long and 69 feet above the water. Looking to the left Lookout mountain looms up, and presently the whole of Missionary Ridge battlefield comes into view.

We arrive at Chattanooga on time; population 35,000. I could not see much to interest me. Every person does what I see around, is as civilized and happy to be alive, not hurried or worried. I think the train stopped there to give the passengers a chance to refreed, the inner man, for I was as full of mountain scenery that I cared to for one day.

I omitted to speak of the trip over the Cumberland mountains, which I enjoyed greatly. It was simply awe inspiring through forests, into tunnels, over and under bridges all the way. And, talk about the broken back pike country of upper Michigan, it is grand in comparison to those barren wastes of the blue grass region. Occasionally you see a negro shack or a store that looked as though he had seen better days; no farms. Peasin tree were quite in evidence—the only crop that seems to thrive here. A cotton field, minus the cotton, was another desolate picture. I do would wonder how the people eke out an existence—I confess it is a mystery.

The country between Atlanta, Ga., and Jacksonville, Fla., is about the same as I have just described. I would have liked to stop off at Jacksonville, but did not, and consequently cannot tell anything interesting or otherwise.

I think this country would be just the place for an editor. I am informed that white folks never work down here. I believe it is a paradise for those troubled with "that tired feeling.—(I feel somewhat at home myself.) When the whites have anything to do that means hire with they hire a colored man, paying about 25c per day and, in my opinion, they pay him all he earns.

We now arrive at St. Augustine, a very pretty city judging from a view through the car window. Now the trainmen cry "Fort Orange," and I fly my kite for the station—standing there rubbering—you, expecting to see the familiar mug of someone from Charlevoix, but say rubber was not elastic enough, and, as I had a ticket for Rock Ledge, I had to move without seeing anyone I knew from the frozen north.

We soon pulled into the station at Rock Ledge, which is about 75 miles from Fort Orange, and I think it is as perfect a winter country as there is under the sun. Oranges, pineapples, bananas, grape fruit, and all kinds of garden truck in abundance. Orange trees along the roadsides; they think it nothing uncommon to use them as a hitching post. The beautiful mockaniles (that we are all so proud of in Charlevoix) are used here to make hedge fences. Large palms of every description grow wild.

Speaking of game! Well, I cannot find words with which to tell my experience, and I have had hardly got my "hunting clothes" properly hitched at that. I have had quail, duck, pigeon and gray squirrel—all my own killing, too. I am informed that back in the woods three miles there is a plenty of deer and bear. I have approved several kinds of salt water fish, but in my liking they are not a mark or compared with the kind we pull in out of the Michigan waters.

I expressed a box of fruit home to day that I picked myself, and I would suggest that our friends call at "the Turf Exchange" and sample a genuine, hand-picked, Florida orange. If the fruit is under cover just remind me of the subscription that you have been invited in Harry, through the SENTINEL, to step in and get out with a sample of the fruit picked when the man wasn't lookin'. If they refuse you give me at once and an order to cut and a replevind to them will be forwarded by freight immediately.

I could write all day about the winter in the south suffice to say it is an ideal resting season. During the day the thermometer hovers at about 70. The nights are cool, you can sleep under the covers very comfortably.

I came here for my health, and I think I have found it, for I had not been here in days when I felt a decided improvement. I am now eight pounds heavier than when I left for north.

I am about the time you reach the end of this letter you will need a man twice of those oranges mentioned above. With regards to all, I am

Hardy Meekins.

A Deer Mystery.

It is a mystery why women endure backache, headache, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, fainting and dizzy spells when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for years with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Louisa Chorley of Pine Bluff, Ia., "and I never back pained me so I could not dress myself, but Electric Bitters wholly cured me and, although 75 years old, I now am able to do all my housework." It overcomes constipation, improves appetite, gives perfect health. Only 50c., at F. G. Hixon & Co.'s drug store.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The sleighing is good in all parts of northern Michigan and is being taken advantage of.

O. F. Sheffield, a pioneer of Cross Village, died last Saturday. Funeral was held Monday and was largely attended, Knights of Pythias and Maccabees from Petoskey and Harbor Springs being in attendance.

Harbor Independent: Last Friday the deal was consummated which transferred the agricultural implement business of George H. Dole to Smallegan & Smith, the produce dealers.

Traverse City claims to have a resident who has lived in three centuries, and who claims he is good for another hundred or more. The centenarian claims to be 107 years old. He must have been born when he was quite young.

East Jordan Herald: Died, January 22, at his home in Maple Stone, at the age of 26, Sarah Elizabeth, wife of Charles Lincoln, a conductor on the Northern Pacific. Deceased was born near Advance, in this county, and was a daughter of Wm. Sisley.

Senator Gould has introduced a resolutioning bill in the house which would place Grand Traverse county in the eleventh congressional district, with the following other counties: Manistee, Benzie, Kalkaska, Antrim, Leelanau, Charlevoix, Mackinac & Chippewa, Luce, Schoolcraft and Delta.

The old Pere Marquette dagmun at Traverse City parted with some of his official dignity, patches of his skin and his confidence in human nature the other day when, having signaled a train to halt in the presence on an approaching engine, the driver—himself narrowly missing a collision—drove over the diagmun and escaped. The old man moved his staff from death by rolling from the track.

The Soo Democrat declines to pose any longer as a Democrat in a half Republican, and has changed its name to Herald, added new material and machinery to its plant and turn from the party grave to announce that all church and society notices must be paid for in advance. The editor has done with printing a $5 notice for a 15 cent ticket to a society supper, whose two oysters purchased for the occasion confer together and wonder "what they wanted of both us."

The Mackinac park commission held a meeting at Detroit last Saturday morning to take action in connection with the enabling act passed by the legislature authorizing the commission to establish a water works plant, an electric light plant and a sewage system on Mackinac island. After some little discussion a resolution was passed granting Herbert C. Noble, Frank C. Andrews, Homer Warren et al, of Detroit, the franchise for the electrical lighting and water works privilege, subject to the approval of the board. They were told that the contracts would be signed as soon as the legal papers were made out and that the governor would undoubtedly sign them. The approximate cost of the construction of the three systems is $100,000. The plans are now ready and work is to be commenced early next month. It is proposed to have the water works plant ready by July 1, and the electric light plant by July 15.

Capt. Wm. Hollister, well known in Charlevoix, formerly master of the steamer Petoskey, and now commander of the Inter-Ocean steamer Inkster, passed to Windsor on one of the unfortunate ones who have seen their death notices printed in the papers. It was announced in the Traverse City papers last week that he had died at Milwaukee, and a sailor friend visiting in Charlevoix wrote his wife a letter of sympathy. It turned out that it was another Capt. Hollister, who died, who was years ago alternate with Capt. Wm. Hollister on the run from Chicago to Charlevoix, in one of the grain carriers. Capt. Wm. Hollister, who "died many times" between Chicago and Charlevoix, is now in good health and spirits, and is still "Boss Hoss and chief waiter of 1900."

The executors of the estate of the late David Ward have filed their answer to the bill of complaint made by Charles W. Ward. After disclaiming the various projects referred to in the complaint in detail and undertaking to show their necessity and the lack of speculative motive, the executors go on to say: "They admit that they have not consulted with the said C. W. Ward upon the formation of the Kewaunee & Elk Railway Co., nor upon the formation of the Detroit & Charlevoix Railroad Co., nor with reference to the erection and construction of said mill, but these defendants aver that under the power and authority vested in them by the last will of David Ward they were under no legal obligation to consult him in reference thereto." The executors claim that Ward's bill was not filed on account of any real apprehension that his interests were in danger, but on purpose as a piece of malicious and persecution growing out of his disappointment and resentment at not being made one of the executors and trustees of his father's will.

Hollister, well known in Charlevoix, formerly master of the steamer Petoskey, and now commander of the Inter-Ocean steamer Inkster, passed to Windsor on one of the unfortunate ones who have seen their death notices printed in the papers. It was announced in the Traverse City papers last week that he had died at Milwaukee, and a sailor friend visiting in Charlevoix wrote his wife a letter of sympathy. It turned out that it was another Capt. Hollister, who died, who was years ago alternate with Capt. Wm. Hollister on the run from Chicago to Charlevoix, in one of the grain carriers. Capt. Wm. Hollister, who "died many times" between Chicago and Charlevoix, is now in good health and spirits, and is still "Boss Hoss and chief waiter of 1900."

The executors of the estate of the late David Ward have filed their answer to the bill of complaint made by Charles W. Ward. After disclaiming the various projects referred to in the complaint in detail and undertaking to show their necessity and the lack of speculative motive, the executors go on to say: "They admit that they have not consulted with the said C. W. Ward upon the formation of the Kewaunee & Elk Railway Co., nor upon the formation of the Detroit & Charlevoix Railroad Co., nor with reference to the erection and construction of said mill, but these defendants aver that under the power and authority vested in them by the last will of David Ward they were under no legal obligation to consult him in reference thereto." The executors claim that Ward's bill was not filed on account of any real apprehension that his interests were in danger, but on purpose as a piece of malicious and persecution growing out of his disappointment and resentment at not being made one of the executors and trustees of his father's will.

Dr. Ida Mae Ashley, of Petoskey, has been appointed assistant physician at the state insane asylum at Kalamazoo, to take the place of Dr. Ida Mae Ashley, of Petoskey, who

THE DUTY ON HIDES.

HOW IT AFFECTS SHOE MEN AND CATTLE RAISERS.

Some Conflicting Views—This Should Not Be Removed—Aids the Country's National and Export Trade—Both Sides in the Controversy Heard.

The fact that there are two sides to every question has always been particularly emphasized during the agitation for and against the removal of the duty on hides. Here we have the shoe manufacturers of New England unanimously asking for the duty on hides as an element necessary to the manufacturing business. Speaking for the interest the Boston Commercial Bulletin on an article entitled "The Hide Duty Must Go," says:

A few years ago it did not matter much whether there was a duty on hides or not, as foreign producers were making shoes in the old methods and therefore could not produce a good shoe for sale at the American market at a price low enough to keep somewhat out of their markets. Now, however, the situation has changed. Foreign manufacturers have visited our factories and seen the results obtained with up-to-date American machinery. This has caused them to fit out their factories with our machinery, and they have even gone so far as to engage American workmen to teach their men the proper way to obtain the best results. All this has resulted much strongly than ever to the fact that the duty on hides must be taken off if we expect trade is to be given a chance to grow.

It is all idle to argue that this duty is for real. Now when this was imposed the hide manufacturers were doubtless asked for the boon on the plea that if the duty was made on hides coming in from foreign countries and a whole lot of 25 per cent is allowed by the government. This makes it possible for the foreign shoe manufacturer to buy our leather from us at the best price, because the manufacturers in this country can buy it. Now when the producer is obliged to pay from 2 to 25 per cent more for leather material used in this country than a foreign buyer has to pay for the same leather, it is certainly high time that something was done by congress to remove such a state of affairs, and the only step that can be taken is to strike from the tariff list this outdated duty.

"A protective tariff is a good thing in many ways, but when this protection discriminates against American industries, as it has in this case, the responsibility in question should be placed on the free list."

The only people benefited by this duty are a few Western and Southern cattle raisers, and these selfish men are not only the manufacturers but the entire public as well. The cattle growers of this country are not benefited by this duty as they sell their cattle on the hoof, and therefore do not make hides. While ... exports of cattle amounted to about 81 ... than 1,000,000 head last year ... the ... of cattle ... the ... Hide Duty Must Go." ... Hides ... Hides ... Hides

ROB AN EXPRESS CAR.

THIEVES DO A CLEVER JOB IN THE EAST.

Miscellaneous Freight in the Valuable Room in Baltimore Bloodhounds Put on Auto Department Trains in Minnesota Family.

A gang of Italian express robbers succeeded in the early hours of Friday morning in robbing the Adams Express Company of a large amount of valuable freight while the train was standing in the Baltimore & Ohio station at Baltimore, Md. The robbers entered the car by the door on the south side of the station platform, and, after overpowering the night watchman, who was asleep, they made their way through the car, taking with them a number of packages of valuable freight. The robbers were not discovered until the train had left the station and had gone some distance on its way to Washington. The alarm was then given and the train was stopped at Bladensburg, Md., while a search was made for the robbers. The search was fruitless, however, and the train was allowed to proceed to Washington. It is said that the booty secured by the robbers will reach a large sum of money. The Italian gang is well known to the police of Baltimore, and it is believed that the robbery was the work of some of the members of the gang who have been working in Baltimore for some time past. The Adams Express Company has offered a reward of $1,000 for the arrest and conviction of the robbers.

BLOODHOUNDS ON THE TRAIL.

Minneapolis, Minn., Special.—The family of Frank Ricci, who were murdered near Hibbing, in the northern part of this state, last week, by a band of Italians, who robbed the victims of $3,000, were buried here yesterday afternoon. The murders were committed by a band of Italians who had been working on the Mesabi range of iron mines for some time. The murderers secured about $3,000 in money and valuables from their victims, and then fled to the woods. A posse of about 100 men, with bloodhounds, followed the murderers into the woods, but they succeeded in eluding their pursuers and escaped. The Ricci family, consisting of the father, mother and three children, were found in their cabin by a neighbor who had been sent to their home to see why they had not been at their work for several days. The man who found the family dead at once notified the sheriff of Lake county, and a posse was at once organized and started for the cabin. The posse was accompanied by a pack of bloodhounds, and the animals were allowed to take the trail. The hounds took the trail at the cabin door and followed it for a mile and a half, when they lost it in a small stream of water. The posse then returned to the cabin and searched the premises for the murderers' trail, but could not find it. The murders were committed with axes, and the victims were all cut and hacked in a horrible manner. The house was ransacked, and everything was turned upside down, as if the murderers were searching for something of value. The victims of the murders were all well-to-do people, and had a large amount of money in their possession, which they had secured from the sale of their property in Italy. The murderers are supposed to be members of a band of Italians who have been working on the Mesabi range for some time past, and who have been known to the police of Duluth and other cities in the northern part of the state as a gang of desperadoes.

WEST INDIANS IN MUTINY.

Troops Break Out of Barracks and St. Helena, and Threaten Inhabitants.

The West Indian troops stationed on the island of St. Helena, where Napoleon Bonaparte was once a prisoner, and which is now the place of confinement of the Boer prisoners, mutinied recently, and the town threatened the inhabitants of the island of some trouble. Some officers were also badly injured when fired on by the mutinous soldiers. The outbreak occurred at the town, and the alarm was sounded by bugle. The bugle became confused, however, and instead of sounding the call to arms, it sounded the call to quarters, and the men, instead of rushing to their arms, ran to their barracks. The officers, who were asleep in the barracks, were fired on by the mutinous soldiers, and several of them were badly injured. The mutinous soldiers then left the barracks and formed in the town square. The officers at the barracks, fearing that the town would be fired by the mutinous soldiers, ordered the men back to their barracks, and succeeded in getting them back without firing the town. The mutinous soldiers then left the town and went to the woods, where they remained for some time. The officers then succeeded in rallying the men, and, after a short time, they succeeded in getting the men back to their barracks. The mutinous soldiers then returned to the town, and were quiet

L. S. SEE.

From The Dispatches.

SAN FRANCISCO, C. I., Dec. 6, 1891.

DEAR UNCLE AY HOMY.—As you know I am still at San Francisco, still holding down the printing. No change have as yet been made in the station and duties of this regiment Company "A" was sore at a move, and is still at Lokoskey Contest.

Some time ago private Henderson, of the hospital corps, was made assisting steward and transferred to Hotsons and the hospital corps now gives a banquet which I attended. To a stag party we had a very pleasant time. He would win a saint, also one of the dinner we had at the hand the amount of two men leaving for Manila to catch a transport, one man discharged and one retired; the band had their dinner a day in advance, and Thanksgiving day I went with a couple of friends down to Mission parade, received by Companies "F" and "I," their regiment, and had another swell "feed" and in the evening the men gave a variety show, attended by Generals Gresham, commanding Fifth Dist., Capt. Cook, Harrison Commander, commanding station at Mission his wife, and the General's staff and garrison officers. The standard stage of course had the front row of seats and appear ed to enjoy themselves as well as the rest of us.

Expect we will have a double hanging here some of these days. Wednesday a lieutenant and seven enlisted men of his gang who have been terrorizing the natives, several of whom they have murdered for alleged sympathy with the Americanos. Two of the bodies were recently exhumed, and brought in and buried. One of them, who was bound and buried alive, was in a condition to be identified by relatives. It seemed to have dried up. The other had been buried in a shallow grave and the dogs dug the body up, with the result that there was only a pack of bones left.

They can shove off of the gang over the road, and the lieutenant and probably one more of them are likely to swing. The band is going down to Lokoskey for Christmas and I shall go along if I can get a pass. I am going to print bits of fare for the company and suppose we will have a swell time.

The officers are noting their families up here and I think that means a pretty permanent stay here. We are having elegant weather here now. The rains are about over. Enough we got an occasional shower, and the nights are cool and pleasant. A person can easily sleep under a blanket.

Bill West, of the band, has sent to Sandling for his wife and children and I guess Old Thurlo is messing up his mind to settle down and make their at home. Well, if we only had some of the opportunities of the States, it wouldn't be half bad.

While at Modoc I received a photo of that other Gov. A McCartney, which I will send you.

Mail came this morning. It was a very large one, probably the last before Christmas. 1140 sacks on one transport. This regiment got 22 sacks and four of us worked nearly two hours sorting it down to the companies. Some mother thoughtfully sent me by some blackberry jam put up in a tin box. The cover of course came off the box and the sugar sank to half was in a sticky condition. Some other mother sent some canned salmon—for a soldier just four points worse than pork and beans, because it is a very prominent feature of the mural ration, and when on the march and in cases of emergency the men make a meal out of salmon and hardtack and salmon, until the sight of a salmon can make a yellow feel as if he had just got up from a Thanksgiving dinner and never was hungry or sick day.

Write and write again soon.

It has been asserted by competent authorities that the most deposits of northern Michigan extend in value the forests of pine and hardwood now so rapidly disappearing before the onslaught of the woodsman.

Burke, Vilas go to Congress.

Burke, Vilas is bound to lead a new ticket. A stock company has been formed and $10,000 is already subscribed toward the building and it is expected that $10,000 more will be subscribed in Chicago. A $40,000 hotel is projected and it is to be in readiness for the opening tourist next season.

The other morning, at Petoskey, the American Express Co. presented a clerk on D. Ven Patten at the First National bank in underwear. The check was for $450 and the people to John Sidney, and was presented at the express office in Thoroughfare by a man who signed himself W. Williams. Cashier Lawton at once detected a forgery and sent word to the express agent at Bonneville to pick the man, and Deputy Sheriff Hitchings went down and arrested the swell.

BISMARCK'S LETTERS.

Iron Chancellor Had Poets Soul Beneath Hawk Exterior.

The recently published letters of Bismarck to his wife show that the iron Chancellor had the soul of a poet beneath the harsh exterior of the soldier and statesman. The letters are idyllic in their outpourings of tenderness and in their description of nature, while the light, graceful touches of philosophy regarding human affairs show that a nature of velvet was encased in steel. These short but expressive letters written by Bismarck undoubtedly show the man, while his poetic record shows the machine. Yet the public will doubtless continue to judge the real Bismarck by the standard of the artificial. The brief glimpse of the poet-philosopher, disclosed by the posthumous publication, will soon be replaced by the familiar picture of the iron-handed Bismarck, with no thought beyond the course of the ship of state. Bismarck's life is not the only example of an inner nucleus for the sake of state. Few public men can cut off the restraint that comes with prominence in the sight of the people. They find that it is easier to improve with the machine much of statesman or imperturbability, rather than to give free rein to fancy and expression. Lincoln was one of those rare beings whose simplicity of soul and whose tenderly humorous view of life could not be kept back by the dignity of statesmanship. His inner life was not a veiled mask to be opened after his death, and in consequence there is evidenced more of love than of awe when his image is revealed. Lincoln's life suggests that man can be himself at all times, but seemingly the lesson has been lost upon man. It is the commonly accepted view that one cannot be natural and be great. Bismarck's character of soldier is evidenced in the letters where the politics and the sentiments of it rail. The mistress of the pen proves that the sorry science of artificiality in public life should be shelved as a Pandemonium reserve to the heart's office.—Detroit Tribune.

CENTURY'S GROWTH.

Remarkable Increase in Population and in Business.

The actual increase of population in the 10 years is about 12,225,000. The rate of increase in the period from 1880 to 1890 averaged six 7½ per cent each year. The rate for the past 10 years has been about 2 1-10 per cent annually. The diminishing in the rate is in considerable part due to the diminished volume of immigration. The individual effectiveness of the American population is so high that in respect to material resources and power it will be conceded to every one that the United States is well in the forefront of the nations. The aggregate of the British Empire is such that, in a comparison of population, resources and other statistical data, there is no more impressive fact than that Great Britain and the United States have been the most noteworthy features of the age. When Plato modeled his ideal state, independence her population was at least five or six times as great as ours. There is now just twice as great a body of very age, city population was 10 per 10,000 less than the total of the 63 locations of Great Britain and Ireland, and now it is about double that number. In 1776 Indeed, several can, in time, be much more than ours. We have a population of 60,000,000, and the British Empire will have about 45, 000,000. And we shall then have more business than some nations in the world. Consult—Prof. Thomas Dwight in the Popular Science Monthly.

We Are of the Opinion

That your Uncle David Ward was not the only bluffer of that name who preceded or came after him.

That the Ward nest will continue to be an Gladstone pre-ignition when the present generation of Wards are picking harps in the bottomless heaven.

That we shall go to East Jordan by rail, via Bellaire, about next July, and congratulate our sister town on her good fortune.

That the talked of paving of Bridge street in this village is a very desirable improvement, too.

That a permanent sewer must precede the paving and therefore the project is yet pleasant.

That the showing made by the city waterworks is exceedingly gratifying, and

That it indicates that this plant, in connection with the public lighting plant, will, ere long, pay a respectable profit.

That the combined plant is one that Charlevoix is proud of.

That our water for domestic purposes is literally the "nectar of the gods," and

That our fire protection is assuredly passed in Michigan in our town up to 10,000 population.

That the art of progress is slowly, but, nevertheless, steadily moving forward in Charlevoix, but

That united effort on the part of our people to push the car at a livelier pace is lacking.

That we are behind other northern Michigan towns in the amount of local energy expended in that regard.

That the mass and cohesion are be gaining to gather again, and

That we need a good lively shaking up to a proper sense of duty and propriety.

That it is not always true that the "wind sow gets the wool," but

That as a rule, the early bird gets the worm.

Had to Convince or Die.

I was just about gone," writes Mrs. Rima Richardson of Laurel Springs, N. C., "I had consumption so bad that the best doctors said I could not live more than a month, and I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery, and was wholly cured by seven bottles and am now about well and well." Its six-third life saver in consumption, pneumonia, la grippe and bronchitis. Infallible for coughs, coughs, colds, hay fever, croup or whooping cough. Guaranteed sold by druggists. Trial bottles free at E. G. Hines & Co's drug store.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The Harris at Green Bay will run the steamer Delaware between Green Bay and Mackinac Island the coming season.

Representative Curtis has given notice of a bill providing for the holding of the terms of the circuit court of Emmet county at Petoskey.

The governor approved the bill last week authorizing the people of the town to vote on the proposition to be set bonds to rebuild the south Arm bridge.

The rose company works plant at Elk Rapids started up Feb. 7. The first employment is of 30 hands, but this number will be greatly increased in a short time.

Traverse City has given a franchise to Webber & McCagher of Iowa for a gas lighting plant. The work on the plant has begun and it is thought the investment will aggregate pretty near $50,000.

Petoskey Record: When Mayor Wachtel was in St. Ignace recently, Hon. M. Chambers related to him the following humorous incident in the life of Hon. H. Merrill. "Years ago, when Mr. Merrill was in his prime, a schooner was storm-driven from the Straits to Sturgeon Bay, where it was wrecked, the crew clinging to the masts, which were projecting from the water. Gently shoulder, from his home in Omer Village, saw this with the aid of a pair of field glasses. Hastily summoning several Indians, they entered a boat. Shoulder himself pulled the oars during the trip, and the entire crew were rescued." Such was the life of Hon. Merrill. Knowing so earthly fear he was always happiest when helping others. This story of a darker deed could be supplemented by a score of others, all contributing to his glory.

The decision of Judge Smith in the Ward estate injunction case, which was made Feb. 5, is evidently a compromise and is reported as follows in a Pontiac special to the Detroit Evening News: "Judge Smith has handed down his opinion in the Ward controversy. The preliminary injunction is dissolved as far as the construction of the two railroads is concerned, the judge holding that the answer of the defendants disclaims any intention of constructing the roads. The complainant is given permission to move for another injunction if he can show that the answer of the defendants is sinister." This means that Post Jim will give up looking for the Ward road, and make a certainty of the Salve branch.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHAPIN, COMMR.

Every young teacher and old teacher and those preparing to teach should possess a copy of "The art of Study," a manual for teachers and students of teaching, by B. A. Hinsdale, late professor of the science and art of teaching, published by Am. Book Co. The book reviewer says:

According to Dr. Hinsdale, teaching is the primal art and learning is the secondary. The teacher's function is to assist the pupil to learn. The pupil comes his habits of study which preparing his lessons, he acquires his art of study, some actually studying, and it is the duty of the teacher to assist him to gain facility in the exercise of this art, based on sound principles.

The art of study is much misunderstood and neglected, and there are current today in schools many conditions which result in defects and weaknesses in the pupils.

In the first stage of school education there is not a single homogeneous form or type of work, which is learning on the side of the pupil and teaching on the side of the teacher. In the good school the pupil and teacher work together, the pupil seeking to learn and the teacher aiding to help him in the most direct way possible. The author believes that this simple type of work passes away too early, that the teacher and the pupil should not separate so soon, but should continue to work together and not simply touch hands at the assignment and recitation of lessons.

The book is rich in practical suggestions for the guidance of the teacher, and devotes several chapters to rules and hints which will be of great assistance to the pupil also.

Thoroughness is shown to be a positive relative matter, and insistence is based upon the fact that it is as great a fad to be, pupils progress to rapidly too much of him as it is to require too little.

It is all necessary to diversify the regimen of the ordinary school in order to show that the foregoing ideas, if carried into practice, would bring about a new and and greatly to be desired readjustment of ideas, work and methods.

We should have pupils striving to learn and teachers trying to help them instead of as is too often the case: pupils making little or no effort to learn and teachers trying, apparently, to save them that session.

Although the book is addressed particularly to teachers and students of teaching it has a far wider interest than is represented by the teachers' profession, as it appeals to all persons directly interested in the education of children.

A Fearless Lion Cub.

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bishop, a conductor on the line of Burlington, Iowa, "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up I got a bottle of Electric Bitters and after taking it I felt as well as I ever did in my life." Weak, nervous, run down people always gain new life, strength and vigor from their use. Try them, satisfaction guaranteed by F. E. Hines & Co. Price 50c.

A local paragraph said in Monday's issue that there was some stir in financial circles in the vicinity of the corner of Michigan Ave. and Jackson Boulevard. Some 200 people had gathered in the North Western Savings Bank, the institution which, only the day before, had closed its doors. It was said that the cashier had absconded with the bank's funds, and that the bank was insolvent. Now the facts are known. The cashier, Frank W. Peabody, has been discovered, with the exception of a few days, for the last twenty years, to be a defaulter to the institution in the amount of $200,000 or more. He has been in the employ of the bank for twenty-five years, and for the last twenty years has been its cashier. He is married, and his family, consisting of his wife and two children, live in a handsome residence on Michigan Ave. Mr. Peabody is a member of the Second Presbyterian church, and is a man who has been considered a model in his family and among his acquaintances. He is a man who has been very active in his business, and who has been considered a shrewd, keen, business man

ALUM OR BORAX.

It is Cool to Washing Powder is Bad.

Borax is an excellent washing powder. The women of Belgrade and Hungary use it for their washing, then and they narrow that indigo spoil in the use of borax, being a neutral salt, does not injure the most delicate fabric. Women in whom borax has fixed dandruff is recommended to wash the roots of hair and all parts of scalds, burns, frosted, sunburnt and blisters. If red, from the sun, washed with borax, cleanse at once, they will not scald. Scurvy which is made by using a compound of borax and two table spoonfuls of vinegar, also an extra glass of hot water. Kissing children's faces the morning water is said to make their fragrant that is the clothing kisses free of well only children. A little borax put in the water with which windows are washed will make the panes more easily. It is also good for toilets. If morning toilet the tumbler they can be improved by flooding the crevices with powdered borax. Borax sprinkled on cockroaches and ants which are hard to kill in a few minutes of death, solved in water, cleanse by immersing in strong borax water for several hours. The water should be boiled when the silver is put in. Borax is also used for toilet purposes. Washing out the mouth with it makes the breath purer and sweeter. It eliminates the fatty, but only a very little should be used, as it makes the soap dry. The hair should also be washed in borax after wards in clear water. Borax cold water is very convenient in the house. Hold it. It made as follows: Dissolve three ounces of borax in two ounces of warm water and to this two pounds of best yellow soap sliced fine, stir all together in a pot and let in a warm place until all is melted stirring occasionally. When it is cool it will form a jelly; one tablespoonful will make a strong lather in a gallon of water.—Montreal Herald and Star

A CHILD'S JOURNEY.

Little Ida Vincent Mary Urbanek Lands Voyage.

The circle of American young people has been added to by the arrival of Mary Urbanek from Austro-Hungary, says Young Peoples Weekly. The pathetic thing about it is that she came all the way over 1500 miles alone to join her Aunt Mary Urbanek. Send out in Harrison, Pa. It is A. was written in her language, but it certainly has been the heartsoreness of our religion, and the fountain-head of the love of our ideas. While as in the chasm that now arises as with its philosophy and though is still interpenetrated. The Asian continent has supplied a scene for the principal events, and a stage for the most prominent figures, in history. Of Asia's heritage is that form which, more than any other influence, has transformed and glorified man kind—viz., the belief in a single Deity. Five of the six greatest moral teachers that the world has seen—Moses, Buddha, Confucius, Jesus and Mahommed—were born of Asian parents, and lived upon Asian soil. Roughly speaking, their creeds may be said to have divided the conquest of the universe. The most famous or the wisest of kings—Solomon, Nebuchadnezzar, Cyrus, Timur, Baber, Akbar—have sat upon the Asian thrones. Thither the great conquerors of the Old World turned aside for the sole theater for Shiva, so enormous an ambition. The three most populous existing empires—Great Britain, Russia and China—are Asian empires, and it is herein they are not merely European but Asian that the two former are included in the category. To Asia we owe the noblest product of all literature, in the Old Testament of the Hebrew Scriptures, the "summit of lyrics, in the epithalamium of a Jewish king, the emblem of modern knowledge, in the emptiness of human pursuits and metaphysics, to Asia the drama was born. There the greatest writer of antiquity chose a scene for his immortal epic. There, too, the manners compose for guided men over the pathless waters. In our own times alone it is will be, and that we have arrived at the condition of three new sciences—comparative mythology, comparative jurisprudence, and philology. From Asia we have received the arch-lecture of the Modern—that most spiritual and refined of human conceptions—the porcelain of China, the fabrics of Persia, Bloodes, and Damascus, the finest legislation and of 7 pots, the rare soil was cloud, and man, amongst all cities, Babylon, the most, in ruins of palaces, Persepolis, the stateliest of temples Angkor Wat, the loveliest of tombs the Taj Mahal. There, too, may be found the most wonderful of Nature's productions—the lofty mountains on the surface of the globe, the most renowned, if not the largest, of rivers, the most extensive of landscapes, in the heart of Asia lie in the city the one masters which the nineteenth century has still left on the twentieth to endeavor—the Chinese oracle of Chaos.

PLANTS EAT INSECTS.

Venus Fly-Trap Distinguishes Between Animal and Other Matter.

A few insectivorous native plants have been gathered from the swamps lands of North Carolina and California, and others have been sent from India, Australia and Madagascar. Perhaps the best known of the group is Venus Fly Trap. The leaves vary from one to six inches long, and at the extremities are placed two stalks or claspers. On the inner side of these claspers there are six irritable hairs, any one of which resisting the stimulus, touch from an insect is sufficient to bring the two blades together with such vehemence to preclude any possibility of the insect escaping. A correct idea of how the trap closes on the victim may be obtained by bringing the two hands together, the fingers of one being firmly pressed between those of the other. The plant readily distinguishes between animal and other matter. If a small stone or piece of wood be dropped into the trap it will instantly close, but as soon as it has found out its mistake and it only takes a few minutes it begins to unfold the trap, and the piece of wood or stone falls out. On the other hand should a piece of beef or a blue-bottle fly be placed in it, it will remain firmly closed until every piece of organic matter is absorbed through the leaf. It will then unfold itself, and be ready for another meal.

Anti-Infinite Good Tobacco.

In a certain section of North Carolina has been grown for years a tobacco unrivalled by any produced in Cuba. Now a Richter pill has been found in South Carolina, and all succeeds to this region are to be retained in favor of the weed. The discovery was made by means of the ordinary little red pill to which the tempted was instructed to eat. If the microbe—those super-like horticulturists—is earth at the top of the hopper—are made of yellow clay brought up from the subsoil, you are on good tobacco land. If they are made of red or brown dirt the earth you need not plant tobacco there. All over the south farmings are scanning Achilles for this magic yellow clay.

God in Chaos.

Professor Hoppe estimates that within the 186 square miles around Tacubaya there are about three thousand million metric tons of coal, and it may be remembered that this area is only a little of the ragged edge of the great coal fields of Sonora. Mount of Silver and Joe Ivy Mountain, separated by large sand beds. Hildebrandt estimates that the antimony coal alone of Shasta amounts to 120,000 million tons, and that the coal area is greater than that of Pennsylvania.

Brass-Bound Stones at Its Mouth.

Louisiana papers say there has important proposals to run the water ways so thoroughly that the wet is disposed of the old New Orleans water horse sentiment. Many consider this fact the reason of an advance in chemistry. Glucose sirup is a good substitute for the delicious and soothing New Orleans molasses of former day.

Council Proceedings.

Common Room, Feb. 15.

Common and present in adjournment.

Present President Nicholls and Councilmen Coughlin, Hodge, Williams and Eaton.

The minutes of last meeting were read and approved.

The report of the treasurer for January was read, accepted and filed.

The annual report of the superintendent of electric lights was read and referred to the finance committee, to report at an adjourned meeting.

The supreme made a verbal report upon the matters referred to him at last meeting.

The special committee on sewers made a written report, recommending the immediate construction of a sewer in Lake street from Nicholson street on the south side to Delaney road on the north side.

On motion the report of the sewer committee was accepted and placed on file.

On motion the committee was instructed to take the proper steps to construct a sewer in Hodge street as per recommendation of committee, as soon as practicable.

Talmage's Sermon

Copyright, 1900, by Theodore L. Cuyler.

IN THE BEGINNING OF THE YEAR 1900, Dr. Talmage was called home from his winter in California and preached his last sermon in Brooklyn, January 28, 1900. He died April 12, 1902. This sermon, which was his last sermon in Brooklyn, was preached in the Tabernacle, January 28, 1900. It was his last sermon in Brooklyn, and he was then in his 68th year. He had not been in his pulpit for two years, and he was then in the prime of his mighty powers. The sermon shows the difference between the Brooklyn Tabernacle and the Chicago Auditorium. When he was in Chicago he was in a vast auditorium, and he had to adapt his voice to the acoustics of the place. But in Brooklyn he was in a place where every word was heard, and he could use his voice as he pleased. This

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

At Harbor Springs, last Friday, in the Emmet county Circuit court, Wm. Williams was convicted of forging the name of Tom Vail Pinto, lumberman, for a check of over $100.

Hon. A. E. Palmer state senator from this district, is chairman of the committee which is getting after the state trespass crookedness by which the state has been robbed of much valuable timber by the trespass agents allowing men to fall timber on public lands.

The Alpena & Western, the railroad projected from Alpena to Newaygo, via Traverse City, has been incorporated, and it is stated the capital stock of $1,000,000 has been subscribed. It is understood that some of the most wealthy men of Alpena are behind the road and will interest themselves in pushing through the construction work as soon as possible. It is expected that the line will be built as far as completed by September of the present year and as soon as possible thereafter to Frankfort, with a spur to Benzonia.

Over at Kalkaska recently a fellow named Willis Truman came near getting into town from out of the woods covered with blankets, which the local physicians called cerebro tick. The fellow went to Grand Rapids (right in a crowded smoking car) where his case was diagnosed as malignant and the victim placed in the pest house. The Grand Rapids board of health has passed the matter in the hands of the city attorney who will take steps to recover from Kalkaska county the expense incurred in caring for the man with the ticks.

According to the Petoskey Record, Representative Cutler has, or will, introduce a bill in the legislature to amend the fish laws. As the law now stands a legal mesh is four and one-half inches. Sometimes a small fish insists on being caught in this mesh, and the fisherman is at a loss what to do with it. If he throws it overboard he is subject to a fine. If he carries it home and sells it, or gives it away, or eats it, the warden will be after him for a fine. He can't throw it away, he can't eat it, he can't give it away, he can't sell it without breaking the law. Representative Cutler proposes to fix this with his bill, which provides that all fish caught in a legal net shall be legal fish, that may be disposed of without violating the law, no matter what size they may be.

A very wonderful freak was recently brought to light near Rock, along the Central Lake Shore, on the Central Lake Lumber company's land. A tree had fallen and the men converted it into logs, and called Mr. Chamberlain's attention to some pine cones within. When the tree was cut and the logs rolled apart the cons were struck dumb with what followed. These cones and five snakes crawled from the opening. They were all of a light brown color and seemed dazed for an instant when exposed to the light and air and immediately turned snow white. They then set out at a lively gait, the snakes disappearing almost instantly. Mr. Chamberlain was so overcome by disappointment that he sat down and wept. He is authority on such matters and claims that the snakes belong to the raven family—they "caved" away. One of the cones was captured, however, and is now in the possession of Mr. Chamberlain.

Norwood Notes.

A. F. Valentine left for Wisconsin last Friday.

J. M. Valentine of Little Harbor, Wis., has been in town a few days.

J. W. Myers is canvassing in this section on the interest of the Charlevoix county map.

Mrs. A. L. Cameron, who has been visiting friends at Central Lake, returned home last Thursday.

Wm. Mayne and Alice Van Dusen, daughter of Jacob Van Dusen, were married on the 14th.

Speaking of valentines, Lyman Van Dusen received one at his home that was a humper—a boy.

Harmon Stafford died on Tuesday the 12th, in this county, and his mother Levi, formerly of this place, but for a few years a resident of Kewadin, passed away just a few hours before Harmon and his remains were brought here for interment. They were buried the same day—a double funeral. Levi Stafford was 82 years of age. He was born in Saratoga county, N. Y., and came here in the spring of 1865, being one of the first settlers in the town of Norwood. His wife died about fourteen years ago, and since then he has lived with his son Andrew. Mr. Stafford was a very quiet, unassuming man and had the respect of all in the community.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEW, COM'R.

In our visits to the schools we have urged upon the pupils the importance of finishing the course of study and obtaining the commission or diploma. The diploma will admit the holder to the Agricultural college without further examination. It also admits the holder to the high school and is a good recommendation for a young man or a young lady to hold.

The law Michigan Moderator notes the case of a young man who had left school a year or two sooner than he should have done, who came to his county commissioner imploring by what means who could obtain a diploma. If he held an eighth grade diploma he could secure a position with the railroad company. We again say to the boys and girls, finish your course of study in the little school house and obtain a diploma; it may mean a great deal to you.

Not long since, at West Point, 20 cadets failed in their examination and lost their positions. In each case the boy failed in Arithmetic.

We must never make the mistake of thinking that because arithmetic makes its chief appeal to the reasoning powers of a learner, its operations need not, therefore, be often repeated if only they are once understood.

Those exercises need to be impressed upon the memory, also, and we need to increase our skill in the use of them. This two-ends can be accomplished only by frequent use, and we should, therefore, have very many problems worked. For this purpose most of the problems used should be relatively simple problems that are so complicated as to be difficult for the child to secure should be given in a course of sleeping hours per week for months.

A Fireman's Close Call.

"I think to my regret, although every pind ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a successor fireman, of Bellington, Iowa, "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up I got a bottle of Electric Bitters and after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life." Weak, sickly, run down people should at once use this strength giving medicine. Try them. Satisfaction guaranteed by F. G. Dikes & Co. Price 50c.

THE CHEAP.

Sunction Lumberman's View of the Hemlock Situation.

The above title would be meaningless in the east, but as to the territory supplied by the hemlock producers of Wisconsin and Michigan it is entirely apropos. The meeting of this industry held in Milwaukee recently drew out the fact that has been and still is selling at prices $2 or more below the price of its equivalents in white pine. This condition still obtains, notwithstanding the fact that white pine is strong in price, the product being well maintained, while yellow pine, the competitor which it especially takes, is advancing in price.

It has for years been the claim of the hemlock people that a difference of $1.50 between white pine and hemlock was all that was reasonable, while $2 was all that was possible on any basis of common sense. In fact, there are a great many hemlock producers who insist that $1 a thousand should be the extent of the spread between the two woods. Yet here we find discrimination in favor of white pine.

It is a well understood fact that for many purposes hemlock is just as good as its higher priced competitor. Too much hemlock was produced in Michigan and Wisconsin last year to encourage any price strength. The cut of 1890 was 800,000,000 feet; that of 1891 was 1,100,000,000 feet. Stock on hand Dec. 1, 1891, was 250,000,000 feet, and at the same date of 1890 it was 620,000,000 feet—an increase of more than 100 per cent in the stock. Such conditions are enough to cause weakness in almost any wood, but no condition of stock justifies the prices that are now obtaining.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The world wide famed for marvelous cures. It surpasses any salve, lotion, ointment or balm for cuts, corns, burns, boils, sores, felons, ulcers, tetter, salt rheum, fever sores, chapped hands, skin eruptions. Infallible for piles. Cure guaranteed. Only 25c. At Hines & Co's drug store.

Double Obituary.

LEVI AND HARMON STAFFORD.

A striking coincidence, at about the same hour of the same day, was the death of the two brothers, Levi and Harmon Stafford. The former died at the home of his son Chauncey, of Kewadin. The latter at the home of his son Alden, of Norwood, on Feb. 12, 1892. The funeral services were held at the Norwood M. E. church the next (Sunday) afternoon.

Levi Stafford was born in New York state in 1810. His first residence in Michigan was at Flint. In 1857 he moved to Norwood, his wife, Armina Elizabeth Dickens, was his maiden name, and he lived in this county ever since, with the exception of a few years spent in the south during the war. Mr. Stafford was a member of the Methodist church for many years, and was a man of quiet habits, and a good neighbor. He was 82 years, 1 month and 12 days old at the time of his death. He was married three times, and his first wife died in Michigan. By his second wife there were two children—Linda Hiatt, of Gaylord, and Alden, of Norwood. By his third wife there were five children, all living, namely, Chauncey, of Kewadin, Alden, of Norwood, Mrs. Ed. Lane, of Petoskey, Mrs. Wm. Hiatt, of Gaylord, and Mrs. Jas. Lane, of Petoskey. The deceased was the father of 23 children, 18 living at the time of his death, and 14 living at the time of his second wife's death. The surviving children were all present at the funeral except Mrs. Lane, of Petoskey, who was prevented from being present by sickness. The surviving children are Chauncey, Alden, Linda, Lucretia, Anna and Mina, of the first family, and Mrs. Lane, of the second family.

At a legislative notary, just then notice was passed in the House on the 27th. It gives the treasurer, auditor and attorney a salary of $1,000 for two years, and no notice, now on a big, big, big. It will be interesting to the people at the spring elections if it passes the senate in time.

Elizabeth Dickens, widow of the late Elmer Dickens, died at her home in Eveline township morning, April 22, 1890. Mr. and Mrs. Dickens moved on the farm opposite Ironton in 1865. Deceased was the mother of Chauncey and Elizabeth, of Kewadin and Eugene, of this place.

The Lyceum G.G. Society, of the Congregational church, will hold a social on Friday of this week. From 2 to 5 p. m. in the lower Sunday school room, and in the evening from 7 to 10 p. m. in the social room which is fitted with tables, chairs, cards, cakes and cookies—in fact, you will find everything homemade and wholesome. Don't miss this social.

Capt. Jacobson has the photograph of the steamer Superior, which is to be the finest improvement of the U. S. lighting system on Lake Superior. It is to go to the frequency and it, they are approved and carried out. Capt. Jacobson will make a trip to Chicago to see the boat when it is completed, and he will be at the station. We hope the city will follow Capt. Jacobson's example and permanently raise public sentiment.

The telephone people have chosen to be a source of expensive annoyance which, although all reasonable people will condemn, they will find that the world will not stand for it. The Frank was one of the first to use the telephone, and the people of the city have shown that the limit was a serious one. Damage Charlevoix at been settled the representatives of the Bigelow, and yesterday morning a cable then and is certainly arrived. The long distance lines were immediately connected by overhead wires, but not until Tuesday afternoon were the north side phones connected with the exchange. Delay, certainly, the severing of a 100-conductor cable, is no excuse for a corporation, commercial, would make serious trouble for someone, and there was much very bad blood on the case Sunday. One of the men delegated to saved the cable, say, Manistee News, says he did it without notice. He was very civil and courteous, and seemed very sorry that he had to do it. The man who cut the cable is no longer on the work, the water-main is up to our multiple danger.

Petoskey Reformed: The Charlevoix symphony music quartette, composed of Messrs. Jacobs, Hedges, Hawes and Hitch sang at the evening services of the M. E. church last Sunday. This was the first appearance of the quartette, and quite a favorable impression was made.

Will H. See and wife, of Oregon, arrived Monday and are the guests of Mrs. See's mother, S. M. See. Will, who enjoys the distinction of having been raised in Charlevoix, is now a timber cruiser in an Oregon Indian reservation, and is doing well. Mr. and Mrs. See will remain here about a month.

Charlevoix Temple of Hatchetites will give an entertainment for the children at F. P. hall on the evening of Friday, March 1st. A short business session will be held, beginning at 7 o'clock, after which the evening will be devoted to the young people. All members with their children, big and little, are cordially invited to be present. Observe the hour and please be punctual.

There are certain crimes against humanity, civilization and decency that should not be spoken of in a family paper. In Charlevoix, Tuesday, an old man who has grown up with current children, was arrested charged with a crime inside which murder pales into insignificance. That the charge is true there is no doubt. The degenerate wretch was arrested at the station as he was about to take the train for other parts. We do not print his name out of consideration for his disgraced and stricken children, the youngest of whom has by a depraved father, been dragged into a condition worse a thousand times than death.

Capt. Wm. Freeman is the recipient of a very appropriate gift. It is a beautiful 12-lb plated basket, in the inside of which is stamped the face of Washington. With the weapon was the card: "Capt. Wm. Freeman, Chicago branch of the S. S. S. for his faithfulness." The note is signed by Capt. Ed. Evans, of the steamer City of Fremont, and others. Capt. Pete Campbell was the bearer of the gift, which he returned from Chicago some time ago. The inference is that Capt. Lilly "knew it was a lie," but Capt. Pete says it is a case of misplaced confidence.

MIDDLE IN DAVIS ESTATE.

Father of the Late Senator Asks Court to Adjudicate.

Matt H. A. Davis father of the late United States Senator Davis guardian of Mrs. S. L. Davis as guardian of the Kochester estate applies for the past three years costs in amount to a round sum from Probate Judge Dodds of St. Paul, Minn. He wants the money returned to the estate. He says that the guardian of the estate cared some real estate, one lot in the city of St. Paul. This real estate he had offered to his son, C. K. Davis, as a gift, but the latter refused to accept it, and it remained in the guardian. Matt Davis complained that the guardian had the property of Mrs. C. K. Davis in his charge and that he was using it for his own benefit. The court has ordered that Davis, Probate Judge, be a commissioner to take testimony and report to the court. Davis claims that the guardian has charged him for services and for the use of the property, for the support of Mrs. C. K. Davis, and for other items, which he claims should not be charged against the estate. Judge Dodds has ordered that Davis be paid his costs in the matter, and the guardian will have to pay the costs of the court.

CUBANS THREATEN.

ISLAND SEEMS RIPE FOR ANOTHER WAR.

Natives Demand Withdrawal of Troops and Refuse Guarantees—Relief to Washington that a Crisis in Our Relations Cannot Long Be Deferred.

The most serious question now before Congress and the President, although the public at large which knows little about it, is aware of its great gravity, is rapidly coming to a head with a Washington correspondent. It would be impossible to enumerate the various causes which have led the citizens of western municipalities to organize the Trans-Mississippi Congress, but the influence of the Cuban situation is not the least. The Congress will meet in Salt Lake City next week, and there will be present representatives from the United States and Canada. There will be also a number of Cubans who will attempt to interest the Congress in the cause of Cuban independence. Some years ago the Congress of the United States was on the point of declaring war against Spain in behalf of the Cubans, but the matter was allowed to drop. Now it is said that the Congress will be asked to declare war against Spain in behalf of the Cubans, and it is said that there will be a good deal of sympathy with the proposition. The Cuban question is one of great importance to the Congress, and it is not improbable

ICE PLANTS.

They Are Needed in the Philippines, Says a Writer.

In all tropical and subtropical countries there had been an active appreciation of late years of the luxury of icy in hot weather, and the result has been the building of many ice plants and cold storage houses in those lands. In Ceylon the natives will deprive themselves of other things in order to have money to buy ice, and in Japan the ice plants cannot supply the demand. "Cold Storage," in an excellently illustrated export edition, calls attention to the great opportunity for the building of many ice plants in the Philippines. It says: "There are several reasons in favor of this wholesale building of ice plants. These islands are well populated, with a score or more large cities. The land is so rich that the business done in the cities is profitable. This condition will attract more persons, white capitalists, who will add to the population. The natives are so eager after ice that they will go without food to get it. There are two public ice factories in Manila and none anywhere else. These factories were so overworked that the military authorities were forced to recommend a large government ice plant and cold store. The government ice has a small plant in Iloilo. The island of Luzon needs fifteen ice plants to food ten or twenty-five times capacity. It needs as many cold stores of from 20,000 to 50,000 cubic feet capacity. It needs refrigerator cars and all up-to-date refrigerating apparatus and appliances. It is a mistake to think that these will not be needed until the islands are pacified; they are needed now. The cities are controlled by troops and these same troops need refrigerated food. A correspondent, in writing of the chances for investment in the Philippines, puts ice plants at the head of the most profitable enterprises."

NOTHING IS WASTED

The Rag-pickers Gleen Fortunes Every Year in Paris.

A duty of primary importance is discharged by the rag-pickers of Paris. Working at night from under gaslamps with hooks and sacks, the value of what their collect is estimated at $10 a day. Assuming one-half of the world does not know how the other half lives, says a Paris correspondent, of course the conditions of Paris life are exceptional. The population is very closely packed. The tall houses are crammed with tenantable, there are no gardens as with us—there are but the houses and the streets. Parisians have a way of emptying all kinds of house and refuse into the street, and then the rag-pickers gather in their harvest. No one is found for everything, and the unfortunate never cease. Rags go to make paper, broken glass is ground up and serves as the coating for sand or emery paper; bones, after a process of cleaning and cutting down, serve to make nail brushes, tooth brushes and fancy buttons; little wisps of women's hair are carefully unravelled and go duty for false hair by and by. Cora's hair, collected mainly by the barber shops, serves for fillers, but of course are cut up and used for spirit lamps; bits of lead are carbonized and made into tooth powder, cardboard boxes are cut up into soleles or into soleles for candle sticks. A silk hat has a whole chapter of adventures, so more for it.

BEAT PYIKONS.

Swallows Alive to Lean a Carrier in the French Army.

The question of carrier pigeons instead of pigeons to carry dispatches has been mooted, reports from Paris. The attitude of the swallow for the work is by some held to be even greater than that of the pigeon. They fly at a greater height and are therefore less exposed to shot and they travel faster, making good certainly equal to the hawk where a pigeon would only get over fifty. It is also claimed for them that they are more faithful than pigeons, and on long journeys are not compelled to stop to feed as the pigeon has to. It is also asserted that the swallow can be fairly easily and quickly trained. The only doubtful point seems to be whether on regaining their liberty they would not yield to their ancestral habitats and their desire to nest, mature claims. But a French journal believes the results already secured fully warrant the further experimenting with the birds. Pigeons, although rare and difficult to train, are was carrier good dispatch bearers and can carry a burden of over three pounds. Experiments have been made with them at Vincennes in Russia. They have the advantage of having nothing to fear from birds of prey, in fact they will fly themselves in case of attack, and they are as the journey lost as they will 4 to 20 with equal pleasure off carrier pigeons can they cannot be employed in coupling line with the latter birds.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

They Originated in 16 No. Italy, Under Cardinal Borromeo.

Sunday schools origin. ated in Milan Italy, under the direction of Cardinal Borromeo, in 1550. By 1. 4 and 5 in finance numerous schools for the dissemination of theological information of a rudimentary character were established. About the 4th 5th of the next century Rev. Joseph Alleine organized Sunday schools in London, and between 1780 and 1783 a number of Sunday schools were started in various parts of England and Acaj ued for New. David Blair and Rev. Theo Philips Lindsey, Tobias Bailey of Ohio, were most valuable and in advancing Sunday schools in the vicinity of his by where he was the publisher of a Gloucester Journal. In 1781 he gave rent for suitable rooms and halls, and in them instructed poor young, as in addition to reading he paid a stipend a day each for teaching poor children a fundamental knowledge of christianity. His efforts had great influence other philanthropists followed his example, and soon Sunday schools began to spring up in most of the larger towns of England. The first Sunday school in America was started in Hanover county, Virginia, in 1744, under the leadership of Robert Annesley.—New York Weekly.

WEALTH IN FLOCKS.

SHEEPRAISERS ROLLING IN RICHES FROM WOOL.

An Extraordinary Tribute to the Protectional Effects of the Dingley Tariff Law—Great Increase in the Number of Sheep Raised.

Albuquerque, N. M., correspondence of the New York Tribune Tuesday, The forthcoming annual report of Governor Otero of New Mexico and of Prof. Murphy of Arizona to the president will contain interesting information for wool growers in the entire states. The growth of the sheep industry in the southwestern territories during the last three years is without precedent. New Mexico has become the great sheep-breeding region in the union, and the estimate is that the increase throughout the territory is attributable to wool growers have increased 27 per cent in three years, and the cattle industry is in status and sheep change in that period, or approximately, more than in any former year. Prof. Murphy says: Given a good deal of attention to the sheep raising there considering the profits, the outlook, and the demand for the sheep and the wool produced in the Southwestern Mountains.

The sheep census shows a little from Mexico has 1,867,000 sheep, worth from $1.00 to $2.00 a head. Mexico, which was the leading wool-producing state in the upper tier two years ago, has 1,726,000 sheep and this, which was the leaner wool state, ranks the leaner wool growers, and has allow 2,000,000 head of sheep. Arizona has 1,624,000 sheep. Utah has 1,700,000 and Idaho and Wyoming have each more than 2,000,000 sheep. Even such lands from an economic large proportion of the flock in New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Idaho, Wyoming, and Montana, the number of sheep, on the territories will be thousands by 1900 than 1,000,000 during the next year.

The total number of sheep in the United States is now about 70,000,000 and the total wool product is about the value is 15,000,000 pounds or a fraction over. Local News.

We call attention to the new ad of J. L. Crane in this issue.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Harmont M. E. church will give an oyster supper Tuesday evening March 5th. The Symphony New Quartet of Charlevoix, together with local talent will render a fine program. Admission 25 cents; proceeds for the benefit of the church. Supper served from 5 to 8 o'clock.

On Friday evening of this week will occur a notable 21st Improvement exercises in Charlevoix Masonic Temple. At that time, at the Congregational church Charlevoix Chapter No. 131, Royal Arch Masons will be publicly instituted and its officers officially installed. The initiating and fellowship degrees will be Past High Priest Eli M. Brackett, of Emmet Division Chapter No. 151, representing the Right Excellent Grand High Priest Benjamin Brackett, is also an officer of the Grand Chapter. He will be assisted by companions of Emmet Chapter. The new chapter is well officered and starts out with excellent prospects.

The annual report of superintendent Martindale, of the Cavalier fighting system, waives the cockles of our heart. It plainly evinces that should make every citizen of Charlevoix its fairmen's lodge. A set back during the year of 1900 of 21 is a showing that speaks volumes for the season, coming as it does in conjunction with a season of growing water business, an one of 31 surplus, and years when it will be expanded thus spring in the experience of the two years, but that will constitute no treatment that be more urgent permanent curative. Those who are dissatisfied with the fact that a showing based is to signal that will mean the shutting day wipe out the magical indebtedness of Charlevoix. Much credit is due both superintendent for this very satisfactory condition of affairs.

Heinrich Heine of this place is anyone's easily numbered among the dead, and, more than likely, his body lies somewhere under the ice in Round lake. The old man lived with his daughter, Mrs J Schaeffer and owing to his advanced age could do very little but chore about town. The last seen of him at Schaeffer's was on Tuesday morning of last week when he left the house to split wood for Mrs Lewman, on the north side. He worked but a short time there and has not been seen since. The generally accepted theory is that he attempted to make the short cut across the lake and broke through, or drowned himself purposely. The old man's life was not of the happiest, and there are many who think that he ended it all of his own volition. Heine was a pioneer, having for many years owned a little farm out near the Norwood road. This he sold several years ago. He was born in Germany.

The bill to the legislature to permit the Bayne City and Southeastern R'y to charge five cents per mile for passengers is meeting with opposition in the senate. It went through the house all right.

The Elk Rapids cement works now employ about 50 men. The works will not be run to their full capacity for some weeks yet, when something like 75 hands will be employed, and the output will then be 100 barrels per day.

The village of Central Lake is progressive and boasts that there are no obstructionists in the place. Everything for the advancement of the town is met with the unanimity which will bring success and Central Lake shows by her progress that such is the case. Now, in order to keep pace with the times a board of trade has been organized, whose object is to push the interests of the town aggressively and maintain the prestige and prosperity which is now manifest.

Willis C. Ward writes the East Jordan Enterprise as follows: "I see by the issue of February 7th that you are under a total misapprehension in regard to the injunction still brought by Charlie Ward against the executors and trustees of the David Ward estate, in so far as it effects the relaying of the track of the Detroit & Charlevoix railroad to South Arm and so to the operation of said road. The facts are that a temporary injunction was granted enjoining the executors and trustees from building a railroad from South Arm to Charlevoix. This the executors and trustees had no intention whatever of doing and so stated in their answer to the court, whereupon the injunction was dissolved. Thus the facts are that the executors and trustees have never been enjoined from extending the road as far as South Arm, and it is their intentions to relay this track from the present terminus to South Arm just as soon as the weather will permit this spring."

"Good things come high" was an obvious expression, whether original or not. When a teacher offers her services for a song, her services are in great demand. When a man offers you something cheaper than anybody else, put it down at a sale, that he is giving you cheaper goods. The man who is looking for bargains has more time than the bargain is worth. There is no such thing possible as getting something for nothing. Cheap certificates make cheap teachers, and cheap goods cheap men because and is not required for either.

If all grade certificates call for learned and competent teachers High grade certificates call for skilled and superior work exactly. There should be no demand for cheap, cheap, cheap. Demand that everything you get shall be good. Let the people who want for you have an honest wage for what they do. Demand an honest compensation for what you do. Don't be cheap. No one cares for cheap. Men. The world is full of them because the world is full of people trying to get something for nothing.

Each year there are some teachers who feel utterly unequal to their work. Every person is not intended for teacher school. A poor teacher is done all any place. Why do not examiners make sure to the employment of teachers? If the school is poor, the blame and shame falls on last. Employment of a teacher is a serious matter and should not be passed over lightly.

No one should be employed because he or she is a relative, naive, nephew, niece, aunt, son, daughter, repulsive, unusual, popular, or because of friendly relations, or on account of sympathy or pity.

The main question to ask is, Is he or she qualified, as to education, as to teaching power, as to government, as to proper conduct to be own your children?

A good teacher is never paid too dear. It is the poor teacher who is overpaid.

LOCAL NEWS.

Snow, not too late week, has been supplanted by March.

Capt. and Mrs. Campbell returned from southern Michigan Saturday.

Just at this writing there are no instances of an immediate opening of navigation.

Hound, a case of spasmodic Croup in this office, prove popularity and pay for the notice.

The Masonic hall hitched to pure Phoenix for the closing weeks, and Uncle Lewis gets no money this year.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Lewis, of Elk Rapids, are here visiting friends. The latter intends to attend a meeting of the board of pension examiners.

John Bergman, of East Jordan, was down last week to arrange for transporting the tug Irving Bridge to East Jordan. It is understood that next week the structure will be taken down by the aid of Bergman's steam drum, and taken up Pine Lake to do the job, in as large sections as can be handled.

On Saturday last East Jordan, by a close big majority, voted to start in the sum of $15,000 to secure the Lumber and Jordan Branch of the Pere Marquette R'y. Mr. Charlevoix and vicinity are disappointed—the road will be operated by July 1st. Now, if East Jordan pays the freight, we may see they do the same.

Congressman Weadock has vacatedjoumedmg the month and Mr. Samson, of Lowpeninsula, Mr. Weadock will succeed, Samson, who hailed from Ionia county, where he served in Congress with Mr. Weadock, is a pleasant, cultured man. Samson's name also figured in the Congressional race. Mr. Gibson was here the other day, visiting the Union Soldiers Home, by his uncle Gow or Dayton.

The lumber mill was refitted recently by Messrs Carter, of Montana. Do for some explosion, Mr. Carter went up the flue and tackled several items about all concerned. Mr. Carter, the owner, consequently died. It should be mentioned that Mr. Carter's fortune amounted to a million, in which the Monroe and his son were long and tackled the people of that County made no dollar on the honest value. If someone the rest comes to Charlevoix we will take up the subject.

Improved changes and improvements are being made in the Congregational church edifice. A gallery is being constructed in the rear, and certain portions of the audience room be fitted with the gallery will be small in an early spring school room, and will be particularly improve the seating capacity for regular services. Besides this an addition will be built in the southwest corner to serve as a parlor. A corresponding addition will be erected in the north-east angle, enclosing the entrance, so we are in a very little. The church will also be re-carpeted. L. N. McLean has charge of the work.

Harbor Springs Herald says: Harrison or Pic Miller, as he was more familiarly known, will be remembered by many of the people as a former resident of Beaver Island. He was placed in charge of the fish saving station at Beaver Island when that station was first opened and later transferred to the station at Point Betsey, where he has been in charge ever since. In a late letter to him this is say: "I am sixty three years of age, and this is my 25th year in this service. I was the oldest man in the service of any in the district. I can get in and out of a boat in a rough sea, any man in my crew, and they are some of them, also, I assure you, but on account of my eyes I may not pass an examination the present year. When I have the so-called I expect to be pensioned."

Bertholomew & Co. have a new ad in this issue.

The Chetlowah Lumber Co's mill will start the season's cut next Monday.

Capt. Jim Weaver has sold his interest in the tug Taylor to Capt. E. Smith and C. C. Gribben.

A large party of Charlevoix sympathizers visited their Harbor springs friends last Friday evening.

The board of supervisors met at the court house yesterday and passed the customary bridge resolution.

Miss Kate Dougherty and Rebel Long of Elk Rapids, are the guests of Mrs Harrison Bedford.

Just Wardell has returned from from the upper peninsula, where he has been in charge of the Pearson & Co. camps.

Special communication of Charlevoix Lodge No 262, F. & A. M., next Tuesday evening, March 12, at 7 o'clock, for third degree.

—Another old pioneer of Charlevoix is gone. James Graham died at the home of his brother William, in Marion last Friday, at an advanced age.

—A most surprising entertainment, consisting of 1001 Wonders, Healthier Reading of the 20th Century," and "Prof. Pinkerton's Transformer" will be given under the auspices of the Congregational church in the near future.

—Burr Johnson came up from Central Lake Tuesday. He is negotiating for the purchase of the stock and fixtures of L. W. Kinney's factory, and if the deal is closed Mr. Johnson will open a cigar manufactory on his own hook.

—Our good old friend W. S. Johnson, "Galen" for short, is up at South Arm with a bride. Mrs. Johnson was Miss Prudence Milton, a cousin of Mr. Johnson's late wife. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson have the SENTINEL's hearty congratulations.

—Wm. H. Byers, a pioneer of Darker, and one of its leading farmers, was buried from the Methodist church last Sunday. Mr. Byers was one of the last of the hardy good men among the pioneers of Northern Michigan, and his loss will be severely felt. Deceased was the father of Hon. E. W. Coulter of this place.

—The new revenue reduction bill recently passed by congress removes the tax from a large number of classes of legal and commercial paper, including promissory notes, money orders, bank checks, certificates of deposit, telegrams, assent, life insurance policies, bills of lading, deeds, mortgages, etc.

—The Royal Arch institution and installation last Friday evening was a red letter day in Charlevoix Masonic history. Emil M. Brackett, as deputy grand high priest, was assisted by James Hackley, Holly Trask, Prof. Andrews and other Petoskey masons. The ceremonies were ably performed, excellent music, and Hon. E. C. Comstock spoke words of masonry in eloquent manner. A large attendance witnessed the ceremonies. After the public installation a session of the chapter was held in the lodge room, and formal chapter officers conferred the Most Excellent degree to Charlevoix Worshipful Master F. C. Hines presiding in lieu of the master regular. About twenty-five a fourth was spread, and at about 8 o'clock a special train took the Petoskey companions home.

—In Harper's Weekly, Mr. Ingersoll, of the Washington Post, "If any man thinks the American sailor is a thing of the past he should spend a month on the Great Lakes. The American fresh water sailor is every bit as picturesque a person as was the salt of early days, who carried our merchant flag into every port of the world. His life is just of full of hardships and just as full of dangers. There is a large fleet of three and four masted schooners on the lakes, and stories of the wrecking of them come every big storm. A master lady of water than Lake Erie, when it comes on to blow, can be found on shore, and some of the experiences of the life saving crews along its shores are the most thrilling in the history of the service. The men who man the life saving stations, of course, have not much romance in their lives, but those who can navigate a schooner from Duluth to Buffalo is a good enough sailor to sail around the world, and he will do as well as the next man in a tight place of any reason in the engineer, see the Atlantic was ever able to blow up."

"Why, you are crazy, Uncle Sam, quite crazy, and amused to consider the issue from what Morgan and Wolf had put me. The pleading purpose of Wolfe had been running from the city, all morning, much purpose, gave a cardinal start—and yet he had forgotten the confusion.

"I wish he had not to go to church with me. I don't know I play that well enough. I have a young woman friend in the city, who is thoroughly accomplished, and I should prefer with her I can an audience. I could not accompany the marches.

"Yes, the venue appeared worry. I suppose I must go, and I shall be so much more proud and shamed in having a young lady, a New Hamster, on my arm. Why, I'm quite a Quaker lady!

"Oh, I'm fearful! may have a good time, I have spoken more of you than you would hear fit to repeat. Don't you know, Sam, I'm a little proud of another young woman, as my sister Velvet Flower.

"Morgan was delighted with the notion and had the colonel invited to the party, when he saw the attraction that a large British force was in Monmouth. Lord Francis Wilkinson is the officer I tell a little more than a mile from his quarters.

"We have been betrayed! Lafayette Hazard. "Our plans have been discovered."

The outside compartments the tall exclaimed a skillful maneuver. Changing from one to the other, and instantly turned a large party in the church yard, and the Hessian was a strong force well and drew up the remainder so as to be between the house and the house in the house could be disarmed. The dispatched several men to the assistance of the colonel. Meanwhile, Mr. Morgan, Wolf, Hazard, Lafayette, Lord Francis, Mr. Wilkinson, Mr. Wolfe, Mr. Wilkinson, Mr. Wolfe, Mr. Wilkinson, Mr. Wolfe

TOO GOOD TO USE.

Overworked "Best Rooms" and Common Place "Sitting Rooms".

In old-fashioned houses one room was usually set apart as far too good for everyday occupancy. The shades were drawn so that the sun should not fade the carpet, and the doors were hard to open because they had stood closed for so long. The ornaments on the mantel stood in a stiff line like soldiers on parade. The books on the center-table were seldom opened. The atmosphere was musty. If an some especial occasion—generally a funeral—the closed front door was unlocked, and the "best room" was thrown open, the children of the household crept in on tiptoe, and spoke in hushed voices. It was a relief to most of them to return to the commonplace comfort of the living-room. In our homes we still have the "best room" called by another name but it is no longer too good for daily use. We put into it the most elaborate carpet and the prettiest furniture. The piano stands there and our favorite pictures are on the walls, and the best of all our household treasures are collected for its adornment. But when it is furnished to our liking, we do not lower the shades and close the door. We have come to the conclusion that our best parlors are none too good for the center of the home. The hearts of many of us have an apartment very much like that closed "best room" of olden days. There we keep our ideals, our affections, our sympathy, our good manners, and for the most part, we have the doors closed and the shades down. We are evidently of the opinion that such things are not for every day. It is only on special occasions that we make use of them. When an overwhelming trouble overtakes a friend, or sometimes also a sympathy been brought forward in the commonplace vocation of daily life. Bereavement is a hand often thrown open closed doors and reveals a wealth of tenderness, which for the time transforms the family life. We can be well-measured if we raise the occasion demands it. We can speak words of love and appreciation. If we consider it worth while. But too often things are kept for especial occasions. In that musty "best room" with its closed door. It is time for that door to be thrown wide open. Time for the shades to be raised, and the wholesome out-of-doors air to be let in. The best we have is not too good for daily use. In every heart such as there being the "best room" should also be the "living room." Young People's Weekly.

PASTE DIAMONDS.

The X Ray the Great Judge of False Jewelry.

It seems the X rays have been proved to be the greatest judge of false jewels and that conservative jeweler will soon trust to the X rays before either than believe their own eyes. In fact, the marvelous rays have detected very old paste diamonds of the time of Queen Elizabeth, which had at first deceived no less than Mr. Spencer, the famous London jeweler. A real diamond, very old and valuable, photographed under the rays leaves no impression whatever on the film. It is simply non-existent, save that a circle is. The same stone, on the contrary, comes out as a shadowy delicate outline and pearl. Again a well defined form of dark color. Two photographs of a lady's hand thickly covered with 15 costly jewelled rings showed in one by the ordinary process all the stones, in the photograph taken under the X rays there were the shadowy outlines of flesh and the deeper marking of finger bones. But in each case was an empty space the exact shape of the jewel, which being genuine, had been transparent to the X rays. It is was found if the bargain and trend that aren't one think it worth while to put those terrible inquisitive rays on the wood before making their liberty to carry it off." Since Mr. Spencer began to experiment with the rays he has many cases of splendid jewels have been in him to use their possession. But also there will be no more instances of stolen caskets with their precious contents changed to paste in unscrupulous hands or vice versa. Gordon's novel, "The Americans," marks the end of another chapter in the history of the modern diamond.

CHILEAN STRATAGEM.

Indians Afraid to Molest Telegraph Wires or Poles.

When the electric telegraph was first introduced into Chile, a stratagem was employed in order to guard the poles and wires against damage on the part of the natives and to maintain the connection between the strongholds on the frontier. There were fifty captive Indians in the Chilean camp, and General Pinto, in command of the operations, called them together, and promised to the telegraph wires said: "Do you see these wires?" "Yes, General." "Well, I want you to remember not to go near or touch them, for if you do your hands will be bad, and you will be unable to get away." The Indians smiled knowingly. Then the general made each of them in succession take hold of the wire at each pole, and then an electric battery was turned on. "Now," he exclaimed, "I command you to let go the wire." "I can't, my hands are numbed," cried each Indian. The battery was then turned off and the next day all the captives were released, to carry, with strict injunctions to keep the matter secret. This had the desired effect, for, as might be expected, the experience was related in every man in the tribe, and the telegraph has ever since met with unmolested.

IT IS UNPARALLELED.

WAVE OF PROSPERITY STILL RULING IN.

The Country Until Now Has Shown Good Cause to Supply Its Wants—The Tremendous Balance of Trade in Our Favor.

The third year of the Dingley tariff finds that land vindicated in the million dollar charts which appear in more than 15,000,000 of the American homes. Commerce, manufactures and many lines for 1900 and a surplus come pouring of nearly $500,000,000 in our favor. Here is a statement showing gold and premium records of labor and commerce. The prices have mentioned are those paid in the same principal, and are from many various sources since the time of Washington. Labor and commerce are largely dependent upon the prosperity of the country, and the conditions are largely dependent upon the tariff. Labor and commerce are equally interested in a tariff for revenue to support the government, and with the exception of a few years, ever since the organization of Congress there has been a tariff for revenue, levied on foreign commodities, in accordance with the Constitution of the United States.

In the light of these facts, we feel and the people of this country, if they wished to exercise an honest judgment, would not be in favor of a tariff which would cut down or reduce the revenue, or which would cripple our industries and throw our people out of employment, and place our money in the hands of foreign manufacturers, and place our industries and people on an equal footing. They not only which that and on so long they are in the light of what is now said to be proved by the experience of the last two years of our people that they were right.

The tariff bill which passed the Senate provided what some called a revision of the protective tariff, and particularly on the schedule of the corporate power of our country toward the protected industries, and the theories of Mr. Cleveland. And notwithstanding the "labor and the" publicans party control of the country, in spite of the Senate and machines to resist reformers, employed by the Republican party, a majority of the Senate, and the laws of. Done, by the Democratic party in spite of the combination of time to the market by the tariff combination of our country, and our reports to foreign countries in 1900 and has shown a balance in favor of us $1,500,000,000 in the excess of our imports.

And to add insult to injury of our high tariff, to many industries of our country, and to the people, ever know under free trade, or that has ever been, and the tariff question between Republicans of the Senate and Democrats, and the tariff on the free of the taxes, as the Senate and Democrats, and the tariff of the combination of our country, and the tariff on the free of the taxes, and the tariff on the free of the taxes, and the tariff on the free of the taxes

RAIDER SHOT DOWN.

BADLY WOUNDED WHILE SMASHING JOINT.

Minister and Hostler Are Accused—Large Stock of Beer Destroyed by a Mob—at Gaynor, New York Men Prepare Plots to Kill Dow and Ruefly.

J. W. Wallace, one of a Chicago household. He was shot dealing a foot on a North Western Railway. A short terrible by and night the robber entered a saloon of Grand Avenue and Halsted streets, and, at the point of a revolver, demanded the best beer in the house. Three customers, three men and a bartender, made, after the robber had left, some comments on the "Dutch" beer, and Wallace, who had come in for a glass of beer, was shot down. The bartender, Frank Ruefly, and the three customers, ran out of the saloon, and Wallace, who was badly wounded, crawled after them. Ruefly, who was shot through the chest, is in a critical condition. The robber escaped. Wallace is in the hospital, and his wounds are not dangerous.

WOMAN'S LIFE IS LOW-PRICED.

Ohio Judge Rules that Man's Death Was Worth Eighty Dollars.

A verdict for $500 damages in the death of Mrs. Mary Hutton, who was killed at a switch on the Akron, Bedford and Cleveland Electric Railway three years ago, has been reduced to $80 in Akron, Ohio, and a motion for a new trial overruled. For his death in the same wreck, both of Jordan Warbeke, the employee of the wrecked car, were given $10,000 several years ago, and the case is being carried through to the Supreme Court on the claim that the former was excessive. That court held that the Warbeke verdict should stand. In sustaining the verdict for $500 for Mrs. Hutton, Judge Hitchcock says the death of a woman under circumstances caused by an act which for the life of a man that Warbeke was held liable for, and carrying good wages for a young wife, than Mrs. Hutton was earning and could not be at great cost to her present or future support, and might not be a cash for her. Health that she might have had for the asking in a state of that kind, but that second money damage that would have given her a comfortable outlay—otherwise.

JAY GOULD'S BILL'S A BULL.

Miss Ruth Wilson of Kansas Slays the Animal after a Sharp Struggle.

Miss Ruth Wilson of Kansas City, Kan., was walking with three boys and letting bundles in the pasture of Jay Gould, near Irvington, Tuesday. Mr. M. Gould, who lives in Irvington, was in the house when he heard screaming and ran out to see what was the matter. He saw a large cow with Miss Wilson on her horns. The girl had taken refuge in a tree, and was being tossed and gored by the infuriated animal. Mr. Gould ran to the house and brought a rifle, with which he killed the bull. Miss Wilson was not badly injured.

STOP GRABS IN CHINA.

UNITED STATES CHECK PARTITION OF EMPIRE.

Powers Will Not Press Claims for Territory—International Consent Required for Concessions—Punishments Demanded Will Be Inflicted.

At the instance of the United States government, the powers have concerted the principle that no further individual concessions of territory in China shall be sought or obtained for last year proved without a mutual agreement. The Japanese terms, made and said in Washington, where they are now getting into the world. The Boxer uprising, which was the result of the Chinese concessions for railroad and other concessions for territorial points.

According to a Washington correspondent, the United Department begins the discussion with the Chinese government through an attitude on our part, and in obtained, that the occupation by Russia of the important concession opened. Thus far, according to the United States, caused the indication of this there seem. However, it was evident that it might be very difficult to deal with a separate nation, and, in the end, the policy might be assumed. He (Chinese) concerned proved to be a very strong obstacle to a general, probably which would be a great deal more than the rights of an individual nation.

The conference was not formal, in the sense that it was a meeting of the ministers on the subject the agreement, but it was a conference of a general character, and the agreement was reached. It was a conference with the ministers of the powers, and it was a conference with the ministers of the powers, and it was a conference with the ministers of the powers, and it

Village election next Monday.

Hunter, the shoe dealer, has a change of ad. this week.

W. A. Whitman sailed from San Francisco, Wednesday, and he was to and find starting for Honolulu.

John H. Hatton has purchased the J. S. Thompson residence on the north side of Bacon avenue, and has moved into it. Consideration, $2,000.

At a recent meeting of the Charlevoix Dugmore's Association, the present elected officers were re-elected, and the scale fixed at $8c for log squares and $90 for log gleaners.

Frank Still, of Bay Shore, was struck Friday afternoon by a falling tree and his skull fractured. His death occurred soon after, the interment taking place in this village Monday. Still leaves a wife, formerly Mrs. Hiram Olney, of this place.

At the Harbor Springs village election next Monday the people will vote on the question of bonding for $10,000 to enlarge the municipal electric lighting plant. The contemplated enlargement would allow the village to furnish current to the Wequetonsing and Harbor Point resorts.

Editor Bacon of the Cross City Gazette, in a recent issue of his paper, made the following very reasonable offer to his patrons: "The Gazette is often kindly asked to loan money, or do job printing of the same price that they have been paying in some outside printing concern. We advise our readers to bring in any reliable specimen of work they want, at our low rates, and we will meet the outside price, provided, of course, that the dealer will meet any reliable outside price we may get on goods we want to buy line."

Ticket Nominated.

The Republican village caucus last Tuesday evening was well attended and harmonious. The following ticket was nominated:

President—Harry Nichols.
Trustees—E. A. Ensley, O. E. Wilson, Geo. F. Brown.
Clerk—W. H. McCartney.
Treasurer—J. L. Price.
Assessor—John Ward.

The nomination of President Nichols was by acclamation, and unanimous. In this connection it is proper to state that Mr. Nichols has exerted his best efforts to the duties of his office, and given his well known business ability to the affairs of the village. His administration has been a success, and the people have recognized it.

As a change from the usual order of things, the republican ticket is the only one in the field this spring.

Late Current News.

The President re-appointed all the members of his old cabinet on the 5th, and they were promptly confirmed in the Senate.

In the floor war there are apparently well authenticated reports of the collapse of the Foor cause.

Speaker Cannon, on the 5th, announced as the committee to investigate the conduct of the game warden department: representatives Mason of Shiawassee, the author of the resolution, Hammond of Wayne, and Cobb of Wayne. This takes the matter out of the hands of the regular game committee, which has been looking up the matter. The new committee will have power to subpoena and take testimony, and Mr. Mason says that it will go to the bottom of all reports, investigate any charges of corruption, and the charges that the state has been paying for deputy wardens' time when they were engaged on political work, and look into mileage with special reference to the charge that deputies ride on passes and charge up regular fare. The investigation will begin at once and it is expected that a large number of witnesses from all over the state will be summoned.

Surrender of Philippine insurgents continue to be of daily occurrence.

Night Was Her Terror.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Applegate, of Alexandria, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that if I waked a block I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but, when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 56 pounds." It's absolutely guaranteed to cure coughs, colds, lagrippe, bronchitis and throat and lung troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at F. G. Hines & Co.'s drug store.

NOTICE.

A caucus will be held on Wednesday, the 20th day of March, A. D. 1901, at 2 o'clock p. m., at the township hall of Marion, for the purpose of nominating officers for the township for the ensuing year.

The following diplomas were issued to eighth grade pupils at the February examination: Mildred H. Mandell, Vernie Walker, Ella Walker, Isaac Metz, Ira E. Bricker, Albert Jensen and Jane Hancock. Thomas Fulling, Minnie Williams and Hoyt Hipp will complete the examination in May.

* * *

At the teachers' examination to be held March 29, third grade applicants will be required to pass an examination upon the subject of "Dangerous contagious diseases." How spread, how restricted and how prevented. Act No. 136, laws of 1899, makes it obligatory on the part of teachers to present this subject to their pupils some time during the term, and least the same from data to be furnished by the state board of health. The state unwells to see the law obeyed along these lines, and kept of trifling information has added the subject to the third grade examinations.

* * *

Every local board of health should promptly represent (not order) general vaccination of every person who has not had smallpox within a few years, or who has not been successfully vaccinated within the past 5 years and should in accordance with Sec. 1891, comp. laws of 1897, offer free vaccination to those who are unable to pay.

Vaccination is a reliable preventive against smallpox, and if every person in your jurisdiction is vaccinated there need be no fear of the disease spreading in your jurisdiction.

A person cannot be compelled to be vaccinated, but if the health officer has reason to believe that a person has been exposed to smallpox, he can isolate that person if he refuses to be vaccinated. This is required of the health officer by Act 136, laws of 1899.

In order to prevent the breaking up of schools, school boards may under Sec. 1952, comp. laws of 1897, require of pupils continuous or successive vaccination within the past five years, on evidence of revaccination with virus known to be effective, and teachers may be instructed to compare the vaccinations with the dates of pupils to teach teacher of such as have completed, and if not to report the facts to the local health officer.

Railroad officials, proprietors of mills, lumber camps and mines, and merchants and other employers of labor can require certificate of successful vaccination, as a guarantee against their operatives and so in letting off by outbreaks of smallpox, which ought to have been prevented.

When an outbreak of a dangerous communicable disease occurs in any locality it has been customary to compare the dating of the schools if that locality as a prime act immediately. Secretary Baker of the state board of health has opposed that idea, for several reasons. Three of those reasons are: First, the local board of health thereby confesses its neglect or inability to cope with the disease by proper legal methods,—isolation of infected persons and things, instead of uninfected school children.

Second, if the schools are closed, the environments of the children may be more vitiated and the risk of their contracting and spreading disease is increased.

Third, if the local board of health is endeavoring to successfully control the outbreak, the appearance in school rooms of children from infected houses would the intelligent teachers to discover and report to the health authorities cases that might otherwise fail to be reported to them and thus spread infection promiscuously.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Elk Rapids will have her first village election this spring and it promises to be a lively affair.

The Petoskey Democrat says it is positively authenticated that Fred Ho... is I will erect a $20,000 passenger station of fine pipeta transit from this road.

Harbor Springs Republican: Mr. and Mrs. John Dobbins, of Chicago, who visited the county last fall, spent a few days up in Cecil Harbor on their way home yesterday.

March has given us more snow and more disagreeable winter weather so far than all the previous months of winter. She few in fifty a long, and left the storm door open.

Bellaire Independent: Mrs. George Van Orden (née Nellie Dixon) is a guest of Mrs. S. H. Turner this week. She came last Saturday and intends to go on to Petoskey for a visit next Tuesday. Mrs. Van Orden expects her husband home in about two months. He is business of auction and is now stationed with a land force at Dawson, in the far Pacific. His ship, the Yosemite was blown out of the harbor of Guam the 15th of last November and was lost on a reef 60 miles from land. The crew and Marines were on the wreck a day and a night before being taken off and had given up the hope of living ever saved. Five of their number were drowned. When Janet Van Orden is returned to the United States he will be stationed at some navy yard, and hopes it will be at Norfolk or Washington. Mrs. Van Orden has been visiting at Elk Rapids and Petoskey since he went away two years ago, and is looking forward to the time when they can settle down somewhere.

Many Northern Michigan farmers are regretting that they expended so much in their last year's potato crop. This regrettful experience is always met when the price of potatoes are at present. Safe to make potato growing profitable. A prosperous and experienced farmer, cutoff forever and recently died he was acquainted with a number of farmers in the section of Michigan who had abandoned their farms and dismantled funding because of the various ills encountered through no compensation of potatoes, followed by a dull market. The farmers farmer simply contented the abandonment of the get rich quick plan. Potato raising, and the adoption of a system whereby a few acres of potatoes are planted every year instead of planting an entire farm with potatoes, to the exclusion of crops that are sometimes more profitable than potatoes. The raising of potatoes has been reasonably profitable nearly every year in Northern Michigan.

Stickers Rich Food.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes E. J. Green, of Lancaster, N. H. "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicine I ever used. They have at no kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles, that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak run down women. No other medicine can take the place in my family." Try them. They Stamped Millions of Letters.

Clerks in the general post-office said around one of the well-worn cancelling machines that surprised the performance, which this complaint showed that 10a. million letters had been stamped and the indicator went back to zero, says the New York Herald. It was the first machine of the twelve in the pagoda to reach the extreme limit of the counting dials. It was be opened in a straight, which it was done, then the machine might safely commence to pointing upon the back of each letter the words "New York, N. Y.," and the date and hour that the letter was received. The machine is one of two that are used to stamp letters from out of town intended for delivery in this city. The other machine had barely 9,000,000 stamps, but it has to feed letters to at one end. The speed of the machine is from 20 to 40,000 an hour.

Rats Make Its Home.

Inside the past fifteen months a new republic known for the name of Acre, has sprung up in the timber country lying partly in Brazil and partly in Bolivia. It was been established by a rich Brazilian banker and rubber dealer named Aldrich who has set himself up as president over a community of about 10,000 people, all of whom are in his employ. Demonstrations have been made against the little country by both Brazil and Bolivia, but it holds its own.

CANAL IDEA.

The Early Navigators Dismissed Cutting Through the Isthmus.

The advantage of a canal or navigable channel through the Isthmus of Panama is so obvious that it is not surprising to find the idea of such a waterway was seriously considered in the early days of Spanish conquest in the New world, says the Newcastle Chronicle. In the year 1527 the famous Cortes, being then in Mexico (or New Spain, sent three sailors on a voyage to the Mexican in charge of Alvaro de Saavedra. The expedition was an unfortunate one, as two of the ships were lost on the outward voyage and Saavedra did not live to carry out his intention of returning by way of the city of Panama, on the Pacific side, and thence across the isthmus. His idea was that at Panama he might unlade the cloves and merchandise that he had, that as its cargo it might be carried across the plains from Darien, to the river Chagre, which they saw is navigable, running out into the North sea for from Nombre Dios. Here, there the ships could be built and sail to Spain." In his "Discoveries of the World" (published in 1555 and translated by Harvey and published in England in 1601) Antonio Galvano, governor of Ternate in the Molucca, says of Saavedra: "If he had lived he meant to have opened the land of Castilla de Oro and New Spain from sea to sea, which might be done in four places—namely, from the Golfo of St. Michael to Urabe, which is 25 leagues, or from Panama to Nombre de Dios, being 12 leagues, or through Zoquatan a river of Nicaragua, which springeth out of a lake three leagues from the South sea, and falleth into the North sea, wherunto one ship great barks and crayers. The other place is from Tabasco to Guatemala, or from the Bay of Honduras, which also might be opened in a straight, which is done, then the ships might sail from the Canarias into the Mexico, under the ecliptic in a temperate climate, in four days and with much less danger, than to sail around the Cape of Good Hope, or to the straight of Magellan, or by the northwest."

Bear Gets the Apples.

A Marion man has a large bear, which he trained from a cub, until it can be handled like a dog. One of its tricks is an extreme fondness for apples. One day this bear saw a wagon approaching, and he smelled apples. Waiting until the wagon was at the top of a steep hill, the bear sprang out in front of the horses. Of course the frightened team ran away, and as the wagon bounced and lurched the road for a quarter mile was strewn with apples. Then the owner bear had a prodigious feast, and was doubtless very much surprised next day when he got a sound thrashing. That was because his master was presented with a bill for two bushels of apples and had to pay it.

LOCAL NEWS.

Chas. Hawtz and wife were here Tuesday.

An straight has been put up at temporary bridge.

The republican village ticket was elected last Monday by a large majority.

Mrs. E. C. Winters is just getting about after a protracted contest with the grippe.

President Harry Nichols, Grant Harrison and Lou Adams left for Chicago yesterday morning.

The high wheel fortune caused a crowd, and the management concluded nobody long distance alone. The money was presented to the Epworth League.

Willard Ward, Chas. and Jay, in the name of a new agricultural implement firm. They will have their warehouse in the upright back south terrace.

The surprising development in the art of construction was to have certainly discovered by a company of Boulevard Builders at the opera house Friday evening, March 22.

All who are dissatisfied with their present form, color, appearance or even station in life should not fail to visit Phil Dickerson at the opera house Friday evening, March 22.

Who should turn up last Monday but Ollie Collins, formerly a clerk at Dougherty. He is now with a clothing jobbing house in Chicago, and is making a trip for the house.

The March rage is having a contest with the March wind to see which shall rule the roaster. The wind seems to have the advantage so far.

Just as the curtain was about to rise on the first act of a snow temptation in Arbutus last evening, recently, by the black-eyed beauty, Mrs. Pete Tucker, wife of the leading local, was stricken with paralysis, and the performance had to be postponed. Mrs. Tucker is quite well known here.

Allie has discontinued operations at Mandell's Emporium (Lou Mandell is feeling good). He was worried considerable during the busy part of the day, but the gales were so heavy in the afternoon that business was an afterthought. We heartily congratulate the proprietor, and wish success for him in a successful administration.

Frank Newman, son of H. S. Newman of Hayes, was killed near Dunsmuir last Monday, by falling from a locomotive upon which he had been working. The body was brought to Hayes and the funeral occurred Sunday, the interment taking place here. Deceased was married and had three children.

The red iron bridge, which we once thought was the only thing on earth off the blind, is gradually getting back and is piled up to stand on the treadmill. Assistant Engineer Chapelle, representing the bridge company, arrived Saturday and will commence work on the construction gang of men. Overhead stand for the concrete work is being painted, and Col. Wilson is watching things for the U. S. army.

The new council will be called upon to take a vote of thanks to a chunk of Portland at once. As soon as visited the electric lighting system must be enlarged to meet the demand upon it. A larger engine and exciter system, or one to take the place of one of those now in use, are absolutely necessary. Another pump must be put in the water works, so that the high school will have power to do gymnasium, to carry in the interests of the dear people.

Best Johnson will start a cigar factory in C. F. Bell building.

Mrs. Dr. Thad Lewis of Central Lake has been the guest of Mrs. H. C. Cooper for several days.

The ladies of the M. E. church will hold their annual Easter social on Wednesday evening, April 10.

Do not fail to enjoy the greatest event of the season—the visit of the Hesiotic Lea dies and Prof. Makinover at the opera house March 22.

The wife of W. H. (Sam) Harry, formerly of this place, died in St. Louis, Mo., lately. Mrs. Harry was formerly Miss Ellie Pickrell of Norwood.

Mrs. O. S. Washburn, accompanied by her son Ralph, left this morning for Detroit, where she goes for special surgical treatment for a chronic kidney difficulty.

Over at Swalley' yard there has been completed a fine 32-foot scow and a 26-foot launch launch. The latter will have an 8-horse power engine. Both will be used by Swalley in his coal livery.

Miss Mary A. Milton, church missioner, is holding a mission in Christ church. Services each evening at 7:30 and children's meeting at 3:30 Saturday afternoon. Sunday service morning and evening. All invited.

We understand bids for the completion of the swing bridge by May 15, a forfeit of $25 per day for every day after that date being stipulated. It now looks as if June 15 would see the new bridge in use.

The mixture of rain, sleet and snow on Sunday made it slide for the L. S. railroad people. For the first time in the history of the road the evening train from the north, Monday was three hours late, and the train for Petoskey from the south at 3:40 p. m. did not pull in until two o'clock the next morning.

A man named Todd, one of the Hamton bridge gang, slipped into the river from the pond pier on Tuesday morning and had a close call. With the aid of a pair of barrel skids and a rope Todd was landed. He was hustled into the Tiger Exchange and a change of duds (their Tuesday) thrown on him, after which he thawed out and went home to change his clammy garments.

Frank a point two miles out the ice entirely disappeared Tuesday night—moved by the easterly gale. To the west and north, outside the center bay, there was no ice in night Wednesday morning. This condition, at this date, is not unprecedented, but it is unusual. Jesse Allen (Germany) morning the ice's gone from a point about 300 feet from the pier end, and John O'Neill is planning to go out on the big Dutchman after his nets that have been replaced.

Just to the Boulevard end of Bridge street near the river, is being placed tons of crushed stone to be used in filling up the numerous foundations for the new addition. It is being drawn from the beach at the west end of the village, and is a mile and a-half from the village. Had this material been used on our streets years ago, as it should have been, we would now have first class streets and tens thousands of dollars saved on street repair account. Take a look at the material piled up in front of L. S. Sam's store.

Rev. Thomas Bennett Hughes of New Milford has accepted the call of the Baptist church of Charlevoix, and will come under upon his labors here. Mr. Hughes was born in North Wales July 25, 1868. At the age of 12 he removed to Canada, and studied at Woodstock (Ont.) college, and later attended Morgan Park Theological seminary and the University of Chicago. He was ordained at Clare, in this state, August 21, 1896, and was at that time called to the pastorate of ordained minister in the state. He has been engaged in pastoral and evangelistic work in Canada, Colorado, Nebraska and Kansas, and has added to various churches about 300 converts. He accepted the call to Mesopotamia in September, 1897, and since then about 40 members have been added to the church, a portion of which are Swedes. The Mesopotamo Leader says: "Rev. Thomas Bennett Hughes may tender his resignation as pastor of the Baptist church in this city. Mr. Hughes has called to the pastorate of the Baptist church at Owosso, and also at Charlevoix, which, the departure from this city will be much regretted. Mr. Hughes built up the Jesus church, now being, from the people, out of that denomination in the upper peninsula."

TALMAGE'S SERMON

Washington, D. C., August 1896.

Now a Sermon from Dr. Talmage whose sermons are read by more people than those of any other living preacher, the spoken word and the printed word go on the wide, wide Lord's Day. This discourse is from Jeremiah xxiv. 5. "The children of the world are in their generation wiser than the children of light."

Recent reports and solemn lessons have call attention to the fact that there are in the world two classes of people who are wiser than the children of light, who are wiser than God's children, wiser than God's people of all ages, wiser than Christian people in the present. That is the conclusion we come to from the text. The children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light.

A marked illustration of the truth of this text is in the response of the Christian religion to the movement of the secular press. The secular press is open and has been for some time open to the discussion of the Christian religion, and the publishers of secular newspapers have offered to the churches, and the publishers of secular newspapers have offered for some time to give us a fair chance and the most golden opportunity to state our case. Then the secular press has come to us from the first line of the battle in its pages and has offered to hold the ground satisfactorily for us. Then, Ann Eliza Young, who was married to Brigham Young, the United States sent her as a special commissioner to the Mormon country to find out the real state of things there, and she wrote a book in which she said that the Mormon Church was in the United States from which it could not be dislodged, and that it would be impossible to make any impression upon it, and that the only way to get at it, and to do anything with it, was to bombard it with all following agencies. But there are many people who do not know that Brigham Young, with spiritual guidance, wandering in Israel for forty years, and then he was caught his better speed, in which he was wiser than the children of light.

Or, to come nearer home, we have in the world's discussion.

If, instead of fighting, we organized the same fourth of time and the same enthusiasm, we would be an overpowering element in society. Instead of the ranks of the religious being thinned out, they would be increased. Instead of the ranks of the religious being thinned out, they would be increased. Instead of the ranks of the religious being thinned out, they would be increased

WE MAKE THE BEST.

Why Englishmen Prefer to Buy Shoes Made in This Country.

There are more American boots and shoes in this country than there people know of. They have not been here long, but they have found a very firm holding and they are getting further every day, says the London Mail. One agent who came over less than three years ago has 1,200 names on his house good firms who do not want long credit and would not get it if they did. Fifty in the American system. These names are drawn from all over the British isles. His this year's turnover amounts to forty thousand of pounds with the good months still to run. What is the secret? The answer is simple. The American makes. That is to say he works hard and he thinks hard. He with the American factory. It is on the biggest scale procurable. The cost of one factory alone is 3,000 pounds a day and there are bigger ones than that. Now mark. Every one of these 3,000 pairs is sold wholesale at the same price. The consequence is that the whole time and thought and capital of the manufacturer is concentrated on this one problem—namely, how to produce the best possible shoe for that money? It goes without saying that the American manufacturer has the very latest machinery and plenty of it. He does not do a new machine or an improvement on an old one because it is invented he has it. Again, his workmen work by the piece, not by time. In the factory there are hundreds of workmen who are living on a regular wage. They are quite happy as they are and any tongue current in process means trouble in learning it, it also displeases labor. The short-sighted trades unions this something to say to them. Boots or shoes are modeled on the same lines as those which our ancestors used to wear years ago. Contrast an American last with a typical English last. One of the two is plainly and painfully distorted. It is not the American. But has Allen The Shoe-man instead of trying to fit the foot to the shoe, tries to fit the shoe to the foot. He has, say, four or six shapes to start with, narrow to broad. Then one of these shapes he makes in sixteen or more gradations of size. Consequently you have not hundreds of variations in size and fitting to choose from. In Crete, any reader who is an English manufacturer should not take Punch "Cri" his American brothers "Nous whatever. He is doing it.

Water Lily Mattress.

A cool, clean, bright mattress is over a thing of beauty. It is not the other day for a new mattress worthy of consideration to the housewife who is anxious and careful in the matter. The walls were papered with one of the smallest papers for parlor surface, with a scarcely conventional design of water lilies with the of cracker day herbage. Then a strip of cream was divided from the ceiling by a fourteen-inch band of pale blue. The woodwork was the color of the water lily leaves, a green shade, while that lintelum covered the floor and the bath mats, white of green and white crash and cotton. The bedspread of washstand and bed, usually hidden under white quilts, matched the washstand and a back of green tiles.

Bitters Must Attest Purity.

Few people may be cognizant of the fact that there is in existence an act of parliament which provides that persons who fail to attend divine services on Sunday shall be liable to imprisonment or fine. The statute dates from the period of the protectorate, but it is rarely enforced is proved only too conclusively by the sparse attendance at which take place at ... more public places of worship.

An English Centenarian.

Richard Beck has died at his residence Chester, at the age of 100 years. He married was a native of Sandbach, Cheshire and prior to settling was in Chester as a wine and spirit merchant was in the service of the Dual Ladies company. Latterly he was partially blind and deaf, but retained a wonderful clear memory, which discovered a rare store of anecdotes and reminiscences. Had Mr. Beck survived until the present was he would have attained to three centuries.

Foreign Gold Stolen.

All the Japanese claims have been settled arising from the silver railway accident at Tacoma, Wash., on the night of July when a loaded car plunged off the bridge street ceiling, forty feet high into a gulch, killing forty-five persons and injuring 100 others. The total settlement cost $100,000.

No Irish Slave in Korea.

There are no doubt made in Korea. Only one is found a lady, but she has two daughters and I were enjoying a walk. The children there were Chinchilla and their dolls with them. As usual Indian quite a crowd followed us, and at last some of the women who had never before seen a doll, asked "Did did are the two babies?" ah! My how little they are!"—Correspondence Baltimore Sun.

A Friend's Profitable Joke.

John W. Yerkes, commissioner of internal revenue, said that before the recent election, when he was a candidate for the governorship of Kentucky, one of his anti-Democratic friends, nonsuitsmore insisted on selling him government, and when asked why he replied that it was because after election he wouldn't have a chance to sell him that.

A Bogus Lyceum.

A Chicago clubbable who expects to be released on bail shortly proposes to lecture "in the cause of justice and the business enforcement of the law." A Missouri "Bring" is to take the platform, doubtless for the purpose of exposing his authority to the fire insurance companies. Perhaps a Rogues' Forum will yet be founded.—New York Sun.

OLD AND NEW.

Passage for the New Century Based on the Old.

At the First Baptist church, Indianapolis, the pastor, the Rev. Thomas J. Villars preached recently on the subject, "The Century—Sunset and Dawn." The sermon was largely a resume of the achievements of the nineteenth century and a brief presage of the possibilities and developments of the coming century. Mr. Villars contrasted the material progress the world has made. He said: "Our material progress has been marvelous. We have gone from a nation of 3,000,000 at the beginning of the century to a nation of 70,000,000. When the century began we owned scarcely a quarter of the land which we now possess. Nearly all of our enormous wealth has been amassed since 1861. While England is the richest country of the old world, our accumulating has taken place chiefly here in 1860-90 we doubled. Among the great inventions which have added to our material welfare was the plow in 1804, the first steam steamer in 1807, the reaper in 1834, the sewing machine in 1846 and the Atlantic cable in 1858. The most notable development however was the telephone in 1876. The telegraph dates from 1844 and the telegraph system has been growing for the last sixty-five years at the rate of 5 miles annually. The telegraph, whose wires in fact reached from Washington to Baltimore, has now a length which would girdle the globe twenty times. Bell's hand telephone, which so wonderful in its mechanism has been so improved that it has now reached from coast to coast. Progress in education and in the arts has been equally rapid and solid. In conclusion he referred to what he considered the greatest work of the century, namely, the growth of missionary and religious teachings."—Indianapolis News.

LETTER FAMILY.

A Thousand Was to Insure the Answer.

The mother of a little boy in Philadelphia, who is a great lover of letters and children, recently sent the boy to the post office to buy a letter and stamp, giving him a cent and a nickel, the latter to pay for the letter. Calling the little boy to her side, she said: "Now, Jim, I want you to be very careful and not make a mistake in the letter and stamp." The boy was 3 years old and "careful" was a word he had heard very often. The boy went to the post office and bought a letter and stamp, and on his way home he was so careful that he stumbled and fell, but was so careful that he did not let the letter and stamp go. BUSINESS GAINS IN VOLUME EAST AND WEST.

Expansion of Jobbing Trade in Groceries, Hardware and Iron Specialties Reported—Wool Sales Larger—Thieves Attack a Woman in a Boston Street.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Business begins to present the features of autumn, in the increase of orders, in the expansion of jobbing trade in groceries, hardware and iron specialties, in the larger sales of wool, and in the better tone of trade. The number of failures is still very large, but the proportion of those which are of importance is much smaller than for some weeks past. In the West and Northwest the change is most marked, and there the number of failures is much smaller than for some weeks past. In Chicago the jobbing trade in groceries, hardware and iron specialties is much larger than for some weeks past, and there is a better feeling in other lines. In Milwaukee the jobbing trade is larger than for some weeks past, and there is a better feeling in other lines. In Minneapolis and Duluth there is a better feeling in all lines, and in St. Paul the jobbing trade is larger than for some weeks past. In Kansas City there is a better feeling in all lines, and in Omaha the jobbing trade is larger than for some weeks past. In Denver there is a better feeling in all lines, and in Portland, Or., the jobbing trade is larger than for some weeks past. In San Francisco there is a better feeling in all lines, and in Los Angeles the jobbing trade is larger than for some weeks past. In Boston there is a better feeling in all lines, and in Philadelphia there is a better feeling in most lines. In New York the jobbing trade in groceries is larger than for some weeks past, and there is a better feeling in other lines. The interesting feature of these relics is that they passed through the Chicago fire, and bear present evidence less the metal case in which they were kept and which bears unmistakable evidence of that terrible scorch of 1871. Another interesting feature of the case is that Mr. and Mrs. Sharp are going to New York before their return to Oregon, will bring up the old lodge and tender it the honorary membership, the same which we speak is a fact, that piece of silver, 22 inches long and 14 inches wide, is now in the hands of Mr. Sharp, with the "compass" in the center, and on the reverse side the name of the owner, name and number of his mark, masters lodge and date. School Commissioner's Column.

School should open and close with singing, or some kind of music. The importance of music in school cannot be too fully admitted that it seems unnecessary to more than mention it. It is good, not only for opening and closing exercises, but also for an occasional exercise during a session. For example, if the whole school grow tired, dull and listless, they may be refreshed, animated and refreshed by joining in a spirited song for two or three minutes.

Every school should be provided with suitable song books for the pupils, but, when this is not done, both the songs and the music may be written on the board from the teacher's song book. Pupils can copy this on suitable paper ruled for the purpose. By formulating a new song each week or two, quite a collection will be made by the end of the term.

Pupils may easily be taught the length of notes and also the pitch, so that they will be a material help to them in sight-singing. In this way many chronic faults of "sing-song" singing may be entirely eradicated. Pupils may easily be led to see wherein their ear singing differs from written music and that may be interested in making the corrections and seeing the improvement.

The teachers may, with a little drill, tone down the loud and harsh voices, and pupils may be made conscious of their power to produce (easily) sweet musical tones of which they were unconscious.

* * *

At the opening of school each day a new sentiment should be given by the teacher or by some pupil. If it is thought good enough to commit to memory it should be repeated by different pupils and by the whole school in concert. This sentiment should be again repeated before dismissing in the evening.

In many of our best schools five to ten minutes a day is given to running over the columns of a good "current events" paper, and stating all news of importance to the school. This helps to broaden the views of children, gives them an interest in the affairs of the nation and of other countries and frequently adds to the interest of their studies in geography and history.

The Heroine of Monmouth

CHAPTER XXV.

On extending Valley Forge, with all much more ease, Washington sent Arnold, who on account of a wound received at Saratoga was still lame, to take possession of Philadelphia.

It was the morning of June 27, 1778, that Captain Molly and a small party of his men became restless in the village which constituted America and Hatfield, followed the main army marching in the direction of the Delaware.

"Will he succeed in hatred a general engagement?" Washington asked his adjutant-general when he caught up.

Our after another answered that they expected the American army was not strong enough to hazard a general attack but a reconnoitering party had been sending of detachments to harass the enemy on the march. As a result he had the rank fortifiers from the commander-in-chief.

"I have no such measure," he dolefully. "Such actions have proved entirely antipathy and those who know nothing of military affairs, but I expect to see interference with the enemy whatever."

"I cannot agree with him, Lee," Washington replied. "Should we permit the enemy to march across the country unhindered, it would greatly discourage and damage our cause. The men are eager for the fray, and we must not give them cause to believe we fear either the skill or strength of the enemy."

Manville obtained permission from his commanding officer to send Amelia and Ruth to Harbourt Hall under an escort and reported himself ready for duty. He was assigned to operate with Lee, who, he had orders to fall on the rear of the enemy, and Manville was given extreme advance of the corps, which moved this morning at daybreak.

A large number of Tories had left Philadelphia with the British army, among them was Sir John Harbourt. On finding himself in Monmouth County he asked Captain Stanley to accompany him with a small party, and had been home with all his servants before his return and he was found friend arrived.

Sir John Harbourt and his wife in his extraordinary manner, coldly and yet in all this had never been supercilious and sudden manner had not conserved. He was very fond of Ruth, who, attended him with hawk-like vision. His brilliant was so constant accompanied on his journey as he came from his home to Philadelphia, and more under a month with Amelia.

The party arrived at Lee's quarters quite peacefully, though all were in the uniform of a colonel in the British army, which Sir John had worn.

"Colonel Manville, I have the honor to be your prisoner," said Sir John, as he was ushered into the presence of the officer.

"Captain Stanley of the 27th, as before," the man making his salute to the officer, who, in his turn, bowed to the lady, "I am sorry to see you in this place, but I know you are a man of honor, and I shall not detain you longer than I can help."

"Sir, I thank you," said Sir John, as he bowed and turned to leave the room.

"Stanley, I shall expect you to be in my tent at 8 o'clock," said Lee, as he turned to the officer.

"I will be there, sir," said Stanley, as he followed his chief.

"Sir John, I shall be pleased to have you and your lady dine with me," said Lee, as he turned to the gentleman.

"Sir, I thank you, but I fear we shall be compelled to leave the neighborhood of the enemy," said Sir John, as he turned to the door.

"Sir, I shall be sorry if you do not," said Lee, as he bowed to the lady.

"Sir, I thank you for your courtesy," said Sir John, as he bowed and left the room followed by his wife.

"Stanley, I shall be pleased to have you and your lady dine with me," said Lee, as he turned to the door

Our "Plain Duty" in Cuba.

There is very much being written, notably in the Chicago Times Herald about our duty in Cuba, that is little better than cheap sentiment, and much of it is the plainest nonsense.

Executive pledges and congressional resolutions have certainly kept in the direction of giving Cuba its true form and the president has spoken of this as "our plain duty." But is it strange that there should be an American citizen so unwise as to advocate the absolute abandonment of Cuba to itself. The congressional resolution of 1898 was for "Cuban independence" and Cuba will certainly have her independence, subject to certain stipulations and reservations that are not only for our own future security against annoyance and possible entanglements, but for the future safety and integrity of the insular republic itself.

Cuba is a swaddling infant in self government. Her population is of that heterogeneous and always unstable character that can give no positive assurance to this government that a political conflagration will not occur within twelve months.

Cuba is within the scope of the Monroe doctrine, but so is Mexico. To abandon Cuba totally to itself would be to place it on a par with Venezuela or to use an American Indian expression! But Cuba is kin to the United States by stronger ties than are suggested by the Monroe doctrine.

American money and good American blood received into Cuba from practically the moment she became free, and prompted by considerations of the most sympathy and American philanthropy, championship of the principles of liberty, but, the duty once accomplished, the perpetuity of insular freedom depends on her own strength and wisest action.

The Platt amendments to the Cuban constitution are only safeguards for the future, and in a very small degree difficult, the power of Cuba to govern herself. They are positive strong bulwarks, behind which Cuba can safely work out and preserve her own future national destiny; they are conditions for the recognition of our own just rights; they are a guaranty against foreign interference with the affairs of Cuba, and what would probably follow—displacement by some foreign power of American influence in that part of the West Indies not American.

These are days of growing European ambition, and the intent of the United States government is that Cuba shall not only be free, but forever free from any possibility of commercial or political absorption by foreign powers.

This is "our plain duty" and it is this duty that is defined in the amendments to the Cuban constitution.

Call it sentiment, or whatever you will, the United states should retain the guardian grip of the "Queen of the Antilles."

The State Ticket.

The Republicans of Michigan present to the electors of the state this spring a ticket that for genuine worth and merit has probably never been surpassed in the history of the state. Every candidate upon it has proved his capacity for the work that will devolve upon him by reason of his election by the people, and it is with the utmost confidence that the party appeals for the ticket the enthusiastic support of all Republicans, and commends it to the good will of the state generally as worthy of their ballots.

Chief Justice Robert M. Montgomery, whose name adorns the head of the ticket, has amply proved that he who selection was made when he was first nominated for justice of the supreme court ten years ago. At that time he enjoyed an enviable record as a careful practitioner and a painstaking circuit judge, and to this has now been added a most satisfactory service of a decade upon the bench of the highest tribunal of the state.

The career of Justice Montgomery, whose name adorns the head of the ticket, has amply proved that a man who selection was made when he was first nominated for justice of the supreme court ten years ago. At that time he enjoyed an enviable record as a careful practitioner and a painstaking circuit judge, and to this has now been added a most satisfactory service of a decade upon the bench of the highest tribunal of the state.

The career of Justice Montgomery is one of which both he, his party and the state may well be proud. A self made man in the best sense of the term, he has steadily advanced until today he occupies an acknowledged position among the foremost jurists of the country. Judge Montgomery accepted first the office of prosecuting attorney and assistant United States district attorney before being elevated to the circuit bench in Kent county in 1881, and his record in the latter capacity was so satisfactory that he was elected by an increased majority and continued to serve in that capacity until he resigned in 1888 to engage in the practice of his profession. For years he was the senior member of one of the leading law firms of western Michigan, and in that capacity was embroiled with litigation of great importance.

The work of Judge Montgomery upon the circuit and supreme benches has been characterized by directness, clearness and manly courageous. He have caused his opinions to be regarded by the profession throughout the country as models of judicial learning and perspicuity.

Judge Montgomery is the youngest of the present judges of the supreme court of Michigan, having been born in this state in 1843. He is noted for his energy, industry and capacity for hard work. He is now in the very prime of life and grounded in habits of study which have already given him a most enviable reputation as a jurist. With this record behind him, there can be no doubt that his re-election will insure for the Michigan tribunal a continuance of that name which has made it famous in the judicial annals of the world.

Associated with Judge Montgomery on the republican state ticket are two gentlemen whose fitness for the office they seek is unquestioned. Mr. Frank W. Flasher of Alpena, has given much valuable time during the past six years to the upbuilding of the Michigan university, and his large experience in business has been of great value to that institution. The other nominee for regent, Mr. Henry W. Carey, of Manistee, has also had extensive experience in large affairs of business and possesses qualifications that are needed in the management of Michigan's great institution of learning.

Ex-President Harrison Dead.

Benjamin Benjamin Harrison, former president of the United States, died at his home in Indianapolis, Indiana, Thursday afternoon at five o'clock.

The death of General Harrison adds another to the list of illustrious Americans who have been taken from us. He was a giant in intellectuality, a statesman towering among his fellows.

He was not always popular, because his greatness was of such self-reliant, opinionated kind he appeared, at times, cold and unsympathetic.

But he was a great, honest and patriotic man, and his death will be sincerely mourned by his fellow countrymen.

The Fish Laws.

The legislature is up against all kinds of propositions amending the fish laws. Probably no subject demanding legislative attention is looked upon in as many different ways as the fish question. On the one hand are those who, viewing with alarm the decimation of the food fish, seek to secure the passage of such laws as shall check this destruction, on another hand is the colossal fish corpus with one its own interests governing it, and on still another the commercial fishermen, who look with suspicion on the opinions of the others.

With all these divergent interests and influence it is not strange that the legislature, the greatest part of the members of which could scarcely discriminate between a gill net, seine or trap, or tell the difference between a whitefish and a long-jaw, should so constantly grapple for light, and the legislature is now groping with very little prospect of light that will show them the proper course to pursue.

Inventory them was never greater a danger of disaster to the fishing industry of those portions of the great lakes under Michigan control than now. The warden's department is under the displeasure of the fishing seines with the probability of its usefulness being seriously impaired, if not fatally crippled, and dangerous legislation is threatened.

The senate has passed the bill permitting fishermen to retain and dispose of 10 per cent of their catches of undersized fish in seas of the region that lived them. At present the law does not permit the fishermen to throw into the lake the dead undersized fish they catch, under penalty, neither does it allow them to retain the fish under penalty. Thus the fisherman is claimed to be between the devil and the deep sea. It is safe to say that under any circumstances does his catch of undersized fish exceed 7 per cent of the total catch anyhow, and that the 10 per cent of this 7 per cent will allow him to evade the apparently inconsistent provisions of the present laws with regard to the dead undersized fish caught. The bill has gone to the house.

This school bill be fair, but the warden's department protest against it as calculated to tie down the lands for flagrant violations. But the greater danger lies in the probability of the repeal of the close season law. A strong influence is being exerted at Lansing by a certain element, the identity of which is not hard to guess, to wipe out this statute, and there is no denying the fact that this influence is augmented by an unsatisfactory condition of things growing out of the operations of the U. S. commission in spawn gathering during the close season. An element of injustice seems to enter into this arrangement that is obvious to the most un-discerning. Discrimination is charged, and the charge is well grounded. But, on the other hand, it is the only feasible measure that could be adopted, unless we it may appear.

But the repeal of the close season law, in the face of the evidence, will be disastrous.

There is no doubt but that food fish have increased since the operation of this law. The most intelligent and successful fishermen on Lake Michigan so testify. But the law can be made efficacious only by energetic enforcement. Such enforcement is expensive, and expense in the Warden's department it seems, is unpopular.

There is danger ahead for the commercial fishing industry that gives rise to the thought that, after all, the main solution of the problem is the enactment and strict enforcement of federal laws protecting the fish of all the great lakes.

From the Philippines.

SAN FERNANDO, Pampagga, Feb 1 Date—One at Home.

The other night I attended a Lincoln banquet at Bacolor. It was some holiday or other, and one of the Filipino members of our band invited the band and some others to go to his father in law's place to the celebration. The town was brilliantly lighted and there was all kinds of music and a pretty nice banquet, a la Filipino. There was an operatic theatre, and take it altogether, we had a pleasant time.

You should see the Filipinos play ball. First, the ball is thrown up by a player and another kicks it back as it descends and it is kept in the air first one player and then another kicking it, and the accuracy with which they put the ball just where they want it is remarkable. Sometimes the ball comes down just behind a player and he will catch it on his heel and send it over his head, or he will wait and catch it on his toe and send it back over his shoulder. They make some great side-side leaps and catch the ball on the side of their foot, and all this in slippers without any counters—which it is quite a trick to walk in, let alone jumping around. The game is carried on like a game of catch, any number of players participating. The ball used is slightly larger than a base ball, softer and lighter.

Company A has moved to this and garrison's that place and Manila, on the bay, south of Malabon. Marilao is not garrisoned by a unit of Lyons Minnesotas, and leaves just a detachment of it from Guiguinto and Bigan, so you see they are stretching us out more and more.

I see by the papers that the army bill has passed and the canteen subject has been reconsidered. I am glad of that. Government straights may be all right, but its a nice thing to have a little company fund to buy extras for the mess.

A bunch of missionaries from China showed up here yesterday, and they are going to hold a meeting tonight. There are three of their one male and the rest female. I understand one of the women is a faith healer. I believe they talk Spanish.

Feb. 15, 1901.

Lieut. Stogsdall with recruits to the states on sick leave and Capt Dwyer goes home to the company tomorrow. Lieut. Stogsdall is on the sick report also, so the company is rather hard up for officers. Lieut. Stogsdall's wife, children and nurse arrived a short time since. He took examination a few days ago for captaincy, and is very anxious to stay with company. A when he is "made." His physical condition was at bad, however, that he could not be promoted unless he would take a sick leave and give himself a chance to recuperate.

San Fernando is a large town—20 to 30 thousand inhabitants, filled with substantial stone residences, with gal-vanized iron and tile roofs. The great business of the town is sugar, and there are big warehouses everywhere. The sugar is transported by carabos down the river and towed to Manila. It is shipped in great earthen jars, holding, I should judge, between one and a half and two hogsheads, or a little less than a barrel, and is a solid mass about the color of maple sugar in the mass. The product is simply poured into the bottom (solid) of the cask—and it is a black, dirty-looking mass. I suppose it is refined in Manila. The largest business is done by Chinese. If you wish to write the proper name of the place it is San Fernando, Pampanga province, Luzon P. I. There are three San Fernandos in Luzon, and I suppose more in the islands.

I am in hopes that we are seeing the last expiring struggles of the insurrection—at the outset of the last year can be dignified with that name. Yesterday Maximo Angeles, with 120 men and rifles, surrendered to Capt. Freeland at Hagonoy. Of course, there are numerous bands who dare not come in, for a rope awaits them for some of the skimpedig and murders they have been guilty of in the last six or eight months. The man I took off of a former letter is to be executed here March 1st. February 15th sent a hanging at Imfalong. But usus has only in the near future, and I see by today's paper that a gang was gathered in in this department which confessed to thirty murders in the past six months. When such charges as those mention are against a lot of men, they cannot be expected to fall overtheseries in their envy to humanity. This must be hunted down like the wolves they are, and, naturally, it may not be done in an hour or two. However, many of the "foxy" wolves are quietly slipping in to the town and lying low, in the hope that their connection with these outlaws may not be known, or they may not be recognized by the authorities. Some of these are ferreted out and investigated.

There is a rumor afloat that the 3d is to return the 5th of June as soon as warm weather comes in the north. All for now.

Yours, as ever,

GEORGE MCCARTHY

YOUNG MAN MISSING

HAS BEEN AWAY FROM HOME EIGHT MONTHS.

Nine Weeks at Independence, Cal., and in Portland, Oregon, Then Goes Also to Home in Indianapolis—Some Time Spent in Chicago.

A young man named Charles Lamb, of Indianapolis, Ind., has been missing from his home since August 1, and his parents are now in Portland, Oregon, in search of him. They have spent nearly two weeks in Portland, and have been to Independence, Cal., and to Chicago, Ill., in the search. The young man left his home in Indianapolis on the morning of August 1, and his parents did not know he was gone until the following morning. Mr. Lamb, of Lamb Glass Company, and his wife, went to their home in Chicago, a week ago, and from there they went to Portland, Oregon, where they spent two weeks in the search. They then went to Independence, Cal., where Mrs. Lamb's mother lives, and from there they went to Chicago, where they now are. They have been to the Lamb Glass Company's factory in Chicago, and have been to the Pullman factory, where young Lamb's father is a foreman, and have been to the Illinois Steel Company's works, where young Lamb's brother-in-law is a foreman, and have been to the Lamb Glass Company's factory in Indianapolis, and have been to the Pullman factory, and have been to the Illinois Steel Company's factory in South Chicago, and have been to the Illinois Steel Company's factory in Joliet, and have been to the Illinois Steel Company's factory in Gary, Ind., and have been to the Illinois Steel Company's factory in Ensley, Ala., and have been to the Illinois Steel Company's factory in Duquesne, Pa., and have been to the Illinois Steel Company's factory in Pittsburg, Pa., and have been to the Illinois Steel Company's factory in Cleveland, Ohio, and have been to the Illinois Steel Company's factory in Lorain, Ohio, and have been to the Illinois Steel Company's factory in Milwaukee, Wis., and have been to the Illinois Steel Company's factory in Minnesota, and have been to the Illinois Steel Company's factory in Duluth, Minn., and have been to the Illinois Steel Company's factory in Superior, Wis., and have been to the Illinois Steel Company's factory in Ashland, Wis., and have been to the Illinois Steel Company's factory in Chicago

Local News.

—Smith, the grocer, says something new in his ad. this week.

—The famous Prof. Makenzer will be at the opera house Friday evening, March 22, with his wonderful transforming machine. Don't miss seeing this marvelous exhibition of the 20th century science.

—A petition for the removal of W. A. Smith as guardian of the minor heirs of the Gaffney estate will be heard in probate court on March 15.—Charlevoix Courier.

Of course, the above was published as an intentional discourtesy. Of course, it was published to injure the editor of this paper where the facts were not known. Of course, it was a contemptible and cowardly thrust, that is characteristic of Mr. Hemphill. Now, will he record the fact in his column that the court, on Monday, denied the petition, and Mr. Smith will continue to exercise the functions of guardian until the heirs are of age, or until he sees fit to resign. This is a personal matter, and does not concern the public; but we are compelled to print these facts because of an attempt on the part of a brother journalist to cast reflection on our person or integrity.

Marine Notes.

The schooner Maine is undergoing extensive repairs at the foot of Macomb street.

Local inspectors Hosmer & Hooker are here today inspecting the tug John Smith.

John Eide, formerly mate of the steamer Pine Lake, will command the tug Tarbe this season.

Navigation practically opened here last Sunday. The dab, bass, Pickerel and Grillers were outside and set nets.

The tug John Smith will tow during the spring months, and then it up and run as a ferry the entire six last season.

Capt. H. Gerlling, last year master of the steamer Pine Lake, comes out this spring as master of the steamer Edwin S. Tice.

The steamboarge White Star, Capt. Sipfield, of Port Huron, was destroyed by fire lately. The White Star is well known here.

Wm. H. White & Co., have sold their steamboarge, the M. C. Nell, to the Schomberg Hardwood Lumber Co., of Milwaukee.

The steamers Northwest and Northland North Land will make two trips between Chicago and Manitou Island—one at Milwaukee and the other at Harbor Springs.

Chief engineer John Charnock, second engineer Rudolph Jaeger, and oiler Jim Benson, of the steamer Pine Lake, arrived from Racine saturday, and are fitting out the boat.

It is understood that the steamer Oval Agitator, of Harbor Springs, which laid season for a time was on the Beaver Island route, will this season run between Escanaba and Gladstone.

Capt. John Gelley, who is fishing out of Manistique with his tug, reports heavy ice around the south end of the Beaver and Fox Islands, and still ice also from Sail Choix Sight to Squaw Island, and north and east of the Straits of Mackinac.

H. G. Peters has sold his fleet of vessels, consisting of the steamer Charles Hebb and barges John Hays and Agnes L. Potter, to the Ann Arbor company of Manistee. The vessels will trade as heretofore, chiefly between Manistee and Chicago.

It has been ascertained that there is only about $4,000 now available or unexpended money appropriated for Charlevoix harbor. As the shifting of the bridge center-pier will leave a bank in the channel, at the draw, some dredging will be necessary this spring. But whether we get it or not is another thing.

Life Saving Stations are to be built early this coming summer at lower end of South Manitou Island, Lake Michigan and also at Sleeping Bear Point on the Michigan main land directly south. These two points are on either side of channel that is peculiarly dangerous in bad weather. Contracts for building the stations will be let next month and work on them will be completed before season closes.

Otto Schomberg, president of the Schomberg Hardwood Lumber company of Milwaukee, will become half owners of the proposed new steamboat line between Milwaukee and various points on the east shore, providing business interests in that city will take the other half of the capital stock, which will be placed at about $50,000. The shippers in Milwaukee who become interested, are also to agree to give the new line preference in the matter of handling their goods for shipment across the lake. The points desired to be reached by the proposed new line are Frankfort, Glen Haven, Traverse City, Traverse Bay points, Charlevoix, Harbor Point, Cheboygan and Mackinac Island.

The report comes well authenticated that George T. Arnold of Mackinac Island is building a steamer at Cheboygan to run between Charlevoix and the Soo. The new steamer will be similar to the Chippewa, of the Arnold line, of about 1,100 gross tons burthen. She will be built for speed, and will make the trip to the Soo in one day, returning the next, taking in Petoskey and Harbor Springs. There is no question about the success of such an undertaking, and we hope the report is true. Lyman Capt Hunter, local inspector, who is here today, confirms the above. The boat will be built under Lloyd's ocean classification, and will run between American ports and Cuba during the winter.

At a meeting of general passenger agents in Chicago this week it was announced that the Northern Steamship company will soon purchase or charter one of the small Plant line steamers now running in connection with that big railroad and steamship system between Florida and Cuban ports. She will be brought to the lakes and run between Mackinac Island and Duluth, thus retaining to the road in a measure the Lake Superior business it would lose by the shift of the North West and North Land to the Chicago run. As soon as the Indian canals are opened she will be brought to the lakes and altered wherever necessary to fit her for her new route. The schedule of the Northern line is not yet completed, but the route will include Chicago, Milwaukee, Harbor springs, Mackinac, Detroit, Cleveland and Buffalo.

Township Caucus.

School Commissioner's Estimate.

H. S. CHEV. JOSEPH.

In nearly every country school there are some bad goody pupils. Here more than in towns this class is sadly neglected. The country teacher has not the time necessary to hear them recite often, and the consequence is they often wear away school hours with such amusements or mischief as they can devise, or they are allowed to go out to play as soon as they have recited.

Country teachers, especially those in summer schools, should be prepared to give plenty of busy work, so that the smaller pupils may be constantly employed with work which has some aim and purpose. Many forms of this class of work can be given in teaching numbers with pegs, beans, corn, sticks, stones etc., and adding, substracting, grouping, etc., and representing each group, number or addition by marks, forms and signs on slates for the teacher's inspection day and by.

Language work will also afford profitable busy work. An evening spent in writing on board, writing verbal analysis, filling blanks in complete sentences, writing opposites of words and finally, classifying words as name words or nouns, action words or verbs etc.

Drawing may also be used for profitable busy work. Children like to make pictures. With a little direction from the teacher or by the use of drawing cards, many a hollow hour might be spent in pleasant and profitable employment.

No good teacher will try to suppress the activities of continued by compelling little children to sit stupidly quiet through weary hours or allow them to acquire chronic habits of disorder during the first year of school life. Remember that it pays to do the elementary work thoroughly.

From George Van Pelt.

Chicago, March 17, 1901.

My Dear Sentinel:

St. Patrick's day in the morning.

There is an old saying, that "a new broom sweeps clean;" another, that "a rolling stone—is the last policy" and "honesty gathers no moss."

Now, in the language of that great Latin scholar, Dennis O'Flaherty, whose favorite expression was "no sweeper germanic," which, translated, means "Pitch shit, send for Metzgitte—let us all lend a hand to the newly elected town, village and county officers of our beautiful, healthy and prosperous county, and go to work with a vengeance on any and all improvements—both public and private, that will add to the beauty and convenience of our homes, as well as to the public buildings, streets and highways.

I notice there is a discussion going on in Charlevoix as to the necessity of building proper sewers and paving the streets. Well this is commendable enterprise, and should be thoroughly talked over before deciding on just what is best to do. For in council there is much wisdom. The idea of a public sewer or sewers is good, and then, when put in, compel every adjoining property owner to connect with same.

Then comes the next greatest need for Charlevoix, and that is paved streets. From observation in various cities I have visited, I conclude that petrified brick, properly laid on a tightly prepared foundation, is the best material to pave with.

The next important thing is good county roads, one way almost spent in this way, no matter how large, will come back in a 1000 ratio.

Charlevoix needs two more large hotels and, mark my words, if they were there now they would be filled to overflowing during the coming months. Build good driveways and bicycle paths at the outskirts of your village and along the lake shore. Now is the time, if you have any energy or pride in your city, to display it and to take advantage of the opportunities which are thrust upon you.

Repair your sidewalks, paint your houses and fences, set out trees and shrubbery; in fact, do any and everything that will make your town more attractive to strangers and this will bring more prosperous and wealthy people to your town, and you cannot help this class of people to Charlevoix without doing everybody most good. The shop keeper, the druggist, all come in for their share—and so will you.

The new bridge will be a fine improvement, and those who pass over it will do so with a feeling of safety to which they have been strangers for a long time.

I believe that this will be the banner year for Charlevoix, the Beautiful, and hoping soon to be with you again, I am

Sincerely yours,

GEORGE H. VAN PELT.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON FOR MARCH 24.

Jesus Crucified and Buried. John 19:16-30. Memory verses, 16, 17. Golden Text, "Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners." 1 Tim. 1:15.

Jesus, the Nazarene, was condemned to death by Pontius Pilate, the governor and universal scoundrel. The Roman soldiers had scourged him, and compelled him to carry a cross on which he was to be crucified. The procession moved from the judgment hall to the place of execution, Jesus being in front, carrying the cross, and the two thieves, who were also condemned to death, following in the rear. The place of execution was outside the city walls, and was called Golgotha, or Calvary, from the fancied resemblance of a skull to the rocky eminence on which the cross was set up. The cross was not very high, so that the feet of the crucified were only a little above the ground. The victim was fastened to the cross by nails driven through his hands and feet, and was left to die of exposure and exhaustion. The crucifixion was a Roman punishment, and was inflicted only upon the vilest of criminals. Pilate had ordered that the inscription should be placed on the cross, which was done in Hebrew, Greek and Latin, so that it could be read by all who passed by. The Jews had asked that the inscription should be changed so as to read, "He said, I am King of the Jews," but Pilate had refused to change what he had written. The Roman soldiers who had charge of the crucifixion had taken the garments of Jesus, and had divided them among themselves, but they had cast lots for his seamless robe, which was woven in one piece, and had given it to the chief officer of the band, who had ordered the crucifixion. The crucifixion took place about 9 o'clock in the morning, and Jesus hung on the cross six hours, during which time the Roman soldiers had sat down and watched the sufferers, while the Jewish priests and rulers had taunted the dying men. The two thieves had at first joined with the rulers in taunting Jesus, but one of them had become penitent, and had rebuked his companion in crime for his sin, and had asked Jesus to remember him when he came into his kingdom. Jesus had promised him that he should be with him in paradise that very day. At noon there had been a great darkness over all the land, which had lasted three hours, and at the ninth hour Jesus had cried out, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" and had then said, "I thirst." A sponge had been dipped in vinegar and given him to drink, and he had said, "It is finished," and had then cried out, "Father, into your hands I commit my spirit," and had bowed his head and died. The soldiers had broken the legs of the two thieves, to hasten their death, but had found that Jesus was already dead, and had contented themselves with piercing his side with a spear, from which had issued a flow of blood and water. The bodies had been taken down from the cross by the friends of Jesus, and had been buried in a tomb which was close by the place of crucifixion, and which was the property of Joseph of Arimathea, a member of the Sanhedrin, who had been a secret disciple of Jesus, and had now come forward to claim the body of his Master. The tomb was a cave in the side of a rock, and was cut out of the solid rock, so that it could be closed by a large stone rolled against the door. The tomb was in a garden, and was near the place of crucifixion, so that it was convenient for the purpose for which it was used. The Jewish rulers had asked that a guard be placed at the tomb, for fear that the disciples might come and steal the body of their Master, and then say that he had risen from the dead, as he had said he would do. The request had been granted, and a guard had been placed at the tomb, and had sealed the stone that was rolled against the door, so that it could not be moved without breaking the seal, which was the Roman method of sealing a tomb. The guard was composed of Roman soldiers, who had been placed there by the order of Pilate, who was the Roman governor of Judea, and who was the representative of Tiberius Cæsar, the Roman emperor, who was the ruler of the world at that time.

Jesus had been crucified on Friday, and had been buried late in the afternoon of that day, just before the Jewish Sabbath began at sunset. The women who had been his disciples had followed the body of their Master to the place of burial, and had seen the tomb in which it was laid, and had seen how it was sealed and guarded, and had then gone away to prepare spices and ointments with which to embalm the body of their Master, but had rested on the Sabbath, in accordance with the Jewish law, which was still in force, and had not been abrogated by the death of Jesus, which was to be the beginning of a new dispensation, which was to supersede the old one. The Sabbath was the last day of the week, and was the day on which the Jewish people had been accustomed to rest from their labors, and to devote the day to the service of God. The Christian Sabbath, which is the first day of the week, was not established by Jesus, but was established by the Christian church, in honor of the resurrection of Jesus, which took place on the first day of the week, and which was the beginning of a new dispensation, which was to supersede the old one. The Christian Sabbath was established by the Christian church, and not by Jesus, who was a Jew, and who was a member of the Jewish church, and who was subject to the laws of the Jewish church, and who was not the founder of a new church, but was the Messiah, who was the fulfillment of the old one, and who was the beginning of a new one, which was to supersede the old one. The Christian Sabbath was established by the Christian church, and not by Jesus, who was a member of the Jewish church, and was subject to its laws, and

SUPREME IN ITS BEAUTY

PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION TO BE A MAGNIFICENT SURPRISE.

Birdseye View of the Great Group of Splendid Architectural Works—A Wonderful Setting of Fountains, Pools, Plants and Flowers.

It is promised for the Pan-American Exposition that it will surpass in beauty any previous exposition in the world's history. It is also expected that it will outrival its predecessors in many other ways, for at no time have such wonderful achievements in art, such perfection in the numbers of works, been assembled. But the purpose, at this entire is to lend, in a general way, of the plan of the Exposition, the elements of arrangement and the scheme based upon which the vast financial expenditure of several millions of dollars. Accompanying this article is a bird-eye view of the Exposition site, showing the magnificent work in its complete stage. The views from the south and shows an area one mile and a quarter long and half a mile wide. Over being 500 acres in the Exposition. In the foreground is a portion of Delaware Park, one of the famous twenty works of Buffalo. To, one to more the Park Lake, and to the North Bay, on the left, and in the left foreground, south of the lake, may be seen a portion of the Exposition site, a beautiful picturesque building of white marble, the gift of John J. Albright of Buffalo, and carving over fifty-two North of the Park the New York State Building, also a permanent structure of marble. These two buildings are in the style of Greek temples, and contained, respectively, the Darlington and the other treasures belonging to the Albright Museum in Athens.

Between the North Park and Lake the City of Buffalo has laid out large expanse a new and beautiful bridge of Niagara River, known as the Bridge of the Three American. This bridge, carried on broad thoroughfare which leads from the main southern entrance to the approaches of the Exposition, is seen in the foreground just north of the Lake. The southern shore of the Lake is occupied the life saving station owned by the Federal Government, where about 50 exhibitions will be given by a crew of men showing the uses of modern life saving apparatus on the Great Lakes and marine. Hidden from view, upon the southern bank of the Lake, a beautiful canoe and boat house has also been built in the City of Buffalo for Exposition use.

The principal entrance of Long Page will be at once noted in the distance. Beginning at the Federal Building, which is nearly two-fifths of a mile long and the tier wide. The western end of the Exposition is bordered by the Horticulture, Machinery and Mines buildings. The eastern end is dominated by the Government group of three large buildings. Broken gardens with elaborate fountains and many groups of sculpture occupy the two areas of the Esplanade, and the impressive effect throughout this broad space are very numerous and beautiful. North of the Esplanade is the Court of Fountains, with the Administration building on the East side, the Music building on the left. Two extraordinary courts also open into the Esplanade from the north, the Court of the Stars (known as the Court of Fountains and the one on the left as the Court of Lilies, which, north of the Horticulture building on the right and fronting upon the Court of Fountains, is the Manufactures and Liberal arts building and on the opposite side the Machinery and Transportation buildings. The Court of Fountains is a large pool, having an area of about two acres and containing many beautiful fountains. Two rooms again northward to one side the Stair, a broad avenue, half a mile long extending from the canal boundary to the western gate of the Exposition. Fronting upon the Mall on the right is the Agriculture building and on the left the Electricity building. We now arrive at the most conspicuous feature of the Exposition, the negative Temple Tower, 391 feet in height. This tower stands between the 1 part of Tranquillity and the Plaza, in a broad pool, about two acres in extent. This will be the most attractive feature of the event Exposition and will be the rendezvous for special and elaborate electrical illumination. Immediately north of the Electric Tower is the Plaza, with its beautiful sunken gardens and bandstand in the center. The Plaza is so monumental an entrance at the north, the entrance to the Midway on the east and the entrance to the Midway on the east.

It should be understood by every intending visitor that the Exposition will possess the most beautiful spectacle that twentieth century genius can provide. By day there will be a most pleasing display of fine and fine art effects. The many buildings, with their elaborate and fine tracery of architectural plastic work and their sculpture of color, the many groups of statuary in every part of the grounds, will constitute a picture never before presented. At night all the buildings will glow with the soft radiance of thousands of electric lights, making a scene of strange brilliance and splendor. For a million lamps will be used in electrical illumination.

It should also be added that way at the Exposition will be the

The burglar was taken completely by surprise and was knocked flat on his face. Instead of being afraid of the man, Mrs. Thompson had the presence of mind to sit on his back and hold him down while she called for her husband. The burglar was too badly frightened to make much resistance and was easily subdued when Mr. Thompson came to his wife's assistance. The prisoner was then marched into the house and a search made for his tools, which were found in his coat pocket. The burglar had evidently been at work for some time, as he had a complete outfit of burglar tools with him. He was taken to the police station and locked up. Mrs. Thompson is a little nervous over the affair, but is not at all frightened at the idea of having her husband's house entered by a burglar.

SMALLPOX PATIENTS MARRY.

Novel Wedding at Salina, Kan., Co-Incident Upon Hospital.

A very popular wedding took place in North Cedar Bluff. The contracting parties were Mr. Joseph Leth, a farmer, and Miss Lottie Roach, daughter of Judge H. H. Roach. The wedding took place at 10 o'clock at night and the ceremony was performed in quarantine on the Mrs. Moore place, one mile west from the town. Because of the fact that both the bridegroom and bride were down with smallpox the wedding affair was attended with exercises. The ceremony was performed through a window, the bride, groom and a few members of each family being present. A few days before the wedding they had obtained a license and had taken a room in the house in which they were quarantined, and immediately after the ceremony they began their honeymoon.

Mysterious Diamond Robbery.

A theft of a diamond ring occurred in Topeka on Friday or Saturday of last week, the exact date being uncertain. Mrs. Lucy Hoover, of Chicago, left Topeka on Friday, leaving her diamond ring on her dresser. When she returned on Saturday the ring was missing. Mrs. Hoover had been in her room all the time, and no one had been there except the chambermaid, who had been employed by the day. The chambermaid was searched, but no trace of the ring was found. The ring is being guarded closely.

Charlevoix Sentinel.
WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.

Local News.

No. 1, Vol. 36.

With this issue the SENTINEL begins the thirty-third year of its life. For thirty-two years the SENTINEL has done duty loyally for Charlevoix. The SENTINEL began its career in February 1869, under the present management. At that time Charlevoix could not even be called a hamlet. It was known only as "Pine River," and the nearest railroad connection was Grand Rapids.

It took courage to face and overcome the obstacles that presented themselves in the path of the SENTINEL, but it lived, and is alive today—very much alive. In all these years, although it has been positive and uncompromising in its opinions, it has never lost the respect of the public.

So, here goes for the thirty-third year. In the hope that it may round out a half century on the sun publisher.

Burnett has a new ad in this issue.

NORWOOD NOTES.

Co. V. Yaple left on Friday for Manitowoc, and will be absent about ten days.

Johnnie Valentine, who has been visiting here for the last two months, left for home in Ephraim, Wis., this week.

Mrs. Hughes of Big Rapids, deputy great commander of the L. O. T. M., visited Norwood hive last week. She delivered a lecture, after which the ladies served ice cream and cake, to which the sir knights, who had been invited, didn't do a thing.

The church held their last Saturday night was a round trimmer for the quiet town. Over fifty turned out, and the boys had lots of fun. It took nineteen ballots to nominate a high way commissioner, the candidates being two men.

The ticket follows:

Supervisor—Wm. Harris.
Clerk—John Hughes.
Treasurer—Frank Richardson.
Highway Commissioner—Pilney Scott.
Justice—A. N. Chase.
Board of Review—James Cook.
Constables—James Hughes, John Morrison, Lockey Mayne and Henry Bergman.

Working 24 Hours a Day.

There's no rest for those liver pills. It works 24 hours a day. Nature's Life Pills. Millions are always busy, curing torpid liver, jaundice, biliousness, fever and ague. They banish sick headache, drive out malaria, arrest grips or weakness, small, tasteless, sugar coated. Try them, only at F. E. Hines & Co's drug store.

SCHOOL COMMISSIONER'S CORNER.

A. N. CHASE, CLERK.

We desire to call attention to Arbor Day, which will soon be announced by the governor. We hope that the patrons and officers will co-operate with the teacher on Arbor Day and assist in beautifying the school grounds.

"A tree is a deposit in the bank of nature, which she always repays a thousand fold."

We are told that the custom of tree planting is an old one among the Germans, who, in the rural districts, practice a commendable habit of having each member of the household plant a tree at Walburgtide, which comes 8 days after Easter.

The old Mexican Indians also plant trees on certain days of the year, when the moon is full, naming them after their children, and the ancient Aztecs are said to have planted a tree every time a child was born, giving it the name of the child.

Hon. J. Sterling Morton, secretary of agriculture in the Cleveland cabinet, initiated our American Arbor Day. The movement has spread in our ever widening circle whose circumference today sweeps from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

On Arbor Day some thought should be given to a study of the best plans for improving the school grounds and adorning school buildings as well as to the planting of trees.

Let us take hold of this matter this spring in earnest and put our efforts into practice.

We can give the children a practical lesson in nature study and forestry. Plant some trees in the school grounds and along the highways leading to the school.

Night Was Her Terror.

"I stood cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Applegate of Alexandria, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption and felt that I I waked a block I should cough frightfully and spit blood, but when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 35 pounds." It's absolutely guaranteed to cure coughs, colds, la grippe, bronchitis and all throat and lung troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at F. E. Hines & Co's drug store.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Pelonkey Record: The appointment of Rev. G. S. Barnes as county agent, state board of corrections and charities, was revoked by Gov. Hims, and Hiram Parker, who has held the office since first established many years ago, reappointed.

Owing to local political conditions round and about Traverse City, Alden ran out for the title of deputy food inspector Dunn of Northport. It is understood that M. Winnie of Traverse City will be his successor. Mr. Dunn has held his position about six months and his failure to be reappointed if the Lansing programmation is correct, will be on political grounds entirely, as he has been a very painstaking and successful official.

East Jordan Enterprise: Wm. J. Winkel tells us that he will put up a brick block this summer on the site of his saloon building that was burned.

The matter of traffic arrangements between the East Jordan & Northern and the Pere Marquette railways is about arranged to the satisfaction of both. East Jordan is to have the same freight rates as Petoskey, Charlevoix or Ellsworth, and the service will be as good. The Squires house has changed owners, W. J. Winkel having sold it to Martin McHale. Mr. McHale has fitted up a bar in the sample room. We understand that the hotel is to remain in charge of Mr. Squires, at least for the present.

A well dressed runner, which has been neither admired nor denied on the streets of the road, is now going, for points in the direct line that the C. & I. will build a branch from Pellston to Cross Village. The branch would tap one of the richest sections of Emmet county and would go far toward developing that section. A branch now extends two miles in the direction of Cross Village from Pellston, being used as a logging road. For extension of line to Cross Village would be a very feasible project, and would, no doubt, prove a paying investment. It seems that the C. & I. has for some time sought a right of way out of Harbor Springs in the direction of Cross Village, but for some cause has been unable to secure it. A glance at the map of Emmet county shows plainly that with a road built five miles out from Pellston in such a direction, therefore, the completion of it to Cross Village will be a comparatively small expense, thereby making it unnecessary to extend it one mile there from Harbor Springs.

Traverse City Record: Capt. Joseph Sherwood died at his home near Nathan's bay Sunday night, aged 73 years, leaving a wife and family. Captain Joe was a well known character in the early days of Grand Traverse. He was an old time sea and lake captain, and for many years ran above the summers around Grand Traverse bay and to and from the islands. He came here in the middle '50s and has ever since made his home on the bay he named for Nathan's bay, where he first bought. Genial, contented, always happy, it was a pleasure to know Capt. Joe. The writer of this was brought to Traverse City, May 14, 1864, by Captain Joe on his steamer but three years old, the ships, which boat will be well remembered by the older settlers navigated the bay and about which many a good story could be told. J. Campbell of Traverse City is a nephew and he has a son (already living at Charlevoix) also children at Detroit and other points, as will be at Nathan's bay.

Strike a High Flood.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous headache," writes S. J. Ferguson, of Lancaster, N. H. "Nothing helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicine I ever used. They have wrought my wife in wonders health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles, that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. Only 50c satisfaction guaranteed by F. E. Hines & Co.

SEASON TO BE CHANGED.

Senator McMullen's Bill Agreed upon at Lansing—How to Fish Trout.

The war which has existed between the fish trust and the fishermen over question of being ended, and it is agreed from Lansing that Senator McMullen's bill provides that instead of a closed season from Nov. 1 to Dec. 15, open white fish and trout, the closed season shall be from Nov. 25 to Jan. 1.

If the senate passes the measure as it unanimously passed the house, it will go to the house, where Representative Murdock is the accredited representative of the commercial fishermen, and the real father of this bill. He had it introduced in the senate first in order to compel the senate to keep faith in advance.

The proposed change will still provide for a closed season of five weeks, apparently, but in reality it will practically open the season entirely. Nature chooses the season by feeding up the lakes about the first of December, so that the seal closing will apply for only a few days at most. The commercial fishermen will gain the 25 days of November the best fishing month in the entire year, and they could ask for little more.

Four years ago the legislature passed a law making a closed season in commercial fishing on the great lakes, from November 1 to December 15. It was argued that it was for the benefit of the fish. The fish spawn early in November and by catching them with their eggs it was argued that millions of fish, which would otherwise be hatched, were lost to the lakes, and that unless they were given the protection the lakes would soon be depleted. The fish commissioners held differently and showed that not a per cent of the eggs will hatch by natural process in the different waters of the lakes, but that if the fish were taken, stripped of their eggs, and the eggs hatched artificially, over 75 per cent of them would be restored to the lakes in the form of fry.

The closed season people triumphed, however, and so did the trust. For thousand large and small fishermen who make their living with tugs and small boats along Michigan's shores were thrown into idleness at the best time of the fishing year. But the trust had a decided benefit. The trust has massive fisheries on lake Winnebago, where the catch in one season is over 2,000 tons of fish, which are frozen and stored. Nature closes lake Winnebago early in the fall and the trust has lots of frozen fish on hand.

People will not buy frozen fish when they can get fresh. With a closed season on lake Michigan, however, fresh fish are impossible for 15 days, and in fact for the rest of the winter, and therefore the frozen fish of the trust are the only ones to be had.

The trust controlled the market, and immediately after the first closed season went into effect prices went up several cents a pound. With an advance of just one cent a pound the increased profit upon these 2,000 tons would be $2,000.

MAN'S BONES FOUND.

MYSTERY SOLVED BY DISCOVERY OF A SKELETON.

Fate of an Old Man Discovered After Many Years. He Was Not a Texas Runaway—A Decade Hitherto Large Burial Mound Near Niles.

The mystery finding of the skeleton of Jonas Lyon, left in a cabin near Niles, Mich., last year, has, thanks to the Indian mound near Niles, been solved. Lyon was a resident of Warren, Ill., and, like many others, went to Pierce, Ill., to settle in the Texas land rush. He started in the Texas territory and supposed he had wandered away, but the owner of the cabin, living in Niles, found him. He was detained in his cabin as a prisoner and died there. Lyon's relatives, who had the case in charge, were at a loss to account for his disappearance, and the case was given to the Texas Rangers. Out of this mystery has come a solution of the fate of a man who was thought to Texas and returned.

Disease to Prevalent—Plans to Establish a Leper Colony.

Martin H. Glynn, Lieutenant Governor of the Philippines, Tuesday, speaking of the Philippines, said: "Leprosy is widely prevalent in the Philippines. It is a disease which is common in the entire archipelago, but the greatest number of cases are found in the southern islands. It is quite prevalent in the Visayan islands, and in Cebu it is estimated that there are 1,000 lepers in the island of Cebu, but the actual number is not known. It is a disease which is not regarded as contagious, and it comes being in the family for years. Many of the lepers live in surrounding towns and are allowed to go about the streets. The Philippine Commission recently appointed a board of lepers in the Manila Board of Health. It is proposed to establish a leper colony. As a result of segregation and isolation it is believed it will be possible to stamp out the error. Hawaii, and several months ago officers were sent from Manila to study the disease. Dr. Jeanselme, who is a leper specialist, is now in Manila. It is believed he will be sent for the medical and leper inquiry work in the Philippines.

TRADE AND PROFIT.

A DISTINCTION WHICH SOME PEOPLE DON'T GRASP.

Shamly, That a Country May Have an Immense Volume of Traffic of the Sort That Carries With It No Gain to Wealth.

The following from the London Statist is very interesting reading and the criticism from our English cousin's point of view is certainly impartial if not Japanese in its impertinence!

The foreign trade of the United States merits the careful attention of the people of this country, and of the United States. From the United States we secure nearly 30 per cent. of all the foreign produce we need for food and for manufacture, and the United States finds in Great Britain a market for nearly one-half of the products that need abroad. Now let us look at the other side of the picture. The United States pays the Protectionist country less than one-third of their total imports of foreign produce, and we sell to the United States not much more than 11 per cent of the produce we need abroad. In other words, England buys from the United States nearly four times more produce than the sale to that country and it is mainly in consequence of our large purchases that the United States is able to buy from other countries silk, coffee, tea, etc., who also provide the interest upon their foreign debt, to provide the freight and insurance charges, to meet the very large expenditure in Europe of American tourists, and to accumulate capital out of their foreign trade.

It will surprise many to the extent that from 1880 to 1890, when our imports from the United States declined, the total exports from that country also fell and that in the ten years from 1880 to 1890, when our purchases of American products greatly increased by reason of our great prosperity, the total exports of the United States increased immense expansion. It is from this we extract that the further growth in American exports in a large measure depends upon the capacity of this country to buy more largely.

The growth of the export trade of the United States and of our exports to that country presents a very different picture. Compared with the total expansion in American imports the increase in imports from this country have been insignificant. Compared with the enormous expansion in our purchases from the United States the slight growth in their purchases from us is rather which we believe very serious attention at the present time, when our trade with America is checked by the prohibitive tariff now in force.

The question now has to be put, how are the object of imposing prohibitive customs duties by the United States been realized, and will and that the results have a very adverse effect upon American trade in the future? It is of the essential for America to bring about a balance of trade. What we want is that the country to meet all its foreign obligations and to maintain its gold standard. But the decision of the American people in 1886 and 1890, together with the laws which have been passed and re-passed, do not admit of the cost expense of the gold standard and the necessity of replenishing imports for the purpose has passed away. Moreover, in view of the great strides made by the manufacturing industries of America in the past ten years, there is now no excuse that American manufacturers are well able to meet any possible competition, not only in the home but in foreign markets. Hence America no longer has reason for imposing either a prohibitive or a protective tariff. America has, indeed, now to face the question of how she may increase the prosperity of other countries, and in view of that prosperity sell still larger quantities of her produce abroad. To do this it is evident that she must be willing to purchase the products of other countries in return for the produce she sells.

There is one idea that our free trade contemporaries across the water seem not to dream, and that is that our foreign trade is incidental, but our whole concern. We have a home trade for that is almost immeasurable. It is from forty to 100 times greater than our foreign markets. And it is as valuable to us as producers, as all the foreign markets of the world wouldn't if we possessed them exclusively. Where we abandon our protective duties, we abandon our home market. It is a dozen years since Tom Reed said to the modern Jesuits false, and it will bear telling right home to roast the souls of the London Statist never rest.

Once there was a dog it was a nice little dog. Nothing the matter with him except a few fleas. Some trade-fleas in his hair. He was troubling about things as the day, for he had in his mouth a rather abundant or succulent mutton, by and by he came to a stream bridged by a plank, the trotted along, and, looking over the side of the plank, he saw the match of the world and dived for them. A minute afterwards was crawling up the bank the wettest, saddest, the hardest, the most mortified dog that ever swam ashore.

As for increasing the prosperity of other countries or as to enabling them to buy more of us, that reminds us of another little story. It was very the times with Jonathan Prudd. So he took a dollar in pennies out of the till and gave them to the passing school children, some of whom

A SETTLED QUESTION.

IS THE TARIFF NO LONGER OPENED TO CONTROVERSY?

Dangers of Too Much Confidence Demonstrated by the Fact That Protectists Consider Are Only Hiding Their Time for Another Attack.

Overconfidence is a more subtle but a scarcely less dangerous evil than a lack of confidence. It has betrayed the American people more than once. Because the country has been prosperous in fling between the prosperity had proven continually greater, the majority of all are to imagine that we would go on being prosperous no matter what we did or what policy we adopted. The people began really to believe that Congress and politics had little or nothing to do with such affairs, and so they voted for a change in 1892. We have gotten over that folly now and are not likely to make the same mistake again. But our overconfidence in taking another trap for us. Time in the form of saying that the tariff question is settled that there is no need of worrying, that is an issue and more, only a few days ago the New York Sun and editorially.

The tariff question has been removed from controversy, and practically has nothing itself. * * The policy of developing American industry has exercised a practical vitalization so complete that there remains only feeble tradition opposition to it. Politically it is accepted by all parties. It did not provoke controversy in either of the two last national campaigns.

The Sun forgets, apparently, that the platform of the Democratic party adopted at Kansas City last July denounced the Dingley tariff law in terms as emphatic that Mr. Bryan, the late Democratic candidate for the presidency, is still on record as declaring that a protective tariff is wrong in principle, as it would not say that protective protection has been "accepted by all parties." The editor of the Sun must have been curiously unobservant of the words and writings of many political writers leading Democrats. He must have skipped many things in recent editions of many papers which could be on his exchange table, for neither the Times, among the number, if he thinks that the only organ of the Democrat, nor the Herald, can be accused of indifferent or feeble or academic.

There can be no doubt in the mind of any person of sense or judgment of the fact that the American people are by an overwhelming majority in favor of the system of protection. So far as that goes, the tariff is settled. But it is not the free traders are in any more than they ever were, only better than they were, and not until demonstration of protection was combined from all sections of the land, both state and national, and until the leaders of all the political parties are more than match on a protection record will the tariff question be no longer a political issue. The policy of protection is safe enough if it is fair, equalizing in its policy, and so principle is more in favor of free trade. It operates well for the manufacturer, but it is not so equitable and the Sun and every other proportionist knew which is to blame for the fact that the tariff is no longer an issue in politics and seems to be further defendings will do well to remember that the enemies of protection are always watchful. The tariff is settled for all time in favor of protection and if the protectionists of the country are to do it that they are equally watchful.

IT HAS STOOD THE TEST.

Englishmen Beginning to Recognize the Value of Protection.

Not the least important among the results of the recent election is the emphatic pronouncement of protection as a national policy. After the two leads of a different policy under the United Said, the free economists of Mr. McKinley was a distinct surprise to those who were in protectionist. The re-election emphasized that verdict, for while the tariff was not the paramount issue it was an important factor. This second verdict of the people shows that for many years to come protection will be the fixed policy of our government.

It was no strange if the extraordinary prosperity of the United States under this policy does not have an effect abroad. It used to be the fashion of British statesmen, followed by their American free trade imitators, to deem protection an abominable, opposed to sound economic laws, crude in theory and barbarous in practice. They said it would stifle, they said, before advancing intelligence and a better understanding of true economic principles. The present position of this country is an effective answer to those claims. It proves that the union the United States the most prosperous country on earth the most crowded rival of all other commercial countries and the protective nations of the world's markets cannot be disposed of by calling it unscientific or crude. The success of protection is demonstrated in the United States is one of the great commercial facts of the nineteenth century and likely to become still more prominent in the twentieth century.

There are special reasons why the success of this policy is likely to set British statesmen and the English people to thinking. The United States is the war with Spain with a full treasury, presented it to a crowded population with the greatest ease financially, and is now about to make a large collection to taken. On the other hand, England had serious difficulty in financing the war in South Africa and has therefore of the exchequer is now proceeding to increase of taxes. There is no doubt that the policy of duties, even for revenue. The proposed increase of taxes is on free trade lines, being an increase of income tax, stamp duties, taxes on wines, tobaccos, tea, etc. But there is a limit to this kind of taxation, and some Englishmen are beginning to wonder why protection does not try the method of raising revenue that has proved so easy and successful in this country. A writer in the Nineteenth Century, referring to the owning tools of the government for social arrangements, etc., asks

CHAPTER XXVIII.

The morning's sun was rising over the eastern hills, tinging their ragged pine or Monmouth, all quiet and bleeding, with a crimson glow, and the Molly Pitcher Hotel to make a tour through the wood. He had long guessed and feared the truth, but now the American cause in Jersey was at its lowest ebb, and the British were in full possession of the country, the spirit of the patriots was broken by the loss of

But we will have the satisfaction of knowing that Charlevoix will have the biggest and best golf links in the state, and one of the best in the country. The Game Warden's Report.

In view of the investigation that is now being made by legislative committees of the expenses of the Game department, the treasurer of the subject by warden Mosse to his last report, which has just been placed on the desks of the legislators, is of more than ordinary interest.

This report shows that the licensed gatlers of violations of the game and fish laws for the year 1898 and 1899 were nearly double those of any previous biennial period in the history of the department. These were traced during the past two years a total of 3,279 complaints, the result being 1,576 prosecutions. Hundreds of additional cases, of which no record is made, are investigated each year. The total expenses of the department for the two years were $31,247.49, which sum includes all the expenses of the state, for salaries and traveling expenses of the warden and his deputies, details of office expenses, enforcement of the commercial fishing laws, the putting in of fish chutes, and the examination and analysis of polluted waters.

To offset this expense $12,41.50 was received from the sale of deer hunting licenses, $11,149.20 worth of contraband fish and game were condemned and awarded to the various public institutions of the state. This makes a total of receipts of $23,590.20, or $1,656.29 less than the aggregate expenses.

In the opinion of Warden Mosse the work of the department could be more satisfactorily performed if the appropriate work provide for the appointment of a deputy warden for each congressional district, who should be paid a fixed salary of not less than $1,000 per year and their necessary expenses incurred in the discharge of their duties.

Aguinaldo Captured.

By the exercise of some of the most beautiful of strategy recorded in military annals, Gen. Fred Funston and a few officers and trusted native scouts captured Aguinaldo on the 28th, and the little pompadour chief is a prisoner at Manilla.

Gen. Funston's reward came to him quickly. On the first Tuesday Mr. Kinney appointed him a brigadier general in the regular army.

The disposition of the prisoner is now a problem for the government to solve. Punishment that would prevent treaty obligations with the trouble he has caused would make a martyr of him—and then again Jeff Davis died in comfort, among his friends at a ripe old age.

Therefore, the probable outcome will be that Aguinaldo will be kept and treated as a distinguished prisoner until such time as he concludes it would be better for him to quietly submit to American authority.

Meantime Aguinaldo's capture is already showing its effect in the weakening of resistance against the authority of the United States. Surrenders of officers, men and arms are of daily occurrence, and the end seems near.

This will greatly increase the freight capacity of the boat, an improvement greatly needed.

A Surgeon's lay special says. He noted all operations that will be a war between the Licensed Vagrant's protective association and some of the local vaudevillers when the time for its rising out arrives. Lanham & Smith have declared that they will not pay the advance demanded and will put non-association crews on their boats. The demand of $30 on fish tugs will also compel the owners of the class of fish chute of vessels to look elsewhere for men, as they claim they cannot, under any circumstances, pay the advance unless they are guaranteed a much larger catch of fish.

Council Proceedings.

Council room, March 26.

Present—President Nicholls and Trustees Loother, Wilkes, Wilkinson, Brown, Emrey and Eaton.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The president appointed the following committees:

Streets and sidewalks—Wilkinson, Eaton and Wilkes.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Lots of snow in the woods here in Boyne. Country roads are very bad, there being neither sleighing or wheeling.

East Jordan Enterprise: Russell A. Blake, a Charlevoix attorney, was in town for several days past. He contemplates removing to this place.

A bill authorizing the village of Central Lake to bond for $15,000 for the purpose of building a bridge has passed the upper house of the legislature.

The East Jordan Fish, Game and Dog Protective Association expect to receive a shipment of 10,000 brook trout from the state fish commission, which they will plant in the adjacent streams.

Petoskey was visited by another fire Tuesday night of last week. The Arthur Hardware Co's building was destroyed, and a number of secret societies lost their furnishings. It started in the Sheridan office.

Manistee Herald: During the last snow blockade on the D. M. & L. after the Manistee's crew had been held at Lowellville quite a few days with Manistee for thirty-six hours, Postmaster Hughes with a party of five went after it on snow shoes, with a toboggan to carry the mail sacks. The trade the trip and return, is miles through the storm, and got the mail to the Manistee office at 6 p. m. after eight hours of the hardest work they ever did.

East Jordan Herald: L. C. Maclean has bought the store building and grounds owned and occupied by Loftus Bros. Mr. Maclean has not fully decided whether he will move his stock into his new property or remain in his present location. Mr. Hoult, having decided to retire from business in East Jordan, will leave for Grand Rapids and Chicago to see about accepting a position offered to him in each place. Mrs. Hoult and family will remain here until Mr. Hoult has decided which position he will accept.

An explosion occurred at the St. Louis Hoop and Stave Co's mill at Hoopel City about 5 a. m. on April 1, and H. Emery and M. Tiggs were so severely scalded that their recovery is doubtful. While the town was yet sleeping the explosion took place, followed by boiling steam and a shower of hot water, bricks and cinders were thrown in every direction. Emery and Tiggs, the two men who were hurt, just struck there five previous day and were sleeping on the top of the area, not having secured a boarding place. They came from Coleman.

If you will peruse the perspiration of an idiot, but! The editor felt an appointment on that evening, and arrived at his home to find there the leading members of the S. S. and several honorary members, among whom were Judge Maghee and Frank Sears. Old Wickham and the postmaster arrived just behind the editor. Auguste who knows Capt. Billy Evans, Pete Campbell and Oscar Wilder, will understand that a good time followed. After the feast Mr. Wilder gave and poured a fifteen minute speech into the editor, and with a gift of flowers from himself, presented the media, on behalf of her party, a rare editorial chair with two more to fill. —Wilkins Gill an early pioneer of Lelanau county, died at his home Monday. On that day Capt. H. E. Wilder received a telegram asking him to send a tug after the S. P. Gill, either one of steamed, also is in the lumber business at St. James. The tugs Gordon, Dormaine and Green were out Tuesday and could not get in, and the steamer Hackley and tug Wheeler were inside and could not get out owing to the large field of ice in the bay. But the tug Parmelee was caught at Norwood, where she went to coal, taken with her owner, and she was forthwith dispatched to the island after Mr. Gill, who probably had beach the tug well up on the island. The tug probably took him direct to Northport.

—Congressman Barnes writes the Sentinel as follows: "Numerous letters demand to me daily asking for copies of various tools which the Department of Agriculture furnishes for distribution. Under numerous enough you expect that the supply of tools in his Cabinet was exhausted to my recommendations before my term of office began. In response to my request that seeds be forwarded for distribution, I was shipped some weeks ago that numerous cloth sets and enclosed in any seeds for distribution this winter and spring, as the quota of their district has been distributed among their predecessors. I secured a small allotment of a few varieties of garden seeds which I have distributed to those who have asked for them. Kindly make a local mention of this fact and oblidge."

—The big platform that is to rest on the piers on the new water-works plant when the center pier is to rest, made some trouble Monday. It was packed up in the free sides, making it practically a water tight box. In the shape it was placed over the piles and sunk to rest on the bottom, with water. Then 32 drift bolts were driven down through its bottom into the timbers that caps the piles. In addition to this the iron cylinder sections, weighing several tons, were placed inside. Monday, however, the whole thing came up, pulling itself from the drift bolts as if they were only tack pins. It made a bad job, but the only damage is the delay caused.

—Aaron Warden Mosse testified before the legislative investigating committee in the last two years the sales from stillnes amounted to about $1,300, but under the law the game wardens is permitted to expend this money as he sees fit. Mosse contended his private account showing how this money was expended and to whom it was paid, there being a balance in present of something more than $300. A portion of the fund was expended for sending a patrol boat and the committee found that it was used in emergency cases outside of the usual routine. Another portion that came up was that of the deputy game warden drawing mileage and per diem from the state when he claimed they have been employed as witnesses and received the same witness fees. Mosse stated that he had written to all the deputies not to do this, but he admitted that they could get the double pay by simply swearing to an expense account, as there was no rules as witnesses other than the report they are required to submit. Mr. Mosse made a very frank statement of everything connected with his department.

FROM

POORHOUSE TO PALACE

BY MARY J. HOLMES

CHAPTER I.

What makes you look half big little enough down on Aleck over your face? Are you afraid of having it seen?"

The person addressed was a pale, sickly looking child about nine years of age, who in the dark of the vessel Windsor was creeping forward toward the dim light shine of the Bright Star moaning from time. Near her a dark-looking boy of nineteen was stretching forward to get a peep at the tempting checked by the intruding shadow.

At the sound of his voice the little girl started and without turning her head, replied, "Nobody wants to see me. I feel so bad and disagreeable."

"And do you for I expected the boy, for he had heard her little by the time, "you are not very hard-hearted, or you would not leave poor Aleck to be all by himself. Come, I'll give you a piece of my gingerbread if you will come."

"Maggie, Maggie, where are you?" was the response to this last speech, "I'm getting so lost in the dark."

Maggie Hewson was nervous, and very much frightened at the sudden disappearance of her brother, who had left her alone in the dark and gloomy hold of the vessel, and consequently she was very much inclined to be angry with Aleck for his conduct, but the sight of his pale face and the thought of his sickness in the dark and gloomy place, with no one to care for him, or even speak to him, softened her at once, and she was soon by his side, with her head on his pillow, and her hand in his, while the boy, forgetting his sickness, was telling her how he had crept down the ladder and hid himself in the dark place to see what she would do when he was gone, and how he was sorry he had spoken so unkindly to her, and would not do so again if she would forgive him.

Two weeks had passed since the last receipt of land had disappeared from view, and then George was seen on deck for the first time since the storm, and was soon joined by his sister. Mrs. Hewson herself was too exhausted to be disturbed, for, thinking to keep away, but Mary was not long in joining them. For a day or two Maggie had been anxious for her mother, but now she was so much better that she could leave her to George's care. For several days the weather was stormy, and for a time it was doubtful if they would ever see land. Nothing seemed to go right, and the Bright Star was tossed to and fro, and from side to side, as if in sport, and the passengers had little time to think of anything but their own safety.

RECORD OF A DECADE

CHANGES IN COMMERCE OF THE UNITED STATES.

From an Excess of Exports Over Imports Amounting to Only $5,624,000 in 1879, the Excess for 1890 Has Risen to the Enormous Sum of $264,000,729

The remarkable change which takes place once in a decade in the United States in the decade ending with the calendar year of 1890 continues as striking and unmistakable as the year of the company has experienced through the operations of the Dawes law. The figures of the treasury bureau of statistics show that exports which in 1880 were $823,946,331, rose in 1890 $845,592,729, while imports which in 1880 were $667,320,602, rose in 1890 $1,109,592,458. The excess of exports over imports was $156,625,729 in 1880 and in 1890 it was $264,000,729. Figures like these make foreign manufacturers very unhappy, and they prove a bracing cheery ache to money in the bones of American farmers.

In no trade relations with the very best of the world the United States appear suffering. Prime Bismarck has actually entered into negotiations for the sale from $151,000,000 to $450,000,000, which is the same time we have increased our exports from $823,946,331 to $1,111,000,000. From North America imports rose from $151,000,000 to $245,000,000 in 1890 while our exports to North America increased during that time from $95,000,000 to $282,000,000. From South America the exports increased from $40,000,000 to $100,000,000 in 1890 while to South America our exports increased from $22,000,000 to $41,000,000. From Asia our imports increased from $22,000,000 to $100,000,000 in 1890 to $100,000,000 in 1890 to $100,000,000 while our exports increased from $11,000,000 to $22,000,000 in the same time. Increased from $11,000,000 to $22,000,000. Foreign Oceania the improvement is 1890 while $3,000,000 and in 1890 $22,000,000, while in Africa our exports in 1890 were $7,000,000 and in 1890 $40,000,000.

From Africa our importations increased from $2,000,000 in 1890 to $8,000,000 in 1890, and exportations increased from $3,000,000 in 1890 to $10,000,000 in 1890.

The changes in the movements to and from the continents are due to two great causes, first, a general tariff reform. First, the increase in Europe and Asia, which have formerly been, and continue to be, our best customers, and the decline of exports to North America are mainly in grain and provisions which have been produced in the West Indies, the Dominion of Canada and Mexico. The Canadian and Mexican exports have increased in the small proportion. From Europe we which, under protection, we could not trade, and largely increased our exports to Asia and Australia. Trade with Europe and Asia is the most profitable to us, and we are increasing our exports to them. From South America the returns have increased in quantity, especially in coffee and rubber, but the average increased in price so that the total increase in value is in excess the increase is 22,000,000, chiefly in manufactures. From Asia the increase has increased more than ten-fold, the increase being chiefly in sugar and raw materials to China, in manufactures and silk, being in silk, and which is now the business in our exports has been mainly through Europe, principally in manufactures and raw cotton. From Oceanica the imports show little increase, though there is now in the exports of cocoanuts of importation from Hawaii in the last half of last year, while in Oceania there is an increase in our exports of more than $20,000,000, chiefly in manufactured articles. From Africa we have increased our imports to $8,000,000, principally in manufactures materials of which our cotton forms the most important item, while our exports to Africa increased $10,000,000, chiefly in manufactures.

PROMISE OF EVEN BETTER THINGS.

Thomas Lowry of Minneapolis is not one of the croaking Thomases who think that under Dingley low prices the industrial prosperity has reached such a height in this country that there can be no more of it. This is his opinion, as expressed in a recent interview:

"Height as was the contest towards the close of the year all the glorious and all the more so because now all seem better times. The prosperity of the country is conspicuous in substantial and in my mind. This is no doubt of its continuance. Everywhere you go you see the signs of the times. The farmer the artisan, the merchant, the manufacturer, the transportation men—all are doing well, all are confident."

Mr. Lowry has the advantage over his less optimistic friends—the facts which are being regarded by everyone.

The Time to Feel Good. Countless thousands have found a blessing to the body in Dr. Kilmp's New Life Pills, which positively cure constipation, sick headache, nervous, dyspepsia, biliousness, malaria, fever and ague and all liver and stomach troubles. Purely vegetable; never gripe or weaken. Only 25c at Hines' drug store.

Sentinel and N. Y. Tribune $1.75 a year for both weekly.

MAKING A LIVING.

Many Poor People Resort to Singular Methods of Industry.

Many men make their living by buying up the cast-off wrapping paper and pasteboard boxes from the dealers or large stores and selling the paper to rag houses or east side dealers near the New York Evening Post. Many others buy the newspapers that accumulate in office buildings and sell them for wrapping paper, and even twice that time worn of the paper stock. Though the price paid is low, a business practice of the east side is that of buying and selling paper stocks. The men in this line seldom entering the garbage pail, realize on their sale. They buy the tickets at 1 to 10 per cent of the amount issued on the tickets and sell them at 10 to 25 per cent of the amount issued. Their affiliate is the wholesale junk dealer who buys from the sale or purchase of the tickets for the government pays $2 each for any such inspection. If the face value of the ticket is small the speculator relies on the judgment of the junk broker. A number of men are engaged in a business called the small articles of silverware. The novel group in the most secluded parts of the city usually have something in silver, a spoon, a chain or a thimble to pawn, and in case of distress it returns for nominal of sell in impossible or rent money is needed for immediate medicine or for drink. The silverware makes a profitable purchase. There is also the man who gathers cinders in people from ashes and the cinders his profit from the plates where the wood and coal reduce the ashes, picking up the half burned coals and selling them in a good sort. An old Indian who for nearly fifty years has been peddling matches in tobacco shops and hotels, especially in the "tenderloin," is reported to have been rich and is said to own several houses. Other men are lost during one night of the year, when they are profitable, sometimes to million dollars. The night is the night of the Bowery Mission, and the men who are engaged in the business are the men who sell the tickets for the Mission dinner. The Mission dinner is a dinner of the poor, and the tickets are sold for a dollar each. The men who sell the tickets are called "ticket-of-leave men." They are men who have served many offenses and seem with higher chances for the past thirty-four years in all of the prison. These tickets are made in Wood street, Sixth street, Southwest and Sixth avenue, in the cellars, in a garage in Third street and a tenement in Wood street.

IRON AND STEEL EXPORTS.

Ending 1890 the Foreign Countries Purchased $13,000,000 Worth from Every Year.

When we consider the rapid advance of the iron and steel industry in exports of other manufactures or iron and steel for will reflection we find it is no mere reflection to account the performance on the ground. The iron of iron and steel industry. Great Britain has not lost through the competition of the United States. Forty years ago we was well ahead, yet in 1890 the iron of the United States was only well and could not and yet in 1890 we were in the lead of Great Britain. Yet the fact remains that our history of the exportation of the calendar year 1890 has been more remarkable than that of manufactures of iron and steel. When the total for last passed the $100,000,000 the mark excited not little pride in the country and in the world, and the opinion was expressed at home and abroad that the high prices which prevailed in the beginning of the year would cause a reduction of those exports rather than an increase. This expectation has not been realized, on the contrary the year 1890 is even a larger mark than did the year 1890 and brought the grand total of iron and steel exports of long ago, up to $13,000,000 or more than $100,000,000 in excess of the year 1890 when the total was a little above $27,000,000 and more than double that of 1887, when it was $62,787,500.

Almost every important article shows an increase in 1890 over any preceding year. For iron exports in 1890 to $4,000,000, against $2,352,000 in 1889 and $2,000,000 in 1888. Railroad hardware shows a gain of about $1,000,000 over 1889 and $2,000,000 over 1888. Steel rails amount in value to nearly $10,000,000 in 1890, against about $5,000,000 in 1889. Electrical machinery, which is greatly in demand in all parts of the world, increased from $1,000,000 in 1888 to $2,000,000 in 1889, sewing machines increased from $2,000,000 in 1888 to $4,000,000 in 1889 and agricultural from $2,000,000 in 1888 to $4,000,000 in 1890.

The re-built tug Martin will not be in commission for a month yet.

Work on the steamer Gordon has been completed, and she is all ready for business when the ice leaves Pine Lake.

The Pine Lake, which left here early last week, took a cargo of lumber from Chicago to Sheboygan and yesterday loaded at Frankfort for Chicago.

Reported now are that the steamer Chippewa, of the Arnold line, will run between Charlevoix and the Soo this season, the new boat taking the Chippewa's place.

The steamer Hackley went to Beaver Island Saturday, but could not get to the harbor. She made a missing about eight miles up the island and landed three passengers and the mail.

W. H. Wade & Co., of Boyne City, and Capt. Gustave Gunderson, of Shelbeyan have purchased from the John Spry Lumber company of Chicago the steamer John Spry, which was originally known as the Mecosta. The consideration is not known. The spry was built at Mill waukee in 1885, but a press measurement of 583 tons rates it 117, and is valued in the Inland Lights register at $20,000. The new owners will engage her largely in the lumbering lumber trade between Boyne City and Lake Erie ports. Her capacity for this material is 650,000 feet. Capt. Gunderson will have command.

On Monday the tug Gordon went out to her nets. On her return in the evening she towed a large field of ice to the bay, in which she got stuck in an effort to get through. A man came ashore Tuesday morning on the front strengthened ice, and reported a shortage of provisions. The life saving crew, dragging a boat with them went out with supplies, breaking through the ice several times. Well-meaning the tug Wheeler made an effort to get to her, but failed. At this writing Thursday morning, the tug is still imprisoned. The tug Green and Parmelee are still outside, but are in safe quarters.

Messrs. Ed. Olsen and Louie Rodell lifted twelve hundred pounds of fish off Frankfort one day last week. This is their first catch this season, and by far the largest catch made by any Frankfort sailboat in years. It exceeds the average lift of Frankfort tugs carrying four times as mucknets. Four hundred pounds is considered a very good lift for a sail boat.

Building operations have already commenced on the vacant space owned by the East Jordan fire of February last and modern brick buildings will replace the former wooden buildings. The event of the two railroads being built and to be operated in this point early in the summer, is causing considerable transfering of real estate, and many buildings are already being planned, residences as well as business blocks.

Bellaire Independent: Banks township started an innovation so far as this county is concerned, by dividing the township into two voting precincts. Election boards sat in each village to receive ballots.

Body of Heinrich Heniz Found.

A man employed by Geo. Williams while passing through the region of Mt. Mesaba Monday, found a human body. It was lying upon its side, in an out-of-the way place, and was easily recognized as the remains of Heinrich Heniz, who disappeared about two months ago, and who was thought to have been drowned in Round Lake.

The foxes and gulls had eaten away parts of his face and hands. Information of the discovery was managed to Cormont McCartney, who went out and viewed the body, which was then conveyed to Sisk's morgue. A formal inquest was not deemed necessary. It is unquestionably a case of suicide.

FROM

BY MARY J HOLMES

(CHAPTER II—Continued.)

At last Frank, pulling the old letter out from under his bed had reading it to Mary and, Take it to Mr. Bender and ask him if you can have a dollar to pay a lawyer with but not for Ellie and crack the hidden chest.

"I think," answered Mary, "you would have no more trouble, I've got something more valuable, which I can sell. I've been thinking both to come up to your Cousin starting"—and she held up a ring, the golden locket which George Melmoth had thrown around her neck.

"Why shall sell that," said Frank, "it is not keep to it remember meeting, Ellie, Sometimes they may come across it."

Mary Smith finished the course, and unloosing the crumpled parker started to consult of Billy Bender. He was a kind-hearted boy, two years older than Ellen, whom he had been betrothed since childhood from the time of their cradle days. He had gone to Boston some years ago to study law, and was now home on a visit, and it was a fortunate thing for Mary that he was home, for he was a good counselor of the adviser in such matters as she was now consulting him about. Ellie's letter was brought and spread on the kitchen table, Billy found the address of the lawyer, and then he read the letter half aloud, half to himself, as he sat by Mary. Like the general of whom it was said, "He knew how to read a dispatch," Billy knew how to read a letter, and he read this one in such a way that Mary felt the tears come into her eyes, and Billy himself was moved, and when he had finished he sat for a few moments in silence, thinking what he should say to Mary. Ellie's letter was addressed to Mr. Bender, and was in the form of a request that he would take the case of Mary Smith, who would come to him with a letter from her mother, and do for her what he could to help her.

"Of course I will do it," said Billy, "and I think we can do something for you, Mary. Your mother's property is mine, and I shall claim it as her heir, and I think I can do it without much difficulty. Have you any money?"

"Only this," she said, and she showed Frank and Jerusha the ring, which they thought should be sold, and Billy said that he would take it with him and see what he could do with it.

"Now, Mary," said Billy, "I want you to go home with me, and I will write to my mother to take you in for a few days, and then I will see what I can do for you. I think I can get you a place in some family where you will be treated as one of the family, and not as a servant. Do you like the idea?"

Mary did like the idea very much, for she was very lonely in her own home, and she was glad to go with Mrs. Bender, who was a kind-hearted woman, and who had been a friend to her mother. Accordingly, that afternoon she went with Billy to his home, and was kindly received by his mother, who had been a friend of her mother. Alice was not present, for she was at her aunt's, and was spending her mother's consent to take the girl home for a few days, and he had also promised her to say that Alice might come before the funeral, on condition that she would remain at home and take care of her mother.

CHAPTER IV.

Scarcely three hours had passed since the dark, moist earth was heaped upon the humble grave of the winner and her husband, when a carriage drawn by two horses, footed the mates of the taking box, and immediately crowds of people, with sensitive organ hatted, hurried toward Mrs. Howard's late home, which was soon filled. Gliding

Mr. Bender, who, the day before, had sent to Boston for a particular friend, Mr. Howard's lawyer, and had told Mr. Howard's attorney that his client's affection than his own for his wife, was anxious to have the will read, and the contents made known. Hence the crowd, which was not large, for Mrs. Howard was not so far right among the people, but still it was large enough to fill the house and to make Alice Howard uneasy lest some of the neighbors should come to her aunt's, and hear what was said about her mother. Mrs. Howard's aunt was not at home, for she was in Boston, and Alice had gone to see her that morning, and was to return in the afternoon, and Alice was glad to be in the room when the will was read, for she was afraid of some mistake, and she was anxious that her mother should be buried with her father, and not in the cemetery where Mrs. Howard was to be laid by the side of her husband, and Alice was afraid that some mistake might be made

WOOL CONSUMPTION.

NOT MATERIALLY DECREASED BY THE USE OF COTTON.

Production Steadily Increases and is Now the Domestic Grower Will Be Able to Meet All Requirements Alike as to Quantity and Quality.

Without entering further the inquiry as to the true causelessness of the opening up of the wool tariff question in the December Bulletin of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, it is interesting to note that the position taken by that journal on the subject of quality, supply and demand per capita consumption has called forth not a little comment and criticism. Among the significant statements elsewhere in the "Bulletin" is one that "the per capita consumption of wool in the United States has decreased through the increased use of cotton from 6.67 gross pounds in 1890 to 5.35 pounds in 1900." It is an almost necessary inference that the purpose of this statement was to show that, owing to the present duty on wool, the use of clothing has been so greatly increased as to permit the substitution of cotton and shoddy in substitute, and that the tariff on wool is to blame for this enforced use of cheaper ingredients. Free-traders all over the country have so construed it, and on the strength of this statement there has sprung up a renewed agitation for a return to the free wool basis of the Democratic tariff of 1894. Over the Somerset, free-trader in Maine will find him taking an old tune. The tariff on wool, he has been so very chosen that consumption is now the lowest recorded of all time.

It appears however that Secretary Wilson has considerably overstated the case in asserting that the per capita consumption of wool in the United States has fallen from 6.67 pounds in 1890 to 5.35 pounds in 1900. Mr. Thomas Dolan, a statistical authority on this question, in the January issue of the Bulletin of the Bureau, says that Mr. Neech by taking the fact that during the two years ended June 30, 600,000 pounds of wool were manufactured into carpets in the United States—a quantity exceeding that of any previous year. In addition to this, the importations of woolens during that period (approximately 65,000,000 pounds of unwashed wool, making a total of 65,600,000 pounds) is one entire consumption of 65,600,000 pounds, and this at a time when the consumption of cotton was what was adjudged decreasing Mr. Dolan adds:

Ignoring the fact that wool is the raw material for carpets, it is fair to refer to a much greater amount than in the United States, as the free-trade Bugaboo claims for a return to conditions existing under the Wilson tariff law, when a greater quantity of cotton and relatively brighter goods were imported into the country than ever before.

The Dingley bill has also been attacked on the ground that the wool growers in the United States have failed to increase their flocks, so that within a few years we would be able to supply our entire needs with home-grown staples, similar to the remarkable development of the cotton industry, but a review of actual facts will clearly show the fallacy of this claim.

The total clip of the United States in 1892, after three years of the free wool experiment with free wool was 256,000,000 pounds, but in 1896 wool had been consumed for which the duty begins at 1900, and the had to account to 265,000,000 pounds or about 11 per cent over that of 1892.

This increase is of a kindred character to the increase in population during the same time.

In 1896 the wool clip of the world was valued at $1,800,000,000, while in 1900 it had fallen about one-half of 1 per cent to 1,000,000,000 pounds, and in those countries where free trade conditions exist wool production has decreased, although the population has increased.

In Great Britain, where climatic conditions and the habits of the people more closely approximate those of the United States than elsewhere, wool production has fallen off 2 per cent since 1890.

In spite of the decrease of 2 per cent in wool production in Great Britain and 3½ per cent in the Southern Hemisphere, where there is no wool tariff, it is manifestly absurd to maintain that the fall in wool production is due to the tariff of the American clip to increase at a greater rate than 11 per cent in three years."

Relative to the "Bulletin's" claim that domestic sheep raisers are making no progress toward meeting the requirements of manufacturers in the matters of supply and quality, a recent statement by Senator Warren of Wyoming, a standard authority on questions of sheep and wool production, is pertinent and convincing:

The greater variety of our climatic conditions is unquestionably favorable to the production of all kinds and grades of wool, and it is not surprising that no other needs make more desirable crossing. Under these conditions the conclusion is well made that manufacturers have that their prosperity depends upon a full domestic wool supply, and should cooperate with the growers in encouraging the production of wool to meet all ordinary requirements of clothing. American wool consumption should be mainly of American production, and with the hearty cooperation of the manufacturer the wool grower can be expected to increase the varieties and quantity of his product, and thus meet every demand that may come upon him.

EUROPE'S THREATS

IN NO WAY DISTURB THE PROTECTIONISTS.

European Countries in No Position to Combine Against the United States in a Retaliation Conspiracy—They Would Have Its Interest Into Their Hands.

The periodical free trade scare is belching up again, and we are being told in our always serious, if sometimes fulsome fashion that Joe's battery is carrying any fardeau on our foreign competitors and even to the extent of making them pay a price for a share of the American market, that unless we lower our tariff to accommodate those our friends across the sea that will retaliate in smarting commercial war fare against us. In the first place this warning against the danger of retaliatory tariffs is getting a good deal worn and threadbare from long and constant use. It has been a part of the free trade stock in trade from the beginning, and in all the years during which it has been in use it has never once justified its existence. No retaliatory tariff ever has been called forth by our protection of American interests. In the second place, even if the long threatened but never fulfilled thing should come to pass the retaliatory tariffs should be imposed on other countries, while our tariffs would immediately be a disadvantage to just as our protective tariff is now a disadvantage to our foreign rivals. It would be only a disadvantage while the loss of the American market, which would be the result of the adoption of a policy of free trade, would mean ruin and distress to the whole American people. If we should in any France be enticed to choose between a partial loss of certain foreign markets and the loss of our own home market the choice would be an easy one to make. The American market is all the world knows, is worth to our manufacturers more many times as much as all the markets of the world now open to us, and it is the market which the American people intend under all circumstances to keep for themselves.

Moreover there is not a single manufacturing nation in Europe which could afford to make a retaliatory policy. To do so would be to practice on its part such a species of cutting retaliation as would absolutely ruin our American market against the products of such nation or nations. For example, suppose were the question of a retaliatory tariff to be made a bob on American grain to now under discussion. According to a telegram of Jan. 7 Prince Herbert Bismarck is quoted as having declared definitely in favor of a heavy increase of the tariff on American foodstuffs. Says the cablegram:

Some of the papers cast doubt upon the authenticity of the interview but the Berliner Tageblatt now is in a fresh confirmation of the usual statement of Count von Kanitz-Schwerin, the Agrarian leader. The Tageblatt sincerely deprecates a tariff war with the United States, the end of which, it contends, would be borne by Germany. Germany's foreign trade, shipping and foreign consumers generally, the National Zeitung says. We can not believe that a diplomatist like Prince Herbert Bismarck would openly advocate a policy favoring Russia at the expense of the United States.

The semi-official journals, commenting upon the interview, deny that nothing has been noted regarding the tariff.

What is truth of Germany in view of many other European countries which turn food of and with manufactures products to the United States. All would suffer national, in one way through tariff retaliation, the increased cost of food to working classes already too close to the starvation point, and by the loss of export trade with the United States.

PROTECTIVE TARIFF LEAGUE.

Sixteenth Annual Meeting Shows the Organization to Be in Splendid Shape.

The sixteenth annual meeting of the American Protective Tariff League was held January 19 at the league rooms in New York. General addresses and standing committees were elected as follows.

President, Charles L. Moore, first vice president, Le Grand B. Cannon; second vice president, Joseph H. Thomas; treasurer, Chester Greenwood.

Executive committee—William Barnes of New Jersey, F. C. Chaney of New Hampshire, James Phillips, Jr., of Massachusetts, Franklin Murphy of New Jersey, and Alfred Hoe of New York.

Board of managers—captains of army January 19th—Calvin Wells of Pennsylvania, James Phillips, Jr., of Massachusetts, Francis S. Warren of Wyoming, F. S. Wilkinson of New York and Homer Laughlin of California. 1901—James N. Hamlin of Illinois, Charles A. Moore of New York, William Barbour of New Jersey, and Charles E. Coffin of Maryland. 1902—George M. Landers of Connecticut, J. A. Hartshorn of New York, J. D. Lillard of New York, Theodore H. Ivins of New York, and James R. Thropp of Pennsylvania.

The operations of the league were embraced in the report of the general secretary. Briefly, the report was that the organization had received, including the cash balance on hand $19,172.26, that it had expended $6,815 in leaving a cash balance on hand of $6,356.26. The new publications of the Tariff League for the last year include seven documents, the total distribution of literature exceeded 125,000,000 pages. The report also showed that the Tariff League has 96 members, an increase of 40 during the past year. The number of local or official correspondents of the League numbered 4,235.

MYSTERY IN CHICAGO DEATH

Woman in Philadelphia Held for Murdered Stepdaughter

Mrs. Hannah Hagan of Dunmore, N. J. was in custody there on a charge of being concerned in the murder of her 14-year-old stepdaughter, Mrs. Mary Hagan, who died in Chicago on Wednesday. It is alleged by Hoagland that the girl's death was caused by a dose of morphine. Mrs. Hagan said that the girl's death was due to natural causes. The girl's father, who is a miner, is at Hoagland's home in Dunmore.

BANK SAFE UNWRIFLED

A Watchman Clubbed and Gagged After Disarming One Burglar.

A party of men at Dunn's pasture near Dunn, Ind., Thursday night, robbed the Dunn-Chase State Bank and effected a complete, safe, clean job. The safe was blown with nitro-glycerin and a burglar, quite clever enough to be a professional, did the work. The night watchman, Mr. Hoffman, who was asleep when the robbers arrived, was clubbed and gagged before he was aroused. He disarmed one burglar who was at his post of duty, but the other came up behind him and gave him a dose of chloroform. The men then tied the watchman and left him in the office. The robbers then went to the safe, which was in the back part of the building, and blew it open. They then drove to Dunn's pasture, where they had left a team and buggy, and drove to Chicago. Sheriff Shaw of Newcastle, who was at Dunn's when the robbery occurred, telephoned to his office on the Chicago road and had the men stopped. They then drove to Anderson, where they were arrested. The men had in their possession the money they had taken from the safe. They gave their names as Frank Shaw and Ralph Shaw. They say they live in Chicago. The men were taken back to Newcastle and placed in jail. The money was returned to the bank. The robbers had blown the safe in the same way that they blew the safe in the Dunn-Chase bank last Christmas morning. The men are suspected of the robbery of the Dunn-Chase bank last Christmas.

Indiana Supreme Court Makes an Interesting Decision.

A physician practicing chiropathy is legally bound by honest and certain to relieve his patient, where the physician's contract is for a certain number of days, after a period of hours, physicians and healers, practicing the science of osteopathy, chiropathy, magnetic healing, faith healing, etc., are not required to have the license issued by the state board of health, as provided by the act of March 6, 1899, relating to medicine, surgery, etc. The decision of the Indiana supreme court to the effect that the act does not apply to the healers named, was rendered Friday in the case of Ellen Shoop, appellant, against Dr. Ella Stewart, appellee, from the Marion circuit court and affirming the decision of the lower court. The suit was brought to recover $100 for services rendered by the defendant, who is a practitioner of the healing art, in accordance with the principles of chiropathy, osteopathy, etc. The defendant, who is a graduate of the Kansas City Osteopathic school, contended that she had performed her part of the contract, but that the plaintiff had failed to pay her the money. The lower court held that the contract was void because the defendant was not a regular physician, and was not a graduate of a school of medicine, or authorized to practice medicine in the state of Indiana. The supreme court, in its decision, says that the contract was not void because the defendant was not a regular physician, and that the plaintiff could not avoid the payment of the money because the defendant was not a regular physician. The opinion in the case was written by Judge Hackney.

—The tug Bickes came in Tuesday with a lift of over three tons of fish.

—Two inches of the most beautiful quality of snow on the ground this morning, but the sun spoiled it all soon after breakfast.

—Judge Mayne and family, who have been stopping at the Eaton the past winter, returned to their north side home yesterday.

—Barnard Grange will give an entertainment at the Marion town hall tomorrow evening, consisting of recitations, dialogues, music, etc. The proceeds will go to the building fund, so go and enjoy it. Admission 15 and 20 cents.

—The local camp of Modern Woodmen of America is preparing to entertain their visiting neighbors from surrounding camps Tuesday evening, April 23d. The Petoskey degree team will be over and an exhibition drill work on Bridge street. They will also "ride" several candidates who are in waiting.

—The Charlevoix county atlas, published by the Consolidated Publishing Co. is out and is a most beautiful and accurate work. The detail work was done by Myers Bros., and so far as we can see, or have heard, there can be no fault found with it. It is all that was represented and Myers Bros. are to be congratulated on the success of their undertaking. The township maps and village plats are models of artistic workmanship, and the directory feature is complete and correct. The atlas will fill a long felt want, and should be possessed by every citizen of Charlevoix county.

Marine Notes.

The tug Bickes took the three light keepers to Fox island last Saturday.

The steamer Columbia of St. Ignace, which wintered here, left Tuesday for her home port.

The steamer Cummings left Saturday, and experienced no difficulty in reaching Traverse City.

The Charlevoix and Vessel Owners Tug association is erecting a tug office on the north bank of the river.

The tug syndicate will establish a coal dock below the new tug office on the north side of the river, below the bridge.

The schooner Charles Luling is out this spring looking neat and trim as usual. Capt. Ira Morehouse has her in proper rig.

The steamer Hackley went over to Beaver island Friday, but could get only as far as sucker point, about one mile from McCann's dock.

At Manistee, Mich., the tugowners and their captains and engineers have so far failed to get together and the result is a deadlock, all the labor tugs remaining tied up to the docks.

Navigation up the lake opened yesterday. The steambarge Dunbar and schooners Luling and Nalad went to East Jordan after cargoes. The passenger boats will begin running this week.

The first arrival for cargo was the steambarge George Dunbar, Friday. Her first departure was the schooner Sea Gem, with a hold full of slabs for Milwaukee. She will return with a full cargo of grain for the Charlevoix roller mills.

Samuel C. Jackson has been appointed second assistant keeper of the Beaver Island light station, in place of Walter B. Nelson, transferred and promoted to first assistant keeper of Squaw Island light station. Owen C. McCauly has been promoted from first assistant keeper to keeper of Squaw Island light station.

Work on the schooner Maize is about completed, and that vessel is now ready to go into commission. The work that has been done on the Maize the past winter makes her almost as good as the day she was first launched, and the work, which was done personally by the captain and mate, the Hulme brothers, is pronounced by sailors to be a credit to them and the vessel.

A Sheboygan (Wis.) special says: The tug Ella, operated by Thoune and Ernesse Bros., when they conducted fishing operations at Cedar Grove a few years ago, has been sold to parties at Cross Village, Mich., for a consideration of $250. Thee craft will be taken to Port Washington, from wheres there the steamer Seymour will tow her low to the east shore.

Milwaukee Wisconsin: Announcement is made by the Northern Michigan Transportion company that one of its steamers, the City of Charlevoix perhaps, will make regular stops at this port during the season. She may catch some passenge travel because of her superior accommodations, but is is doubtful whether any freight can be diverted from the Milwaukee and Michigan line steamer M. H. Neff. The fact of the matter is that the N. M. line ought never to have discontinued its Milwaukee service.

Harbor Springs Republican: Capt. O'Connor is fitting out the steamer Oval Agitator in fine style. He has made during the winter some important changes in his boat. A hurricane deck has been placed on her and a neat and roomy ladies' cabin added between decks. She is also wired for electric lights, and will come out this spring in splendid shape. These improvements will involve an outlay of $1,200. Her route this season will be between Escanaba and Rapid River in Green Bay.

S. S. Burke, manager of the People's Transit company steamer Lawrence, writes to the Wisconsin from Ferrysburg, Mich., that Johnston Bros. have placed a new 25 ton Scotch type boiler in the steamer, which will again cover the route between Milwaukee, Benton Harbor and St. Joseph, making tri-weekly trips until the fruit season opens up, when daily trips are scheduled. It is expected that the Lawrence will be ready to go into service by May 1. Either Manager Burke or one of his sons will in all probability act as her Milwaukee agent.

An important decision has just been rendered by Inspector General Dumont of the hull inspection service. The Grand Haven office has been issuing second class pilots papers indorsed: "Empowered to take charge of a watch as assistant to a first class pilot." Many inspectors refused to accept this as lawful, there appearing to be a clause in the law by which on boats over 100 tons burden, some but first class pilots might be in charge. Gen. Dumont supports the opinions of the Grand Haven inspectors that their interpretation was right, thereby settling a point which has been of no little interest to owners and insurance companies.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEW, COMM'R.

We have noticed in some of the manuscript handed to the board of examiners at the recent examinations for teachers, also at the examinations for diplomas, many misspelled words. We are sure that much of it comes from carelessness upon the part of teacher and pupil.

To the modern idea, that spelling may be learned incidentally, much poor spelling is due. The secret of success is concentrated effort on the words likely to be misspelled. "When a boy sits down to a collection of words and puts his mind on them and abstracts it from everything else until he has possessed himself of their right spelling, he has acquired a mental vigor which no incidental learning could give him."

The association of the sense and use of a word with its form is always an assistance in the recollection of its spelling.

It is because we write that we need to know how to spell, and most persons learn to spell by observing the appearance of a word and reproducing its form.

A spelling book should not be used that disguises the words by diacritical marks or by separation into syllables. Spelling is largely mechanical—like type writing or piano playing. The pupil needs to form the habit of writing the word correctly, so that the hand will form the word automatically. It is a waste of mental power to be compelled to pay attention to the spelling while writing.

A dictionary should be consulted for the pronunciation and definition of each word about which there is any doubt on the part of the learner. The use of the dictionary should be insisted on, for the pupil will more readily retain knowledge which he gains by his own exertions.

April showers would be a great benefit to the soil just now. It would start things green, and May flowers would be next.

East Jordan Herald: Gusfield Myers, who has just completed a business course in Chicago, returned here and took up his former position as a clerk in the Bridge Hardware Co.

The house committee on appropriations will report favorably on a bill to loan the Mackinaw island park commission $10,000 to build nine miles of Macadam driveways around the old island.

Central Lake Torch: Arch Cameron, of Torch Lake, went south on a business trip last week, and continued it to Canada to visit at his old home in Toronto. This is his first visit there since he left in 1862.

The Petoskey fibre company, limited, organized for the purpose of manufacturing wood fibre in Michigan, has filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state. The company has a capital of $250,000.

Lelloy, the man who was shot during a drunken brawl at East Jordan last week, is able to be around. The shooting was done in self defence, and the one that did it was not even arrested. A brother of Lelloy, who was injured up in the melee, was arrested and is now in the Detroit workhouse, where he will stay sober for 90 days. The trouble that led up to the shooting began in the boarding house of Mrs. John Rufore. It is stated that Lelloy and three companions were intoxicated and making lots of disturbance and that Mrs. Rufore, in trying to quiet them, was attacked by the roughs. In defense of Mrs. Rufore, Stewart, a boarder at her house, interfered, and the entire party turned on him. To defend himself he drew his revolver (a 22), and commenced to shoot, one ball taking effect, lodging in the head of Lelloy just above the temple. After shooting him, Stewart is said to have thrown Lelloy down stairs, dislocating his jaw. Stewart is said to be a quiet, law abiding citizen. Lelloy is said to belong to a notorious set known as the Ferguson gang, who have anything but a savory reputation around East Jordan.

FOR COFFEE DRINKERS.

Facts About the Beverage That Are Not Generally Known.

The inhabitants of the United States consume annually statistics show, 700,000,000 pounds of coffee, and as there are about 75,000,000 inhabitants each of them has in his credit ten pounds in the course of the year. Notwithstanding this a wave of fear sweeps over the country every little while and the coffee drinkers lift up their voices and say: "Are we not injuring our health with drinking so much coffee?" The subject has lately been discussed by a number of medical societies. Physicians are pretty generally agreed that the moderate consumption of coffee is not injurious and "moderate consumption" they define as one cup at breakfast, one at noon and one in the evening. Coffee taken plain, without cream or sugar, they say is less harmful than the sweetened, adulterated, or milk coffee, which fermenting is bad for the digestive organs. Smokers are better off with coffee than without it, as tobacco being a narcotic, weakens the heart's action, while coffee, a stimulant, strengthens it, so that the heart of the smoking coffee drinker does not vary, as a rule, from the heart of him who has neither the one habit nor the other. The smoker who does not drink coffee has usually a weak heart. The disciples of the no breakfast faith say that one cup of coffee between two cups of hot water in the morning is better for the health than all the breakfast cereals or health foods advertised. Ex.

The Original "Star Chamber."

The famous "Star Chamber" derives its name from the apartment in which the English court was held in the king's palace, in Westminster. Upon the ceilings were stars, hence the "camera stellata," or chamber of stars. It was of very ancient origin and the court had excessive powers, but could not pronounce the death penalty. It was abolished by act of parliament in 1641, during the reign of Charles I., but this unfortunate monarch was sentenced to be beheaded by a council in this same "Star Chamber."

Mexican Cocktails Are Powerful.

American barrooms are multiplying in the City of Mexico. Their so-called "American drinks" are almost as deadly as knockout drops and the imbibers of them are very likely to be given the chance to sober up in the police station. These Mexican cocktails are usually powerful enough to paralyze a mule.

RACHEL STILL MOURNS.

The deposits of wage earners in our savings banks, under Cleveland and the rubber Wilson tariff and free soup, decreased $37,000,000 in 1894. During the last four years under McKinley, the Dingley protective tariff and the full dinner pail, their savings have increased $500,000,000. And during all these four years of McKinley has gone up the piteous wail of Fifty-Cent Dollar Bryan, Anarchist Altgeld, Shotgun Tillman, Boss Williams and Gentle Blackmail Croker: "Oh, wage earners, wage earners, how often would we have relieved you of the grievous burdens of full dinner pails and savings for a rainy day, and ye would not. Behold, ye must bear these heavy loads as long as McKinley and vile protection piles them upon you!" Then George Fred further weepeth and murmureth, "It is plain that Republican voters do not understand the dangers of the situation." And George refuseth to be comforted.

A bill passed by the senate lately will permit prize fighting in Michigan up to ten-round mills, although the apparent intention of the measure was to prohibit. The bill was introduced by Senator Humphrey, by request, and when it was up for consideration, a lively debate followed. The bill was characterized as a "gold brick," but it was passed just the same.

A very pretty wedding occurred at the residence of O. D. Wood yesterday noon, when Miss Mary Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wood, was married to Frederic Howard Clarke. Only the relatives and a few personal friends of the contracting parties were present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. James Hyslop. The young left on the afternoon train and will be at home at 417 East Bridge street, Grand Rapids, after June 1st.

At Detroit, a cablegram was received recently from ex-Gov. Pingree dated Durban, Natal, saying: "Will be at Shepherd's hotel, Cairo, Egypt, May 17th. Have killed an elephant, cable to Durban; the war and plague makes trade bad." [Next thing we expect to hear is that he has pardoned Crane.]

The Grand Rapids papers tell a story of a great rainbow trout being captured in a creek at Newago lately, by Chas. Edwards of that place, which tipped the scales at nine pounds and measured 32 inches in length. It will be mounted and sent to the Pan American exposition as a part of Michigan's exhibit.

Official figures from the different counties on supreme court justice in the recent election show that Montgomery has 91,583 plurality over Adsit. Montgomery's vote was 216,268, while Adsit polled 125,745 votes. In the election of April 3, 1899, for justice, Claudius B. Grant (rep.) polled 216,826 votes while his democratic opponent, L. E. Parkworth had 165,482 votes, a plurality for Grant of 51,346.

Down at the bridge site things are moving along slowly but safely. Monroe has more than half of the south abutment foundation piles driven and cut off. On the other side the excavation is being made for the north abutment. The first consignment of iron for the superstructure came Tuesday. It was pig iron for the counterbalance. The center pier is already for the workers, and before another week comes we may expect to see the workmen busy setting up the cribs.

If you feel like cursing anybody you think fit, remember, which politicians winter with non-essentials, and, with a full knowledge of existing conditions at the lighting station, failed to do the proper thing. The poor devils who are now serving the public for nothing and board themselves are the victims of this neglect. Now, suspend your judgment on them until their proposition has a fair trial, and then—if they are false prophets—kill them, as it were. They certainly have the good of the village at heart, and [illegible] any step that proves itself an injury to the public.

The house committee of the whole has passed the Branch bill raising the minimum school age at which pupils may enter the public schools of the state from five to six years. The bill does not change the maximum age, which remains at 20 years, and does not interfere with the present basis of enumeration of persons for primary school funds. Neither does the bill contemplate a change in the kindergarten school regulations in cities having special rules governing those schools. The object of the bill, as expressed by Mr. Branch is to keep younger children out of school in the rural districts or, as he expressed it, to "prohibit parents from making nurseries out of the public schools by sending their babies there for teachers to take care of."

Tuesday evening was a gala day in Charlevoix for the Modern Woodmen of America of this section. Members of that solid fraternal organization were here from Petoskey, Bay Shore, Boyne City and East Jordan. The central feature of the occasion was the presence of the Petoskey degree team, who came to instruct their Charlevoix fraters. The drill corps of Petoskey was also here and performed some very fine evolutions on the street in the early evening. The social event of the gathering was the banquet at the Hotel Bartlett. Tale Shanahan of this place was toast master. Responses were made by members from other lodges, and the Charlevoix male quartet furnished excellent music. Charlevoix Lodge Modern Woodmen has 40 members and A. E. Cross is the Venerable Counsel.

"Oh, Rity, Rity!" said she. "I was afraid you would come, and I made no ado about it."

As Rity received her he was startled at hearing some one call out, "Hooray! That, I conclude, is a country frog. I hope she won't try it on me!"

Turning about he saw Indian Jim, a white-faced boy, nearly of his own age, whom Frank had apparently induced four or thousand to a higher grade, as far as would was concerned. It was Mrs. Unwin, institution built for public and in-stance. Rity, who had worked for Mr. Unwin, had been touched by Henry's case, and now he begged permission to go and nurse poor Jim, who was in the throes of Mary Jennet's fever, and who, as Henry said, was so delighted to see Rity that he forgot his pain for a time.

"Why, Rity, I'm glad you've come," said Jim, as he recognized his visitor. "Mother wanted me to come home, but I couldn't. I was so sick I didn't care much about anything. Where is Mary? Is she well? Is she coming?"

"Yes, you see, said Mary, speaking and sitting the sick man before him, a tall, ugly-looking man, with a very small head and a very large mouth, which was now twisted into a smile, as he said, "I'm Mr. Unwin, and I'm glad to see you, Mary. Jim has been talking of you ever since he came here, and I'm sorry you have come just at this time, for he is very sick."

"Yes, I know he is very sick," said Mary, with a look of anxiety in her face, which Mr. Unwin thought was very pretty, and which, when Jim was well, was very pretty indeed.

"Yes, you know, and I'm glad you do," said Mr. Unwin, who was a good-natured man, and who, in his way, was very fond of Jim, who had been with him for years, and who was now in the last stage of a fever, which Mary Jennet had brought with her from the poorhouse.

"Jim, Jim, I've brought Mary to see you," he said, as he left the room, and Mary was alone with the sick man, who was delirious, and who, in his delirium, called her Mary Jennet, and talked of the poorhouse, and of the cruelty of his mother, who had left him there when he was a little child, and who had never been near him since, but who had sent him to Mr. Unwin's to be a servant, and who had died in a fever, and left him to the mercy of strangers.

Mary was very much moved by Jim's condition, and she remembered how he had once protected her from the cruelty of her mother, and how he had offered to share his home with her when she was left an orphan. She had loved him then as a brother, and she was very glad to see him now, and to do what she could for him in return for his kindness to her in the past. She was very much frightened at his condition, and she was very much pleased when, on the second day, he knew her and called her by her name, and said he was glad she was there, and that he was better for her coming. He was very weak, however, and for a few days it was doubtful which way he would turn, whether toward life or death. He was very much emaciated, and he was very fretful and peevish, and he was very fond of Mary, who was with him most of the time, and who was very much frightened when he called her Mary Jennet and talked of the poorhouse and of his mother.

"Oh, Rity, Rity!" said she. "I was afraid you would come, and I made no ado about it."

"Mother, mother, I'm sick, I'm sick, and I want you to come home to me!" he would say, and then he would call her Mary Jennet, and say that she was one of the poor little children who had come with him in front of the wagon, and evidently seeing in her face a resemblance to the woman who had so cruelly treated him, and who had offered provision substituted me as the man and the fourth claimed to have been the author of the letter at a time when he was not of a sound and a sensible state.

"Well, I'm ready for examination, with a chance of things going hard with me," said Lowell Bertram James, as he came to a halt before the Justice, who was sitting in the office at his desk, and who was looking at the man before him with a curious expression on his face, which was partly made up of pity and partly of curiosity.

"Sit down, sit down, and tell us what you have to tell," said the Justice, who was very much interested in the case, and who was very much pleased with the manner of the man who had come to be examined, and who was evidently a gentleman, and who was very different from the man who had written the letter which had brought him there.

"Well, I'm a fool, I suppose, and I've been a fool all my life, and I've paid for it in the most unexpected way, and I'm willing to pay for it in any way you may think I ought to, if I can. I'm a married man, and I've been married ever since I was twenty-one, and I've never seen the woman I married since the day I married her, and I don't want to see her, for she's a fiend incarnate, and I'm willing to pay for my folly in any way you

"Why, Hilly, Hilly," said she, "I was afraid you would not come, and I made so sadden up."

As Mrs Hilyard let he was startled at hearing some one call out, "Hurrah! That I catchedm, is a naughty long boys who won't try if an one!"

Turning about to see better him a white-faced boy, nearly of his own age, whom from and appearance Hilly saw that he belonged to a higher grade, so far as wealth was concerned. It was Henry Thomas, someone both his guide and informer. Hilly, who had worked for Mr Thomas and been jostled by Henry, was a man and now he looked at a stranger to his native grounds taught this boy in the presence of Mary Jennings he happened so without a word to Henry to be whipped on the little girl. The fellow lives near here, and if he ever gives me trouble, just let me know."

"Kissed her then, didn't you?" sneeringly asked Henry, remarking at the same time on there was something in Hilly's eyes which he liked not.

Vinny was the hottest of Mrs Hilyard's boys, and nothing never frightened him. "Kissed her, and I'm ready to do it again," said he, and leaning the boy who had taken him up to his own house where there was no fear of being interrupted.

"Now, see that carefully fixed in her mind, and then knowing from a Hilly's sister's friend, remember, young man, you have a very short time, and I will be responsible for your good behavior for the rest of your stay in Mr Thomas's house." Hilly was then with four of everything which had been provided and finished by saying, "Bring the dear little boy."

Hilly's purse was as large as his heart, that operation would have easily been answered. Now he could only take his food in triple where Mary and other children were.

It came out soon he returned to, that the house belonged to a man who was Mrs Thomas's model man and whom by another and inferior to her good opinion.

The person addressed as "Hilly" gave the impression the sense of another, and Mrs Thomas, who was a widow, by nature and education a lady, was very angry and scolded Henry for his conduct. Hilly was not angry, but he was very much hurt, and he felt that he was not to blame, for he had only obeyed his master's orders.

"Mary Jennings," said he, "is a good girl, and I don't like to see her cry. I'm sorry I hit the boy, but I'm not to blame."

"Of course not," said Mrs Thomas, who was somewhat conscious that Hilly had not been to blame, and who was very much pleased with the way he had taken up for Mary. "Of course not, and I'm very sorry that Henry has behaved so. I shall see that he does not trouble you or Mary any more."

"Thank you, ma'am," said Hilly, touching his hat, and he was about to leave the room when he was called back by Mrs Thomas, who had taken a fancy to the boy, and who was very much pleased with the way he had taken up for Mary. "Do not mind what Henry said about your being a foundling, and I hope you will be a good boy and do your duty in the station in which you have been placed."

HOW PANICS MAY BE AVOIDED

An officer of one of the prominent national banks is reported in the New York Times as saying

Despite the active business demand for money there will be plenty to spare, and we could even send gold abroad without in the least being embarrassed.

Four Trade Unionists have not seen any advantage in our having a balance of trade in our favor but continue cries of business and men in whom is laid the burden of keeping the financial market steady have a different view of things. Typical of the man who knows are not the problems of financial in expression "Jerk" waves" such as sound or our Free Trade monetaries talk liberal. They fix that cause, more than all other causes combined, or definite industrial conditions and the industrial condition which does not allow of a panic is that in which business is active, prices good and gold large with the prospect of the flowing into the country such as to enable conditions. In fact, as had its third of this country since the Civil War, removed the American market to the American people, and such as has always existed in the country when ever our policy of giving Protection to American industry has been in full force and effect.

FAR FROM DWINDLING

Many of the free trade papers have been reiterating recently the long lines of wool growing on a Texas ranch. Perhaps the most ridiculous was that from free trade papers are preparing for an attack on the present Dingley tariff on wool. Their characterization of the wool growing industry of Texas is not in line with the facts of the case. It is not the only article on which free trade sling is referred to the business, for the figures given in the United States Statistical Abstract show that the number of sheep in the United States has increased by more than 1,000,000 since 1897, when President McKinley assumed the reins of government. If this is the work of reducing that the free traders call "treasonable" to not our account, perhaps that they claim that free trade is a blessing for it is evident that they are treated in their misrepresentation of the business of wool.

DO SOMETHING AND DO IT QUICK

STEWART AND THE YOUNG MAN

Senator Stewart of Nevada was sitting in the smoking compartment on a street car. A raw looking young man, who had evidently been "hanging around" the senate cloakroom, came in and asked the senator quite civilly, "Are you Senator Stewart?" "Yes, sir," replied the senator, with wonted courtesy, and he was ready for a Southern session greeting the senator quite effectively.

"Good morning, senator, and the 9 Y. M."

"Good nothing," replied the senator, with wonted courtesy, and he was ready for a Southern session greeting the senator quite effectively.

"Well," remarked Stewart, with emphasis, "I don't think that is anything to be proud of."

And the 9 Y. M. went out on the platform.—Washington Post.

Can't Fool Them Again

We are promised fresh propaganda by the Free traders. They are going to wear out the arms and legs of the believers long before the result will be evident to politicians, but time will tell the people pretty long able time and with quite a fund of experience and remembrance. Still, if the Free Traders have anything new to offer now is the time to unveil it. If there is any way to increase our prosperity we want to know it but until we do repetitions are pretty dull.

All But Cereal.

From the land of the sunflower comes a mighty wind the sound of rustling checks and greenbacks and silver certificates and the old war chest of Freedom and Hymnism has all but caused to blow New York Sun.

Unless in a Full Dinner Pail.

The wage earners' full dinner pail is especially objectionable to the Free Trade Free Trader. A small dinner satisfy half full may be a great joke but unless it is in the usual Free Trader well-to-do-to-other.

Florida Thronged with Visitors

Florida is now thronged with visitors from the northern and western states. The leading hotels of the principal cities and towns report full houses, and the boarding house people are also reaping a rich harvest. Every arriving train adds to the crowd. From Lakeland one day last week 300 cases of strawberries were shipped after the local demand had been supplied.

COULDN'T FIND A CORKSCREW.

Why the Women Did Not Use the Usual Fire Extinguisher.

A short time ago there was a fire in a fashionable house in Hyde Park, says the Chicago News. It was a big enough fire to cause considerable of a scare, though the house did not burn down and nobody was scorched. It caught in the kitchen woodbox. The cook threw the match she lighted to see if it was dry and the hood of it, being inconsiderate, set things afire. The cook was an excitable person and when she saw the smoke coming up from under the cover she did not throw on water, and called her mistress. This woman has the reputation of being a cool hand in an emergency and viewed the situation with an unruffled eye. Then she went into the back hall and remained there awhile, for fear she might be burned the wood box. The cook was upstairs packing her trunk. When the mistress of the house returned the wall of the kitchen was going in good shape and she decided that it was time to call her help. The neighbors came in a more beaming pails of water, for the pipes in the house were frozen. After a while the fire went out under the influence of gallons of water which ruined the wall paper in the dining room. At supper time the woman's husband came home and balked at the dessert. "Why on earth didn't you use those hand fire grenades that are in the back hall?" asked he wonderingly when he saw them all in their little rack. "We did," replied his wife steadily, "I tried to, but I hunted all over this house and couldn't find the corkscrew.

TRAIN ROBBERS FAIL.

DISCOVERED BEFORE PLANS ARE CARRIED OUT.

BOLD ATTEMPT TO LOOT AN EXPRESS CAR IN EUREKA SPRINGS, ARKANSAS—CHEYENNE PARK IN DENVER WILL BE A BEER GARDEN—CITY CONTRACTORS.

A daring attempt to rob the express car of the Kansas City, Memphis & Birmingham passenger train on the Frisco system between Springfield and Eureka Springs, Ark., was prevented at Springfield, Mo., by the discovery of the robbers' plans. As the train was about to pull out of the Springfield station, at about 10 o'clock Saturday morning, two men climbed into the express car, between the tender and the baggage car, and secreted themselves there. The messenger saw the men and ordered them out, but they refused to go, and he then locked the door of the car, and the train dropped off and proceeded without the robbers. The express car was then searched, and the men were found in the tender, and were ordered off the train. They refused to go, and were left behind when the train left. The men were described by the express messenger as young men, well dressed, and they had the appearance of being well-to-do young men. They had no baggage, and had no tickets, but had money in their possession. The express company has offered a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the men, and the officials of the road are confident that they will be able to locate the men if they get off the train at any station in this state, as they will be on the lookout for them. BAD MONEY MAN ARRESTED.

John Albert Scott, Long a Fugitive from Chicago, Attempts Suicide.

John Albert Scott, a counterfeiter of more than reputation, who escaped from jail at Joliet, Ill., last June, and is a prisoner in New York, and is a result of his attempt the police have captured one of the most complete counterfeiting plants ever discovered. Scott attempted suicide when he was arrested. An attempt to pass a bogus dollar on the cashier of a banking office in Broadway led to the arrest of the man. The clerk discovered the bad money of the bill and called an officer. He found that the man possessed through the channel, and when brought in he also found that the man had a knife. The wounded man was carried to Bellevue Street Hospital, where he gave the name of Albert Scott. He was twice shot in the head, and was in the hospital so soon recognized him as John A. Scott, known to theft in the western Chicago on a charge of counterfeiting, and escaped from the Joliet Illinois state prison. The Chicago Herald says of the Hudson school for girls, that the prisoner he broke out of the prison, that he was a prisoner in the Joliet prison, and that he was a prisoner in the Joliet prison, and that he was a prisoner in the Joliet prison, and

TRAIN ROBBERS FAIL.

DISCOVERED BEFORE PLANS ARE CARRIED OUT.

Bold Attempt to Loot an Express Car in Broad Daylight—Shotgunner Checkers Back to Drive Off Kansas City Contractors.

A daring attempt to rob the express car of the Missouri Pacific railway became known on the Transportation line out of Kansas City yesterday morning. The robbers had a stronghold of Wood-chopping, Mo., 20 miles from Kansas City, on the express train leaving the city at 8 o'clock yesterday morning. On the train were the express car, the baggage car, and a coach for the usual of a Fred Harvey dining car. It should be mentioned in one of the two express cars, contrary to the usual custom, there was no guard. The train was in charge of Conductor Thomas and Engineer Jones.

A number of men had left the Fred Harvey dining car at Kansas City, and had taken seats in the coach behind the baggage car. The conductor was collecting the fares of the men in the coach when the train pulled into the station at Wood-chopping, Mo., and the men in the coach jumped off and ran toward the express car. The conductor ran after them, and the men in the coach opened fire with their shotguns, firing several shots. The conductor returned the fire with his revolver, and the men ran back to the coach and jumped on the train as it started. The men then went back through the train, firing their guns and yelling to the passengers to keep their heads down. The men then went back to the express car, and ordered the express messenger to open the door. The express messenger had already locked the door, and had taken the key with him. The men then ordered the express messenger to throw out the money, and he refused. The men then fired several shots into the car, and the express messenger then thought they had killed the express messenger, and they then left the express car and ran back through the train, firing their guns and yelling to the passengers to keep their heads down. The men then left the train and ran into the woods. The train then pulled into Kansas City, where the express messenger reported the matter to the police. The express messenger was not hurt, but he thought he had killed one of the men.

The men had evidently planned to board the express car at Kansas City, and had taken the train at Wood-chopping, Mo., because they knew there was no guard on the express car.

Marine Notes.

The fishing tug Fearless, of Sheboygan, is here doing business again.

John Eide of Manistee has arrived and taken command of tug Taylor.

The Gordon and Ogdon are making regular daily trips between Charlevoix and East Jordan.

The tug Dennis Hook, After having had a thorough overhauling of her machinery, will be out this week.

The steamship Illinois arrived here Saturday noon on her first trip. She only went as far as Harbor Springs on her trip.

The steamer M. C. Nell of the new Milwaukee and Northern Michigan line is expected. She left Milwaukee Tuesday.

The Northern Michigan Line boats will stop at Milwaukee one round trip per week. This will give us a Milwaukee boat twice a week.

Capt. S. M. Rose has taken out the tug Newell Avery, and will go to Onekama with her and make an effort to raise the steamboat Music, sunk there some time ago.

The U. S. lighthouse steamer Dahlia came in Monday, leaving Tuesday morning. The boat was in command of the mate, Capt. Hubbard being very sick in Chicago. Commander Symonds, L. N. S. Inspector, was on board.

The steamer Hackley laid at the ship yard Tuesday. Capt. Campbell chartered the steamer Columbia and took a load of pens for the Ferry Seed Co., and a large consignment of flour for the Charlevoix Roller Mills to Cross Village.

Mr. Schoonberg, of the Schoonberg Lumber Co., of Milwaukee, was here last week, arranging for the company's new line of boats that is to run between Milwaukee and Northern Michigan ports. H. A. Dorey was appointed agent, and Joe Emery clerk will be used.

A Harbor Springs special says: The revenue cutter Morrill succeeded in reaching here last night, after being badly used up by the heavy ice encountered at the foot of Lake Michigan. Two propeller blades were broken off and the backing chains and rudder head were disabled. The Morrill was on her way from Milwaukee to Sault Ste. Marie.

The managers of the lake fleets, owned by the big railroad companies which ply between Buffalo, Chicago, Milwaukee and Duluth, have unanimously decided to keep their steamers laid up this year until the strike of the marine engineers shall have been decided. All freight cars and vessels already contracted for will be shipped by rail. No more lake contracts are to be made until the strike is over. The heads of the companies decline to withdraw from the Lake Carriers' Association at the bid of the men.

George T. Arnold of Mackinac Island will establish a new route this summer, running from Sault Ste. Marie to Petoskey, and will use his new steamer Iroquois, now building by Craig at Toledo, on the route. The new boat will be combination freight and passenger propeller and is expected to make about 20 miles an hour. She will be 210 feet over all, 34 feet beam, with a molded depth of 12 feet. When completed the Iroquois will represent an outlay of about $125,000, and is to be delivered in time for this season's business. The service on St. Mary's river is to be further improved by a line running from Detour to the Soo. Sunday's issue of the Herald intimates that the Iroquois is to be used as a continuation of the Pere Marquette from Petoskey to Mackinac Island, for the accommodation of that road's through traffic. As she has a speed of 20 miles per hour, two round trips daily could be made.

Have you seen 'em? What? Why those $1.95 and $1.75 shoes at Frazier's.

Chauncey Brown, of Muscatona, is here for a few days visiting old friends.

Martene Valentine, who has been at Little Harbor last Tuesday and returned on Saturday.

Johanna Valentine, who has been here the past three months left for Little Harbor on Tuesday.

There has been many changes in town the past week. Lyman Van Dusen has sold his place to Wm. Monty Richards, and has bought the house and lot of Ben Pearl—Ben Pearl has moved on to a farm in Antrim county. Dr. Decker has bought a house and lot of Frank Richardson, and Wm. Richardson moves to Willard Spaulding's place. John Morrison has changed his quarters, and Bennett will move into Mrs. Moores house as soon as the Dr. gets a house, and Melvin Bowditch will move into his summer residence on the beach.

Martene Valentine who has been here the past four weeks returned to his home at Little Harbor on Monday.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEW, COM'R

Our teachers will notice that the questions on "Theory and Art" are based to some extent on some portion of the Reading Circle work. At the last examination some of the applicants for certificates went as low as 37, 40, etc, as a result of neglecting to read some good pedagogical work.

The work of the Michigan Teachers' Reading Circle selected for the coming year consists of Psychology for Teachers, by Morgan and Jameson.

Industrial Evolution in the United States, by Carroll D. Wright, United States Commissioner of Labor. Favorite Tales by Frank R. Stockton, edited by Mary F. Burt.

The books will be ready for the teachers at the beginning of the Reading Circle year, August 1st. Boards should see that suitable encouragement is given to the teacher. They must remember the great responsibility, the duty of the teacher. They should not employ teachers who do not feel the zeal of fidelity, of which the text can to become members of the Reading Circle or to subscribe for educational journals.

School boards should appreciate the great good which teachers derive from an occasional visit to other schools. These often require some expenditure of money. The board should expect the teachers to wish to make such visits, and should have this in mind when it is considering the matter of compensation.

We cannot speak too often or too urgently of the salary question. So long as teachers are poorly paid, we cannot expect many of the best men and women to remain in the profession. They cannot afford to do so. Or if they do remain, they are prevented from working up to the full measure of their abilities and from following out their cherished plans for extending their usefulness. A good teacher is worthy of good pay.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Charlevoix Hunt of Central Lake has been secured by the Bellaire brick manufacturers to take charge of their yard this summer.

The proposed new system of water works for Mackinaw island has been commenced on the side of old Fort Holmes.

Petoskey is interested just now over the discovery of oil on the property of Benjamin Bum, just north of the city limits. Coal and iron pyrites are found in the vicinity. Local capitalists are considering the advisability of organizing to bore for petroleum.

D. McGuville has uncovered an Indian mound in Tapper's grove near Cadillac. The relics found in the mound consisted of a pipe, fish spear, several arrow heads of excellent workmanship, a very large quartz spear head, beaver teeth and sing spikes. The remains of two warriors were in the mound, together with weapons and other implements. It is claimed that the presence of the teeth and deer antlers means that their owner was a chief—the former being his necklace, and the latter a part of the head dress. The spear or harpoon is made from a piece of horn, nearly flat, with projecting barbs on one side and straight on the other. It was in excellent condition, although the bones of the skeleton crumbled at the touch. The pipe is a good specimen of red man's skill and the blackened and burned bowl showed much use and evidence of its having been smoked at many councils. The mound in which these articles were found was circular in form and about seven feet high at the apex, sloping gradually to the trench which encircled it. It would appear from the conditions found that the burial had been made even with the surrounding ground and the earth had been heaped above. Upon the grave were several trees, one of them a beech, was about 15 inches in diameter. The Indians had been laid parallel with each other, but the bodies were reversed and laid east and west.

The Council and the Lights.

On the recommendation of Superintendent Mattindale, the council, last Friday evening voted to appropriate $140 for the purchase of electric meters for all places using lights, at a meter rate of 1 cent per watt, or the equivalent of one 16 candle power light.

On learning of this action, we wrote an editorial, in which we encouraged the council up one side and down the other. We dipped our pen in vitriol and wrote up that record as the council room as they were never written up before. We agreed not one, not even President Harry Nicholls.

At the rate established, it seemed to us that the action was an unwise one, and one that would be a detriment to public thrift. We still hold to that opinion, but we concede that the council in doing what it thinks is right, and concede that the plan should have a fair trial. We desist.

If, with the established meter rate the cost is excessive, we have no doubt the council will reduce the rate. The council only desires to equalize the use of lights, and prevent pro rating.

Give the council a fair show.

FROM

POORHOUSE TO PALACE

BY MARY J HOLMES

CHAPTER VI

Mary had been at the poorhouse about three weeks when Will Hendry came for her without her to the door one morning and ran across the meadow and through the woods until she came to a rude stable, their home in the woods along the frontier, and who came to another world of woods with a brook running through it. "And have we the few odds and ends we need?" she asked. "Yes," said the man Foley to woman, and he did not stop to come to their school room.

It was a cold September day and Mary determined not to hurry. She had time enough to reach the school house before the children came, and she did not care to be there when they came. Anyway I was hard to learn, I got on a woman.

"But what I undertook, some have and other will, another day," asked Mrs. Hendry, who was a good deal more like a man than her husband. Mary thought what would the earthquake of the good people of Lynn think of her. Why, what would Mrs. Hunter, Mary Hunter, if she knew of this?

"Some learning, you mean?" he said, "I guess you have enough for what I want you to do. Have you ever been to school?"

"Yes, sir, I have been to school like other girls," she said, "and I can read and write and cipher as far as the Rule of Three. My father taught me."

"Your father! Who was your father?"

"Mr. Hunter, the rich man who lives in Lynn. I suppose you have heard of him, everybody has."

"Hunter! Hunter! Seems as if I have heard the name, but I don't know as I ever saw any of the family. Your mother?"

"She was a Miss Mary Lane, and she died when I was a little baby, and I don't remember her."

"Lane! Lane! Yes, I knew a family of that name once, but they moved away from here years and years ago. Your mother married your father, I suppose, against her friends, and they cut her off without a cent, and she died and they never heard from her. Is that the story?"

"Yes, sir, I guess it is, for I never heard any other story."

"Well, I don't care about hearing the story. I don't care a cent about the Hunters, or Lanes, or Jones, or Smiths, or any other name. I want you to be a good girl and do what I tell you to do, and I will be good to you. Do you think you can?"

"I can try, sir, I can try very hard."

"That's all I want you to do. Your mother was a fool to marry your father against her friends, and I guess she paid for it. Do you ever pray?"

"Sometimes I do when I am very, very sick."

"Well, we don't pray much in this family, but we have to have some one to do the cooking and washing and ironing, and I guess you will do as well as any

MARLBOROUGHS AT LONDON.

Met in Paris and Reported Blessed It Crowded Hall.

Paris, April 22.—The duke of Marlborough after travelling for a month in the south of Spain, came to Paris a week ago and stopped at the Hotel Bristol, on the Place Vendome. While the duke was in Spain the duchess of Marlborough has been in Paris and for the last three weeks she has been staying at her father's mansion in the Avenue Champs Elysees. After the duke returned from Spain he visited his father-in-law, where he saw the duchess. Yesterday morning the duchess came to the Hotel Bristol where she was joined by the duke, and together the Marlboroughs proceeded to London. This would indicate, if dissent existed between the duke and the duchess of Marlborough, that her judge had succeeded in reconciling.

London, April 22.—The duke and duchess of Marlborough, who left Paris Sunday morning, traveled together and arrived in London Sunday night. They proceeded to Walsenia Lodge.

LIVELY BATTLE IN KENTUCKY.

Over 100 Shots Fired Between Sheriff's Posses and Moonshiners.

Louisville, Ky., April 22.—The signal fusillade from another moonshine war that never has ceased since Sunday morning between the sheriff's posse and the Howard clan, broke out afresh and could be heard miles in the mountains. Word came to this city that Howard in which the sheriff with twenty-eight men, Judge Hardin and other citizens of the county are besieged by a superior force of moonshiners, is at least good for another day.

It is stated that the moonshiners, in charge of a party of men, began firing shortly after sunrise, and have kept up a fusillade ever since, the aggregate number of shots fired in the county where the engagement is waged, being over 100.

HOTEL BLOWS UP.

St. Marys, W. Va., April 22.—A Gas Well Near Calhoun Explodes.

St. Marys, W. Va., April 22.—The hotel here called the Grafton.

The dead:

Sam Cunningham, driller, Richard Va.

Injured:

Philip Grange, in case, Butler Pa.

Harry Hoshman, tool dresser, Clarksburg, O.

Fred Bailey, an oil well driver.

John Baker, River driver, son of the proprietor of the hotel.

Unidentified man, driver's assistant.

The entire building was a mass of flames when discovered.

The hotel was occupied and the people are being scattered in all directions.

BRITISH TAKE MANY BOERS.

Lord Kitchener Now Captors of 147 More Can Regular.

London, April 22.—Lord Kitchener in a dispatch to the war office dated at Pretoria April 21 says: Since my last report the British columns have captured 147 prisoners, 240 rifles, some ammunition, and wagons and carts. A few men also have surrendered.

Cape Town, April 22.—Albert Cronwright, editor of the Africander News, who was arrested in February on a charge of sedition and subsequently tried on various offenses in his paper, a statement that Lord Kitchener has recently instructed the commander to release the prisoners, has been convicted and sentenced to one year's imprisonment.

Malta Victim Falls at Sea.

Chicago, April 22.—They will be killed here. These are the words in which Alexander Dowie, the latter Chicago, the prophet, informed the dread news, whispered into the ear of Frank C. Arnold just before his death, yesterday on the tenders dreaded to Ashville, Mich.

The hair and clothing were saturated with blood and his skull had been crushed in some fashion. He was taken to the county hospital, where the physicians say he will never regain consciousness. His death is expected at any moment.

Plugged Into Wealth.

St. Louis, Mo., April 22.—Walter Holman, who fifteen years ago ran away from his home in Wentzville, and returned home wealthy, and reunited his aged parents from poverty, he will take the oil fields in a trip in the east and let them pass over remaining days in peace and plenty.

Holman told the police, who discovered him in the morning that he ran away from home when sixteen years old after being flogged. Since then he has wandered all around the world and made a fortune in the Klondike gold fields.

Favorite Poetry.

The scrap books of the Anti-Imperialist leagues show that most of the poetry produced in the United States during the past three years was directed against the government's policy. Prof. Blue Perry says that it was mostly mediocre verse—a species of political oratory in rhyme.—New York World.

Millions for Lighthouses.

The annual report of the lighthouse board, just issued, from Washington, shows that the federal government maintains 425 lighthouses on 1 lights in place along the great lakes. It uses 1,70 steam fog whistles and eight hundred eighty bells. Seventy-three lightships, 1,000 buoys and 651 channel buoys. The system requires four lighthouse tenders and a force of 1,000 men. The cost of the lighthouses, lightships and buoys is upward of $5,000,000, and the demands of navigation make it necessary to increase the appropriations. The harbors of Chicago and Duluth worked the most during the year, and setting the consumption of eighty-eight per cent.

The Easy to Feel Good.

Countless thousands have found a blessing to the body in Dr. King's New Life Pills, which positively cure constipation, sick headache, jaundice, dizziness, malaria, fever and ague and all liver and stomach troubles. Purely vegetable, never gripe or weaken. Only 25c at Wood Drug Store.

DEN FOR TYRANT MAN.

One Room in the House Should Be Set Apart for His Use.

The claim has frequently been made that the women who dwell on Crete, Long Island, Daily Island for the Girls in Summer of the furnishings in these exceptionally magnificent cheaters are more or less lifting than their own homes, where excess of drapery and antique furniture prevail, and in the cottages they find the comfort that is lacking at home. A protester against the overloaded modern house with its wilderness draped with three or four kinds of hangings and a conglomeration of affiliation everywhere makes a plea for the sitting room in every home of a room where the husband and father can smoke and dream or write and read to his heart's content and feel his feet a substitute for the beloved club. As such a room is more likely to be used in winter than in summer and particularly in the evening the furnishings should be subdued and of a quiet hue, bringing in rather with a touch of gaiety to gratify the average man's liking for red. According to a decorator there should be a fireplace in this sitting room, and a corner if possible, where there is a cozy fire and give a cheerful charm. Given a fireplace large enough and fitted to receive the massive firelight logs and a comfortable chair on the hearth and the model any gentleman may be arranged for a man. Place pretty pictures on the walls. The colors should be comfortable. Let the floor be a brown or dark red, make the pink curtains and delicate sweetness of a woman's presence. Place the inseparable humidor a table well by reach to order, be sure that it is of generous proportions, and have an ashtray upon it, for a room is spoiled or uncleanly, or untidy if the ashes and cigar butts, unless may be in the individual taste. Place one or two easy chairs, a smoker's can should be near at hand, and a lamp to light the pipe. Let the light be dim and which will give ample opportunity to read the evening paper, and the man may of course, if needed, a reading lamp. Let the room be a place of comfort, of complete relaxation, and of the unspeakable pleasure of being "let alone" in order, be sure that it is of generous proportions, large enough for a written book

RIVER PACKETS ARE BUSY.

Prospects for Big Season Between St. Paul and St. Louis on Mississippi.

The prospects for a busy season on the river by the Mississippi River packets are good. Capt. Frank Leighton, who commands the Lake Pepin steamer, has contracted to carry a large number of sheep, the first consignment of which arrived at Red Wing, St. Paul and St. Louis. There are two mill cities and encouraged by a good crop season and the pay in cash for wheat, the river towns are looking for a big business. Much lumber will be rafted down the river this season, it is the opinion of lumbermen. Capt. Wm. Dodge, who has been in the lumber business on the Mississippi River for many years, and who is now interested in a lumber business in Minneapolis, has contracted for a large number of rafts to be towed down the river. Capt. Dodge is also interested in the lumber business in Saginaw, Mich., and Quebec and Montreal, Canada, and he will be in the market for a large number of rafts of lumber. The lumber will be towed to Minneapolis, Stillwater, St. Paul and St. Louis. Many of the rafts will be broken up at Davenport, Rock Island, Quincy, Hannibal, Louisiana, Alton, East St. Louis, Cape Girardeau, Chester, Ill., Cairo, Ill., Memphis, Vicksburg, Natchez, Baton Rouge, New Orleans, Pensacola, Mobile, Galveston, Corpus Christi, Tampico, Mexico, Vera Cruz, Coatzacoalcos, Mexico, Frontera, Mexico, Tuxpan, Mexico, Tampico, Mexico, Vera Cruz, Mexico

The tug Mary McLane is "docking" the syndicate.

The Dunkley Cabery Company of Kalamazoo will operate the steamer Petoskey between South Haven and Chicago.

H. J. Gallica, of this place, is second mate on the steamer City of Tecumseh running between Chicago and Milwaukee.

The steamer Ellwood has begun her Bayne City trips. The boat is much improved by the work done on her last winter.

The Wm. H. White & Co's steamer John Spry got stuck in the upper end last Thursday night, and dragged on the W. U. cable.

The tug McGinnis, of St. James, was here Monday for inspection. The McGinnis towed over the tug Ryan, which came to receive a new boiler.

The steamer Gordon has no class in the proposing lumber plan back of Hart Mason's store Thursday, and badly damaged her upper works. She fixed up and started on her regular trips Monday.

The steamer Joe Jordan comes out a little worn of a boat. A comfortable ladies cabin with berths has been built on the upper deck, and other improvements are noticeable. The cabin is a fine and safe little boat, and is doing a good business.

The steamer City of Charlevoix arrived here Monday afternoon from Chicago on her first trip, and again Wednesday morning loaded up. The City of Charlevoix is officered the same as last year, and is in township for the season's business.

On the alternate days of her trips the steamer Markley is at vessel's yard in the interest of the proprietors. Her upper cabin is nearly finished. When this is done, the lower cabin will be torn out and the new cabin go into commission. By the first of June the Hackley will be transformed, so far as her passenger accommodations are concerned, and her freight capacity greatly increased.

Traverse City Herald: Capt. Wm. Franklin received a telegram Friday to report at Manitowoc, Wis., May 1, to take command of the steam barge F. E. Spinner a craft of 1000 tons burden, which is to run the season between Chicago and Ashland, Wis. The Spinner has been rebuilt at Manitowoc and will be a first class boat in every particular. For many years Captain Franklin sailed command of the Alice M. Gill, formerly well known on the bay, and which was sold last year and taken elsewhere.

County Proceedings.

County court, April 29.

At the adjourned meeting of the county held on the above date Pres., Nebkin and Trustees Emery, Cuttler, Eaton, Wilkinson, Winter and Brown answered to roll call.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved as read.

The committee on streets and sidewalks reported in ten cross walks needed as once, and on motion which prevailed the committee were directed to put in said cross walks.

The following bills were reported by the finance committee and allowed by votes as follows, Ayes—Emery, Cuttler, Eaton, Wilkinson, Winter and Brown, Nays—none.

The committee on fires and their protection reported, that the brake building which was condemned by the council, at a previous meeting, as unsafe, has been repaired and is now safe and recommended that the order to remove from the order so ordered the same. On motion which prevailed the recommendation of the committee was adopted.

On motion which prevailed the Sign of the electric lights was instructed to communicate with Mr. Mallory in reference to the purchase of said dynamo, and if the same can be secured in time for the summer business to close the bargain at once, at a price not exceeding one thousand dollars, to be paid not sooner than August 1901.

Central Lake Torch: The town board in Banks township has raised the saloon bonds to $1,000. The saloon keepers say it makes no difference to them, as there are lots of five-thousand dollar fellows in that town. The other fellows say it takes a pretty good man to qualify on a $500 saloon bond.

East Jordan Herald: Prosecuting Attorney A. E. Nicholson was called to Bellaire City Tuesday morning on a subpoena. Ed Packard had gone through the pockets of John O'Brien while in a boarding house, and being accused of the foul guilt proven, he was sentenced to ninety days in the Detroit House of Correction.

On the Traverse City branch of the Grand Rapids & Indiana, the annual overhaul of which is scheduled for about the 15th of May, there is one improvement possible which is very important to the entire road. It is possible, extension of the line from Traverse City to Northport, a distance of thirty miles. The object would be the establishment of a terminus for meeting a car ferry to cut directly across Lake Michigan to Manistique. It is evident that such an arrangement would cut off 100 miles in the distance to the northwest, which territory is now reached via Mackinaw City and St. Ignace. Northport has one of the best harbors on the lake is sheltered by Northport Point, and is connected by stages and steamboat with half a dozen little resorts, among them Delos. In event of the L. K. & L. building in if the place we will be reached as a summer resort. It already is a place of considerable yachts and this summer a regatta will be held in the harbor. It is interesting to connected with this talked of extension that a new resort is going to be opened up in the district. Its possibilities will be Old a Uncle. Land on either side of the peninsula formed by Traverse Bay and Lake Michigan has been purchased and named Northland Beach. Z. D. Whitney of the Michigan Central has invested in it considerably.

Two Vancouver Bankers Commit Suicide Together.

PREFERRED DEATH TO TRIAL.

President Charles L. Brown and Cashier E. L. Canby Kill Themselves with the Same Revolver—Bank Found to Be Short $81,000.

Vancouver, Wash., April 22.—President Charles L. Brown and Cashier E. L. Canby of the First National Bank of this city committed suicide at Canby's residence in a field in Fruit Valley, about three miles north of Vancouver. The two bodies were found lying together in a small clump of bushes near the Columbia schoolhouse.

Went to Compare.

They had shot themselves with a revolver purchased by Canby on Friday afternoon within thirty minutes after he was informed by Hank Ransom Maxwell that the bank would have a check. He attempted then to commit suicide firing two shots but missed him. Instead of returning to the bank on Friday evening as he agreed to Brown and Canby left immediately. They left Brown's library and Canby's umbrella in a grove north of town, where their bodies were discovered. This gave the clue to the direction they had taken. A large party of Vancouver citizens, most of whom were detectives, had started out in search every mile of the country between Vancouver and Kalama towards which, where it was thought they had gone to take a train. When Mr. Smither Maxwell confronted the bank officials with the shortage of $81,000 which he had discovered both met admitted it at once. It is said that both Brown and Canby had been speculating in stocks.

Love Messages and Money.

Besides Brown's body there was found a pocket book containing $50 and a note saying that the money belonged to his daughter. Upon Canby's body the following brief note was found: "My Dear Wife: I feel what I am about to do is for the best. Finish if you can and try to live for our dear children. God bless you all. Good-day. Nel. April 19."

Canby's Last Admission.

Both Brown and Canby when confronted on Friday by Maxwell with false entries in the books made a full confession. Canby remarking: "Well, you have caught me this time Max, well, that is a false entry." Brown's ring up a pistol from the counter he remarked as he held the muzzle towards his head: "This is the only sure way out of the difficulty." Maxwell remained closed with his against his despair as a pistol lurked when Canby drew out the weapon and left the room by the rear door.

Brown Was Wild Speculator.

In answer to an inquiry from Maxwell if he was implicated in the crime Brown's lawyer replied: "Yes, I am equally guilty." Deputy Attorney Gal. stated today that there is evidence that the criminal acts of the two officials covered a period of several years, and only for a thorough investigation of the books the truth will never be known. Brown, who was 51 years of age, had lived in Vancouver since 1862. His father was the first member of the Vancouver Land office. He has served as Auditor of Clark county, was notified, and had a family. His connection with the bank as its president dates back ten years. Canby was 32 years old and was married. His wife was Miss Frances Burnside, daughter of an early pioneer. He had a brother who is a paymaster in the United States army. Another brother committed suicide by jumping off the wharf at Vancouver several years ago.

Loses Fortune Six Times.

While Bank Examiner Mills will, who is now in charge at Vancouver, has made no official statement, it is known that the bank has found a large sum of money on Brown's at sacrifi. According to his report to the Comptroller of the Currency, there is a shortage of $81,000 in the bank's assets, and it is believed that a considerable portion of this amount was loaned to brokers and vanity on their personal notes.

Speaker Henderson and Wife Sail.

Washington, April 20.—Speaker of the House and Mrs. David B. Henderson sailed last week for France and will be a their daughter Miss Bessie in Paris. Miss Henderson is now entirely recovered from the serious illness of last year.

Speaker Henderson and his family will visit his old home in Scotland. This is his first visit since he came here a child. The Hendersons will remain abroad until the autumn.

Urges Office Seekers to Wait.

Lincoln, Neb., April 22.—Among the orders to be delivered at the University of Texas commencement in June is a gold medal offered by W. J. Bryan for the best essay on "Good Citizenship." Mr. Bryan has endowed a similar medal in twelve of fifteen leading educational institutions in America. In the south he has selected the University of Texas and the University of Virginia.

How to Get Rid of Flies.

Measuring the Earth.

After nearly thirty years of constant effort and the expenditure of nearly $100,000, scientists have succeeded in accurately measuring the earth. They have learned that its diameter through the equator is 7,926 miles; its height from pole to pole 7,899 miles. The earth, therefore, is flattened at the poles. Of while this fact has long been asserted, the actual measurement has removed its question from the domain of doubt.

—Capt. and Mrs. A. G. Aldrich arrived from Chicago yesterday, and will remain at their summer home south Mark street from for the season.

—There will be a children's concert given under the auspices of the Charlevoix Musical Club, on the 2nd of June (Friday) and a good program is promised.

—Capt. O. E. Willard has leased the Tolbert coal dock and will do a general coaling business. The steamer Smith & Hunt is expected here from below with a cargo this week.

—The L. L. L. M. of Charlevoix will present "Mrs. Jones's Supper" at Lewis opera house the 20th of this month. The proceeds are for the benefit of the Lady Maccabees.

—The Sunday quartery meeting for the Norwood circuit, M. E. church, will be held at Norwood on Saturday and Sunday, May 11 and 12. Rev. H. L. Carrel, D. D., presiding elder, will preach Saturday 8:00 a. m. and afternoon.

—R. A. Emery's new new opera house at Boyne City on the second floor is now serious a street complaint, and is a great addition to the fine group of brick blocks there. Boyne City's There is no operation seems a sudden demand for the excellent rooms.

—The cable directory announces that the "twenty or complaints, the fog rises, or your sounds complained and appeared very interesting, but the cable "Listened to only just expect." Cable make one as if it would be time about the end of July.

—What's the use of hoping these matters now? The prophecies Mrs. Sweetland says the devil has a nasty page in Chicago and is going to Jerusalem. Dean and bought a twenty thousand dollar bridge. The Dutchman burst.

—A. B. Dougherty, of Elk Rapids, was Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue, and an old Charlevoix favorite has been appointed his good successor, in the government land department, and will be stationed in a Western state. Mr. Dougherty has formerly a clerk in the land office at Washington.

—Another old veteran has answered the final roll call. Stephen Moses of the village died Wednesday of last week, aged 73 years. He was buried Friday under the auspices of Hesler Post, G. A. R. Deceased was a pioneer of Banks Antrim county, coming to this place a few years ago. He leaves a wife.

—At the Congregational church last Sunday a new multitude of the audience set was used for the first time. Then Charlevoix has fallen into line in an innovation upon a custom that could never have been Christian because it never was Pagan or celtic. For a large congregation to have partaken of the sacrament decorum of the sacrament from one cup seems now to be a relic of bygone barbarism.

—Mrs. W. W. Cutchell, well known here, died at her home in Port Huron last Saturday. Her daughter, Mrs. F. M. Sears and her sister, Mrs. Ella Fox, both of this place, were with her when she died. Her two other sisters, Mrs. H. N. Sears and Mrs. Thyra Mather, left here Saturday for Port Huron.

—We forgot to mention last week the fact that Boy L. Lorrain had purchased the East Jordan Herald. The deal made under the new management shows a decided improvement, a fact that of the old. Whether or not the Herald is to be only an organ to the Enterprise for business purposes we do not know, but it looks remarkably like it.

—The state game warden's reports show that almost without exception Michigan deer have passed through the winter in good condition. From the reports from the trust districts show that Michigan streams were never as well stocked with the speckled beauties as at present. Bass and pickerel are also reported to be plentiful.

—During this month all the postmasters throughout the country will be supplied with postage stamps of different denominations to commemorate the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo. The series will be the most artistic stamps ever issued from the department. The denominations will be one, two, four, five, eight and ten cent stamps. Some of the offices are already supplied.

—A man and known citizen of Marshall had a fine dog and received a letter that it would be returned if 50 cents was sent to tell at a certain place. He left the 50 cents and the dog was in the front porch a few minutes later. He had marked the coin he had deposited and was astonished to see on a visit old man in possession of it the morning. The dog-napper thought it was a good joke until he was quietly led to the woodshed.

—Really it is no wonder that the people think some method of stopping the prodigate waste of electric current must be checked. It is avowed by the superintendent and others that there are houses that leave lights burning from cellar to attic when not being used, and continually. Every incandescent lamp that burns unnecessarily causes waste of coal, and a corresponding increase in expense in running the plant. It seems to us that every taxpayer who desires to see the lighting plant pay a dividend should turn out lights when not in use. It is just as wrong to waste electric voltage as it is to waste water or anything else that eats the people's money to produce. If every person who unnecessarily burns lamps prevent instances any morning, then would today be no talk of expending $1,000 to install meters. Let each do his share.

—At the school meeting last Friday evening the proposition to bond the district for $40,000 to build another school building was voted down—failing to receive the necessary two-thirds vote. The vote stood 14 in favor and 10 against. A prominent citizen suggests a department in the public schools devoted to building materials. We understand another meeting is to be called. This is correct. There should be a fair and free expression on this important question. Let the ballots be printed. Let every taxpayer attend the meeting. Let the question be discussed impartially, and then let the majority submit gracefully. We need not call attention to fact that all votes on so important a question be not a fair and full test of the people will. It strikes us that we are very careless about our chief interest.

BY MARY J. HOLMES

CHAPTER VIII—(Continued).

One morning about two weeks after coming to Fairlawn when we came downstairs we found Mr. Rowan and Mr. Mason standing with their backs to the fire, looking very much as if they would like to be somewhere else, and Mrs. Mason standing at the window looking out upon the lawn as if she would rather be there, too. As soon as we came up we heard Mr. Rowan say, "Well, I tell you, Mrs. Mason, it is a serious affair, and I wish you had not interfered in it quite so much. It will be a very unpleasant thing for us all if it should come out that we have harbored a runaway slave, and I, for one, shall be very much annoyed if I have to give up my place because of it. I wish you had let the matter alone, and let the Hunters and the Johnsons settle it among themselves. As soon as the coast is clear, I shall write to Mr. Mason and tell him that I have taken a person into my house who I have reason to believe is a runaway slave, and that I shall keep her until I hear from him. I shall do what I think is right, and I wish you had left me to do it in my own way. I shan't do anything else now, for I don't like to be hurried into a thing of this kind. I shan't let Mary go back to Virginia, and I don't believe you want me to, either, for you know how we all love her, and how lonely we shall be without her. I shan't let her go, and I shan't write to her master for a week, at least, and I shan't write at all if I think it will be better not to write at all

A Very Interesting Volume.

There lies before us a volume entitled "The Wonder Revelation—Modern Spiritualistic Exposed." The author is Mrs. Mary J. Swartlund, of Charlevoix, a lady well known as a person of varied experience and somewhat strenuous life.

Mrs. Swartlund has been in Charlevoix more than twenty years, and those who know her will not be surprised when they read on the title page of her book that it contains "a life sketch of the great impostures from the cradle to the great river of death, including the great mysteries that have been kept secret from the world for the last six thousand five hundred years, including a revelation of the secrets of the pyramids of Egypt, the Chinese, religious and communistic societies, a new era, the millennium at hand."

The book contains a life sketch of the "prophets and saviors" "The great mysteries the have been kept secret" is very good, and there are many other things in the book that are equally good. The revelations of the pyramids and the Chinese she had in charge, explained instead of mystifying—somewhat as the world is wont to do when it undertakes to explain the pyramids. That seven years, when some of our readers will remember, was wrecked on the agony of some continents to carry out their schemes; that she learned that under the control of the "spirit band," and that under the same influence she was made to look after her property to him, the transfer being made in F. H. Gossin's law office.

Visions, voices, and other manifestations of a kind not classed with spirits, like voices, perceptions, hearing, etc., she also remembered here, also, and also remembered that she was robbed in Chicago, and how nearly it came to pass that the Charlevoix authorities, which they established, were responsible by fire, and of her deliverance and escape.

But the culmination of all visions and revelations is the prophecy that is made concerning this "Charlevoix, the beautiful." Evidently, Charlevoix is going to the front, head first, all unprepared, with all her fine clothes on. The prophecies say:

As my spirit eye goes over this broad surface again there nothing is see nothing but black—one and dark—one and dipped. In the midst of this darkness, towering high toward heaven, seem to be great mountains of blackness. Mountain after mountain looms up, and as they come one after the other they loiter upward heavenward and seem to move the whole firmament, and as I look around it is nothing but blackness and gloom so thick around me that I could hardly see my hand before my face. As I walk in this vision of darkness to pass by, I lose its form, distance, time, sense—"Woe, woe, woe to Charlevoix!" And as I look away to the gloom my spirit eye catches in the distance a very low prophecy hundreds and thousands of feet, and through this low sound comes the sun, "woe to Charlevoix!" It looks to me as the chorus filled a little shore, and it is the chorus in front of me that I see the throne of God, and it seems that this pipe is attended very near the throne and I hear these words, "This is God's speaking throughout the pipe! Again I hear these words, "my watch is kindled against Charlevoix for what the people have done in the prophecies and the sun. For this the earth shall be shaken. Destruction is written upon every door post in Charlevoix. They shall look on me, they shall see the form of my eye, they shall know that it is God that is doing this work. They have laughed to turn those that I have chosen to the 24 power, and for their laughter I will send them mourning and weeping. The great day of His wrath shall come and who shall be able to stand? He hankers and the same destroy and they shall receive the condemnation of God. Thunder and lightning and earthquake and the wind that the ground to be rolled up like Zacyhs and all that the lowest could pass through the last sea will be manifest again—that same power shall be sent to swallow up this Sodom. It will surely come, and it will not tarry. The great work shall end, and go forth no matter what stands in our way, it shall and will be removed. We come with the voice of God and His power, and if it takes a cyclone to remove the rubbish God will sweep the path clear. For long, long years have we looked this world over to find one that is worthy to take this position, and until we found this Presbyterian our search was in vain. Many we have tried, but they failed us. We passed through a fire once that was heated seven times hotter than was wont to be, and passed through without a scorch. We produce her pure, genuine steel, and in this great temple, Christ's church, we have placed her in the corner stone upon the contract. With these four great pillars, one at each corner of the temple, with the pastor angelic ruling the rostrum and with God at her back, we feel confident of success in this great work. She has the co-operation of the spirit world. Our encouraging words she shall have to direct her, and she will need them. She has a great warfare before her, but victory is written upon every post in this temple.

How is that for high? Verily, Mrs. Swartlund should have been a Mormon. Without any question she can do more high and lofty prophesying than King Strang ever thought of. The prophetess must have "hit the pipe" at times.

The book is neatly well written, nicely illustrated, and contains the most elaborate collection of crazy nonsense that was ever printed. It certainly deserves a place on the shelf alongside "Life Thoughts."

It is a curiosity.

The Question of Our Shipping Statistics.

Again we are reminded of the unjust system that governs our harbor appropriations. The circumstance that particularly reminds us of the homogeneity that exists between commercial statistics and appropriations is the grounding of up lake cargoes in the upper channel.

The government plan calls for a twelve foot channel from Lake Michigan to Five Lake. When Dr. Avery was congressman he came so effectually to increase this to sixteen feet, and would have succeeded had not the engineer in charge blocked the proceedings on the grounds that the width of the bridge draw was not commensurate with the proposed increase. Now we have met this difficulty and there should be no difficulty in securing what Dr. Avery failed to get.

The book contains a fine steel portrait of the prophetess and author. "The great mysteries the have been kept secret" is very good, and there are many other things in the book that are equally good. The revelations of the pyramids and the Chinese she had in charge, explained instead of mystifying—somewhat as the world is wont to do when it undertakes to explain the pyramids. That seven years, when some of our readers will remember, was wrecked on the agony of some continents to carry out their schemes; that she learned that under the control of the "spirit band," and that under the same influence she was made to look after her property to him, the transfer being made in F. TERRIBLE DEED OF A CHICAGO CHILD WIFE.

Young Woman Commits Murder While Hushing Her Infant to Her Arms—Time Former, Under Torture, Reveals Hiding Place of His Money.

To a certain Indian thoroughfare belongs a well known newspaper which has been for years the organ of the Indian Bureau. It is a journal of the purest Indian patriotism, yet it has always an eagle eye for the chicanery of Indian agents. Some time back the editor thought he had a case against the Indian agent at Pine Ridge, and he published the charges with a good deal of emphasis. The agent was indignant, and he wrote a letter to the editor in which he said that the charges were false, and he added that if the editor would come to Pine Ridge he would be glad to show him that he was a man of honor. The editor was not long in taking the agent at his word. He came to Pine Ridge, and he found that the charges were true. The agent was a rascal, and he was dismissed from the service. The editor published the story, and he added that he had come to Pine Ridge at the invitation of the agent, and that he had found him to be a man of honor. The Indians heard of the story, and they said that the editor was a man of honor, too. He was invited to stay among them as long as he pleased, and he was adopted into a family and made a member of the tribe. He lived with the Indians for a month, and he became their friend. When he went away they gave him a feast and a dance, and they made him a present of a pony. The editor of the Sioux City Journal, who was a lawyer at Yankton fighting, not to the superiority of the German race.

Dusty Causes a Failure.

With the failure of the Henderson Building and Loan Association, which has thrown a pall over Kansas, the cost and the cause of the failure are the subject of much gossip and conjecture. The cost will be about $100,000, and the cause is the Sheridan's Ride of Congress. The cost of the Sheridan's Ride of Congress. The defeat of the Republican Presidential candidate in Indiana, and the consequent defeat of the Republican party in the state, left the association without a president, and the secretary, who was a Democrat, was left without a president to whom he could look for advice and assistance. The president, who was a Republican, was in Washington when the storm broke, and he was there when the association went to pieces. The president was a Republican, and he was in Washington when the association went to pieces. The president was a Republican, and he was in Washington when the association went to pieces. It is a most reputable outfit to all patronizers and will make the city think twice before it puts in electric motors. The wagon will be run in connection with the oil tank station recently built here.

—The Epworth League of the M. E. church will observe the 12th anniversary of their organization Sun day next, May 12th. The discourse in the morning will be to young people, a program will be rendered in the evening in connection with which will be the graduation of several Junior Epworthians into the senior society. Everybody come.

—Up on the north side, where they brag about beautiful views, bracing lake breezes and fine houses, improvements are being made that are worthy of notice. Dr. Cloutier's fine new residence is about completed, and he expects to occupy it June 1st. Mrs. Cruikshank's new cottage is approaching completion, and adds very much to the beauty of that "precipitous row," from the back portion of which is the finest lake view in northern Michigan. North side people have reason to be proud of their location.

About fourteen years ago Jim Brown lost a gold keystone charm somewhere about his home in Chicago. On Tuesday he received the charm by mail from the present occupant of the place, it having been found in the barn. Mr Brown's name was engraved on the charm, it having been a present from his wife in the day he was educated as a Royal Arch Mason. He has no use for it and accept as a memento, as almost a month ago Mrs. Brown, on the day of his being dubbed and created a Knight Templar, presented him with a beautiful Templar's cross —Alba Heywood, the impresario, who is well known in Charlevoix, is one of four brothers interested in an oil well near Beaumont, Texas. Mr. Dewey Heywood recently wrote to his mother at Niles, in Berrien county, that he had refused two and one-half millions of dollars for his fourth interest in the fifteen acres of land that was leased by the Heywood brothers and on which their oil well is located. The brothers became interested in Texas through the discovery of the famous Lucas well near Beaumont, last March. Scott Heywood, who was then prospecting for oil in California, immediately leased for five years fifteen acres of land within eight hundred feet of the Lucas well for $2,500, and within 24 hours sublessed two acres for $11,000. The Heywood well is producing 50,000 barrels of oil daily, which is marketable at from 60 cents to $1.25 per barrel.

—A large crowd of old and young lined the bluffs on both sides of the river at the life saving station Saturday afternoon to witness the drill of Capt. Frank Fountain's life-savers. The gun, beach carriages and other apparatuses were planted on the bluff above the station early in the afternoon, and the crew in their white working uniforms were standing about. At sharp three o'clock Capt. Fountain gave a word of command and the drill began. Swiftly a line was flog, the surfer planted and the main line made fast to it. Then Capt. Fountain pulled the lanyard and springing across the river through the mouth of the pipe tree went the steel projectile with a line attached to it. Up the tree skinned a white-and-stripe shirt as a mast rigged to him was an iron grapple which he cast over the line and pulled it to shin. Then hand-over-hand he drew over the river the "whip" and made it fast to the tree-trunk. The whip was double and ran through a block at the tree. Then five other white shirt men on the home side sang and pulled with the main line went to the imaginary wreck across the river, clinging to which was an imaginary sailor thinking imaginary thoughts about whether or not he is fated to get imaginary and in his gills or be rescued from the imaginary rolling billows by the gallant fellows ashore."

As the line reached the tree there was attached to it a short board upon which was painted in English and French instructions as to the fastening of the line. The bright, well-drilled boy in the tree was a Swedish sailor and knew what to do without rowling. Swiftly the line was made fast to the tree, and then from over the river came the breeches buoy on the big line, the five men in white pulling on the whip as though the life of their comrade across the way depended upon their alacrity. Into the life buoy sprang the "rescued" sailor, and across the river he went, with the five men in white pulling on the other side of the whips. All this flew, back on the south bluff, in his form blue uniform stood Capt. Fountain, now giving a quiet but emphatic word of command, then holding a hand, but all the time moving where he did move, with an air of confidence that the man over there two hundred yards would come to safe. Through out the drill there was not a hitch or a tangle. And now good luck to Capt. Frank Fountain and his gallant crew down at the life saving station.

Circuit Court.

In circuit court this week most of the civil cases were over.

In the case of the people vs. Gould, the jury acquitted Gould, on justice court, at Boyne Falls, decided guilty of forging a jay check against Dick A Nelson, his only defense being that the Dan cared had Judge Mayne, in Circuit court, hammered the jury good and hard for Grant's back, stating that the law and evidence were both against him, and warned him to avoid his court in the future.

In the people vs. Frank Johnson, defendant was convicted of simple larceny. Johnson robbed a man named Centmer of a watch in Boyne Falls saloon. At this writing Johnson has not been sentenced

The people vs. O'Brien, indecent exposure, goes over.

Today the Tessier Partridge case is on. The case involves the question of whether or not a sailor's wages can be garnisheed in a justice court. This case has excited considerable interest, and there are many "forecastle lawyers" who assert that a sailor is garnishee-proof, as he is subject only, in civil action, to admiralty law.

Marine Notes.

The steamer Hackley made a trip to Cross Village Tuesday.

The steamer Joe will be sold by the U. S. Marshal in Charlevoix May 15.

The U. S. lighthouse steamer Iris was at the Charlevoix supply station Sunday.

Elk Rapids has been established as a sub-port, and Chas E. Wheeler appointed deputy collector

The steamer Hackley went to Cross Village and The north shore today with a full load of freight.

The tug Newell Avery will survey for the business at East Jordan boom logs, with Capt. Wm. Cross as master.

We stated last week that A. F. Young's fine new nepha launch was built by Saville. This is an error. Lou Mercier was the builder. The boat will be fitted out and afloat this week.

The tug rocks went out on a strike Tuesday. Two of them were down to the Wheeler to clean out spot cons. Weaver. They failed in this undertaking, but succeeded in lending in the "coop."

The refloat tug Martin, newly named the Sparkler, was launched Tuesday. The Sparkler is 74 feet long, and of excellent lines. She will be the best and strongest tug in the creek. Capt. T. D. Smith will command her.

Harbor Springs Republican: Capt. D. O'Connor's steamer, the Coal Agitator, left for Escanaba Wednesday night, which port will be her headquarters on her season's route. Capt. O'Connor had a very fine boat and has spared no expense in giving her cabin perfect in every particular. We trust his new route will be a paying one.

The minimum age of teachers has been raised to 18, by the recent amendment to our statutes. We quote from the "Moderator" The Indiana legislature at its recent session passed a law and, and it is in force now, which provides that the minimum wages that can be paid any teacher is two and one half times such teachers average standing as shown on his certificate. The minimum standing for a certificate is fixed at 80. Hence, no teacher can receive less than $2 per day or $10 per month" and if such teacher's standing is 90 or 95, the price per day is or correspondingly increased.

There is no maximum limit. There must be at least six months school in every district. May this good law let us live to see the day when ignorance in Michigan receives less than $10 per month, and from that upward as per ability. Then may we look for the transition of more of our best talent to the important department of character building and citizen making. Indiana set off one rut in you May; we too long and prosper God speed her.

Then also from the Moderator The railway officials of our state will be said to give some of their brakemen a little instruction as to the pronunciation of "Pere Marquette." Only last week, at Lansing, a brakeman called out, "Lansing, change for the Pere Marquette." Its enough to make the old saint roll in his quiet resting place at St. Ignace. Many teachers at a recent institute failed to pronounce the name correctly, though they had for years lived on that line of road.

Pronounce it as if written Payte Marker" accenting the last syllable.

Mrs. J. I. Emory's dressmaking rooms will open next Monday for business.

Central Lake Finch Eastport will open soon, same. A season in the spread there and it is to be a real school, one that has health and pays a license, instead of the old fashioned "blind pig." Lemon Bros, who hail from Kalamazoo, are the proprietors and they have rented the old hotel, across the street from the postoffice. The fonds, which are to the sum of three thousand dollars, are signed by S. W. Gherbolier, of Torch Lake, and John McPherson, of Eastport

The new photo gallery, south of the bank, will be open and ready for business Saturday, May 11 We will be pleased to have you call and examine our work and get our prices.

The Epworth League anniversary program last Sunday was well attended and enjoyed by all. Five young beginners were promoted into the Epworth League. The church was tastefully decorated, white and and white looking and sentiment.

A crowd of the friends of Sheriff Billy Pearson swooped down on him at his house Friday evening "surrounded" by him. A very pleasant evening was spent, during which Mrs. Pearson opened a bonbonnes basket. The contents of the basket were distributed, and he was held by his captors until they got through with him.

—It will be pleasing news to many who have been annoyed rather than entertained by the war stamp requirements that such requirements will be dispensed with, commencing with July 1. Bank check stamps and other stamps in connection with such transactions, stamps on passbooks money orders, on medical and perfumery propriettary, and the stamps on freight bills of lading, will not be required after July 1st.

The new paper-boxing ruling just goes into effect imposes a fine of $100 on the years imprisonment on anybody who, through carelessness or otherwise, takes someone else's mail and fails to return it immediately. This applies to newspapers as well as letters or other valuable mail. People when taking their mail from the office should examine it before going out of the building. It takes only a moment and may save a great deal of trouble. To day it was the postmaster's fault, next he may be the culprit.

Charlevoix acquaintances of Mrs. Sam's Sanabrook will be pained to learn of the death of that estimable lady at her home in Saginaw The Sanabrooks have a pleasant cottage on the south side grounds, and Mrs. Sanabrook took great pleasure in her summer cottage here. Mr. Sanabrook, who has many friends here, has the sympathy of all in his bereavement.

The house of representatives resolved, last week, that all telegraph companies of the state and passed the resolution left to committee of the whole. Amendments to be charged for transmitting messages between any two points within this state. The debate against the companies came from the upper peninsula, where it is claimed telegraphic rates are charged, charges that the bill states that they pay sixty-one cents for sending ten words between points in the upper peninsula and Detroit, and that the New line has an uniform rate for upper peninsula points. The bill fixes the maximum rate in Michigan messages at twenty-five cents for the ten ten words and one half cent per word for each word over ten. Charging a higher rate is punishable by a fine of $100 for the first offense, and the local agent or manager is liable to a fine of $5 each offense and to a month in the county.

Last Monday evening was a regular meeting of Charlevoix Chapter No. 141, Royal Arch Masons, and it had the occasion of a very pleasant portion. In a previous issue of this paper we spoke of the best work accomplished in the birth and early nurturing of the infant chapter, and of a fraternal and successful social occasion which had been present as a sort of Masonic godsrife in the trying days when the puny but royal infant was seeking a bottle, as it were. The baby is a robust, healthy and intelligent lad now, but the excellent and warm care of the midwife is still upon the growing protege—still it spoken with the words of instruction, still the benevolent smile of God. In G. Wickham beams in the Masonic sunshine. And so, last Monday night, the only other past high priest being conveniently absent in the auto-mobile, the high priest fillings was by a comrade, that, that officer calling past high priest Wickham to the chair. Wickham had worn the robes and prerogatives of a high priest many years, and his brief away was wise and dignified until he was forcibly ejected from the chair by the returning high priest and a past high priest. The limited was made to stand up, and then reminding him of his eminent services to the royal craft, he was presented with an elegant and costly Knight Templar watch charm. The recipient, in response, said he was a knight, but for the first time in his life he was "unhorsed." Speeches followed, to which responses Wickham turned more than one Masonic and operatives qualities that he ever knew before. It was a very pleasant incident.

FROM

POORHOUSE TO PALACE

BY MARY J. HOLMES

CHAPTER X.

It was bright and pleasant in the room of Hermione and as she sat down upon a cushioned ottoman in the bay window, feeling her young and robust self, with the fine lace window curtains half shading her, and the sunshine falling full upon her, she felt very much as a bird might feel after it had come into the world and had shaken off the clinging shell which had held it so long in its prison, and had begun to use its wings for the first time. Scarcely Paul Wilson and Lucy Lee, who had come to see her, noticed her half falling asleep upon the ottoman, for they had seen her in her coffin, and had neither to her nor her friends for one or two days, expected to see her alive again. Her illness was a long and severe one, and for a time her life was despaired of by her friends, who had hastened to her from Washington, and who had kept her in a state of stupefaction for days, so that she was not conscious of the presence of her friends, who had come to see and comfort her, and cause the well word of a Saviour, who was known to her only through the teachings of her mother, who had died when she was a child, and who had left her to the care of her cold, worldly relatives, who had kept her in a dark room for months, and had given her only a little bread and water, and had cuffed and scolded her, and had made her life a hard one, and had left her to the care of a cruel, drunken man, who had taken her from her home and her friends, and had sold her to a life of misery, and who had left her for dead in a drunken fit, and who had been killed by the fall of a house, and who had left her, Hermione, the only heir to his property, which was not much, but which was enough to make her independent, and which had been left by her father, who was a man of means, and who had left it to her, and who had left her in the care of her mother's brother, who had cared for her and her property, and had left her in the care of her mother's brother, who had cared for her and her property, and had left her in the care of her mother's brother, who had cared for her and her property, and

TARIFF RETALIATION

ALARMS CONJURED UP BY FREE TRADERS.

No Basis in Fact or Probability for Their Prediction Regarding the Formation of a European Trade Alliance Against the United States.

Those who so confidently croaking through half conferences against the United States may be rightly amused at Sherman their subject without sufficient judgment. Apparently they would like to prove that they expect in the future possibilities of international hostility against the United States. Such fatal former predictions as the strongest possible argument against the policy of the abandonment by the United States of the protective policy. So we are told nearly every day that these pessimistic croakers are conducting a magnificent bluffing instead a trade-contention against the country, and that our only safety in this emergency lies in repeal the tariffs law and get right down to a universal free trade.

First of all there is no evidence whatsoever of the existence of a plan to form a continental tariff alliance against the United States. Nothing of the sort is in the contemplation of a European alliance. If a European combination should be attempted, Great Britain would have to be left out of it, and Great Britain is our best customer. Canada, the United States has among its colonies, Great Britain takes our foodstuffs and raw materials and she is not going to jeopardize her supply of cotton and wool to make these commodities cost more to the British masses.

Owing to the sensitiveness of a very limited class, we find time and time again the fear of a tariff war against us from Great Britain. Germany has been making some experiments in the form of discriminations against American products, and the experiment has not worked well. Consul Dunham writes from Bremen to our state department that certain articles from relative to the importation of the Imperial Germany the importation of American animal food and other food products are prohibited.

Not long ago Dr. Nord Pinnets, president of Reichstag in the Parliament of Hungary declared that only time to settle the tariff question, and he showed that the tariff of the Austrian Empire, and that the government

KILLED BY A PORTER

SAFEBLOWERS SURPRISED AT WORK IN OHIO TOWN.

Man Looking for Cutlery Discovers Unexpected Persons and Uses a Pistol—Exchange Fire Killed Cashier Miller in Front of Hardware Store.

A burglar alarm clock was taken in the hardware store of D. E. Morris & Son, Akron, Ohio, early Sunday morning by a man who was looking for a pocket knife and hatchet. The man had entered the store by prying open a window in the back part of the building. Mr. Morris, who was asleep in the store, was awakened by the noise made by the burglar and he called out to the man that he was coming. The burglar then set the alarm clock going and ran out the back door. Mr. Morris then dressed and followed the robber into the street where he found a man who was being held at the point of a pistol by a man who had just left the store. The man with the pistol ordered the man he had in his power to run and he did so. The man then ordered the man who had been in the store to fire two shots in the air and he did so. The man then ordered the man who had been in the store to go home and he did so. The man who had been held up by the man with the pistol said he was a porter in a saloon and was on his way home when he was stopped by the man who had been in the store. The man who had been in the store said he was looking for a pocket knife and hatchet when he heard a noise in the front part of the store and he went there to see what was the matter. He found a man who ordered him to throw up his hands and he did so. The man then ordered him to open the cash drawer and he did so. The man then ordered him to open the safe and he said he could not as he was only a clerk and did not know the combination. The man then said he would shoot him if he did not open the safe and he did so. The man then ordered him to throw up his hands and he did so. The man then ordered him to open the door and he did so. The man then ordered him to run and he did so. The man who had been held up said he was sure there were two men in the store and that they had a team and buggy. The man who had been in the store said he was sure there were two men in the store and that they had a team and buggy. The man who had been held up said the man who had been in the store was about five feet six inches tall and was about 25 years of age and was dressed in a light suit of clothes and had a light complexion and was clean shaven. —The SENTINEL on this question of electric motors, has been conservative, choosing not to condemn the council's action hastily. We commended it but fair to the council that it should not be condemned before all the features of the case were thoroughly understood by the people. More than two weeks have elapsed since the council voted to adopt meters, and public sentiment has changed from effervescent hysteria to candid conviction. In fact, the defenders of the meter appear to be confined to the council. It is wrong for the council to say, as it does indirectly, "the public be d—d!" The public owns the plant—not the council, and the public has had time to investigate. The public, by a very large majority, considers that the expending of $1,400 for the purchase and installing of meters will be a waste of public money. In that the saving will not equal the interest on the investment; but, on the other hand, the loss of patrons will far exceed the saving. If the council would cut down the unnecessary burning of lights, it, if repeal the rule that compels the village to furnish lamps When a patron has to replace a burned out lamp he will begin to think about saying them. In Cheboygan the use of the meter is discretionary with the patron, and there are many other cities which have adopted the same plan. Gentlemen of the council, you will fly repeatedly in the face of public sentiment if you persist in carrying out your recent vote on the meter question. It will be an act of extravagance that will bear bitter fruit.

Marine Notes.

The steamer Jim London broke her shaft Tuesday and is laid up for repairs.

The steamboats Swallow arrived from Sandusky yesterday with a cargo of coal for the tug syndicate.

Capt. Peter Stafford's wait to be signaee Saturday to take command of the steamer Mary, which runs between St. Ignace and Detour.

Capts. Wilbur and Campbell charcered the steamboats tons. Sunday Saturday and went to Cheboygan where they secured 1,200 bushels of corn from the stranded steamer John Owen. The corn was sold here to the roller mills.

On Tuesday Deputy U. S. Marshal O'Donnell, of Grand Rapids, sold the steamer Joe to D. M. Gerber, of Douglas, Mich., for $1,125. The Joe will be taken up the lake, and will probably run between Holland and Saugatuck.

The crew of the schooner Narragansett, well known here, who abandoned their ship in Lake Huron, reached Alpena in safety Tuesday. The Narragansett was bound from Detour to Port Huron for repairs and had no cargo. In the brush wind Sunday the vessel became waterlogged and the crew were forced to take to the life boat when 12 miles off Point Aux Barques. That was 3 o'clock Monday morning, and they were at the mercy of the seas for over 24 hours. It is thought the schooner sank not long after being abandoned. She was an old boat, having been built in 1861. Her last owner was John Leinert of Milwaukee.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEW, COMM'R.

A bill before the Michigan legislature providing that all schools supported wholly or in part by public money shall have instruction given concerning the civil government of the United States.

It provides that all pupils below the second year in the high school, and above the seventh year of school work, shall study the subject from the text books for not less than four lessons a week for twenty weeks, or two lessons a week for forty weeks, in at least one year of school.

In all normal schools, teachers training classes and teachers' institutes, adequate time and attention is to be given the best methods of teaching the branch of study, and no teacher is to be licensed to teach who has not passed a satisfactory examination upon the subject and the best methods of teaching it.

The teacher should make it a point to give instruction to the pupil in school law. The boy or girl leaving school from the sixth, seventh or eighth grades should be thoroughly conversant with the workings of the school district, also the duties of the board of school inspectors. The boy or girl upon leaving school should be thoroughly conversant with the method of ousting the Australian ballot. There is no use in allowing the people to remain ignorant of the methods of voter and counting the ballot.

The township clerk would scarcely loan a copy of the statutes, nor is it his working hours. There is no necessity for allowing a pupil to complete his education finished until he can intelligently cast his ballot. A drill along these lines occasionally would be very beneficial.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

According to a Washington dispatch, the salary of Postmaster A. K. Dougherty of Elk Rapids is increased from $1,100 to $1,600 per year.

At the Congregational association and conference meeting at Alpena last week Rev. J. H. Strong of Bayport was regularly ordained.

Hotel Clifton, Andrew Ross has sold his residence property to F. F. McIntyre and he has soon for Oregon. Mrs. Ross will remain here for the summer.

Hope Falls will have a good growth this season, a large hotel, a town hall and a new store by Hon. Wm. Meats being among the new buildings contemplated.

The Michigan tax commission has just received $1,000 Cash Lever tents to plant in Torch Lake. This species is a favorite with the South Dyesstors and the fry came from the United States hatchery at Northville.

The contracts for the erection of the new life saving stations on South Manitou island and Sleeping Bear point have been awarded to Robert I. B. Newcombe of Manistee. Work will proceed immediately.

Petoskey Democrat. Supt. Edwin Plank of the electric light plant has resigned. He goes to East Jordan to take charge of the erection of a new electric light plant. Mr. Plank has an interest in the plant and will be its manager.

Old Lady Smooth of Suttons Bay, the 90-year-old mother of the late Fred Smooth, was blind for the past twelve years until the other day while out in the woodshed, a chip flew up, hitting her in the eye, and her sight returned almost immediately.

Petoskey Democrat: In answer to our inquiry, Manager Olof Nordman of the Booth Packing Co. said that the fishing tug Wm Maxwell would very likely begin operations from this port soon. The Maxwell, which was partially burned at Michigan City last autumn, has been refitted, and will be in service as before.

A new level for Northport is on the way. A company has been organized with a capitalization of $10,000, a third of into shares of $25 each. The hotel is planned to accommodate 250 people, and is to be built on the beach at the new resort, known as Northport Beach resort, recently purchased by A. M. Leslie of Chicago.

Frankfort's Ann Arbor hotel, successor to the one which fell down two or three months ago, is rapidly nearing completion. The roof is now being built and the interior work will begin soon. With the new hotel as an attraction and a piece of refuge for resorters, and a Portland cement factory giving employment to 300 or 400 men, Frankfort ought to become one of northern Michigan's important cities.

Petoskey Record: The report is that Rev. Wm Cochran having been ousted from the pulpit of the Presbyterian church in Harbor Springs by the Presbytery, is organizing an opposition church in that village. So far as Rev. Cochran is personally concerned, those people in Petoskey who are cognizant of his part in stirring up dissension in the Presbyterian church in this city a year or so ago, will give him serious little sympathy to what has befallen, or may befall him.

Bentucon, of the Petoskey Record, wants the city council to pass an ordinance making it unlawful for the salvation army to work upon the streets between the first of July and the first of October, concerning which the Traverse City Eagle assures Bentucon that if nothing worse than the salvation army appears upon the streets of Petoskey during the months named there will be very few "drunks and disorderlies" to be confined in the city lockup.

The Harbor Springs Graphic has the following sea serpent story. So much has been said about the sea serpent that it has probably become a classical or a hoop jake to most people, and certainly the majority regard the story of a sea serpent in the bay as the idle tale of someone who has nothing better to do than manufacture snake stories. However, there can be no question but that there is some kind of a stranger serpent, lizard or fish, which appears in the bay occasionally. As we have stated before it was seen by Tom Williams and J. Burpee, who are reputable men, and are not given to manufacturing idle stories nor telling what they do not believe to be the truth. They saw it distinctly and were able to give a good description of its appearance and size, which corresponds closely with other descriptions. The other day Mrs. Tim Williams, light keeper at the point, was watching a flock of gulls scurrying in the water when suddenly the "sea serpent" appeared on the scene and seemed to be watching the gulls. It appeared to be for be between thirty and forty feet long. She took the strong marine glass that is kept at the lighthouse, and focused it upon the monster and watched it for about five minutes. She says she could distinctly see it, even to the eyes. Its head was about the size of that of a horse, dark brown or black on the back, shading to green, and finally into white in front. It would raise the head and neck out of water about four feet at times, and seemed to be playing. Suddenly it made a dive for the gulls and tried to catch one, but failing in that, swam rapidly out into the bay and disappeared. No one who knows Mr. Williams will question for a moment but truthful he is and she could scarcely have been deceived when she had the aid of a powerful glass. There are many other reputable people who have seen a similar thing and would at any time take oath to it. Among them are Dr. Martin of the bank of Harbor Springs, Fred Oppenlander, contractor, Petoskey Japlon, Mighway commissioner of Little Traverse township, and J. W. Babcock, ex-township clerk. They all give the same description of the appearance of the beast, and are the same about the same. It can't be all snake story.

Council Proceedings.

Council room, May 19.—Adjourned meeting.

Present—President Nicholls and Trustees Coulter, Eaton, Wilkinson and Brown.

Absent—Wilson and Emery.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The report of the marshal for April was read and placed on file.

The committee to whom was referred the system of municipal bookkeeping reported and recommended the adoption of the Horner system.

Trustee Brown moved that the Horner system be adopted, at a cost of three hundred dollars.

An amendment was offered and accepted that the chairman of the committee be authorized to write to Mr. Horner and offer him $200 for installing the system.

Carried.

The bids for public printing were read and referred to committee on printing.

The chairman of the committee on streets and sidewalks requested a request that a crosswalk be built from the depot on the south side of the city to the sidewalks on west side of the street.

On motion the salary of the marshal was fixed at $700 for the ensuing year.

On motion the president was requested to appoint special policemen at the Inn, Club house and Belvedere and four special policemen at large.

On motion the question of meters was postponed for one week.

The following bills were reported by the finance committee and allowed:

WATER FUND.

Sentinel, 2,000 bills 15 00

ELECTRIC FUND.

A. Pettinger, labor 9 00
Detroit Slatshops, labor 13 50
Sentinel, printing 3 00

On motion Trustee Eaton was instructed to look up the matter of the franchise granted to the village to Chas. Gaffney for installing the electric light plant, and report his findings as to the power of the council to install meters, at once.

The marshal was instructed to notify the owners of property on the west side of State street, south of Lyon's ave, and find out whether said owners intend to obey the order of the council as to the completion of sidewalks, and complete the same before the 30th day of May, 1901.

On motion council adjourned.

W. H. McCARTHY, Clerk.

FROM

POORHOUSE TO PALACE

BY MARY J. HOLMES

CHAPTER XI.

In the old brown house, dear, weathered by the rain and sunshine, on the west by a long, stone wall, where the poplars and alders grew, lived Mary Howard, under a little cloud of sorrow, for, coming only a week before, and treading timidly on the hearth and with a welcome which, for her, was but half heartfelt, had come a stranger, a young man, who was her cousin.

When, long ago, Mary Howard's father, in Blue Cotton Willows, Perkins, and a dozen other towns, had spoken well, had, by their kind, in a commonly good way, been thought of, and, in consequence, had sold his property, Mr. Howard, with a little money in his pocket, had, with his family, gone West, where, in a new country, he had, by dint of hard work, and without much help, laid the foundation of a fair competence.

When, soon after, he died, he left his daughter in Blue Cotton Willows, Perkins, and a dozen others, and in spite of the well, half, by their kind, in a commonly good way, thought of, and, in consequence, had sold his property, Mr. Howard, with a little money in his pocket, had, with his family, gone West, where, in a new country, he had, by dint of hard work, and without much help, laid the foundation of a fair competence.

When, soon after, he died, he left his daughter in Blue Cotton Willows, Perkins, and a dozen others, and in spite of the well

NATURAL PRODUCTS.

SHALL WE LIMIT OURSELVES TO THESE ONLY.

If So, Which Shall We Abandon, and How Shall We Raise the Free Trade Revenue Equivalent for the Increase of Our Foreign Trade.

One of the first canons of free trade is that each country should produce what and commodity in which it excels in quality and abundance having regard to the cost of production. Now, in order rightly to adjust our relations and interests as intimately that is as a matter one but affects our whole energy is the product of which we can beat all other nations.

On the other hand, protectionists maintain that we should diversify our industries to the largest degree possible, making and producing everything that the soil and climate will allow and that ingenious and diligent experience. The best theoretical exposition of this question is given by Sir Edward Bulwer in his "Protection to Native Industry," but the best exposition of this, as of and other question, is the practical one of experience.

There is no country on earth which industry is so diversified as in the United States. In fact, one of the principal objects of our first and enduring protective tariff was to create and maintain new industries and today we can make everything that can be made anywhere, and we can make everything needed for man, except tea and coffee and a few minor products.

This is what has given us so much employment, such high wages and such an unparalleled home market.

In spite of all this, however, the free traders of today are asking us to throw open our ports to the cheaper products of other countries and devote ourselves to gaining other markets, by enabling our foreign rivals to increase productions. In other words, we are urged to abandon a sure market, of many times the value of any that we could have if we were to earn all there is to be earned.

But for the sake of argument, let us suppose the free traders to be right for the further one examine a free trade theory the more absurd it appears. Let us cease producing some things and buy them abroad, getting the same with less labor and produce of other nations. The questions now are: First, Where shall we begin? What shall we cease and. Shall we say we shall give agriculture? Shall we say farmers should abandon their land and go to the factory and make shoes, for instance, who would use the power? We raise and shall sell more grain and provisions than any other people and perhaps it would be better to view the factory and let all go on the farm. But there is a surplus of farm products now, and where could we sell double or treble the present production? This again is absurd. Shall our miners leave the mines and make picks and shovels? Who, which, the market is already full of supplies? Could a million iron and steel workers turn to making clothes and shoes? No. It is all ridiculous. Turn which way we will.

Fully 95 per cent of our products are sold at home. Are we to believe that half of this or one part of it can be carried thousands of miles and sold at a greater net profit than we now get within a few miles distant from the place of production? The wish is for trade conditions is one natural, physical, economical because.

The Cobdenite observes his theory somewhat by saying that we should admit the "raw material" free and increase our production and sale of the finished product. The "raw material" fallacy has been laid bare so often that it is useless to accept it at the beginning of the twentieth century. But suppose we were to import the partly finished material, then perfect and completed, makes the last finished product, what would be the result? It would be found that the value of our manufactures in 1890 was approximately $12,000,000,000 (in the basis of the census of 1890 somewhat over $9,000,000,000 worth of this is what the free trader calls "raw material." At least three persons are engaged in making this so-called raw material to one engaged in producing the last finished product. Shall we then throw three out of employment to benefit one?

The contention that if we do not buy we cannot sell" is refuted by the fact that we are and have been for years selling more than we buy.

The free trader cannot to the light of experience with actual facts and figures confronting him, one in a single industry that we can safely abandon. Every single industry means increased employment and so increased home market and larger profits.

So, instead of abandoning a single industry, we should constantly seek to enlarge and diversify in order to employ every possible arm of labor and every possible human arm and mind. In the words of Henry C. Carey: "With every increase in the power of production, consumption grows, and the laborer receives larger wards for his labor."

Tyranny of Rule of Letters.

In a Scott children on Nineteenth century literature in London, Ambassador Choate said that he would give them the tribute of one of the greatest American men of letters, his most illustrious predecessor, James Russell Lowell, in the wonderful "Biglow Papers." Lowell's end was very near. He and all his friends knew well that for him the silver cord of life would soon be loosed. When Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes went out to pay him a last visit at his home in Elmwood. The two had always been his pupils, calling each other by their first names. As the doctor entered Lowell, who lay sold, in his usual light and cheery way: "Well, James, how are you today?" And Lowell, on his couch, clapping a little both in his hands, looked up with a bright smile and answered: "Oh-ell, I don't know how I am, old-l don't care. I'm dying, Joe Roy." — New York Post.

LORE OF FRENCH CANADA.

Lecture Before Williams Students at Cambridge and Boston.

M. Pelletier of Montreal, a Canadian poet and man of letters, at a meeting in Hotel Bellevue yesterday afternoon delivered before the Cambridge and Boston group of Williams Students, 1879 the Boston Transcript. His subject was "The Legends and Popular Traditions of Canada." He spoke of course especially of French Canada, and the superstitions that have developed from the peculiar conditions of France. He said the "moon movies" on hard ground, or in personal contact with moonlight nights in certain seasons, and the dwellers in the valley of Jacques Cartier have a superstition that if a man or woman lies on the moon in a certain way, he or she will be struck by a stone. The moon is popular in Canada as it is in Germany and Scotland, and the Canadian would in thought to be the moon's object of some wrongful character. Quently a Canadian, coming home from the black woods in search of new land, Nightmare charms are used to frustrate his attacks, as well as the baleful influence of the evil eye and the tricks of witches. Peasants in some parts of the province of Quebec will not look from their windows when the sirens of galloping horses are heard at night, for they know that the witches are on the way to a sabbat, or to some distant place, and that to look at the frenzy giants go to join them. Nightmare charms are used to keep witches from the high graveyards, and a handsome, strange-coming, is found just appearing as a partner in position at the village makes his appearance with the women of his sharp claws, and then the nightmare herself and leaves him as some fine with her hoofs, and the man is puff if into bones (pro-nounciations described by the Canadian Sagas, a thin phantom of the Lachine Rapids, the only remnant of the St. John's forests and the Dollier de Casson, a shadowy form that haunts Lake Champlain, and the Jumpers, half charlatans, half-madmen, and over the Indian Ghost Dance.

GREAT FRAUDS PLOT EXPOSED.

In Men and One Woman in Macon County, Mo., Charged with Swindling.

Six men and one woman are charged with about complicity in the recent action of law in the northern section of Macon County, Missouri, with the object of obtaining fraudulent mortgages. Five citizens have been made, and Deputy Sheriff Turner has warrants for John Frazier and his wife, whose home burned on March 22. Among those arrested are Grant Gibson, a farmer and stock dealer of the Anderson neighborhood. Lynn Gibson, a farmer, whose home was burned; Mrs. Mary M. D. Dunham, a widow, who lives near Bunceton; Dan Lamb, a farmer near Bunceton; Ben Lamb, a farmer near Bunceton, and Ben Lamb, a farmer near Bunceton. It is alleged that the conspiracy was formed in Bunceton. The prisoners were taken to Bunceton and lodged in the county jail. [illegible]

WOMEN IN A STRIKE RIOT.

Hot and Tear Clothes Off Girls Who Took Their Places.

A long strike riot occurred in the women's department of the Bell Telephone Company, on Dearborn street, near Jackson, yesterday, when two women had their clothes torn from their backs and girls who had taken the places of the striking operators were pulled from their chairs and pounded with fists. Police were called and the disturbance came to an end. The strike began last Friday, however, when two women left the office because of the discharge of two operators and two girls who had been hired to take their places. The girls who had been hired to take the places of the discharged women were pulled from their chairs and pounded with fists

—The bridge work progresses as satisfactorily as can be expected. The concrete abutment on the south bank is being built. The superstructure is arriving and much of it is on the ground. It is expected that the crection will be on the ground soon. Sub-contractor Manton resumed up his work by completing the protection pier. It looks now, barring accidents and unforeseen delays, that the bridge will be ready for use June 15th.

—At the close of the last weeks Antrim county term of court Judge Mayne and county clerk Adams immediately went into executive session in the clerk's office. At an early hour next morning his Honor and the clerk "might have been seen" traveling in the direction of Cedar tree with fishing outfits. The outcome was an elegant rate of fresh, and Judge Mayne, with the same amiability with which he calls down a frisky lawyer, invokes the hottest man who questions the statement that he caught the biggest mess.

—Mrs. Mary Miller died at her home in Louisville, Ky., last Sunday. Mrs. Miller was Annie, youngest daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Harrison Miller of Frankfort. Annie was 21 years of age. She was married and removed to Kentucky last summer. Accompanied by the bereaved husband and mother, the remains were brought here for interment, arriving Tuesday afternoon. The stricken parents have very many friends here who deeply sympathize with them in their sore affliction. Although he is on Denver island, the reason upon many pages of her gut based in a bottle.—

—The council again re-affirmed its determination to adopt compulsion not up at its last meeting, notwithstanding the fact that public sentiment is against it. The SENTINEL objects to it as many others do, on the ground not only of public policy, but of public economy. We believe that the act is one of extravagance, that the saving of kilowatts will not equal the interest on the cost of meters. The proper method would have been to gradually work into that system. If meters are good for the citizen and good for the city, let the installation of meters be discretionary with the citizen. If benefit accrues to both equally let it be proven before the people are hooked and gagged. And just here permit us to suggest that the truth be told the public regarding the financial status of the electric plant. The public were given to understand last fall, officially, that the plant was $3,000 to the good for the year. And now it appears that the figures were jugged. Whatever you do, gentlemen, give us the truth. The mechanical management of the plant cannot be criticised and honest intention of the council cannot be questioned, but if the plant is running something out, show it up; if it is losing, tell the people. This thing, it certain, before $4,000 is expended for meters, there should be a certain business method of keeping the city's accounts adopted, so that we may know where we are at once in a while. Meantime, may the Lord be merciful to the gentlemen who are serving the public on the council.

State of Michigan, } ss.
County of Charlevoix, }

At a session of the Probate Court for said county held at the Probate office, in the village of Charlevoix, on the 20th day of May, A. D. 1903. Present, Hon. Frank Comstock, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of Ann Mary Ryan, deceased. On reading and filing the petition of Mary Ryan, praying that a certain instrument in writing, now on file in the Probate office, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, may be admitted to probate, and that the administration of said estate be granted to Mary Ryan, the executrix named in said will, or to some other suitable person. It is ordered that the 20th day of June next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for hearing said petition, and that the time of hearing be forthwith published and notice given of said petition, and of said hearing, for a period of four weeks, then to be published in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county, and that the return be published in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county, and that a copy of this order be sent to the persons named in said petition.

SCHOOL COMM'R COLUMN.

The Teachers Association met at Boyne City on Saturday May 16. About sixty teachers were present and a very profitable session was held, several practical subjects were discussed. The teachers showed themselves conversant with the Reading Circle work and those assigned topics along that line did great credit to themselves and to the association.

At the business session H. I. Bell of Boyne City was elected President of the Charlevoix County Teachers' Association, and H. S. Waters of East Jordan secretary and treasurer.

At the Teachers' Institute in November will be made for the fall sessions. The State Teachers' Institute for Charlevoix County will be held in this village, commencing August 5th and continue in session eight days, immediately following the Institute the August examinations will be held.

W. S. Stuart of Battle Creek will conduct the institute assisted by W. Sage of Mt. Pleasant. A more extended notice and full particulars will be sent to the teachers at the proper time.

The teachers of this county have purchased fifty-five sets of the Reading Circle work for the year 1903. This speaks well for the Charlevoix county corps of teachers. Dr. Allen of the New York school Journal said in a paper read at the N. E. A. some time past, "Our Teachers' Reading Circles seem to be one thing—the improvement of teachers as teachers. Any attempt to cover the whole range of literature is a blunder. Fitch's course designed for the rank and file of those engaged in the vocation, will fail of making the family of instruction appreciably better. This not thing I do, was the method of St. Paul, and it has been the motto of all educational men and organizations since his time.

The lawyers' reading club discusses law matters; the doctors' associations stick to their Materia Medica and dry bones, the ministers contend about apostolic succession and foreordination, why should not teachers use equally as much wisdom? The time is coming when they will do so. The very necessities of the times will shed them up to this course, and no other.

An Ordinance.

An ordinance to compensate and promote the building of cement walks within the Village of Charlevoix, by providing that such walks shall pay a portion of the cost thereof.

The Village of Charlevoix ordains:

Sec. 1. That all sidewalks hereafter built on the east side of Bridge street, between the Village of Charlevoix and the Village of Ironton, and on the north side of Mason street, from Bridge street to the Village of Charlevoix, shall be built of cement and shall be built according to specifications furnished by the village.

Sec. 2. In person owning within the corporate limits of said Village of Charlevoix, and adjoining any street, lane or alley, shall be required to construct a sidewalk in front of said premises, and keep the same in good repair and free from obstructions, and in case any such person shall neglect or refuse to do so, the Commissioner of Streets and Public Works shall serve such person with a notice to construct such sidewalk, and if such person shall not within ten days after such notice, commence the work of building such sidewalk, and shall not complete the same within a reasonable time, the said Commissioner of Streets and Public Works shall have the same built at the expense of the lot or premises adjoining which such sidewalk is built, and the cost thereof shall be a lien upon said premises, and shall be collected and paid over to the Village Treasurer, and the Village Attorney shall be notified by said Commissioner of Streets and Public Works of such neglect and refusal, and the party neglecting and refusing shall be liable to a penalty of five dollars for each and every offense.

Sec. 3. On completion of the sidewalk by the contractor, the Commissioner of Streets and Public Works shall report the same to the Village Clerk, who shall thereupon issue a certificate to the person appointed as assessor, to proceed to assess the cost of said sidewalk upon the premises in front of which such sidewalk shall have been built, and such sum shall be a lien upon said premises, and be collected in the same manner as other taxes are collected.

Sec. 4. It shall be the duty of the Village Assessor, upon receipt of said certificate, to assess the cost of said sidewalk upon the premises in front of which such sidewalk shall have been built, and he shall make a separate assessment roll for the same, and he shall add to the amount assessed upon said premises a sum sufficient to cover the cost of collecting the same, and he shall deliver said assessment roll to the Village Treasurer, and the Village Treasurer shall proceed to collect the same in the same manner as other taxes are collected.

Sec. 5. Whenever any sidewalk shall have been built in the Village of Charlevoix, approved by the Commissioner of Streets and Public Works, and the cost thereof shall be assessed upon the premises in front of which such sidewalk shall have been built, the Village Treasurer shall pay the same out of the contingent fund of said Village, but the person contracting for the building of such sidewalk shall be required to take in payment thereof the assessment roll of said Village for that purpose authorized to be issued, and the Village Treasurer shall receive such assessment roll in payment of said sidewalk, and the same shall be credited to said Village in the same manner as other taxes are credited to said Village.

Sec. 6. The Commissioner of Streets and Public Works shall report to the Village Clerk, who shall keep a book in which shall be entered the name of the person contracting for the building of such sidewalk, the date of the contract, the amount of the contract, the date of the completion of the sidewalk, the date of the report of the Commissioner of Streets and Public Works, the date of the report of the assessor, the date of the report of the Village Treasurer, the date of the report of the Village Attorney, and such other matters as may be deemed necessary by the Village Clerk, or the Village Attorney.

Sec. 7. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its publication in the Charlevoix Sentinel.

Sec. 8. Ordinance No. 30 of the Village of Charlevoix, entitled "An ordinance to compensate and promote the building of cement walks within the Village of Charlevoix, by providing that such walks shall pay a portion of the cost thereof," is hereby repealed.

The Village of Charlevoix ordains:

Sec. 1. That all sidewalks hereafter built on the east side of Bridge street, between the Village of Charlevoix and the Village of Ironton, and on the north side of Mason street, from Bridge street to the Village of Charlevoix, shall be built of cement and shall be built according to specifications furnished by the village.

Sec. 2. In person owning within the corporate limits of said Village of Charlevoix, and adjoining any street, lane or alley, shall be required to construct a sidewalk in front of said premises, and keep the same in good repair and free from obstructions, and in case any such person shall neglect or refuse to do so, the Commissioner of Streets and Public Works shall serve such person with a notice to construct such sidewalk, and if such person shall not within ten days after such notice, commence the work of building such sidewalk, and shall not complete the same within a reasonable time, the said Commissioner of Streets and Public Works shall have the same built at the expense of the lot or premises adjoining which such sidewalk is built, and the cost thereof shall be a lien upon said premises, and shall be collected and paid over to the Village Treasurer, and the Village Attorney shall be notified by said Commissioner of Streets and Public Works of such neglect and refusal, and the party neglecting and refusing shall be liable to a penalty of five dollars for each and every offense.

Sec. 3. On completion of the sidewalk by the contractor, the Commissioner of Streets and Public Works shall report the same to the Village Clerk, who shall thereupon issue a certificate to the person appointed as assessor, to proceed to assess the cost of said sidewalk upon the premises in front of which such sidewalk shall have been built, and such sum shall be a lien upon said premises, and be collected in the same manner as other taxes are collected.

Sec. 4. It shall be the duty of the Village Assessor, upon receipt of said certificate, to assess the cost of said sidewalk upon the premises in front of which such sidewalk shall have been built, and he shall make a separate assessment roll for the same, and he shall add to the amount assessed upon said premises a sum sufficient to cover the cost of collecting the same, and he shall deliver said assessment roll to the Village Treasurer, and the Village Treasurer shall proceed to collect the same in the same manner as other taxes are collected.

Sec. 5. Whenever any sidewalk shall have been built in the Village of Charlevoix, approved by the Commissioner of Streets and Public Works, and the cost thereof shall be assessed upon the premises in front of which such sidewalk shall have been built, the Village Treasurer shall pay the same out of the contingent fund of said Village, but the person contracting for the building of such sidewalk shall be required to take in payment thereof the assessment roll of said Village for that purpose authorized to be issued, and the Village Treasurer shall receive such assessment roll in payment of said sidewalk, and the same shall be credited to said Village in the same manner as other taxes are credited to said Village.

Sec. 6. The Commissioner of Streets and Public Works shall report to the Village Clerk, who shall keep a book in which shall be entered the name of the person contracting for the building of such sidewalk, the date of the contract, the amount of the contract, the date of the completion of the sidewalk, the date of the report of the Commissioner of Streets and Public Works, the date of the report of the assessor, the date of the report of the Village Treasurer, the date of the report of the Village Attorney, and such other matters as may be deemed necessary by the Village Clerk, or the Village Attorney.

Sec. 7. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its publication in the Charlevoix Sentinel.

Sec. 8. Ordinance No. 29 of the Village of Charlevoix, entitled "An ordinance to compensate and promote the building of cement walks within the Village of Charlevoix, by providing that such walks shall pay a portion of the cost thereof," is hereby repealed.

SCHOOL COMM'R COLUMN.

A. S. IRVIN, COND'T.

The Teachers Association met at Boyne City on Saturday May 18, about sixty teachers were present and a very profitable session was held, several practical subjects were discussed. The teachers showed themselves conversant with the Reading Circle work and these assigned topics along that line did great credit to the societies and to the association.

At the business session H. E. Stetts of Boyne City was elected President of the Charlevoix County Teachers' Association, and H. S. Winters of East Jordan Secretary and Treasurer.

At the Teachers' Institute in August examinations will be made for the fall sessions. The State Teachers' Institute for Charlevoix County will be held in Charlevoix, commencing August 5th and continue in session eight days. Immediately following the Institute the August examinations will be held.

W. S. Sheard of Battle Creek will conduct the institute assisted by W. V. Sage of Mt. Pleasant. A more extended notice and full particulars will be sent to the teachers at the proper time.

The teachers of this county have purchased fifty five sets of the Reading Circle, with the year 1901. This speaks well for the Charlevoix county corps of teachers. Dr. Allen of the New York school Journal said in a paper read at the N. E. A. some time past, "the Teachers' Reading Circles are set in to one thing—the improvement of teachers as teachers. Any attempt to cover the whole range of literature in a reading Circle course designed for the rank and file of those engaged in the vocation, will fall of making the quality of instruction appreciably better. 'This one thing I do,' was the motto of St. Paul, and it has been the motto of all successful men and organizations since he was time.

The lawyers' reading club discusses law matters; the doctors' associations stick to their Materia Medica and diagnoses, the ministers contend about apostolic succession and forever limitation, why should not teachers use equally as much wisdom? The idea is coming when they will do so. The very necessities of the times will show them up for this course, and no other.

State of Michigan,
County of Charlevoix, ss.
At a session of the Probate Court for said County, held at the Probate office, in the City of Charlevoix, on the 14th day of May, in the year one thousand nine hundred and one.
Present, Hon. Frank D. Nichols, Judge of Probate.
In the matter of the estate of Sarah Hoskins, late of Bangor, deceased.
On reading and filing the petition of Ann Eliza Hoskins, praying that a certain instrument in writing now on file in this Court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, be admitted to probate, and that she be appointed executrix thereof.
It is ordered that the 27th day of May next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for examining and hearing said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the village of Charlevoix, in said County, and show cause why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.
And it is further ordered that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.
FRANK D. NICHOLS,
Judge of Probate.

—Charlevoix and Petoskey high school boys are to debate tonight at the Charlevoix central school building, the following question: "Resolved, that the constitution is not self extending to new territory." To one who has seen dakotas, boys, but the U. S. Supreme court has just decided that it is so.

—The L. O. T. M. entertainment given last Friday evening in spoken of by all who attended as a marked success. The tents were well filled, and the lady Maccabees are to be congratulated on this their first effort in entertainment. We understand it is hoped that they will keep up the good work.

—At the special school meeting held last Friday voting the proposition to bond the district to build another school building was again voted down. As there was but a few votes cast thirty votes cast, it illustrated again the carelessness of taxpayers and those most interested in school matters. Or, a matter of such vital importance there should have been an attendance of at least two hundred.

—The Petoskey Herald remarks that the observance of the Fourth of July as a national holiday has ceased to be anything but a matter of contemplation in years past. Except as an enlivening scheme it has long been dead as a holiday. The speech, the stand attracts a few old people, while the indoor excursion, the fireworks, the picnic, the fun, the dance, the street cars, show crowds and almost times of business take in the idlers.

The assessors tax-paying citizens who are, with others, behind the assessor inquisition, are only in few kicks. They don't know what is good for the town; they are only "kicking" because they think that with meters they will have to pay more for their lighter; they have not the slightest idea or economy, the natural majority are the only one who have the good of the village at heart; others are only "kickers." The council majority has agreed to do that by expending $1,000 when they owe $50 a year to fuel. They may not know it that way, but that is about what it amounts to.

The editor of this paper was very unceremoniously called down for his comment from the president, last Friday for statements made in last issue's issue concerning matters personal and matters pent, but particularly for stating that it had year's exercise right upon the figures were "Pub. Ad." Perhaps the words to two reason. We do not intend to say, and would never the reputation, but the contents, the premises or conclusions, would mention an incorrect report from any motive of personal gain; for we would hold that the report was interpreted, through a desire to make a good showing for the plant. Neither do we consider that this putting of the annual side of the report was intentional. It was a case of honest intention, being over elaborated, in favor of the credit side. We have the highest respect for the president and chairman of the finance committee of last year, and consider it fortunate for the village that they are both still in harness. As far as the report is concerned, we stick to our last week's statement like a bristle bellyup to a hickory rook. As to our comment concerning the reduction of meter power. On this the President's criticism was particularly severe. We have seen the superintendent's own report in his own handwriting and the item per meter was figured out. It may have been a guess, but the superintendent is not supposed to guess when he makes statements. Right here is the next we will slide over the crack of doom.

FROM

POORHOUSE TO PALACE

BY MARY J. HOLMES

CHAPTER XII

Rose Lamont's wedding was celebrated at the house of her mother, Mrs. Lamont, in the heart of society circles. Among the guests were the elite of Rosedale, the city and all of Fairfax and Tarrytown. The bride looked very pretty in her simple dress of white silk, with long, lustrous drapery, a veil and orange blossoms, and her bridesmaids, Mrs. Ashley Ashley, Miss Ethel Lamont, Miss Mary Lamont and Miss Lucretia Hunter, looked very pretty in their pink dresses, with pink roses in their hair, and Mr. Ashley Ashley looked very handsome as he stood by his groomsmen, Mr. Lamont, Mr. Ashley Ashley, Mr. Hunter and Mr. Ashley Ashley, Jr., who looked very much like his father, and who was the pet of the company. Mrs. Ashley Ashley was a little nervous, and her hand trembled when she put it into that of her husband, and the tears came into her eyes when she kissed her mother and her little brother, who was the pet of the household, and who was very much disturbed at the idea of his sister's going away from home. Mrs. Lamont was a little nervous, too, and her hand trembled when she took that of her son-in-law, and she spoke tenderly to him as she told him how she had loved her daughter and how she had tried to make her happy, and how she should miss her when she was gone. The bride herself was quite composed, and her voice did not tremble when she spoke to her husband and mother and brother or said her prayers.

In this Rose was peculiar, for when she was married in her mother's house, Mrs. Mason, who was present, said she was so nervous that she could not hold Mary Mason's hand, and she had to let go of it and let her stand by herself. But Rose was peculiar, and she was not nervous at her wedding, and, when it was over, she went up stairs and changed her dress, and then she went down and shook hands with her mother and brother and Mr. Ashley Ashley, Jr., and then she was off for her wedding tour, which was to be a long one, for they had decided to go to Europe for a year, and they had left the question of the time of their return open, and Rose was very happy in her new home, and very happy in her husband, who was very, very kind to her, and who was very, very proud of his young wife, who was the prettiest woman in the city, he thought, and who was so good and so sensible and so unlike the girls he had met in society.

Mrs. Ashley Ashley, Jr., was a little lonely when her husband was gone, and she was very glad when Mrs. Mason came to see her, and she was very glad when Mrs. Mason invited her to come to her house and spend the day with her, and she was very glad when Mrs. Mason said she would be very happy if she could have her husband's mother come to her house and live with her, and she was very glad when her husband's mother came and lived with her, and she was very happy in her new home, and very happy in her husband, who was very, very kind to her, and who was very, very proud of his young wife, who was so good and so sensible and so unlike the girls he had met in society.

CHAPTER XIII

Rose Ashley Ashley was happy in Mount Holmes. Everybody loved and admired her. The neighbors came and called on her, and she returned the calls, and she was very much pleased with the people she met at Mrs. Mason's house, and they were pleased with her, and they said she was just the right kind of a wife for young Mr. Ashley Ashley, Jr., and they said he was just the right kind of a husband for such a young lady as Mrs. Ashley Ashley, and they said they should be very happy to see them at their houses, and they were very happy when they did see them at their houses, and they were very happy when they did not see them at their houses, and they were very happy when they saw them at church and at the opera and at the theatre, and they were very happy when they did not see them at church and at the opera and at the theatre, and they were very happy when they saw them at their own house, and they were very happy when they did not see them at their own house

The Constitution Does Not Follow the Flag!

On Monday the Supreme court of the United States handed down its decision in the "insular" case. The decision sustains the administration and declares that congress has power to levy duties upon goods coming from Porto Rico. [illegible]

A distinguished Chicago ex-congressional lawyer who has stumped Bryan and avowed his approval of McKinley's policy, jumped the track again when the "military and constitutional act" was passed.

Now, the question arises, will our constitutional lawyer dissent from the opinion of the Supreme court of the United States?

Philippine Letter.

SAN FERNANDO, PAMPANGA, P. I. Feb. 18, 1901.—Dear ones at home: It is only a few days since I started a letter home, but I guess as I have nothing particular to do (this is a lie I will start another, and we will hope that it will be finished and sent away by the next boat.

An not doing much of anything these days. I go over in the morning and do an hour or so at work and after dinner I work an hour or two and then kill time at the quarters until the next day. A box of novels came in the library the other day, and some time I have read until I actually get tired of reading. The third infantry orchestra are having a rehearsal in the next room and the balance of the band is practicing out in the yard and together they make such an infernal racket that if I had started in with anything particular to write since I would not be able to think what it was.

Just ten days more and I shall be half way up this cantonment. The time seems about either way—slow or backward. I feel sorry for these poor laid men. They are popularly supposed to have nothing to do, and of course a lazed is bound to be considered a more or less unusual feature of the regiment, but the "nothing to do" is a humbug force. Give me the line any day. These logs play for guard mounting every day at 8 a. m. from 9 to 10, rehearsal, and if some one blunders it may be an hour longer. From 1 to 5 p. m. the orchestra practices, and to be fair all round, those who are not in the orchestra go out in the back yard and blow themselves. They play for retreat and give a 45 piece concert in the band stand afterward on Mondays and Wednesdays. Tuesdays, Thursdays and sundays they play a six or seven piece concert at 7:30 p. m. Friday evening the full orchestra plays at headquarters. Saturday evening they have to themselves, because it is inspection day, and all they have to do is to play for guard mounting and retreat. All day Friday, when not blowing, must be spent cleaning up for inspection (just before guard mounting Saturday, so they can't shift one day to another).

I will be able to send some views of this country soon I hope. Some of the boys are getting together, and they have spoken to me about printing mounts for them.

How are the new regiments coming on in the states? Have they been doing any recruiting in northern Michigan? The M, I, L and K of the third battalion passed through here Feb. 10 for Manila where they are to meet the balance of the regiment to the states. There are quite a number of men in that outfit from Petoskey and vicinity. The 35th was one of the last volunteer organizations over here, and have done some pretty good work, although their has not been much said about it because—well, perhaps, because they weren't so much ashamed of themselves as some of the other outfits that had to be continually coming back lock stories for fear others wouldn't know what cases they were.

Feby 23.—The expected has happened, and a part of the third are leaving tuinchera. A and M companies have taken charge of the railroad from Dolo to Malolos, covering a territory about 20 miles long and of no small width, in Bulacan province.

Yesterday was celebrated all over the island. Here we had a military parade in the morning and a civic parade in the evening. One band played in both. In the civic parade there were a couple of floats trimmed with red, white and blue. Most of the residents hung out an American flag and some had out a white one, thinking, I suppose, that any old rag was better than none at all.

The sun is beginning to get pretty hot again, in contrast to last the two seasons I was, but we still have pleasant nights for sleeping. Next month will usher in the hot weather. Time goes pretty fast, however, and we can always depend on the wet season coming to one relief sooner or later.

March 4.—Everything is moving along quietly. We had a public execution here Friday, a Malo Nombre being hung. It was public for the moral effect, and the natives seemed pleased, for he has been a terror to the community. He told the executioner, a man from Co. K, that he had assisted 17 natives and killed about 10 more. He walked up on [illegible]

[illegible] way has been secured. A party of surveyors left Detroit Tuesday to begin work on the line. As soon as the survey is finished, the dispatch says, the line will be furnished by several men along the line who have made contracts to that effect.

Traverse City Eagle: It is announced on pretty good authority that G. M. Hume has received his reappointment as deputy food inspector, and that he has been carrying his commission daily signed by both governor and food commissioner since, about with him for several days. No public announcement of the fact was made by reason of the fact that Hon. Hume expressed the desire that nothing more be said about the matter, in spite of the old controversy here. Nothing is sure and that is that Mr. Hume is continuing at work and is now out on business relating to the department.

Northport is taking time by the forelock and when railroad facilities are provided there will be enough resort attractions to boom the place and make good times for the merchants of the village as well as the proprietors of the resort plans. These are few places in the northern Michigan than Northport and the advantages offered will be rapidly developed as railroad facilities are provided. While no definite plans are announced, there is every reason to believe that it will not be no very long before a railway line will connect Northport and Omena with Traverse City and the outside world. Those who begin now will be on the ground floor when the improvement is established.

Traverse City Record: The trial of Lou. Ingram and W. A. Brown of Leland, on charges of selling wholesale under size on the streets here, resulted in the jury bringing in a verdict before Justice Brown on fifteen. The jury was out about three hours. The vendor of not guilty probably arose from the fact that the section of the section of the law under which the respondents were tried provides among other things that the sub. described shall be caught in a legal-sized net. This the defendants endeavored to show they did not, and the jury evidently ignored the other provision in the section of regulating the legal size of fish.

Shooting at His Foot.

I recall now, with horror, says Mail carrier Bernard Mann, of Lewiston, one day three years of suffering from kidney trouble. I was hardly ever free from dull aches or acute pains in my back. No sleep or life could make me grunt. I felt tired, worn out, ready to give up. I began to use Electric Bitters, but my troubles completely cured me, and made me feel like a new man." They're unrivaled for regulate stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed by T. C. Hines & Co., only 50 cents.

STRICKEN CITY OF JACKSONVILLE TO BE REBUILT.

The Great Fire Which Wiped Out Its Docks, Business Houses, Jacobs Houses and Inflicted a Money Loss of $10,000,000.

Jacksonville, Fla., is slowly arising from the effects of the recent awful conflagration, which a month ago swept the city from the river to the Springs, the loss of buildings, including business and residence properties, and property of all kinds, being estimated at $10,000,000, of which sum only $4,000,000 is covered by insurance. Nearly 1,000 business and residence houses were burned, and 10,000 people are now homeless and in need of food and clothing. The fire started in the business section of the city early in the morning of Friday, June 3, and was not under control until the following Sunday morning, when it was found that the flames had burned themselves out for want of fuel, the entire city from the river to the Springs being a mass of ruins, with the exception of a few residences in the suburbs. The fire started in a small frame building on Ashley street, between Main and Laura streets, and, fanned by a high wind, it quickly spread in all directions, and was beyond control when it reached Hogan street, one block from the place of origin. The fire then took a southeast course, and, in spite of the efforts of the firemen, it soon had reached the St. John's river, and was burning the docks and business houses on Bay street. The wind then changed to the southwest, and the fire took a northeast course, and was beyond control when it reached Market street, and was burning the business houses on that street when it reached the river. The fire then took a northwest course, and was burning the residences on Laura street when it was finally checked by the dynamite used by the firemen. The fire then started in the west and burned a path through the city to the river, destroying the residences on Laura street, and burning the business houses on Bay street, which had escaped the first onslaught of the fire. The fire then started in the south and burned a path through the city to the river, destroying the residences on Laura street, and burning the business houses on Bay street, which had escaped the first onslaught of the fire. CITY COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Council room, May 24.

At the adjourned meeting of the council held on above date:

Present—President Nicholls and Trustees Coulter, Eaton, Wilkinson Brown Willson and Emery.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The com. on Municipal Book keeping reported the closing of the contract with Mr. Horner of Grand Rapids for the installing of his system of book keeping in this village.

The com. on streets reports they estimate on rebuilding wall on south side of Newman street in front of the Mason homestead and on motion the com. were instructed to keep the said sidewalk clean and the dirt where it was needed.

The matter of the purchase of coal was taken up and after some discussion said over, for one week.

The bond of the treasurer with Wm Pearson, John Wang, L. L. Sweet and J. Pagan as sureties was approved.

R. R. Wilkinson reported on the matter of the purchase of a roller for street work.

On motion the marshal was instructed to notify C. D. Wood, H. Barnhart, J. A. Mackinac and Mrs. S. Ackett to repair their sidewalks within 15 hours, and if it was done the marshal was ordered to do the work and bring in an itemized bill for labor and material so that it could be spread in the tax against the several lots.

The marshal was instructed to repair the village tool house in a substantial manner to protect the property of the village.

Trustee Eaton was instructed to have the necessary blanks printed for posting in force the cement sidewalk ordinance.

The matter of privileges and concessions on the Fourth of July was referred to the committee on licenses.

The following bills were reported by the finance committee and allowed

The marshal was instructed to notify the plumbers to fix their blocks before the next regular meeting of the council.

On motion the council adjourned to meet Monday evening, May 26.

May 25—Council met pursuant to adjournment.

Present—President Nicholls and Trustees Emery Coulter, Wilkinson Willson and Eaton.

Absent—Brown.

The clerk presented the claim of Her V. Thurston for $30 for injury received by him by reason of a fall on an alleged defective crosswalk at the corner of State street and Lincoln Ave, on the 12th day of May. This claim had been before the council informally for some days and had been carefully investigated. Trustee Emery moved that the claim be allowed at $30.00 in full for all damages received by the claimant and that the clerk be instructed to draw an order for the amount and pay 20 Thurston, taking his receipt in full for the same which motion prevailed by the following vote. Ayes—Emery, Coulter, Eaton, Wilkinson, Willson. Nays none.

Trustee Wilkinson moved that Hon. C. J. Pattinger of Petoskey be employed in the case of Frank W. LeFevre vs the village of Charlevoix on the terms offered by him which motion prevailed.

Trustee Willson moved that it is the sense of this council that the case be heard by Judge Shepard of Cheboygan in the village and that the motion to dissolve the injunction in said case be heard if possible as early as Saturday of this week which prevailed.

On motion the council adjourned to Friday evening May 31 at the usual hour.

W. H. MCCARTHY, Clerk.

Local News.

—Ed. Wilber has a consignment of steamboat and blacksmith coal.

—Mayor Hamilton of Traverse City went to the Beaver yesterday.

—There will be an exhibit of school work at the central building on Friday evening of this week. Admission 15 cents.

—The Westinghouse submarine engine for the electric light plant is here and has been placed. The new dynamo is expected soon.

—In the Hand-Stock Co appearance Tuesday night decided life was needed in Geo. Tucker in his lively and by Katie Fingblom in "Chic."

—Mrs. J. T. Emery is showing a new line of summer millinery now need and mentioned hats, at her shop in the Lewis Block, and invites the ladies to call.

—Mr. H. Hyslop, who returned from Charlotte last week, where he attended the State Congregational Association, was elected a trustee of that body for six years.

—The Home views of an exposition of merit, is playing every night this week at the opera house in a series of bright and spicy dramas and comedies. The audience thus far have been good.

—If you want to hear a dainty program given by dainty little people attend the Kindergarten concert to be given Friday evening at the central school building under the auspices of the Charlevoix Musical Club. Admission 15 and 25 cents.

—On Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Rev. T. H. Hughes will preach at the Baptist church on "The Intercession of Jesus, our High Priest." At three p. m. he will preach at Hilton's school house, and in the evening will assist in the union meeting in the Methodist church.

—We have the program of the memorial day exercises, but the hour of our going to press renders its publication useless. Lieut. A. Wahlstrom, who spoke so eloquently on a similar occasion several years ago, will again be the orator of the day. We shall review the event in our next issue.

—The Canadian steamer India, with the Canadian tow barge Ceylon at the end of it, 1,000 feet now line, both coming here to Ford's country after Pine Lake cargoes, made the township of Charlevoix a lot of trouble Wednesday morning. Being too busy to shorten his line and too stingy to employ a tug, the captain towed the barge into the temporary bridge structure, completely switching the portion north of the pontoon swing. As we write all traffic with the north side is suspended, and highway commissioner is sending a log sitter John Stanton's team to drive at East Jordan. The vessel will be bolder for damages.

—Among the state village officers Hayes Hayden & Hellman railway company was in the market to be built an extension of the line from Traverse City to Northport, on Leelanau county, to add operate a ferry line from the latter village across Lake Michigan to Manistique. This would decrease the distance to the northwest via Marquette at least one hundred miles, and the Grand Rapids & Indiana company would then become a formidable competitor of other railways in the carrying of freight east from the cities and farms and mines of the northwestern states.

—Senator McMillan's 130 personal summer resort associations to levy an assessment as high as $25 a share, must be curiously dealt in the house last week. Hon. Rodgers of Muskegon, was the only one who opposed it, but his kick was enough. He said he had assessed from a dozen of the silk-stocking owners of the Harbor Point resort near Petoskey, and that their object was to "freeze out" some of the non millionaires who have buildings there, so as to make the resort more exclusive than it is. He read a letter from President Tracy, of the Harbor Point association, an Illinois millionaire, declaring in explicit terms his belief that the sun is purely a "Christian" institution, and saying that if any of the members of the association are dissatisfied with the way things are now, he will buy them out at par value and accrued interest. Rep. Ferry made a short talk for the bill, but Rogers's talk had stirred the business and it went to the house pile by a vote of 63 yeas to 47 nays. The vote was considered and the bill tabled, but it had little chance of coming up again.

—Through Attorney Shanahan, legal steps were taken last Friday that will test the legality of the council's action in installing electric meters. Cal that day an injunction was applied for and granted by Judge Mayne. At some future day a motion will be made by the council's attorney to dissolve the injunction and Attorney Shanahan will plead to make the injunction permanent. The petition, which is signed by Ira E. W. LaFever, is backed by the signatures of seventeen citizens, among whom are several of the largest taxpayers. It recites that the electric meters placed in the Charlevoix Electric company's premises is placed in certain "dark" place on the top of said premises, that the corporation of the village of Charlevoix is the successor of the said Charlevoix Electric Co. in all its benefits and obligations, and that, therefore, the village of Charlevoix has no legal right to charge and raise that the said village of Charlevoix, in the expenditure for meters, added to other expenditures already made, and those proposed, exceeds the limit of taxation prescribed by law. Judge Fullerton of Petoskey has been retained by the council.

—WANTED—Apprentice girls at Mrs. J. T. Emery's dressmaking parlors.

WASHING NOTES.

The schooner Marie is loading coal at Cleveland for James McLean, of St. Joseph.

The steamer Watertight was here several days the last week for repairs at Smith's locks works.

The steamer Illinois showed herself to the natives last Saturday. She went to East Jordan after 1,000 barrels of potatoes.

Nels. R. Swanson, a sailor on the Charlevoix schooner Naiad, went crazy at Manitowoc Monday, and was sent to an asylum.

The treasury department has issued an order to the effect that in the future registration will be refused to all vessels carrying a crew over six letters to keep. The intention is to exclude the Indian of vessels and avoid much confusion.

Lake sports whose three schooners are under buoyers at Chicago and Milwaukee, has, it is reported, invented their captains to sell them to purchasers can be found. It also has to be said from Manistee to Ludington and Grand Haven, that the boys who can take the lake the schooners will be laid up as soon as they reach their home port.

Some of the Charlevoix fleet had a tough time during the recent blow. The schooner H. D. Moore, with a cargo of hardwood for the Iron Cliff Co., struck the pier while attempting to enter Sheboygan harbor in the northeast gale. Her jib-boom, foremast and rigging were carried away, and the bow badly smashed in. She leaks badly. Nine of her crew were injured. The James A. Burns caught her blow when out in midlake allisend of Sheboygan, and after losing her foremast turned tail and ran. Captain Hackett said that for a time he was afraid they would go down. The schooner's decks were washed bare and again, but they managed to keep her before it and reached Milwaukee Bay, where they were picked up by a tug and taken onside.

The week at a three masted schooner on decks dead with the water and apparently deserted, was sighted by Capt. McLeod, of the steamer Russia, Sunday. The wreck was about ten miles off shore and between Sheboygan, and Milwaukee. The Russia passed within five miles of the wreck and the strong glasses of the officers failed to show the slightest sign of life on the decks or in the rigging of the hull. The Russia passed through quantities of slabs which extend for twenty miles in the lake. The slabs were ten to fifteen miles from shore, southeast of Sheboygan. The schooner was thought to be the schooner Hackley, which left this port the 14th. For some time much alarm was felt at Milwaukee and here, but on Monday afternoon the Hackley came in here all right. Now it is thought that the vessel lost was the Hand, which left here about the same time as the Hackley. She was loaded with lumber and slabs for Van Platten.

SCHOOL CHIMES COLUMN.

The matter of ventilation is to be looked after in our school buildings to that extent that is positively necessary. Many, very many of our school houses are more-house, while the door is about the occupants begin breathing and re-breathing the vitiated air the pupil goes home with the headache. Good hot air if warmed and in plenty through school life is at all attainable in an iron constitution.

All who have read the old-time school novel of "Jacks Jennies" will recall the terrible delineation of the unventilated school room and the sickness and fatal effects of foul air upon the schoolmaster's pupils.

In a later novel of graded school life, "Roderick Hume," there is an amusing account of the principal's attempt to elucidate the subject of ventilation upon the occasion of a public gathering and of an error from which he was rescued by the timely assistance of one of the teachers. That is Hasbrew's story.

To enforce our last topic, we undertook to show them how well the audience in the audience in the school room would die if the ingress of fresh air was suddenly cut off. He had prepared the measurement of the room and the amount of air breathed per hour by each individual, so we placed these figures upon the board and proceeded to calculate how long it would take to convert all the oxygen present into carbonic acid. With consummate self reliance he had omitted the precaution to work the problem out beforehand, and he could not see why it was that, instead of an hour or two it would take weeks to approximately exhaust the oxygen. He began to blunder, the people present to giggle, and the schoolmaster wished wind could be the trouble. Just then Miss Lawe stepped along the desk, under his eye, a piece of paper, on which was written: "Air 1 per cent, O 0 will not support life." No one saw but said the teacher, but Roderick caught the hint. "I see that you smile and well you may. It is by this sort of reasoning that Hudson River steamboats are sent under their occupants. If it were true as I have assumed, that air can be breathed until all the oxygen is converted into carbonic acid, the danger of ill ventilation would be comparatively small. But what is the fact? One half per cent of carbonic acid produces headache; one per cent, nausea, one and one-half per cent, giddiness, two per cent death. These are the figures for you, and just put them to remember. I implore you to never remove that air can be breathed once and over again until all its oxygen is exhausted."

The people remarked as they left the school room that Roderick was an orator as well as a scholar. He could not have impressed upon them more forcibly the minute proportion of carbonic acid which makes the air fatal. So much has been said and written about ventilation we hope to see our school houses provided with some means of injection this year.

FROM

POORHOUSE TO PALACE

BY MARY J HOLMES

CHAPTER XIX

Mary remained that night and a few days longer, but without so much change of a sanguinary character. His Lord Mayor thought it best for her safety to send Women Hewett and Mrs. Mason off to the Isle of Wight's office, ostensibly to see Mary's property, which was in a state of great confusion, and which, if it was not looked after, would be sure to go to pieces. Mr. Mason was to accompany them, and Mary was to follow in a few days, if it was thought best, and if she could do so safely.

Mrs. Mason was to remain in London, and was sure to be safe. She was a quiet, inoffensive woman, who had never in her life had a quarrel with anybody, and was doing what she was now for her husband's sake.

Vigilance was free, and, acting on the information given by Women Hewett, it was found that Mary had escaped from the house. Mr. Mason was questioned, and he said that Mary had gone to the Isle of Wight, and that he was going after her, and was to take his wife with him. Women Hewett was questioned, but she was too much frightened to say much, and was soon dismissed, and she went home to her husband.

CHAPTER XX

Come this way, Mary. In your own home, mamma and Mary have been waiting and his Solicitor is in the drawing room waiting to see you and hear what he has to say to you. Come, my child, I'm so happy to have you home again, and so thankful that you escaped from the clutches of that villain Lord Lorne. Mary, Mary, I'm so happy to have you home again." Thus spoke Mrs. Mason, who was Mary's mother, as she ushered her into the drawing room, where Mary was soon in the arms of her mother, receiving and giving a warm, loving welcome. Mary was very happy, and yet there was a sad, anxious look on her face, which Mrs. Mason noticed, and which she tried to kiss away.

"Mary, Mary, what is the matter? Is anything wrong? Is Lord Lorne—?" she began, but Mary interrupted her by saying, "No, mamma, he is not dead, but I have much to tell you, and I'm so glad you are home, for I need your advice and sympathy. Where is Mr. Mason? I want to see him, too, and I want to see my lawyer, for I have much to do. I'm so glad I escaped from Lord Lorne, for I was in great danger, and I'm so glad to be home with you and Mr. Mason. Where is he

She Pickes Up a Stone.

I held my breath as I watched the girls in the bottle dancing ball. I felt myself swaying unconsciously to the rhythm of her body, of her beaming hands, of the glittering smile that came and went in her eyes. I seemed to be drawn into a whirling whirlpool, in which I turned, turned, leaving the beat of the water settling over my head. The guitar bounced, turned in a pounding rhythm, the gypsy curled about the floor in her dancing dress, never so much as showing her ankles, with a dignity concentrated upon itself; her hands beckoned, reached out, crumbled, clutched definitely from their finger tips; her body straight; steel, lean, the knees bent and straightened, the hips lean on the floor, carrying her backward and round. Her nose pointed, passed, pulsed and her body drooped or rose then immovable, a smiling significant figure at the whole body. Then the motion began again, more vivid, more restrained, as if leaked by some unseen brain, as if turning upon itself in the vile desire of escape, as if caught in its own toils.—Arthur Symons in London Saturday Review.

CHANGES IN SUGAR INDUSTRY.

In a Fair Way to Supply All of the Country's Needs.

The sugar industry of the world is brought into fresh prominence in the prospect that a shift probably will be shortly made in the beet sugar industry from Germany, France and other countries of continental Europe, will be imposed in Great Britain, though it will make the first great break in the long trial of free trade in the monopoly of the sugar industry of Great Britain. It is the manner in which the beet sugar industry has captured the American market by bounties, producers, and in place of wholesale reduction of wages as in England, wages have increased in our country and employment was never better as plentiful. That is how protection affords warm and wage-warmth.

Where the Farmer Comes In.

According to a recent announcement of the agricultural department the farmers of the United States received $735,296,372 more for their corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye, buckwheat, potatoes, and hay in 1899 than they did in 1897, the total receipts for the last year being $1,867,466,582 as against $1,776,170,210 in 1897. This increase is to be accounted for by the fact that the average prices for each of the products enumerated were higher in 1899 than in 1897, although in some instances the advance was but a fraction of a cent. The greatest advances were in corn and hay, the advance in the latter giving the farmers over $35,000,000 more in 1899 for a crop of 69,000,000 less than was received in the previous year for the crop of 56,635,756 tons. If the increased value of stock and other property were added to the increase in the value of products, it would probably be found that the free trade Republican administration had restored to the agricultural interests of the nation a large proportion of the billion dollars shrinkage in values which resulted from the prevailing Democratic administration.—Springfield (Mass.) Union.

DREAM WORTH A FORTUNE.

California Woman Offered an Idea That Came to Her in Sleep.

A dream may come to Mrs. Jessie H. Higley of Niles, Cal., not long ago, not proved to be worth at least $5,000 a year, and the dear reader's uncle never amount time. It. She has been offered like, who handed her one promptly at her dream, but inquiries it no worth, for dream and what she dreamed. The suggestion dreamed in her sleep of Niles, are in Higley, the chairman agent of the Southern Pacific company at Niles. That dreamed in that great company up for some years and Mrs. Higley's homestead, probably have become popular. Her home, in always "lost in" and which change to not so right dreamed Niles makes that go her way. It there is anything now that will add to the comfort of her home Mrs. Higley deserves it. Among some of her suggestions to the homebuilding furniture are iron beds. The beds proved very good for the cleaning eye of the housewife was, she pointed to the back of good street, those. Then she found in the summer that there was no bedding factory market known to the trade of letting drapery to use that not so that it would be removed, quickly. When cleaning or sweeping the room was to order. The fault of the mattresses was such as ambiguous to the that dirt dreamed about, and that what dreamed about was not what was quantity to make the dreamed of the dirt. Mrs. Higley's property good. She did not want for the owner to become dirty, get dirty and work to weigh the lint and description of what she had dreamed. Mrs. Higley the method of mattresses, and a remedy made and a few days after she had her patent covering the invention. It is a little to see that dreamed one power work will change the dirty dreamed. It can be conceived as attached to a stove in the room and use the gas to immediate and remove the heart of Charles Orchard.

BOYS RAISE MUSHROOMS.

Farming Industry Developed in Heart of a Great City.

Two Chicago boys, brothers, living in the city of 1,800,000 people have benefited farmers. Upon farm in the basement of the four-story flat building in which they live, and the only crop they raise is mushrooms. The parents of these boys are Albert and William Farrell, and they are 19 and 14 years old respectively. The boys have been operating their farm. There was a deal of parting and hauling, and the fact mentioned for consideration after which the boys found the farm in good order, and quite to suit to be a mushroom farm. UNCLE HORACE ONCE MORE.

He Tries to Annihilate Trusts and Their Independent Competitors.

The issue declared trade against Protection that and by the New England Free Trade League is from the pen of one time French Uncle Horace. The starting in view for a single figure set fast to be applied to argument and comparison for a single trust on which to base a conclusion. The or question is and not through because there are American as well as foreign trusts and to order that the foreign trusts may thrive the more, he wants destroy the American industries so that the products of the foreign trusts could come and be free of duty to foreign markets.

Public opinion would not be injured with removing the duties from the, so claims the natural call to trust made goods, but he says:

No matter whether for revenue or otherwise, should be levied upon foreign articles competing with American trust-made goods. The makers of these have secured monopolies at home. An Incentive to Thrift.

A Free Trade tariff always proves an incentive to thrift by relieving some of the hard earned wages, then they must be more thoughtful in husbanding what they have to get on in this good country. Never were our prospects so promising, while cash found in thrifty hands is not of much the industrial crisis which has overtaken Great Britain, which is a vain cry emanating from the Sons Oregon in one stage and danced the dance another hospital on with the tunnel and carried one man to death long end. Marine Officers and Sailors, Who Disregard Regulations, Are Given a Sharp Lesson—But Who Can Blame Them for Doing Their Duty?

The United States marine guard at Tientsin has had its first contact with the Chinese boxers and the result is that the guard will be increased to a company of marines. The incident which has caused the increase of the guard occurred on the Germany, which officered the American marines. The Germans had posted a sentry on the bridge of the German steamer, and he was instructed to fire on any person who should attempt to cross the bridge of the German steamer. —Why ought Charlevoix celebrate independence day for the sake of the day and its memories? Why could patriotism govern instead of gain? Why should we insult the memory of those who made the day the most glorious of all days save the day that gave the world a Savior? Why should we prostitute the most sacred sentiment that dwells in the human breast save the fear of God? Why should we erect an altar to Mammon in the sanctuary of patriotism? Why should patriots, business will hence be embalmed on the star spangled banner? Why? We begin to believe what the Charlevoix "prohibitess" said—there is a big black thunder cloud hanging over Charlevoix" —Memorial day was fittingly observed in Charlevoix, although rain prevented the out door exercises. The M. The Same Old Tactics.

Evidently the late editor of the Charlevoix Courier is at his old tricks down at Niles. The Niles Daily Star says Mr. Hoagland in a brightly attic for bad faith and for journalistic treachery. Following is an extract:

"Concerning the alleged interview of Mr. Van Riper says that he is falsely quoted, that he never said that Johnson is not preparing a vacancy, that to the contrary it is his opinion that the article sent out from this city hit the nail pretty squarely on the head. Mr. Van Riper feels that he has been done a grave injustice, inasmuch as he emphatically mentioned his interviewer that he desired his name withheld; that he could not discuss the matter because he is Johnson's attorney. Now what is to be thought of the party who will thus disregard a gentleman's wishes, in a case where to do otherwise is to place him in a most embarrassing position? And that is what the Sun did, and more. If the Sun also had outrageously. And then the Sun goes on trying to grossly abuse the correspondent, calling him a liar, etc. The fact of the matter is that if the people dependent upon the Sun throw from whom great things have been vainly expected, they would remain in utter darkness forever as regards the affairs of the defunct First National bank—a concern in which the entire community is vitally interested.

"Again the Sun says that long articles were sent to the city dailies because the correspondent needed the money. And right here we wish to remark that, according to the last mercantile notification sheet of R. G. Dun & Co., the Sun man needs a little 'change' far worse than does the correspondent. If chattel mortgages cut any figure.

"We had hoped that the 'scandal-mongers' would be able to find a man of some principle and integrity to edit their puny sheet. However, with the advent of "Billy" Hampton it became a forlorn hope. "Billy" is tricky and tries to deceive, after the manner of an unsophisticated yokel; all his existence is blurred and hard, while his word is good—for nothing.

"He's a sin, he might stump of a boy, this "Billy" Hampton, who is a free silver democrat at Charlevoix, and a republican for the sake of principle (?) in Niles.

Didn't Marry For Money.

The Boston man, who lately married a sick rich young woman, is happy now, for he got Dr. King's New Life Pills, which restored her to perfect health. Infallible for Jaundice, Biliousness, Malaria, Fever and Ague and all Liver and Stomach troubles. Gentle but effective. Only 25c at F. G. Hines & Co's drug store.

Commencement.

On night, at the M. E. church, will occur the exercises attending the graduating of the class of '01 of the Charlevoix high school.

There will be flowers and white gowns and diplomas, there will be grateful teachers and proud parents, there will be the school board in all its dignity and there will be many school patrons who pay the bills.

It is a goodly class, this class of '01, all guns but one, and he is a lonely but proud boy.

The class of '01 has the cordial congratulations of the Sentinel. It is composed of a bright double quartet of young people who emerge from the humdrum of school life well equipped for life's battle—a credit to the school and the town. The class is as follows

Adelbert Holley, Mary E. Jones
Ora E. Cooper, Lola M. Hodge,
Maybelle L. Francis, Wm. C. Hollinger
Jeanette T. Campbell, Mary E. Tysver,

Go out into the world, young people, with the words in old Polonius to his son ever before you:

"This above all
To thine own self be true,
And it must follow as the night the day,
Thou canst not then be false to any man."

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Council room, May 21.

At the adjourned meeting of the council held on above date:

Present—President Nicholls and Trustees Coulter, Eaton, Wilkinson Brown Willner and Finney.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The matter of the order for street work was talked of and laid over for one week.

A petition was read, signed by a number of taxpayers, praying the council to lay the sidewalk on the north side of West Bridge street, opposite Pleasant avenue on a curb instead of on an angle as at present.

The prayer of the petitioners was granted.

The matter of the purchase of coal was taken up and on motion was referred to the committee on electric lights and water works, with full authority to purchase

Trustee Wilkinson moved that the fiscal year for the village be changed to begin March 1st, instead of January 1st as at present, so as to conform with the law.

Motion carried.

Carried. Ayes—All.

Moved that the clerk be directed to draw an order in favor of the treasurer for $400 to pay interest on park improvement bonds.

Carried. Ayes—All.

On motion the council adjourned to Tuesday evening, June 4th.

W. H. McCARTNEY, Clerk.

Three Manitou County Orders.

Traverse City Eagle—Leelanau county is good and hot at Senator Palmer for bringing about legislation which means a liability to the islands which are now a part of that county. The Eagle recently contained a notice to the effect that the clerks and treasurers of Leelanau and Charlevoix counties would meet in Leland next Monday and audit all the old orders which formerly belonged to Manitou county.

Sheriff Howe, of Leelanau, was in the city today and he says that the citizens of the Manitous and Fox islands are very much incensed at the action of the legislature and that it has been decided to tight the measure and go into court to defend against collection.

The orders which have been repudiated by the legislature are those which were given up by the islands, together with the Beavers which latter are now a part of Charlevoix county, previous to 1895. It is claimed that the county of Manitou, as all the islands were then known, did not issue these orders regularly but that the orders were drawn up by individuals and floated as county orders and sold on speculation for 20 per cent on or of the face. There are between $1,000 and $5,000 worth of these orders now in existence and by the legislature's enactment they all come to life again at their face value. It means that the amount will go on the tax rolls in both Leelanau and Charlevoix counties and will have to be assessed by the county boards of the two counties back upon the property of the islands. In the case of the Neally Manitou, located the property there has come into possession of Reid F. Newhall & Sons, Chicago, and the senior Newhall announces that he considers the enforcement of the tax equalizing from making the orders collectable as impartial and that he will contest payment.

She H. Brown was told by one of two good lawyers how they in their opinion the orders could not be collected, upon being confronted.

Anyway Tuesday the local representatives will find out how far points to thwart the good south states man in his finding of the deal upon his conscientiously have. Gaylord's feed and will have something to explain to some of the islanders when they come up again for office.

Representative Hastings said this afternoon to an Eagle reporter that he was not aware of the import of the bill passed, further than that Senator Palmer was anxious for it to pass and as he informed it was to bring about a settlement between the islands as the county of Manitou and the counties of Charlevoix and Leelanau.

Probate order of Hearing.

State of Michigan, County of Charlevoix—ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix, at the Probate office, in the City of Charlevoix, on Monday, the twelfth day of May, A. D. 1901.

Present, Hon. Frank W. Nichols, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Mary Ann Wilson, deceased, late of the city of Charlevoix, in said county and state of Michigan.

On reading and filing the petition of Ward Wilson, praying that the administration of said estate be granted to Frank Wilson or to some other suitable person.

It is ordered that the 3rd day of June, A. D. 1901, at 10 o'clock a. m. be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be held at the Probate office, in the City of Charlevoix, and show cause why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted; and it is further ordered that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county of Charlevoix, for three successive weeks previous to said time of hearing.

SCHOOL COMMIT COLUMN.

E. W. CHEW, EDITOR.

In the high school debating contest between three pupils of the Charlevoix High school and three of Petoskey High school, held in the central school building in Charlevoix, last Thursday evening, the award was given by the judges to the Charlevoix school. The score standing 272 points for Petoskey and 277 in favor of Charlevoix.

The question under debate was: Resolved that the Constitution be left self extending in new territory. Petoskey, affirmative, Charlevoix, negative.

The judges were A. W. Chew, E. M. Sly and Mrs. E. M. Sly, all of Bay Shore, and they found themselves in the dilemma of deciding between two very evenly divided teams.

Seven phases of the contest were taken into consideration by the judges, who sat in different parts of the room, and upon coming together for the final decision found their markings to be very nearly together. As to the fact, whether the Constitution follows the flag or the flag follows the Constitution, these judges left with the supreme court. The young debaters used good logic.

The commissioner is visiting the Beaver Island schools this week. The islands have four schools, two of them two-room schools and all well provided for except the Garden Island school which cannot secure a teacher at times when most needed.

—Attorney Lute Donahue went to Traverse City Tuesday.

—Hube "Arrington" has a new champion in Charlevoix.

—Tom has a new display in his advertising space this week.

—Capt. John Beattie goes to Chicago to-morrow in the steamer Illinois.

—The bridge contractors are here and at work putting together the new superstructure.

—The Sun knocks Hube. Hube will cool an elevator and will at least freeze the Sun.

—Miss Jessie Cavanaugh of Boyne City has been the guest of Miss Frank Hendricks this week.

—Sam Shapton has just received from Gaylord a Lorenzo's Progress City shoe, an elegant instrument, large wide weight.

—Sailors' union company, with Hube Dodge the main member, is going to open up shop in the green of Big Hughes, Saturday, June 15th and thereafter.

—Capt. Charles of the Charlevoix Co. is satisfied with the condition of the pier cribs. From all accounts no parts of the cribs looking exceptionally well.

—The president of the state fish commission is about looking for a site for a fish hatchery. He has not been here yet, but Charlevoix may put in a bid for the location, it is hoped.

—Sunday Sleek, Mr. was present for the sermon given on Monday night that really deserved better treatment. Discourse "Origin" given, Hall Dodge to take chair specialists. "No case, no charge." Sure the Hall Brand is very fashion, the component of which are a mystery to every profession.

—In the special session commencing June Tuesday, the legislature is to level the character were passed by a vote of 25 to 23. Bonds will be issued for the sum of $2,000,000 and a special building erected that amount and appropriate the entire balance of the unexpended balance of the present building.

—The dead body of John Plaus was found in a cemetery in Kearney township, Antrim county, Monday. He had on his nearby the signs to his death from an overdose of opium, mostly morphine. There certainly was a plan, and the wife lost, gone now. The cause of his death is not known, as the body was badly decomposed.

—The Boyne Herald of last week in its report of the Charlevoix Hydraulic gives us that quite recently some very related language toward the Charlevoix town. We don't know whether the editor is old enough to play bad or not, but probably fashion is about his size—or, perhaps, a small rubber ball, with a string attached to prevent its being washed away.

—Activity of the entire year along the line is now the order of the day in Charlevoix. The hotels are being overhauled and fitted up for opening next week. Flower beds and gardens are receiving attention and the golf links are being mapped down in the lawn growers. Already the varnishes of the resort sense are annoying by loud and full, and the season promises to soon be upon us.

—Children's Week company, with 100 people, will be the local attraction at the opera house, opening on Monday, June 17, for three nights only. Prices 25, 35 and 50 cents. The great child worker "Daddy Dolly" is one of the great features of this company. Any day, accompanied by report and any part 50 cent ticket will be admitted free on Monday night if seats are reserved before 7 o'clock. Seats now on sale at Watson's store.

—In the Maritime century order matter the legislature strutted at a casual and brought forth a kiss. At considerable expense to both counties Charlevoix and Leelanau, the board provided for in the act convened here last week, with H. C. Cooper as chairman, and D. F. Sleech as secretary. Orders aggregating $7,385 were placed before the board, which, after consideration, were disallowed. This shows up a case which involves some of which were on the illegal, and all outlawed.

—N. A. Shoen is out on "section 23," near Twin Lakes, establishing a camp for the Charlevoix Lumber Co., where 1,000 cords of bark will be got out this season.

—Miss Ruth Smith has signed contract to teach at Central Lake the next school year. Miss Pearl Dartt, who, with Miss Smith, taught at South Arbor last year, also goes to Central Lake.

—There were three excursions here last Sunday, with two brass bands—Inland Forest came on the Crystal, Harbor Springs on the Uval Agitator, and Petoskey on the Chicago. The others, in the afternoon, consoled wonderfully 4th of July celebration.

—F. P. Hine, a Pere Marquette baggageman, was the victim of an accident one yesterday. He was assisting to coupling an engine to the pile-driver car when in some manner his foot got under the wheels, and was badly crushed. Dr. Armstrong took off one toe, and he may lose more. He was taken to his home in Grand Rapids on the afternoon train.

A gang of men are at work cutting two passages through the railroad embankment under the track to Lake Ann at the Belvedere. One to be taken and the other for pedestrians, and both are for the accommodation of Belvedere guests.

—It was field day last Thursday for the Charlevoix and Petoskey high school kids, and they joined, on the Charlevoix grounds, in a series of contests, notwithstanding very inclement weather. Vaulting, jumping, running, and other athletic sports, was the order of the day to which the Charlevoix lads carried off the honors, Petoskey taking only a few footers, lemons, bright and very noisy crowd of boys.

—A Indian's Day was observed on Sunday at the congregational church. The pastor preached in the morning on the subject, "Immortal Religion," taking the text, "Then David returned to Bless His Household" (2 Samuel 6:20). In the evening the Sunday School gave an interesting service entitled "Looking Forward," an interesting and sacred feature of the service was the baptism of 14 young people ranging on age from infancy to 14 years. The congregations were good all both services, and the evening offering for Sunday School Missionary work amounted to $17.

—A big house again greeted Saturday's efforts of the last evening at the opera house. Their presentation of "A Gambler's Wife" was at that time the finest. The scenery is of a uniform rough life, but the laughter element was all been stimulated, keep laughing, whenever play, full of high class comedy, interesting sketches and exciting climaxes. The audience showed, laughed and cried. The company certainly showed excellent taste in staging "A Gambler's Wife" in their splendid repertoire. Baby Daily proved a prominent one in the piece to such a manner as to excite sympathy and admiration. Every opportunity was great. The entire performance was one of the most pleasing entertainments ever presented in this city.—Cadillac Tribune.

—Progress is being made rapidly on the East Jordan & Southeastern Railroad. Better than three miles of the right of way has been cleared, and considerably over a mile of it is all ready for the tracks and ready for the steel. Some of the steel has already been laid, but the steel gang will not begin until the grading gang gets a bigger start. A large force of men and teams is at work on the Mackinaw end, and the grade is already across the east and west road running by the C. S. Smith farm, and is rapidly approaching Cedar River. On this end Bert Trail has taken the contract for clearing the line for two miles east, and he has now reached a point directly south of the fair grounds. Trains will be running by July 15—about six weeks from now, and invitations to visit East Jordan on a free excursion have already been given to members of the local town boards, village council and others.—Bellaire Independent.

FROM

POORHOUSE TO PALACE

BY MARY J. HOLMES

CHAPTER XVI.

"Oh, mother, I wish I could make this call now from my head and my another time," said Mrs. Hunter, as she saw the tears start into her eyes. "I'm so tired, and my head aches so much, I scarcely know what I am saying." "Oh, dear, my poor child," said Mrs. Lincoln, as with soothing words and tones she did pass back the hair from her forehead, and kissed her lips and eyes, and then, as she saw how tired and weary she was, she bade her go to her room and lie down for the rest of the afternoon, promising to send her some tea and toast by and by. Long before Jessie was ready to leave her room, the tea and toast had come and gone, and she had stayed all alone in her room, and had slept and rested and refreshed herself, so that when her mother came to her room at dusk, she was quite herself again.

"Now, Jessie, I want you to tell me all about your morning call, and what you thought of Mrs. Hunter," said her mother, as she sat down on the bed and took her daughter's hand in hers.

"Oh, mother, I don't know what to tell you about it, for I was so tired and nervous that I scarcely knew what I was about. I think she looked at me very curiously, and I felt as if she was trying to see how much I was worth, and I thought that I succeeded very well in making her think I was a lady, and that I was not ashamed of my relations, for I did not mention the fact that I was a poor girl myself, and that my father was a drunkard. I felt that I was ashamed of my relations from the way she looked at me, and I felt that I could take care of them alone, and that I stood in no need of her assistance, or anybody else's assistance, for that matter. I felt that I could take care of myself, and I felt that I could take care of my mother, too, if she would only be quiet and let me do what I think best. I felt that I could make a home for us both, and I felt that I could make a living for us both, too, if I could only have my own way. IS NOT RECIPROCAL.

DEFECTS OF THE SPECIAL TRADE TREATY PLAN.

Convincing Reasons Why the Proposed Scheme of Commercial Reciprocity Would Not Operate to the Advantage of the United States.

In the concluding portion of the second lecture on "Economic Aspects of Imperialism" delivered by Mr. John P. Young of the San Francisco Chronicle before the College of Commerce of the University of California, certain phases of the practical workings of the Dingley plan to the United States are presented with marked contrasts and force. The task of certainly in the matter of reciprocity probably attends the operation of special trade treaties is made so simple and obvious as to the question of enlarging our trade with foreign countries. The question of revenue is held comparatively low in comparison where engaged the enactment of a tariff law, and the schedules are so adjusted as to insure with reasonable accuracy an amount of revenue which, added to that derived from internal revenue, will meet the requirements of the government. Not so in the case of schedules altered by reciprocity treaties. Under these special commercial conventions it under those treaty arrangements the duties on certain articles are mutually diminished, to gains be the revenue. Moreover the consequences of this kind of tariff tinkering may prove to be disastrous, for as Mr. Young points out, if we reduce the duties on Lumber we may sugar to import the exportation of American machinery, how shall we then compete with Canada in other sugar producing countries without exciting jealousies and complaints? In order to escape this kind of friction, we make the reciprocity treaty uniform with all countries, as we must in the long run when the success of the revenue from sugar duties."

Another point in the closer inquiry, since is emphasized by Mr. Young, is this consideration, namely, that while tariff laws may easily be repealed or amended at any session of any congress, commercial conventions concerning contracts and obligations very different in character and effect. Treaties entering into a bone long after their workings are recognized as of the world importance, at least the process of adjusting commercial treaties is a slow and tedious one, and the effort to impart rigidity in a direction where flexibility is highly desirable.

A reciprocity treaty is not necessarily reciprocal. It may prove to be quite the reverse. Mr. Young cites the disproportionate case of wine producers and France growing who were promised protection for their industry and are now satisfied to let in as are the makers of machinery. We enter into an arrangement with a foreign country which contemplates an increased purchase on our part of foreign wines and prunes and an increased sale on our part of machinery. This may or may not prove to be the outcome under the arrangement. It is quite possible that the Frenchmen will want an additional quantity of wines, and prunes without the machinery, from us as additional quantity of machinery. The practical workings of reciprocal trade arrangements may thus prove to be far from reciprocal. Mr. Young raises the question whether it is not an economic blunder to make our exchanges from enhancing to make our trial trade treaties to market their surplus product in foreign countries and thus protect the creation in underlapped lands of facilities which would enable the people of those lands to supply themselves with articles of iron, and at the same time compel the domestic consumer to buy our own counter to assist in this work of depletion by charging him more for what he uses of the product thus finned into that the foreigner is compelled to pay. Herein is suggested an aspect of the reciprocity idea which the trust makers have certainly overlooked.

Of course, on thorough and close searching a student of cause and effect in economics as Mr. Young knows himself to be would not pass by the sentiment point concerning the free definition of reciprocity as expounded in the national Republican platform. He directs attention to the fact that in many statements the Republicans have always insisted that the reciprocity consists in the exchange of non-competing products. This idea is fathered by the advocates of tariff tinkering by trade treaties with a pretence that carries it out of the domain of sophistry and places it in the category of intentional suppression.

The favorite theory of British Colonies and Free Traders that if we wish to trade with foreigners we can only hope to do so by buying from them as well as selling to them is exposed by Mr. Young as scarcely worthy of serious consideration in view of the first commerce or the growth in the statistics of our foreign trade in the last four years of anti-protection. "Such a contention" says Mr. Young, "warrant no such a serious answer. Individuals and organizations of intelligent brains as nations do not buy things to please the persons purchased from; they buy because they need the things bought. To buy for any other purpose would be absurd, to buy merely to make trade bilks would be uneconomic and therefore silly." Emphasizing this point, Mr. Young brings his lecture to a close by an illustration borrowed from an article which appeared some months ago in the American Economist and which he quotes, as he says, "in the full confidence that the sentiment and honour of it will do far more to suggest the fallacies of the advocates of reciprocity trade than any arguments I have been able to produce." The story quotes a chat of a merchant in a small Ohio town, a town who kept a little store where cribbed patrons were children. The shopkeeper, wishing to stimulate business and to establish reciprocal trade with his little customers, proceeded to distribute gratuitously among them one hundred peanuts. The result was a marked increase in business activity. He distributed an other dollar in the same way. Result more in proportion. Now, however, he came to take stock and count the money in his till, he found that the number had not increased perceptibly while his stock of candy and trinkets had materially diminished. As he planned it his depleted shelves had thoughtfully refilled his hand, he remarked: "Do what Three would such profit in it, but there ain't no denying that it made trade mighty brisk while it lasted." That little anecdote might furnish food for thought on the part of those who are anxious to advocate the enactment of such trade treaties for the extension of foreign trade.

THE PUZZLE OF ECONOMISTS.

Free Traders Would Reduce Scale Duties Because of Importations.

The newest puzzle for those who are called economists in the authorship of the Republican policy which to three years has contributed to cut the rest of the world FIVE-AND-SIX more than we purchased during the three years which ended June 30, 1896 in which must be added THE MONEY for the five year which will end with next June. After they have accounted for all of this cash drain which the rest of the world gives or has owed us, they find that a large portion of it has not been paid out, but has been loaned around. Economists as they are called often grown at popular misconclusion but there for no one of them has accounted for spectacle that America alone giving functions the world with hundreds of millions of dollars annually. The puzzle is how in Europe to liquidate the indebtedness accruing to America regardless of credits. One of them who is a Free Trader suggests that the only way the volume of our exports, such to enable us to do so, since we have made that Europe can liquidate a much lower price and the increased trade balance will be nothing an investment which we are now manufacturing in Europe to a considerable extent which will satisfy among the home market. This suggestion is not a novel idea, the latter of which "man of merchandise" and have had their employees or citizens use their services to want in order to enable foreign nations to buy. Trade balances are nonsensical. They would be economics with a vengeance. There is reason to believe that there is no present cause for war such as the Spanish war. Because to pay or what is owing. Foreign credit is not our trade balance. The only barter of the world against the Pacific plans. It was not a large amount that was owed, and Indians are not the offer to be wealthy—enough to drain all the food from the country produced and stock of the cities. For years this drain upon the resources of the country to the surface stock of precious metals made money tight and the rate of interest much higher than those in Europe. For years we purchased more of our true, substantial goods, cotton, iron, in Europe, and had their set of our goods. Now we generally take equal than been kept at home. Now the situation has changed. Under the Republican policy the country seems to produce in abundance the articles we used to make an exchange of trade for leaving. For years we paid high prices of tariffed in the shape of our manufactures for goods purchased abroad and the value of those we sold. Then we were a debtor nation and paid the penalty of such disadvantage and would be similar in now. If the self-sealed, economists would have their way. Now we have become the world's creditor nation. If our decision caused gold out into the rest, interest in the rest of the United States.—Indianapolis Journal.

Commencement.

The M. E church was crowded Thursday evening, on the occasion of the graduating exercises of the class of '01.

No previous educational event surpassed this in cause for congratulation. The class acquitted itself in a manner that demonstrated its good work as students, and the excellent work of faculty of the Charlevoix High School. These events do more than to afford the graduating class an opportunity to exhibit the mental equipment—they put the teachers on trial, as well as the pupil, and this trial brought honor to Prof. Tice and his assistants.

The class of '01 join the Alumni of the Charlevoix High. Second adding honor to their school and to the Alumni.

The Alumni banquet to the class at the Elston Hotel Friday evening, while designed chiefly as a social event, contributed a large share of the intellectual enjoyment that comes with the close of the school year. The banquet was of that high grade that characterizes that excellent hostelry. The decorations and table embellishments were tastefully and profuse.

H. Lee Hilliggs was the toastmaster, and that gentleman's address at the opening possessed that force and appropriateness that could only result from a member of the school board intellectually capable of leadership in and intellectual revel. The program of responses was as follows.

To the Class of '01	Hunter Kirby
The Seniors	Mary Dawes
The Seniors—1902	John Cameron
Education	Rev. Jas. Hastings
Our Teachers	Inez Sargent
Farewell	Supt. J. M. Tice

The events to all regards were up-to-all previous records, and as a social and celebration of the day dear to the student's heart will go into our school history as joyous, truthful and elevating.

The Harbor Springs steamer Search left was here Saturday putting on a new wheel.

The tug Newell Avery, Capt. Wm. Cross, is over on the north shore at Naubinway making up a raft of pulpwood.

A self-propelling scow with material for the breakwater at the life saving station arrived Monday. Work was begun Tuesday morning.

The steamer Nestorian arrives at Harbor Springs from Buffalo today. The steamer Cummings runs an excursion from here to Harbor Springs.

The U. S. steamer Search, Capt James Beaupre, arrived here Sunday. The Search has on board a coast and geodetic survey party, which is engaged in a survey of this shore of Lake Michigan. They will be engaged on the north end all summer and will make Charlevoix the headquarters of the steamer. The Search was formerly owner's famous Herbert yacht Inquirer. She was bought by the government at the outbreak of the last war, and served as a dispatch boat between Tampa and Havana. At the close of the war she was sent to the lakes for the use of the engineer department.

The captain of the steamboat Emma E. Thompson got himself into serious trouble Saturday by overloading his boat. He came down from the transfer dock in the evening with a deck load that reached the pilot house. Coming across the harbor she careened so badly that she threatened to go over. The captain had been up at Wilson's dock against which she laid with a bad list. Then the captain began coaling up on the listed side. Very soon she keel took a slide inboard and the deckload took a slide deckward. When the tump was over a good portion of the deckload was in the water alongside the dock, and about fifty feet out the large lay with her decks under water. The dry lumber in her hold kept her afloat, and she was towed with a raft for a sloping bank, and she brought up decks just above water. She was pumped out Sunday and on Monday took on part the deckload and proceeded to Milwaukee.

COURT WILL DECIDE

Whether Those Manitou County Orders are Valid.

Treasurer City Records. The matter of those disputed orders of Manitou county, which has so agitated Leelanau and Charlevoix counties, will go into the courts for settlement, and from present indications it is believed that there is a strong probability that the act of the legislature will not be sustained. The bill introduced by Senator Palmer was originated by Attorney Kane of Charlevoix, who holds about $800 worth of the orders which the bill is designed to reinstitute. Several hundred dollars with besides are held by other persons of Charlevoix and more by parties outside the county.

A hearing upon the claims was given before the board of auditors in Charlevoix this week and Prosecutor Bunting, Treasurer Hoxsie and Clerk Hinkson returned from there today. They went to Charlevoix for the purpose of protesting against the claims which they held have a big, long, old, lawful, sail besides that many of the orders were irregularly issued. Some of them were issued when the board of supervisors was not in session and some are signed only by the clerk of the board, when the signature of the chairman is alleged to have been necessary to make them valid when issued. Some date as far back as 1881. At the hearing Prosecuting Attorney Bunting of Leelanau county and Prosecuting Attorney Nicholas of Charlevoix county both took the ground that these old claims could not be reinstated by the legislature owing to the fact that the six years under the statute of limitations had long ago elapsed. The claims, of which about $1,300 was presented, were all disallowed, and now the matter will go before the circuit court in Charlevoix county, if the August term.

Manitou county originally comprised the Beavers, the Fox islands and north and south Manitou islands. When the county was disorganized the Manitous and Fox islands were made a part of Leelanau county and the Beavers and adjacent islands a part of Charlevoix. The orders in dispute originally amounted to about $7,000 when the final settlement of the affairs of Manitou county were made. About $3,000 of this amount was subsequently paid by Leelanau county upon a judgment and it is claimed that there are still outstanding orders aggregating nearly $2,000 which Leelanau and Charlevoix counties will have to pay should the report of all the legislature be declared constitutional.

It is stated that many of these orders were bought up at about 25 cents on the dollar for speculation and that the purpose of the bill was to secure pay from the legislature authority. There is a fine point involved and it is more than likely that the question will have to be decided by the supreme court. In any case Leelanau county is determined to fight those claims with the utmost vigor.

Senator Palmer was asked relative to his bill by the Record, and he stated that he did not understand that Leelanau county was liable for any of the claims, and he supposed that that county had had a full settlement.

Representative Hastings did not fight the bill because he did not understand that Leelanau county's interests were involved.

Teachers' Examination.

The next regular teachers' examination for Charlevoix county for second and third grade certificates will be held at Boyne Falls on June 20 and 21. Examinations will commence at 8:30 a. m. sharp, standard time.

A. W. Chase, School Com.

East Jordan Enterprise: The county is getting up a good way building on the County Poor Farm. The house is up and enclosed and the roof will be put on this week. A stone basement six feet in height is made under the entire building, which is larger, roomy and well adapted to the purpose for which designed. The barge on the farm are looking exceedingly fine this year.

The Arena claims that the water of Boyne river possesses remarkable curative powers. The stream and its many small tributaries run for miles through dense cedar, spruce and tamarack swamps while some of the distributaries come from the hills washing over unknown chemical deposits. George Kayne, now 82 years old, fell into the river seven years ago when he was crippled with rheumatism, and has not been troubled with the disease since. Frank Pierce, president of the village, has had a similar experience.

Dear class at Home

My dear letter will in all probability be dated from Malaloc, where our headquarters is expected to move in a few days. I hate most of my typewritten pages ready to pack.

The fourth and fifth districts departments of northern Luzon have been consolidated under Gen. Funston, Gen. Lotton home, and it is expected that Funston will make his headquarters here instead of at San Isadro, so as to be on the railroad. Malaloc is on the bay, just a few miles south of Manilla. Of course moving will be a hard job, but it will kill a few days time anyway, so that cloud has a silver lining.

Capt McRae captured Gen. Lawes yesterday. He has been a bad "hombre" and they have been chasing him pretty closely for a year now, but I guess the consul they sent got to him was with Co "A" got his wardrobe and private papers and took a couple of long distance shots at him one afternoon last fall. They disturbed his afternoon siesta, but failed to put their bullets in the much wanted gentleman. He has been in retirement until recently, when he came into Nomagany one night and endeavored the sun of the provincial governor of Batanes province and fired a number of shacks, since which time companies A, B and M, under Capt McRae, have been on his trail.

The third infantry is now garrisoning some 37 different stations in a territory about 20x40 miles—an average of three boys to a company, and lots of tarrying not garrisoned, which have to be patrolled and watched. The natives are scattered and so timorous that it is at times impossible to garrison them all, and on outlying forts, two or three miles from the garrison may be plundered and burned in safety, for the laborers will be peaceful amongst few or an ugly row from the scene of the trouble by the time morning dawns and the news is notified but generally the useless element are being deprived of their leaders, and times are slowly but surely improving.

It is pretty hot nowadays, but we are living in hopes. The rain is due in an to eight weeks also the mosquitoes, more's the pity.

We move Monday or Tuesday. At Malaloc our railroad station will be Calvocera, a couple of miles distant. There will probably be no troops there outside headquarters and band. The place was one of the outlying of Manilla.

By the time this reaches the states they ought to have the new regular regiments pretty well organized in the U. S. I understand there are now 15 transports on the way between here and Frisco. A lot of discharged regulars are in Manila ready to get out because of the transports are needed for the volunteers. They expect to get transportation about July. The last I heard there were over 1,000 of them. The troops should be home from Cuba soon to help relieve the volunteers. The headquarters of the 1st brigade, 1st division, 8th corps, are now at Santa Cruz, Pilar, on the 6th day of the month of April, on the 6th day of the month of April, on the 6th day of the month of April

POORHOUSE TO PALACE

BY MARY J. HOLMES

CHAPTER XVII.

For some time after this Jane had her mountain climbs in the Hazy all to herself. Mr. Wilmington, when Henry Tillotson and Winnie Hatcher said he resided, was much a prisoner at home and house partner of the firm, and the other, as I mentioned, for his part, was just started on the business of engineering. Which, this engineering, which he had participated half-and-half in during his college days, was the thing I was to have done when I left Vassar, and I felt a little jealous of it, and of the fellow who was to do it, and of the fellow who was to do it with him, and of the fellow who was to do it with him and Jane. But I did, to see the country, take open their mouths and stare at city people, and William answering what he call naked questions "what he meant of beef."

"Mamma," said Winnie, who never was shame-faced and "sot" and then, but always was "sot" and then, "I don't know what I shall do if I don't see a real live man pretty soon. I don't mean Jane's father, nor Henry, nor the old man Hatcher, but I mean a man who has lived out and circulating as I have lived, and who can talk about the things I want to talk about, and who can dance and sing and play and know some people I know and that know people, or at least know of them, and who can talk about the operas and the theatres and the concerts and the books and the pictures and the things that people who live in the world talk about. Why, mamma, I don't know anybody in the world but you and Jane, and I don't know anything in the world but what I read in the papers and in the books, and I don't know how to do anything in the world but what I do every day, and I don't know what I shall do if I don't see a real live man pretty soon."

"Hush, child, hush!" cautioned her mother, who was sitting in a chair before the fire, and who was a little deaf, and who had heard Winnie's speech, and was very much shocked at it. "Hush, child, hush! Jane will be home in a few minutes, and I don't know what she will think if she hears you talking so about her father and her brother-in-law and her sister-in-law and her mother-in-law and her grandmother-in-law and her great-grandmother-in-law, and all her kin, and all her friends and acquaintances, and all the people she knows, and all the people who live in this town and in the world.

LESSON OF THE AGE.

TAUGHT BY ENGLAND'S PRESENT FISCAL POSITION.

The Leading Free-Trade Country in the World Finds Itself Sinking Deeper Into Debt at the Rate of Over Half a Billion Dollars in the Past Two Years.

England's enormous debt of $[illegible] for the two years 1908 and 1909, with its accompanying causes and effects teaches one of the most important economic lessons of the age. In spite of the abandonment of protection in 1846, England seemed to prosper for nearly thirty years, a condition due to the impetus of her six years of protection, just as a ball projected by force will roll up an incline till overcome by the law of gravitation. About 1876 England reached the point where she could no longer resist the inevitable law of commercial gravity, and, first coming to a standstill, slowly began rolling backward with increasing rapidity. Her enormous debt has increased her debt to nearly $[illegible] and with the anticipated new loans it will soon approximate $[illegible] or $[illegible] per capita as compared with $15 per capita in the United States. Does anyone imagine a continued blighted heritage, but a legacy to the least generation that will inevitably be welcome.

But this is not all. England is no longer loaning money to the world, she is borrowing abroad. She is making, from a creditor to a debtor nation. She is obliged to increase the volume of her trade and an adverse volume of trade. For the last five years she has been selling back millions of American securities, and her annual dividends and interest charges are increasing. She has gone backward in everything but her shipping, and that is the only thing she protects.

And it is needless to say that this shield is which England now hides herself is due to the South African war. That unholy enterprise increased expenditures and add to the national debt. But within the last three years the United States has conquered a much mightier enemy and has become an incentive. Yet we have a surplus in the treasury, and our finances are limping money not only to England but to Germany and other European countries.

Could we have done this in 1896? No. We had to borrow money then for ordinary expenses. Why could we do it a few years later? Because we enacted protection for free-trade. Because we began again to manufacture for ourselves. Because we employed our own people at American wages. Because our larger income of late years became a favorable balance to the amount of $[illegible] in gold and specie. We have not only added to our material wealth, but we have acquired a credit of $2,000,000,000 on the world's ledger, and a large part of it can be found in our account with Great Britain. And when we stop that tribute, which will of itself more than equal what we shall do still better off. It is now admitted that England was never in a worse plight and that she is drifting to financial ruin. Sir William Harcourt says she is worse off than at the close of the French war and Hamilton recent statement of Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, chancellor of the exchequer, was the most disastrous that the exchequer had ever made.

We need not concern ourselves over the outcome. It is not our concern. Let British economists and British politicians find out and apply the remedy. If one is to be had. But the lesson should be learned and studied. It is the more apparent because of the comparison with the business of the United States. We are today enjoying the greatest prosperity ever known by our own or any other people. We are more fully employed, we are producing and consuming more, we are wealthier more armed, we are increasing our foreign credit, we are reducing our national debt, we are loaning money to other nations, and best of all, we are maintaining and increasing the highest wage rate known to mankind.

And yet only five years ago all these conditions were reversed. The income is no result is need a refunding of our bonds. But the lesson to be drawn from a comparison of our national and individual conditions now and that and from a comparison with England's pitiable plight is only too full of meaning and moral.

We do not have to resort from unhallowed problems or guess at riddles. There are certain unerring truths established beyond question. One is that if we buy more than we sell we shall in time become bankrupt. Borrowing and bonds do not pay the bill. Another truth is that an individual or nation who is idle and does not produce an equivalent of what is consumed will soon become ruined. These two economic laws are the great lessons of the age, proved beyond question by actual results both at home and abroad. There is no need to study Adam Smith or John Stuart Mill today. Study the existing conditions of the past decade and the practical teaching will suffice for all. And it is the more important that we give heed to these great lessons, for there is a certain class among us who will always ignore truth and fail, and endeavor to teach precepts that lead to ruin. The free-traders, now combined into the Income trust, are scattering their pernicious doctrines over the land and boldly preparing to "capture congressmen" next year and so bring about doubt and restlessness in business, even though no free-trade bill could become a law.

Democrats might keep on good Nothing is gained by that.

Chicago is planning itself on being one of the best places in the country to study birds. Over 300 varieties have been seen outside of those in the cemeteries. Shoot chamber.

The cold weather in the Adirondacks killed bugs dead in the past season than the entire multitude of hunters did last fall.

AT THE VOLCANO'S CRATER.

Auctioneers Reached Its Brink and Were Then Photographed.

A party of Americans touring in Mexico recently accomplished the unusual feat of ascending to the edge of the crater of Mount Popocatapetl, the famous volcano, of the North American continent. A member of the party in describing the trip says the crater is a massive pot well worth a hard journey to see. "A large and gloomy pit it is, he says. "It shows white sulphur and poisonous smoke also issues, and he perspiration of the party was pouring in a stream a little fast. At the volcano's small base of crumbled granite we rounded to velvet-like looks and frequently of delicate shape. At the top there is a rocky ridge of rock at the crater's edge, from which we made our photographs of the crater and upon which we were photographed. I did not observe any fish, only to leave a party of enthusiasts for cream of heart action, but several members of the party were panting painfully, and were hardly able to speak. One of my companions told me that he could feel the heart thumping in his throat and temples. The temperature was very cold, but it seemed to be modified somewhat by the natural warmth of the crater and we were protected against the ice wind volcano."

AUTHORS' COUTHIVANCES.

To Get Inspiration They Resort to Peculiar Methods.

It is said that Dr. Dole writes best sermons in and take on appearances peculiarly given that Dole takes a sense of the internal frame of things her work. Dr. Dole takes a sense of the internal frame of things her work. Dr. Dole takes a sense of the internal frame of things her work. "Ready for market," Johnson walks 10 miles daily on foot before lunch with a pocket full of pebbles. He does particularly well for working for the day before breakfast, universally lotted or late and at odd or at a clock in the morning which, on the other hand, does all its working at night. He uses a violet ink which he says affords him inspiration and he is out of sorts if compelled to use ordinary black ink. H. G. Wells prefers the world to the morning and to rise it early morning. He is a great walker when he does not use his week. "The Invisible Man" as he first wrote it occupied but 60,000 words, but when he sent it to the publisher it contained 120,000 words. Mr. Wells is an enthusiast on the whole when at work, and seems unable a sort of paroxysm of sneezing and an odd fine and demeanor grows in vigor. Henry Irving, an Irishman, is a great author, and he writes with the windows open, for harmoniously furnished room fitted with sunshine and fresh air, stimulated quantity in her very best and most expensive clothes. Yet she needed to have perfect silence. Even the scratching of a second pen affected her to distraction, so that she and Mr. Lewes had to work apart. Tennyson was equally sensitive to external sounds. In his poetry house is an air-tight sound-proof room, within is had built for a study. Walls, ceiling and floor are lined with rock 18 inches thick.—New York Press.

SAVED TWO FROM DEATH.

"Our little daughter had an almost fatal attack of whooping cough and bronchitis," writes Mrs W. S. Hartland, of Newark, N. Y., "but when all other remedies failed we saved her life with Dr. King's New Discovery. Our mother, who had consumption in an advanced stage, also used this wonderful medicine and today she is perfectly well." Desperate throat and lung diseases yield to Dr King's New Discovery as to no other medicine on earth. Infallible for Coughs and Colds. 50c. and $1 bottles guaranteed by F. G. Hines & Co. Trial bottles free.

SHOE SUPPORT SERVICE.

A Growing Industry in the Big Department Stores.

Each year sees an increase in the "social service" of the big shops. According to a trade journal each department in each department store pays its corps of special service detectives and workers. The best of the department is the head of the corps. It is his first duty to keep himself up on the doings of all competitors. The walks of his private office are lined with the advertisements of rival shops. That each advertised article may be carefully examined, shoppers are at once dispatched to purchase them—from the Woman's Home Companion down to the tender bedtime at 12.50 worth, double. There is a regular staff of these shoppers, some of whom never come near the house, but communicate by letter entirely with the department. In one store each the finest journal, "these purchases are returned and in exchange for what is known as "Room No. 2." Here the goods are examined by the house as to a fair value to an inch. Many a department head has suffered complaints on the reach of deliberations in that court room. The object of keeping such close watch is not alone to be assured upon the fairness of trade, but to compare the merits of various buyers."

Lifeplasm in Liberia.

Lifeblock longest telephone line has just been built between Monrovia, capital of the country, and Willie Hicks, a prominent native, five miles up the St. Paulo river. It was constructed by a civil engineer from the United States. "Into the black country, which was founded under American auspices nearly years ago, has taken another stride forward toward that goal with American of such slavery days finally hoped would be reached to the benefit of the negroes and as well the rest of the United States.

TRAVELING MAN FINDS WEALTH IN AN OLD TRUNK.

Envelopes Supposed to Contain Love Letters Have in Their Most Valuable Stocks and Bonds—Five Thousand Escape From Burning Church, Neb., Intact.

William Wagner, a traveling man of New Haven, Conn., has just stumbled a fortune in a most unusual way. While examining trunks in old lumber rooms in his boyhood home, he found a bundle of letters. Thinking them a bunch of valueless stuff, he put the bundle in his pocket and forgot all about it. Later, while looking for a receipt, he found the envelope and opened it. He found it contained stocks and bonds to the value of $50,000. The letters were from his father, who died in New York. New Haven and Hartford Railroad stock comprised the bulk of the holdings, but Adams and United States Express stock were among the other securities. Wagner succeeded in recovering from the railroad company the dividends on the stock, which had been left to accumulate since the death of his father, and he now is in the market with the securities, which are payable to bearer.

Secret Service Men Eight Counterfeiters in Chicago—Two Cases Solved.

Captain Porter and officers of the United States secret service became the joint possessor of a suspect at the Dearborn station in the Metropolitan elevated road on Chicago they have captured one of the leaders of a gang of counterfeiters that has been flooding the city with spurious coin. The prisoner, whose name the secret service men refuse to divulge, was accompanied by a companion, who escaped. The counterfeiter was detected by a short-cut swindle in the hands of Clay Porter, who has been charged by the secret service men with passing counterfeit money in exchange for goods, learned that the man he was carrying would arrive at the elevated station at 7 o'clock. At that hour two men appeared, both wearing slouch hats, pulled over their eyes. Trailing the stranger, which contained one of them so well, he his right he dropped a counterfeit which was picked up by the officers. His companion was secured. In a mail 100 pieces bogus money was taken from him.

VON WALDERSEE'S RECALL.

State Department at Washington Receives Notification from Berlin.

The State Department at Washington has been informed by the German government that in view of the favorable representations Field Marshal Count von Waldersee, on duty in China as commander-in-chief of the allied forces, would be recalled. Nothing was intended in the notification about the withdrawal of the large German military force in China, but it was stated that it was not clear that Count von Waldersee would be left in command of the German forces. There is some demand for his recall from the German Diet and Count von Waldersee has been involved in shorter transports. Some go direct suggestion has been made that the Kaiser may appoint a Count von Waldersee as commander-in-chief of the allied forces in China. Tuesday afternoon, the 17th of July, was selected by the commanders and that the United States would not be represented in the ceremony. Instead of this the government in Washington has decided to have a separate ceremony from the commander-in-chief of the allied forces in China. The United States forces at Pekin has been reduced to a battalion and possessing of two companies under Maj. Robertson.

NO EXTRA SESSION.

ANNOUNCED THAT CONGRESS WILL NOT BE CALLED.

Cabinet Holds that President's Military Authority Is Ample for All Purposes in the Philippines—Methods in Porto Rico Satisfactory.

Washington correspondence.

There will be no extra session of Congress. That question was settled at the cabinet meeting Tuesday. Secretary Root and Attorney General Knox entered in expressing the opinion that there was nothing in the recent decisions of the Supreme Court which need alter the authority given the place through laid down for the government of the Philippines. A tribe of civil government for the islands will be established as soon after July 1 as it can possibly be done. There will be a distinction from the organization of the Porto Rican system. The Porto Rican system is not to be civilian in all its features. It has been felt that the President ought to be given a large discretion in the matter of the war power of the government. It will be made local, and provisional governments, but each of these will be given to authority from the powers of the President as measures shall be taken.

There will be no limit to the time during which the government in the Philippines, and after a while it will be entirely civilian, and the military will be manned. It has been felt that the President ought to be given a large discretion in the matter of the war power of the government. CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOLUME XXXIII. CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, JUNE 27, 1901. NUMBER 14

Charlevoix Sentinel.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.

NO MOTIONS:

Judge Mayne Hands Down Decision Sustaining Injunction

On Monday afternoon Judge Mayne handed down his decision in the case of F. W. LaPeere vs. the Village Council of the Village of Charlevoix, brought to restrain said council from installing compulsory electric meters. The decision, the text of which we publish below, sustained the injunction:

State of Michigan. The Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix.—In Chancery.

Complainant in his bill alleges two reasons why injunction should be granted.

1. That the contemplated action of defendants impairs the obligations of a certain contract which he claims to hold with one Charles Gabriel.

2.—That the village of Charlevoix has already issued bonds to the amount of $15,000 in excess of the amount authorized by law, and that the meters are to be purchased upon the credit of the village, that the obligation to be created is in excess of the amount authorized to be raised by taxation or by loan.

Complainant further alleges that he is a taxpayer and real estate. the landlords motive to dissolve the temporary injunction prior to answer. By so doing defendants admit the allegations in the bill and they are to be taken as true for the purposes of the motion. At the hearing the facts stated in the bill relative to the amount of money raised and borrowed was not questioned, and it is accepted as a fact that the defendant Village of Charlevoix has raised by taxation and by loan an amount of money in excess of that authorized by law, and that at the present time there are no bonds or loans on which an order could issue, in payment of those meters, could be paid, nor to retire it down, would have to be open some loan in which there is no money to meet the same. The reasons alleged at the hearing why injunction should be dissolved relate to the insufficiency of the bill, in that the facts were stated largely on information and belief and that the bill did not allege that compulsory leases would be increased in the amount of one hundred dollars and upwards. Under the authority of Hodge vs. Van Horen Circuit Judge, 118 Mich. 189, and cases cited, it would seem that complainants has the right to maintain his suit. The jurisdiction of equity where the title or enjoyment of real estate is involved, depends on the value of the land and not merely the amount of the claim asserted against it. In still other cases it is held that the value of the land need not be given, but equity will interfere if the injury will materially lessen the enjoyment of it by the owner.

In arriving at this determination, I have not considered the reasons urged by complainant concerning the injunction or his contract with Charles Gabriel, but have considered solely his rights as a taxpayer.

The injunction will be continued in force so far as necessary to prevent illegal expenditure of money for meters or expending money borrowed in excess of the provisions of law, or the purchase of meters upon credit not authorized by law, or upon any fund in which there is no money to meet the same; and to restrain the officers of said village from contracting an obligation, or issuing the bonds, or drafts or other evidences of indebtedness of said village, in violation of this order.

Complainant may amend his bill of complaint if he so desires in relation to the matters suggested by counsel for the defendant upon his hearing

Dated, this 17th day of June, 1901.

FREDERICK W. MAYNE,
Circuit Judge.

The Rebekahs.

The local Rebekahs have been enjoying themselves for last two weeks. On June 5 and 6 a large number attended the two days celebration of the 81st anniversary of odd Fellowship, at Petoskey.

Last week Mrs. Cornelia J. Crandall of Muskegon, president of the Rebekah Assembly, I. O. O. F., of Michigan, visited with Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Chapel, returning from Saturday on till Wednesday.

Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Francis gave a delightful tea on Pine lake in their large naptha launch to some of Mrs. Crandall, to a large party of Rebekahs and Odd Fellows, among them A. J. Sweet, grand master I. O. O. F. of Michigan.

On Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Chapel entertained all the past grands of Charlevoix Rebekah lodge and their husbands, who were all Rebekahs and F. O. Odd Fellows, viz: Mrs. Frona Cruikshank, Judge and Mrs. Mayne, Dr. and Mrs. Auld, Dr. and Mrs. Crouter, Mr. and Mrs. John Burns, Dr. and Mrs. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Hawks.

Tuesday Mrs. Crandall visited East Jordan Rebekahs, and was entertained, with other friends, by Dr. and Mrs. Armstrong at dinner Tuesday evening.

Tuesday night was the regular meeting of the Rebekah lodge and a very large attendance participated in the election, initiatory, etc., and especially enjoyed the refreshments, program and general good time afterward.

This was Mrs. Crandall's first visit to northern Michigan, and she expressed herself as delighted with our beautiful little city and the cordial welcome she received from all, when she hope to visit us many more and a more extended visit in the future.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Joseph Parks, one of Elk Rapids' most prominent men, died at his home in that place, after only a few days illness with pneumonia.

The Cameron Lumber Co. are said to be arranging to start a wood working novelty establishment, to work up some of their timber that now goes to waste.

Some years ago Henry L. Ward set out a big apple orchard near Grayling—one of the largest of not the very largest in the state. He finds this spring that about 2,000 of his trees have been girdled by mice or rabbits.

Traverse City Record: Joe Hinkley died Saturday morning at the age of 37 years at his home on Webster street of a complication of diseases. A private funeral was conducted Saturday afternoon by undertaker L. D. Curtis.

The little village of Ida, 10 miles southeast of Petoskey, is having quite a boom. The branch road built by Gibbs & Mitchell from Bayne Falls into that timber country has given its commissioners with the order would and Gibbs & Mitchell are spending considerable money in improvements.

Gov. Hilles has issued a warrant for the return to Jackson prison of Louis F. Arno, formerly of Antrim county, who was sent to the state prison for life for bludgeoning Pearl Hutter, but whose sentence was had December commuted to 15 years by Gov. Pingree, who subsequently pardoned the convict. Arno is now under sentence for embezzlement.

Elder Jordan Kirkpatrick, W. F. Empey returned here June 11th for a visit. He is located in the hotel business at Gowanda, N. Y. territory a town of 700 inhabitants in a good farming country. He reports an enormous emigration to that country and that it is a fair class place to a home. He is looking extremely well, and evidently the climate agrees with him.

Grand Traverse Herald: It is probable that inland Traverse fruit growers will have better shipping facilities this year than ever before. Mr. Kneeland, president of the association, is negotiating for advantageous terms for shipment over the new Milwaukee line, on the M. - N. direct to Milwaukee, instead of being compelled to ship to Chicago and then to Milwaukee.

At the Old Settler's meeting in Traverse City lately it was decided to make the next annual meeting at Elk Rapids. Immediately after dinner the officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, James J. McLaughlin, Elk Rapids; Vice Pres, Antrim, H. H. Lewis, Elk Rapids; Benzie, E. H. Bergquist, Charlevoix, W. A. Smith; Leelanau, Grant Traverse, E. L. Sprague, Traverse City; Kalkaska, A. E. Palmer; Leelanau, William Stone. Sec., Charles Elder; Treas., Lowell Smith, Elk Rapids.

East Jordan Herald: F. Montbriand, general manager of the Boyne and Charlevoix railroad was in town June 14 arranging to secure a few remaining pieces of right of way. He says he expects to move his crew of men in this place next week and at once rebuild the rest of the line from up some years ago. He says we may soon see regular service on this road. They will put on two trains daily as Frederick With the work on the East Jordan and Southern fly home rushing forward to an early completion and work commenced on the Boyne and Charlevoix road we are almost ready to believe that we are nearly out of the woods at last.

John H. Newman, for many years prominently identified with the growth and settlement of the west part of Antrim county, died at his home 224 Terrace Ave., Milwaukee, Wis., on May 30, after a long and painful illness, in his 59th year. In 1867 he bought out the interests of Wilcox & Sewall, and also Benjamin T. Goodman at Torch Lake, then known as Brown's town. In 1868, as the firm of Stillman & Hart, the manufacturers of lumber and cord wood and dealing in general merchandise was commenced, and on Hart's retirement in 1869, Mr. Silkman conducted the business alone until 1876, when he sold out to Cameron Brothers, now the Cameron Lumber Co.

SCHOOL COMM'R COLUMN.

The amended school tax will not be ready for distribution for school months. The superintendent of Public Instruction suggests that the commissioners have the amendments bonds public as soon as possible. The following are the most important amendments passed during session of 1901

1 Act No. 32 removes the minimum limit to school districts. The inspectors may make the district of any size into a township. See school laws of '99 page 12. Act taken effect Sept. 4, 1901.

2 Act No. 186 amends Section 14 of Act 151, laws of 1881, by providing that the sender shall keep a correct list of his pupils, grading and age of each. the number of days each pupil is present the aggregate attendance, average daily attendance and percentage of attendance and furnish the director with a copy of same at close of school. It also amends section 11 of the same act by inserting the words "the district board shall provide a water supply for pupils," in first line. Act taken effect Sept. 4, 1901. We have sent out to each township inspector a copy of the reports the directors will be make at the close of the present school year.

3 Act No 189 changes the word "excusses" wherever it occurs to "truancies." This act takes effect Sept. 4, 1901.

4 Act No. 82 amends sections 11 and 25 of Act 151 laws of 1881, by adding to section 11 "or with any members of the school board" after "the contract" and authorizing such person to teach" with two sufficient surety who shall be residents of the county" unless the treasurer shall furnish the bond if same exist), and to pay authorized to do business in this state. This Act taken effect Sept. 4, 1901.

5 Act No. 108 provides for the legal qualification of whole-period teachers also for money and drawing teachers and provides that the village that have provided outside of statutory law. This Act taken effect Sept. 4, 1901.

6 Act No. 45 provides that county commissioners of schools shall be elected for a term of four years beginning with 1901.

7 Act No. 85 provides that no order to be eligible for the office of School Inspector a person must have held within the three years preceding his election at least a second grade diploma or have taken rank in the office school at least nine months. This does not apply to present incumbents. Act was given immediate effect.

8 Act No. 99 amends sections 1, 2, 3, and 15 of act 142 of the laws of 1881.

Section 1 is amended so that there shall be four examinations in each year. The law conflicts with the dates already used on this (p. 9—5). Section 2 is amended by raising the minimum age for teachers from 17 to 18 years also by striking out the phrase "good written in any course but upon which a second grade certificate has been granted may upon request of the holder of such certificate be sent by the commissioner under seal to the commissioner of any county in which the holder of the certificate desires to teach and when such papers are received by the commissioner the clerk be entered in it written at a public examination in that county. This Act takes effect Sept. 4, 1901.

Again, the test has been made and the old Farmers' Mutual Fire Ins Co as usual, got to the front in double quick time.

About four o'clock p. m. on the night of June 4, 1901, one half mile west east from Charlevoix at the home of Hibbard S. Shapley, a fire occurred which destroyed his new house, and gold storage house, his house, some setting hens and a large number of small chickens, as also quite a large number of berry and potato crates, a mowing machine horse rake, and a lot of small farm implements. Also considerable damage to the barn, which was only saved from total destruction by the almost superhuman efforts of those at the fire.

On the 7th, that, the third day after the fire, his loss had been adjusted by O. E. Booth, secretary and Treasurer of the company, and Robert Tinsley, one of the directors and Mr. Shapley received a check from the Farmers' Mutual Fire Ins. Co. for $200, to pay said loss.

The fire was still smoking when Mr Shapley had the check for his loss in his pocket, and so far as I have been able to learn, that is just the way that all honest losses are adjusted, and paid by this company. And I want to say right here, brother farmers, that the old Farmers' Mutual Fire Ins. Co., with its 31 years experience and two million dollars stock is the one I am going to join.

One good, strong, healthy Farmers' Mutual Fire Ins. Co. in these three counties is all we need, all we want and in the end, is all that we shall have.

We want just one good home company one and controlled by the farmers themselves for their own especial benefit.

The territory completed in Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan counties, is ample to furnish enough stock for one good healthy company and more we do not need or want, why the double burden of expense which we farmers have to pay.

A state mutual fire insurance company cannot, and never has been made a success. (Some of you remember the Fenimonia of Jackson.) The territory is too large to get the careful supervision necessary for success. The men employed to do the work are inexperienced in the business, often reckless in their valuations, and only do it for the money there is in it for them. It is a good thing for the promoters and their agents to get up these ever county wide state companies, some fat offices to be filled by the favored few, and an poor devils of farmers feet the bills. None of it for me. TAXPAYER.

Harper R. Empire Dead.

Ex-Governor Harper S. Pingree died in London Tuesday night. He has been in that city for some time, and was accompanied only by his son, Joseph.

Mr. Pingree was a unique figure in the political history of Michigan. No previous governor of Michigan ever possessed the strong and striking personality of the man who has died at 1,000 miles from home. In the presence of death all criticism is hushed.

The people of Michigan without regard to politics, will sincerely regret his untimely taking off, and deeply sympathize with the stricken family.

An excellent program has been arranged, embracing a number of athletic games, a gun club shoot, and what will prove of special interest, a drill through the bend (if some gentl), a pain authorized to do business in this state. This Act taken effect Sept. 4, 1901.

5 Act No. 108 provides for the legal qualification of whole-period teachers also for money and drawing teachers and provides that the village that have provided outside of statutory law. This Act taken effect Sept. 4, 1901.

The territory is too large to get the careful supervision necessary for success. The men employed to do the work are inexperienced in the business, often reckless in their valuations, and only do it for the money there is in it for them. It is a good thing for the promoters and their agents to get up these ever county wide state companies, some fat offices to be filled by the favored few, and an poor devils of farmers feet the bills. None of it for me. TAXPAYER.

Harper R. Empire Dead.

Ex-Governor Harper S. Pingree died in London Tuesday night. He has been in that city for some time, and was accompanied only by his son, Joseph.

Mr. Pingree was a unique figure in the political history of Michigan. No previous governor of Michigan ever possessed the strong and striking personality of the man who has died at 1,000 miles from home. In the presence of death all criticism is hushed.

The people of Michigan without regard to politics, will sincerely regret his untimely taking off, and deeply sympathize with the stricken family.

Fourth of July.

The posters are out announcing the Charlevoix celebration of the 4th of July.

An excellent program has been arranged, embracing a number of athletic games, a gun club shoot, and what will prove of special interest, a drill through the bend (if some gentl), a pain authorized to do business in this state. This Act taken effect Sept. 4, 1901.

5 Act No. 108 provides for the legal qualification of whole-period teachers also for money and drawing teachers and provides that the village that have provided outside of statutory law. This Act taken effect Sept. 4, 1901.

6 Act No. 45 provides that county commissioners of schools shall be elected for a term of four years beginning with 1901.

7 Act No. 85 provides that no order to be eligible for the office of School Inspector a person must have held within the three years preceding his election at least a second grade diploma or have taken rank in the office school at least nine months. This does not apply to present incumbents. Act was given immediate effect.

8 Act No. 99 amends sections 1, 2, 3, and 15 of act 142 of the laws of 1881.

Section 1 is amended so that there shall be four examinations in each year. The law conflicts with the dates already used on this (p. 9—5). Section 2 is amended by raising the minimum age for teachers from 17 to 18 years also by striking out the phrase "good written in any course but upon which a second grade certificate has been granted may upon request of the holder of such certificate be sent by the commissioner under seal to the commissioner of any county in which the holder of the certificate desires to teach and when such papers are received by the commissioner the clerk be entered in it written at a public examination in that county. This Act takes effect Sept. 4, 1901.

Fowers explains his scrapbook to the public, cross against letters and postal cards making presents of assistance, for a small consideration, in his scrapbook, due to individuals and estates. In lieu of double payment of taxes contained in most cases through exemptions by the owners after the purchase of state tax certificates. It is a meritorious of this department to ascertain as to all amounts that are held by the state and due to individuals and estates and to remit such amounts with interest where interest is due as rapidly as possible. He suggests that such letters or postal cards or any information which they may possess relative to amounts due to be sent to Lansing, that the claim will be promptly adjusted in full.

—An accident that came near being fatal to two persons occurred here Saturday. A. J. Young, accompanied by his young son had just started out from the foot of Clinton street with the first new naptha launch, when the boat was discovered by those on shore to be on fire. The fire increased until the interior was entirely ablaze, and the occupants vainly endeavoring to extinguish the flames. Several boats started out from shore at about the same time that the U. S. revenue cutter started to the rescue. Capt. Davis called to "fire quarters" and lowered a hose with an officer and three men at the same time throwing three streams on the blazing launch. The Morrill soon drifted out of range, however, and the interior of the boat continued to furnish flame. Mr. Young and the boy had been taken off after being nearly burned. Mr Young's face and hands were so badly burned that he fainted after reaching Dr. Armstrong's office, the boy had one hand quite badly burned. Both are doing well. The accident was due to the carelessness of the naptha tank in the bow of the boat. In filling the tank the naptha ran over and gathered in a pool near the engine, contact with the electric spark set it ablaze, and the boat was always in danger of flame and such. What might have been" causes us to shudder. Had Mr. Young and his little boy reached Pine Lake or Lake Michigan before the accident occured, there would have been a heard, wife and mother in Charlevoix today.

FROM

POORHOUSE TO PALACE

BY MARY J. HOLMES

CHAPTER XIX.

The morning train bound for Albany stood in the depot, waiting the signal to start, and Miss Tabitha Hale, "a shawled" and satchelled a comfortable middle-aged dame, stowed away and frum it right in all her old Sunday Hoss cross-eyed Betsy had before her, and was just about to be off Portland, if I, the dear knows where I shall come to Albany, and all of that sort, when a voice called out

"HENRY PERKINS!

"How queer actually" was Mary's first exclamation, for her mortgagee, and grandfather were not very agreeable. "I'M A LIE AS THE DEVIL" cried Mrs. Campbell. "But it was true I make no than Hills was dead and I knew she could I suppose he had not forgotten, as he evidently remembered that what Mary was called the child of her own sister, she would have some about her, took and keeping her tips, saying, "My child—Mary—Mr. Hale I know this whose you are, and I know, too, that you are a good girl, and little Ally should never have left in the shadow. For your sake I have come to see you, for all that I have been so cross and Hilary."

Here Mrs. Campbell, Hill reached a new climax, and Mrs. Campbell's face was redder than before by the knowledge that she had cared for Ally, and was ashamed of her shabby orphan children.

"I know how wicked I have been, I did so scream toward Ally, and why her mother left her, I don't know, but I suppose it was because I was so cross. Mary—Mary—Mrs. Hale, I mean, I don't know what I shall do with you, I want to take you home with me, but I can't, for I have company coming, and

WHAT IS FAIR TRADE?

SCHEME TO CUT DOWN OUR BIG TRADE BALANCES.

Electoral Theories Urge Intimated Purchases of Foreign Goods to Offset Vast Our Exports and Impede Big Unpaid Balance Made Other

Eng. trade newspapers are quoting with emphatic approval the views expressed in the speech of the Hon. George E. Roberts, director of the mint, delivered recently before the Business Club of Chicago. Their approval appears from the tenor of their part that he is an expositor-in-his who has seen the error of his ways and is now anxious to be enrolled as an ardent advocate of free trade, if not of abolition free trade. The facts that in his address upon Mr Roberts said not one word which directly or by implication could be construed as in any manner recognizing the anti-protectionist tendency about which appeal to protection to be going about to a return of prosperity seems to have been accepted by the Times and other anti-protectionist issues as were proof of his change of mind. Perhaps, however, this is a possible that too much is taken for granted. It should not be forgotten that Mr. Roberts was talking to an assemblage of business men who make money by dealing in money. It was pleasant for the brokers to be told by the director of the mint that their income has been enhanced by the imposition of a duty on the meeting of international obligations by whatever an enormous gain could be made.

Mr Roberts did not think it necessary to tell that the prosecution of this trade meant the ruin of the domestic producers had been a factor of some moment in the recent prosperity in the business prosperity the world has enjoyed since the Dingley tariff was enacted, or, perhaps, he thought that it was not worth while to state a thing so obviously and commonplace true. Those who are engaged in writing historic is sometimes thought it worth to make question of facts and events of more trivial consequence than the stress placed by our economic transformation by the change in 1894 of a protectionist to another and the well-nigh complete of a protective tariff law. Although speaking to financial men only, Mr. Roberts might have been pardoned had he permitted himself to allude to the commercial details. But he did not take the risk.

The portion of Mr Roberts's Chicago address which has set the nerves of free traders tingling with peculiar excitation is that in which he said:

> Our exports last year exceeded those of the United Kingdom, and on other country approached either. Our trade balances are so great that it seemed to called them in cash would ruin our businesses and involve the world in disturbing consequences. In the last three years their aggregate has equaled the sum of all the gold in all the banks and treasuries of Europe, including the broken hoard of the foreign governments have come here to place their loans. A nation with the power to assess such tribute is thus bestowed by necessity a trader and investor in all parts of the world. We are not to say, for we money can bring our belongings home. This is an unpleasant and cheerful outlook. It is alarming and inspiring. It makes a broader feeling under our industries and outright from the questions of a restricted market. It means more intimate relations actual and on larger scale with the world. It means such such a development of national importance has never and, considered in humility as well, it will change the national view. It will broaden the national character. It will dignify the national life. As we strive to extend our trade we shall meet problems, and in overcoming them surrender some of our ease. We shall encounter difficulties and have to conciliate them, elaborate methods and have to change or relinquish as the occasion seems to require. In the long run, the safety of a great commercial and industrial nation must be fair trade and reciprocity.

Fair trade and reciprocity! That is the doctrine. It is a doctrine that is pleasing sound and may be spoken through by the tongue of a politician vaying as an idea it is too on the face of it. Fair trade has been a phrase to conceive with the Robert Peel period of protectionist days and the Richard Cobden. Does the director of the mint, a former admirer of the school which believes that free trade is the fortunate possible lifting from industry except fair trade in the British sense? Nor is the cheapest and well the fair trade meant. Mr Roberts did not stop to explain what he meant by fair trade and reciprocity. Another contemporary, dead not thought to be worthy of attention, pronounced, if fair trade and reciprocity were exercised in a country similar to the United States he is means that we must buy from foreign countries as much as we sell to them. It would be interesting if analysis and to see what exactly we are where we do not produce certainly as hard for production. That is what fair trade and reciprocity means to the British manufacturer who is trying to break into the American market. That is what it means to the New England Free Trade League and to the general body of American Cobdenites. But is that what it means to Mr. Roberts and the protectionists and anti-protectionists who are quoting him so approvingly? People sometimes the phrases without stopping to inquire as to their full significance. Possibly this is the reason why so much is said nowadays about fair trade and reciprocity.

FAULTY MEMORIES.

Nations Tendency to Forget What the National Republican Platform Says About Reciprocity.

Unlimited disregard—suppression, it might be called—of central principles and facts seem to be a uniform characteristic of the minority of tariff thinkers, by means of special trade treaties secure acceptance and extend commerce. They argue along general lines that it was to sell them to foreigners we must buy more from foreigners, manufacture of the complete negation of this theory in its enormous incentive in the export of our agricultural and manufactured products in the past four years of adequate protection. They argue that our trade balances are too large and must be cut down by an immediate acceptance of foreign commodities to take the place of articles which are now produced at home, but when they are asked to specify the extent to which 6,000 industrial tariff tariff shall be cut into effect, where it is to stop and what lines of domestic production shall be driven out of business in order that we may buy as much as we can in Christendom, they make no answer, they dodge the point.

A conspicuous instance of this kind of memory occurred during the last session of the Philadelphia Ledger of the great state in commenting upon the attitude of the American Economist in its controversy with this Chicago Republican Director of the mint. Mr. Roberts was the larger was asked by the Economist to state some of the lines and respondents would increase foreign manufactures and supplant production on the United States. A fair question was to ask? Yet the Ledger in defending the position of its contents simply fails to make some of the most obvious facts that questions ask, to answer the question, but explanation in explanation it is conducting from the Republican platform of 1896 which reads as follows:

> Again, the platform of five years ago, but not the platform of eleven months ago? The official proceedings of the twenty Republican National Convention, held at Philadelphia in June, 1900 are incorporated in a small bound volume, which is, or should be, in the library of every newspaper office. The little book is undoubtedly on the shelves of the Ledger and the Pioneer Press. Presumably its contents has been forgotten. So we venture to refresh the editorial memory by quoting extracts from the platform which begins at the bottom of page 100 and ends at the top of page 104. It should be read now and over again by those people who propose to preach a patriotic to the question of fair trade and reciprocity.

Fairly and Injurious.

The closer man comes to labors varying expense and imports accurately, but whatever the balance may be and on whatever side it may be found, the result, when obtained by means of a properly made, will involve the entire body of the weaker American interests in the benefit of the stronger. Manufacturers may never hope to make the tariff in our favor, and if it did turn that way the process would be some time after our industrial competitors treaties made be touch, or plunging and with no shifting and and give the best advantage to the investments of the enlarged and the consumer of the children whose speech is defective are left-handed. The utility children behavior in speech is the cause of our industrial tariff wave of reform, this a matter of no, who, moreover, could. When we make treaties I am left-handed, the made not merely my arm is alone. We contribute our industrial state, in the form of the tariff and treaties interfere with the development of the power of speech. The problem, unlike Charles Reade, believes that persons satisfactorily in the national and local interests.—New York Post.

How Quails Are Fattened.

A curious method of how quails are fattened for the market is given in a London paper. It appears that quails, being capable of their habits, always feed directly they wake up in the morning. They are therefore put in a large cellar, lit only by electric light. In the dark they go to sleep, but directly the light is turned on they wake up and breakfast. This process is repeated time after time and the birds, always laboring under the delusion that morning has arrived, once more breakfast over and over again. They have been known to do so six times in an afternoon.

Gave Her Final Death.

Little daughter lost an illness, gave utterance of whooping cough and bronchitis," writes Mrs. W. K. Hall, of Lansing, N. Y., "and, when all other remedies failed, we saved her life with Dr. King's New Discovery. Our phew, who had consumption in an advanced stage, also used this wonderful medicine and today she is perfect in health." Desperate throat and lung diseases yield to Dr. King's New Discovery as to no other medicine on earth. Infallible for Coughs and Colds. 50c and $1 bottles guaranteed by F. G. Hines & Co. Trial bottles free.

TEACHING AMBIDEXTERITY.

Likely to Interfere with Child's Method of Development.

In an attempt to teach left-handed children to be right-handed, in the Sunday sermon given in Free Fred's Sunday, of Chicago, to an audience of children, the speaker said: "Children, when the teeth of all generations in one, the children of the children which possessed children's teeth" in American cities and Europe.

FARMERS IN DEMAND.

INCUMBENTS WANTED FOR MANY GOVERNMENT POSITIONS.

Examinations Will be Held July 23 to 24 It Is Claimed, to Indian Service Eligibles (now entitled to HIGH Passed Rank in Case).

The Civil Service Commission announces the holding of examinations on the premises of farmers, who are in demand for positions in the Indian service, from July 23 to 24, as stated in a circular issued by the Civil Service Commission. The circular also states that it has experienced considerable difficulty in securing a sufficient number of qualified persons to meet the needs of the Indian service, and that it has been found necessary to allow Indians, Porto Ricans, Filipinos, Hawaiians, Alaskan Natives, Pueblo, Pi Yakis, Sioux, Chippewa, Cheyenne, Wash, Yakimas, Cherokees, Choctaws, Wyandottes, Creeks, Seminoles, Pawnees, Pottawatomies, Pima, Mono, Pueblo, Navajo, Hopi, Mono, Pueblo, Pueblo, Navajo, Hopi, Mono, Pueblo, Navajo, Hopi, Mono, Pueblo, Navajo, Hopi, Mono

The Elsmere county board of supervisors are in session at Harbor Springs, and a resolution has been introduced to submit to the people a proposition to remove the county seat from Harbor Springs to Petoskey. Only one vote was lacking Tuesday and a vote on the resolution was postponed until today, when Petoskey hoped to secure the necessary vote. Falling to carry the resolution there are many leading citizens of Petoskey who favor being attached to Charlevoix county and say they will make a move in that direction.

Deputy Warden Conlisk yesterday seized 345 pounds of undressed fish brought in by John Gill and G. G. Gerkens, and arrested both of the slaves named gentlemen. It is the same old story—illegal sized fish caught in a legal sized mesh—and again illustrates the fact that the fishermen are between the devil and the deep sea. But the Supreme court has just handed down a decision in a test case, that the fisherman who is unfortunate enough to find a small fish caught by the teeth in a lawful net, is a criminal. If the Indians who ply over board he is again a criminal, so what can the poor devil do? The legislature should pass an act prohibiting small fish from smelling around a legal net. The fish seized were sent to the Traverse City asylum and the bringing of the case was postponed.

MARINE NOTES.

The tug Avery is back from her north shore job.

Capt. Jaquith expects to have the steam pump engine in commission early in July.

The tug McLean was here Sunday to clean boiler, and cleared Monday morning for Sturgeon Bay, Wis.

The U. S. revenue cutter Morrill, in port Saturday, remaining here until Sunday morning.

The South fish tug Maxwell, of Petoskey, was at Washburn's machine shop dock for repairs over Sunday.

Capt. "Mac" Edwards in the flagship Dunlap towing the schooner Scott tide, took out oargoes Saturday from upbaw.

The steamship Manitou arrived here from Chicago on her first trip last Friday morning on time, and was in again Sunday, bound north.

The Whitebrook steamer Christopher Columbus passed in sight of this port Saturday on her way from Chicago to Harbor Springs with an excursion party.

The U. S. lake survey engineers on the U. S. steamer Search have been working the past week on the Fox Islands. The Search comes to Wednesday and Saturday nights after supplies. She leaves here at six a. m. and reaches her work in about "two jerks of a lamb's tail."

A dispatch from Mackinaw City states that the schooner Truman Moore arrived at Cecil bay yesterday having in tow a large Mackinaw fish boat painted white, with no name, which was picked up capsized and dismasted about half way between Beaver island and the the mainland. As the sails and rigging were dragging alongside the overturned boat, it is thought the occupants of the boat were drowned.

The new crescent cutter Mackinaw, now nearly ready for launching at the yard of the Trigg Shipbuilding company in Richmond, Va., for service on Lake Michigan, will have a flush deck, and no house except the forecastle and pilot house will appear above deck. The intention of the treasury department at the present time is to send the Morrill to Lake Ontario, with headquarters at Ogdensburg, N. Y.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The idea of celebrating the 4th of July Indian-like has been abandoned, coming as it does, so close to the Manistee Picnic where it is to be held three July 6th. Every energy will therefore be bent to make the Manistee celebration a success.

The Guthe-Campbell judge of probate controversy in Leelanau county came to a sudden finish in circuit court when Judge Whitbeck took the case from the jury on a technical point and ordered a verdict for Guthe, by which the office is turned over to him. Judge Chittenden held that notice of the petition filed by Campbell should have been filed twenty-four hours before the petition itself was filed.

Thompsonville is in the throes of a controversy as to whether the women who are sick there have smallpox or chicken-pox. Three physicians in that section have said the cases are chicken-pox and two others maintain both are cases of small-pox. Yesterday Dr. Evans was called to see and he thought the cases were and pronounced them chicken pox.

Forty carloads of steel for the Detroit & Charlevoix railroad arrived at Alba last week and will be used on the extension now for side tracks. The rail which Jarvis Weir and others taken up on the northern end of the line will again be reused as that direction-construction can be had with South Arm, as originally intended, and it is claimed that regular trains on this road will very soon be in operation.—Manistee Herald.

Cemetery Notice.

TOWNSHIP CLERK'S OFFICE,
CHARLEVOIX, MICH., June 22.

The Board of Health of the Township of Charlevoix met in special session on the above date. All members present.

Moved and adopted that "the clerk be instructed to place notices in the Charlevoix Sentinel and Charlevoix Courier that all persons claiming any interest in the bodies in the potter's field of the cemetery will please report to the township clerk, Lisle Shanahan, as the bodies in the present potter's field will be moved in a short time to a new one.

Whereas, the Board of Health is attempting to beautify the cemetery and has appointed E. B. Hodge sexton, it is hereby resolved that we pay, commencing a season will apply to E. B. Hodge, and all persons desiring to work on their lots will do so under the supervision of the sexton.

Further, that no person shall be allowed to do any work in the cemetery unless said person is the owner of a lot.

Moved and adopted that above resolution be printed the same as the other notice.

SCHOOL CENSUS COLUMBUS,
A. D. 1901, JUNE 1.

Act No 83 amends the compulsory attendance act of 1885.

Sec. 1 makes the compulsory ages between eight and fifteen years, and in cities seven and fifteen, providing that children under nine years of age shall not be compelled to go more than two miles to school.

Sec 2 is amended by giving the board director power to lend this same money to successor shall be appointed and qual.

Sec. 3 says. It shall be the duty of the school director of the commencement of each term of school to provide the teacher with a copy of the last census. At the expiration of each month of school the teacher shall examine the said census list and report to the proper truant officer the names of such children upon the census list as have not during the preceding month attended the school according to the provisions of this act.

Sec. 6 is amended so as to make but one notice necessary. That is after having served one notice if at any time thereafter the truant officer is notified that the same children are not in school, he may at once proceed against the parents or guardians of such children as provided in sec 7.

Act takes effect Sept. 4, 1901. Act No. 155, amends act 194 of the laws of 89 by adding a section which provides that all bodies of certificated granted under the authority of the State Board of Education must file the said certification or a copy thereof in the office of the commissioner of schools in the county where they expect to teach. In effect Sept. 4, 1901. Act 141 provides for the establishment of rural high schools in such townships as may vote favorably upon the proposition. In effect Sept. 4 1901.

—The Charlevoix Hotel and Resort, reopened last Sunday, under the management of Mr. Hoy Scott. This fine house enjoys the distinction of being the only summer hotel having an unobstructed Lake Michigan view. Mrs. Noble has long enjoyed an enviable reputation as a landlady, and, as a summer resort, Charlevoix is a success. The Charlevoix Resort House under its new management will prove to be a popular resort for those enjoying a good meal, and the lake breezes.

—The new Champion established music store opened Monday afternoon. We know of no better music store or more complete of refreshments. It is a credit to Charlevoix. The building itself of solid brick with tiled entrance, the interior furnishings are strikingly suggestive of refinement. The beautiful marble and onyx soda fountain was a conspicuous object, and the refreshments are of nothing any cheaper and are very attractive. The back half of the room is furnished with tables and artistic chairs for guests. The place is the finest of its kind in northern Michigan.

—The schooner of Mason's Tribune left Southampton, on the southern Leelanau Sunday, and will leave New York for Detroit at 4 o'clock p. m. July 4, adding in Detroit at 8 o'clock the next morning. From the station the tugs will be towed to the city and by Detroit Pier, G. A. R., of which Mr. Pierce was a member, and they will be in line in the morning review at the foot of the main elevator way all day. On the morning of July 5 the body will be taken to the Pierce home, and from there the funeral will be held at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The interment will be in Elmwood. The funeral will not be under the auspices of any organization, but all organizations, clubs and societies will be invited to participate.

—The U. S. survey steamer Search having been under repairs at the machine shop the past week for engineers force has been at work about this harbor.

—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Van Pelt, Mr. and Mrs. Truman, Elizabeth Truman, Pearl Van Clease, Mary Van Pelt, Nannie Van Pelt, Mary Clark and M. G. Clark, formed a Sunday party at Lake Vista Wednesday.

—The Baptist young people will hold their regular social social at the home of Mrs. H. P. Wilkinson on Friday evening, July 5. Refreshments will be served, collection taken.

—Miss Ina Winner came over from Charlevoix to spend a few days with the parents but refuses to take part in a piano and song recital. Then she comes here for a two weeks' vacation.—Conway Gazette.

—Married, at the residence of the officiating clergyman, W. H. McCartney, July 4, Eugene Egan Kirk to Harriet Iola Hodge. Mr. and Mrs. Kirk left this morning for the home of groom, Two Rivers, Wis.

—The East Jordan iron club has received a challenge from the Charlevoix club for a trap shooting tournament the cup won by East Jordan from Traverse City last week. The match is to take place on the 12th of July.

—Silver Horn circus will exhibit in Charlevoix July 5th, afternoon and evening. Also there is not the biggest on earth, but it has an amazing lot of equipment for merit. Every feature a real class. Its trained animals are alone worth the price of admission. Don't fail to see it.

—Competition in the oil business is all in force, according to a statement recently published in the Michigan Tradesman, the Standard Oil Co. having opened the Cleveland, Ohio, rivals. In this combination is included the Grand Rapids firm of Scofield, Sherman & Tuttle, represented in this city by the Metcalfs.

—Jim Long said his excellent company of players are playing all this week at Lewis opera house. The company is a decided improvement on many of the aggregations on the road. "Jim" Long himself is a royal good fellow, a fine singer and a pleasant comedian. The repertoire of plays is of a high standard of drama, well represented. The engagement has been a successful one, as it deserved.

—Charlevoix is a resort town, and we know that sea serpent stories from resort towns are to most people, considered a traditional business. But there is a story that is true, Jay Jones and wife, accompanied by two other ladies, were walking on the beach Sunday, saw a serpent, long, sleek, five feet long. It was swimming in the water close to the beach, and had a head about the size of a large necktie. They saw the serpent for some time and, as Mr. Jones, like all druggists, is a truthful man, we accept it as a fact. We must, however, claim the serpent as resident from the Harbor Springs critter. It is strictly a Charlevoix serpent.

—Indian Commissioner A.W. Chew is very much indignant about a statement made in a recent issue of a Chicago paper concerning the recent examination at Bayne Falls. Mr. Chew says that there was not a word of truth in the statement. No such questions were asked the teachers by the commissioner or anyone else, and consequently no such bitter answers were made. The Bayne Falls story puts Mr. Chew in a delicate position, but was an fossil by the teachers of Charlevoix county. If the story was not a product of the brain of the writer, it certainly was a discredit to the party who gave the report the "pipe story."

TALMAGE'S SERMON

FOR THE LAST TIME THIS WEEK

Brooklyn Tabernacle, 1891

Subject: Sermon Delivered Last Sabbath Morning by Dr. Talmage, Which Was Taken Down by a Stenographer and Revised by Himself—Text: "Ye Are Not Your Own, for Ye Are Bought with a Price" (Corinthians vi., 19).

When we buy a piece of land we have a deed to it, or a bill of sale, or some other document to show that it is our property. Now, we are not our own property. We have not the deed to ourselves. We have not the bill of sale to ourselves. We have not the right to do what we please with our bodies and souls. We are not our own property, because we have been bought and paid for. The price was not silver nor gold, but it was the blood of Christ, God's Son, poured out for us on the cross. We are the property of Christ. We belong to Him. We are His property by creation, by preservation, but especially by purchase. We are not our own property, because we have been bought and paid for, and the price

PULLED OVERBOARD BY FISH.

Smelt Dorkeyer Drawn Drowning and Lands Big Sturgeon.

When the sturgeon darting unseen upward at Harsuk N. J. John Dunn was one of the first men in sailing from the coves in Point Breeze and Dun's, the fishing colony. Dunn is one of the best known men in the district and at the last session of the legislature he was doorkeeper of the senate. The fishermen have had very poor luck this season and many of them have given up in disgust and returned to their homes. Dunn and his partner however decided to stick it out and trying. In York of water there which. They were out in the bay yesterday morning to land something of value somewhere. Dunn and had been out for hours and they were about to pull ashore in despair when they saw the big fishes suddenly swim around under the bottom of a boat. Dunn. They knew at once that they had got a strike and no small one at that, and they began to pull in with renewed hope and energy. Dunn was at the front landing on the net and trying to suppress his excitement while he joined on the lines had wrapped himself. He was practically dragging the big fish to the boat when a gaff in which Dunn had fastened and of a much more heavy and coarse nature than the gaff was to have been used. The trigger which at the bottom of the boat, and now into the boat. Dunn was at the landing net and he jumped for the net and trying to capture the fish. The fish was evidently frightened and in his excitement he was unable to get the net under the fish. Dunn and his partner succeeded in getting a rope fast to the fish and in a short time had it safely in the boat. It weighed 300 pounds and measured 7 feet from the tip of the tail to the end of the snout. It measured 7 feet and 6 inches in length and measured 4 feet in girth. It measured 3 feet 6 inches in the thickest part of the body and measured 3 feet 6 inches in the thickest part of the body and measured 3 feet 6 inches in the thickest part of the body and

MANIAC PREVENTED FROM FURTHER VIOLENCE BY OFFICER.

Sheriff at Portsmouth, Ohio, Overpowers a Madman by Sheer Force of Will—Other Incidents Occurs on Freight Wreck on Missouri Pacific.

Louis Fuller, a native of Portsmouth, Ohio, became violently insane and indulged in a general smashup of things in sight, starting at a local saloon. The sheriff and several other officers tried to arrest him, but he was too strong for them. Finally Sheriff Kennedy came on the scene and he was a match for the maniac. He succeeded in overpowering him by sheer force of will and marched him to the county jail without further incident. Fuller was very violent while in the presence of the officer, but when he was locked up he became quiet and seemed to be in a daze. The man is a laborer and is married. He has been drinking hard for some time and his friends say he has been acting queerly for some days. It is thought he will be sent to the insane asylum.

Elkhorn Creek in Pocahontas Field Rages High Over Its Banks.

Cloudburst Sweeps Valley Along the Norfolk and Western Railroad Cuttale, Elkhorn and Many Other Places Are Washed Away Completely—Loss of Life Placed as Yet at Three and Property Damage is Vast—A Horrible Disaster.

From 200 to 300 lives have been lost and property estimated at several millions of dollars was destroyed by a flood which swept down the Elkhorn valley from Bluefield to Vivian in Wise Virginia, Saturday morning. The opening comes of Keystone, Elkhorn, Coal Mountain, Bartlett and a number of smaller towns lying adjacent to the Norfolk and Western Railroad are wiped out of existence. Many of the inhabitants are drowned, and the rest are homeless and penniless. The Elkhorn is a tributary of the Tug fork of the Big Sandy river, and the Norfolk and Western Railroad runs into and a number of mining towns are located in the valley. The Elkhorn rises in Pocahontas county, and the Norfolk and Western Railroad runs through Bluefield, Bluefield, Princeton, Vivian, Welch, Keystone, Kimball, Bartlett, Elkhorn, Coal Mountain, Gilbert, Matewan, Iaeger, Thacker, Ferrell, Kermit, Lenore, Ceredo, Kenova, Catlettsburg, Ashland, Russell, Flatwoods, Greenup, Ironton, Hanging Rock, Portsmouth, Jackson, Chillicothe, Columbus, Springfield, Dayton, Cincinnati, Hamilton, Richmond, Indianapolis, Terre Haute, Decatur, Springfield, Bloomington, Peoria, Chicago, Bluefield, Princeton, Vivian, Welch, Keystone, Kimball, Bartlett, Elkhorn, Coal Mountain, Gilbert, Matewan, Iaeger, Thacker, Ferrell, Kermit, Lenore, Ceredo, Kenova, Catlettsburg, Ashland, Russell, Flatwoods, Greenup, Ironton, Hanging Rock, Portsmouth, Jackson, Chillicothe, Columbus, Springfield, Dayton, Cincinnati, Hamilton, Richmond, Indianapolis, Terre Haute, Decatur, Springfield, Bloomington, Peoria, Chicago.

—Maccabee celebration at East Jordan Saturday

—Dr. Campbell left this morning for Galveston, Texas.

—The schooner Canton is here from Cleveland with coal for Wilkur and the city.

—A T Dupont & Co have a new and enlarged ad. this week that is worth reading.

—Mrs. L. D. Bartlemonson and Miss Winifred, returned from Jackson Wednesday.

—The ladies' guild of the Episcopal church will hold a sale the first week in August.

—In the big rain the 9th the big Martin took the prize and that Tim was at the wheel, too.

—Register of Deeds Frank Kenyon left this (Friday) morning for Cedar rapids. He will be absent a month.

—R. A. Shaplin requests us to extend his thanks to those who helped to save his property at the recent fire.

—While loading freight Wednesday Capt. F. G. Campbell injured the tendons of his right leg and he now has a crippled gait.

—Dyke and Chase blacksmiths are painted by their buffies as plans as companies, are playing their violins at the Elston this summer.

—R. R. Blair underwent an operation for appendicitis last Monday, and has been very ill, but is reported as doing very well at this writing.

—Mr. and Mrs. Jouette and daughter Bertha, goes to Southern Wisconsin for a while, they go to the home of Mrs. Jouette's health, they leave the sixth.

—Lost, last week a gent's watch and hair ball pick, on Wednesday, a pair of gold-bowed eye-glasses, in black leather case. Finder please leave at this office.

—Prof Leopold Fischer, principal of the Toledo German high school, has charge of the Swimming Pool this year. Prof Fischer is an expert authority on and an intelligent teacher of swimming. The pool opens wednesday morning.

—The time of our going to press Friday morning, prevents us giving a detailed review of the celebration the 4th. There was a big crowd in town and the weather was satisfactory. The celebration was a success along the lines that were designed.

—Heaven's artillery ushered in the 4th by a regal salute. From one o'clock a.m. until after two, the heaven's were almost continuously filled with lightning flashes, and the thunder seemed to rock the skies. Nature's rain accompanied the electric fireworks.

—Capt. Donahoe and his life saving crew gave a very interesting boat drill in Round Lake Tuesday. With a crew of six men the boat was turned over entirely over the sun, protected by life preservers, evening up well but sailing, but exhibiting much skill in every movement. Considering the inclement weather of the day, the practice was a very welcome one for the boys.

—Last Friday afternoon the Emmet county supervisors, in session at Harbor Springs, resolved by a vote of 12 to 5 (Mr. A. E. Kline being among the minority) to submit to the people at next spring's election, the question of removing the county seat from Harbor Springs to Petoskey. We take no sides in this fight, may the best man win. We have had our own troubles along that line, and extend our sympathy to the good people of Emmet county of both sides of the bay.

—The Dove Marquette company in its first annual report since the present consolidation system shows a gross earning of $8,296,000, an increase of $684,000. The net earnings are $1,866,000, and increase of $400,000. The company during the next twelve months will spend for improvements between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000, including a new car ferry to cost $200,000. Five per cent bonds, guaranteed by the Dove Marquette company, have been authorized to the amount of $1,000,000.

—Hinze drug store and Bidwell, the entire group of buildings surrounding it, had a very narrow escape from destruction during the terrific thunder storm early Thursday morning. Lightning entered the building on the telephone wires, and, in a small room back of the store, the wires were severed, setting it all on fire at the place of contact. Wm. Cantin and a companion were passing the store and detected the smell of smoke. Having lightning referred to them the crowe of it and they broke in the doors and, with pails filled from the faucet close by, extinguished the flames. There were several cans of combustible stuff in the room, and it was only a matter of a moment longer that the destruction would come to the buildings on that side of the street.

CEMENT WALKS—I am now prepared to lay cement walks at reasonable prices and guarantee them.

FRANK H. SHAWKEY.

—The Maccabee drinking fountain went into commission the 4th, and is a credit to the order that erected it. It was bought with surplus funds raised for the celebration held here two years ago. The fountain is a solid piece of sandstone, from one side of which protrudes a double ornamental pipe from which the water flows into a basin cobbled in the top. There is a side basin for dogs, also one in the block. On the sidewalk side is a tablet with the inscription "A.O.U.W. 1893." It is a fine thing and a very useful one.

WHITE MAN TURNED YELLOW.

Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hogarty of Lexington, Ky., when they saw he was turning yellow. His skin slowly changed color also his eyes, and he suffered terribly. His inability was yellow Jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without result. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful stomach and liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking a number of bottles I was wholly cured." A trial proves all such praise. Sold by Lee & Simons, Lewiston; Mrs. Lee, Atlanta; Only 50c. Sold by F. G. Hinze & Co., druggist.

SCHOOL COMM'R COLUMN.

W. H. MCCARTHY, COMM'R

The two little scribs in last week's Courier purporting to be answers given by the candidates at the recent examination in Boyne Falls were all regular Munchausen tales. There were no such questions propounded and consequently no such answers returned.

The true function of language is to communicate thought. The function of grammar is to indicate those forms of language by which thought is most clearly expressed. Use is the law of language, and usage regulates the grammatical construction of sentences and has much pronunciation of words. Grammars and dictionaries record these forms and derive their authority and value from their conformity to usage.

Much has been said in regard to good usage being the law of language. If by this is meant the usage of good speakers and writers then this definition is correct. Many forms used by good writers and good speakers is incorrect according to the rules of language.

The careful use of correct forms will preserve language in its purity just as the careless use of words will promote its deterioration. Many trite expressions, slang words and phrases, come into one's vocabulary to the exclusion of correct expressions.

Pure usage should be the criterion of examination in each case, for, although one phrase cannot produce material changes, either for better or worse, it is the individual after all that is the prime mover in the promotion of change.

Each one should be the guardian of correct speech. The educated person should express his thoughts with ease and clearness, leaving incorrect forms to those who have not had the means of acquiring knowledge on these subjects.

It Darkens the Worse.

No discovery in medicine has ever created one quarter of the excitement that has been caused by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Its success dwarfs into insignificance the victories of Consumption, Pneumonia, Hemorrhage, Pleurisy and Bronchitis, consumption of which it has rendered perfect health. For Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Croup, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and Whooping Cough, it is the quickest, surest cure in the world. It is sold by F. G. Hinze & Co. who guarantee satisfaction or refund money. —Our John P. Sanderson of Lansing will preach in the Congregational church next Sunday morning. Mr. Sanderson is well known in the Congregational people and ought to receive a great reception at his hands to will.

—Ladies of the Episcopal church are making extensive preparations for a sale to be held the 8th week in August and desire the public to come in mind and give them a call. Look for further announcements as to place, etc.

—Dr. Donald McDonald, the eminent specialist, of Grand Rapids, is making a summer tour of the lakes. He will be in Charlevoix, at the Hotel Elston on Thursday, Friday and Saturday July 18th, 20th and 21st, three days only. Consultation free. Call early and avoid the rush.

—The steering gear of the steamer Hazel refused to work at Bay View, Monday, and the steamer went on the beach with a heavy sea running. The captain telephoned for a tug, and the Wabash went down with a pump. The Hazel was brought here Monday and hauled out, the boat was hurt very little.

—A big Consul Higley, whose home is in Chicago, was the victim of a short vacation amount of East Jordan last Saturday. It was found Sunday Tuesday that he was dead, but it was a false report. He is still under the doctor's care at East Jordan. Two of his associates are behind the bars in the county jail, and are awaiting trials.

—Caterpillars are causing serious great annoyance. Some of the trees are almost stripped of their green coats and their owners are in despair as to how to rid of them. There is an easy and effective way of destroying the pests. Soak a carcass in coal oil until it has been thoroughly saturated, then fasten it to a long pole that has a sharpened nail in the end, upon which to fasten the coal. Then you have a repellent cards with which you can sweep them from the trees and burn all in sight. This should be done early in the morning, as the worms are then all in their nests. Later in the day they are scattered all over the tree.

—LOST, a bunch of keys. Finder please leave at this office.

—The crossing force on the bridge had been increased, and work is moving more rapidly. The foreman still says the bridge will be done the 15th

The Ward Road Again.

Troubling the completion of the Detroit & Charlevoix railway, owned by the Ward estate, there have been many reports and counter reports. The following Lansing special seems to indicate that Charlevoix will soon be the actual terminus of the road: "Heirs of the late David Ward, the iron and lumber lumberman, have settled their differences over the completion of the proposed Detroit and Charlevoix railway, and a map of that road has been filed with the railroad commissioner and will be acted upon at a meeting of the state railroad crossing board soon to be held. The map shows an extension from the present terminus at East Jordan to Charlevoix."

Normal Notes.

C. I. Nash arrived from Manistowoc Monday evening.

E. N. Harris and family were over from Elsworth Sunday. Mrs. Harris and two daughters remaining during the week to visit friends.

Rev. Robert Clancy, a returned missionary from India, who recently gave a fine address here to a large audience, pictured up about $50 to support a native missionary in India. Fifty dollars will support one native missionary for a year, so it here shows most with like success every place he lectures, India will soon be supplied.

FROM

BY MARY J. HOLMES

Dan passed on and we had scarcely exchanged a word with him, so absorbed were we in the strange news we had heard. Mary was in a state of nervous excitement, as she told me in the bedroom, where she went to take off her bonnet and smooth her hair, and I was trying to soothe her. Before he had time to ask question, Dorcas came down, with flushed face and the whispered intelligence that "Mrs. Hope was in bed."

He made no answer. He knew nothing of her, and, moreover, considering his father by marriage the room where Rose had died, I very doubtfully, if he had cared to see her, now or ever. Essential in the sickroom, he had gone to his room and sent word to us that he would be ready to go to the station in half an hour. We had time, then, for a long talk, and I told him all I could about Rose.

Her Hope name was scarcely of her father, and it was the name of her mother, Rose had taken, when, at the age of 18, she was living Rose was learning to be a lady, and had left her home in the care of the Misses Dorcas, who, at that time, were living in a large, old-fashioned house, in a large city, not far from Boston. Here, Rose was sent to school, and, as she was a very pretty girl, with a good deal of money, she was soon popular with the young men, who used to call on her, and, among them, was Mr. Hopkins, who was considerably her senior, but who was so much more fascinating than any of the young men who called on her, that she soon became his wife, and went with him to his home in Virginia, where, in a few months, she died, leaving a little girl, who was left to the care of her mother's sisters, who had taken her home to them, and were doing their best to make her happy. Rose was a very young mother, and, when she died, she was only 18, and, of course, knew but little about the care of children. Her husband was much older than she, and was, in his way, very fond of her, but he was a man who had never had much to do with children, and, when he was called away from home, he was glad to leave his little girl with her aunts, who had taken her to their home in Boston, and had written to him that they would be responsible for her, and would see that she was well cared for, and, if he should never return, they would be her legal guardians, and, at his death, should be her heirs, and inherit his property. He had left her with them, and, in his will, had made her his sole heir, and had written to them that he was coming home in a few weeks, and they might expect him any day, and, if he should not come, they might be sure that he was dead, and they must take his little girl home to them, and be her

HIGH PRICE FOR LOGS.

Cause Is More Money In Pulp Than There Is in Timber.

Maine is now the state of pulp, not of timber. At least one-half of the logs cut in this state will be consumed by grinders instead of by saws. The pulp mills are able to pay more than the lumbermen for the logs because a thousand feet of logs will yield more value in pulp than in timber, and thus the pulp mills are masters of the job market. When prices of timber are high, the sawmill men can afford to pay stumpage at $3 or $4 a thousand feet, but when the pulp mills are masters of the job market, the sawmill men can afford to pay only $1 or $1.50 a thousand feet. At the same time the price of spruce timber in New York ranges from $12 to $18 a cord, but for the various mills in Maine, where the price is chosen is from $1 to $1.50, so long than the spruce logs will be used for pulp, the writing remains in your lumbermen's ears. Last year there were 400,000 cords of pulp wood cut in Maine, and this year the demand will be much greater. Lumbermen say that the pulp mills can pay for a thousand feet of spruce logs and still make a good profit.—Lewiston Journal.

Mr. Arthur Will Lecture.

Mr. Timothy B. Arthur, of Ann Arbor, has been engaged by a number of the students of the Washington College of Law, who lived in Alabama and Georgia during the slavery time, to give a lecture, "Recollections of Slavery." Mr. Arthur was all his life a strong and earnest worker in the temperance cause, and when he lectured in Ann Arbor last year he said that he was unknown for his lecture, but he was sure he could make a good audience.—Lansing Michigan Journal.

Work of Kindergarten Daughters.

The two daughters of the late David Livingstone recently opened the extensive Livingstone Memorial Lecture Room, Dunfermline, Scotland, which was built for training in medicine and surgery those missionaries about to enter the far away stations where they would be called on to apply the art of medicine so often as that of priest. It was fitting Livingstone himself was such a splendid example of the medically trained missionary, that the first college at Lovedale was erected to his memory.

Day Sunny Weather's Honor.

A monument to the late Mary Lyon Rollins, the preacher and writer of books for boys is projected in Maine, and there towers are being chosen for it. Boothbay—Portland—the view of the high, dangerous ledges in sea offshore, and Harpswell, the latter summer resort and where she died. Some of the friends suggest that the tower should be erected in Portland and the material should be quarried in Boothbay and Harpswell.

Extraordinary Gift for Minister.

Rev. Mr. Ferguson, of the Presbyterian church at Ann Arbor, has received a singular present. "Well, do I like the man who has given me this sermon?" inquiry the minister, referring with pleasure to the man who gave him the sermon. "I don't know who gave it to me." It seems I have each week from my church, "Maybe their teaching's shorter than mine, for they always preach, promptly, but when you preach I can always get a good nap."—New York Tribune.

Champagne Cup.

Cut two ripe nectarines into slices, also half a large orange and a lemon, taking care to remove the pips, slice two peaches or substitute for them a dozen ripe plums, and add a wineglass of kirsch and half the quantity of chartreuse. Place the fruit in a suitable cup, and pour over it a bottle of good champagne. Sweeten to taste, and add a few sprigs of balm, and a quart of iced champagne. Remove the fruit and place in a pint of iced seltzer or apollinaris water.

The Woman in Harlem.

A Chicago worker recently found a postal card in the morning mail reading as follows: "Dear Sir—Please inclose five thousand ounces of Peoples Gas at 20 cents and oil the same at $1.10. After inclosing your commission you may remit the balance in a registered letter. Yours, respectfully, Mrs. Hand, 2, 4, 6." Before attempting to answer such a letter it was discovered that at the Horseshoe unloaded of price of $1.10 a thousand feet. At the same time the price of spruce timber in New York ranges from $12 to $18 a cord, but for the various mills in Maine, where the price is chosen is from $1 to $1.50, so long than the spruce logs will be used for pulp. The writing remains in your lumbermen's ears. Last year there were 400,000 cords of pulp wood cut in Maine, and this year the demand will be much greater. Lumbermen say that the pulp mills can pay for a thousand feet of spruce logs and still make a good profit.—Lewiston Journal.

Tuscarora Has New Stamp in Field.

The first stamp to be issued by the British government bearing the image of King Edward VII was on a telegraph stamp issued in the Tuscarora Agency, a Indian reservation. The stamp is a telegraph stamp, and is on the pattern which is embossed to be a profile of Mr. Hagerty, in a background of dark carmine. At the same time the image of the King when Prince of Wales has been used by one or two of the officials.

New Jersey's Contributing.

The present population of the state of New Jersey, adopted in 1844, has received increased for fifty years and remains practicable the same as when first adopted. The term of the governor of New Jersey, which adopted in December to three years and New Jersey is now the sole state in the country which adheres to the three years term.

Concerning Exercises Go to Church.

Mr. Hal Ga to go to church exercises. The Cage Trade Only to go to and experience to the bishop for the young from prisoners who are allowed to enter the cemetery.

Philadelphia Cemetery Keeper.

Typhoid fever having greatly increased in West Philadelphia, a case of this has been sent into the sewers to inspect their condition. The most recent and only accumulations of filth, but defective connections, air shafts and abandoned pipes are properly closed, and now the sewers have been traversed and only one found to be in another order.

Sewerage Manufacture.

Among other lines of manufacture in which Indianapolis holds the world is that of making sewerage, and not only does Indianapolis make sewers of all kinds, and Harpswell, the latter summer resort and where she died. Some of the friends suggest that the tower should be erected in Portland and the material should be quarried in Boothbay and Harpswell.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Eleven Hundred Years Old.

There are specimens of Welsh Celtic which have belonged to the same family for eleven and fifty years and they seem as sweet and as low as when laid down. Only one or two "bar" tunes have the power of inspiring. A few of the fifty in the Royal Apartment at St. Pembroke are known to see the plants and and the sun of the ancient fish in some of the pools attached to the building remains in China as to be counted by millions. If we are to believe the priests.

Professor Christie Invention.

Canon Hobson, the founder of the Professor's Christie association has arrived in New York. This association was founded, children years ago in a result in Liverpool. It has three members at the shift, but there are over 100,000 throughout Great Britain and are endeavoring the women city to visit the sister in Fulton, Oswego county, New York.

Dates of Four Great Bible.

New York City's Bible is now $241,000. The Rest of Cincinnati is $20,000 in Thousands $12,000 and of Boston $70,000. The oldest is the Bible in Hebrew Bible.

Tuscarora Is Notorious.

Nearly all the motormen employed on the new trolley lines in Buffalo are young Canadian farmers. The railway officials say they are the most satisfactory of all their employes.

Kilsh and "Ho" Dowie Compared.

"I am Elijah" says "Dr." Dowie this difference that suggests itself is that Matthew Kilsh was not by the Lord Jesus Christ.—New York Herald.

CONSULTATION, EXAMINATION AND ADVICE FREE.

Dr. McDonald has for years made a study and specialty of chronic and lingering diseases that require skillful medical treatment for their cure. Such cases as family physicians fail to help, and pronounce incurable are particularly solicited, especially those complicated with strong mineral drugs and poisons. Dr. McDonald uses only the purest medicines from the vegetable kingdom. He pays attention to the cause of the disease and treatments his patients the way to health and happiness. Dr. McDonald can show hundreds of testimonials in the handwriting of grateful patients who have been cured by him when others failed. He is so familiar with the human system that he is able to read all diseases of the mind or body correctly at a glance without asking any questions. Thousands of invalids are now living who have been given up to die by other men, while a few drops of medicine administered to the seat of the disease wrought a speedy relief, and permanent cure in a very short time. Good health is the most precious jewel of earthly possessions. Well, it is good to feel good, but it is better to feel better for wear. If you are a sufferer you should weigh well these words: A woman who suffers for years, or a man, or a child, or a given, owing to himself and a great injury to humanity. The name of Dr. McDonald is well known throughout the state of Michigan, and he is recognized world in the form of homes which his skill and wonderful cures have made happy. Diseases of the bladder and kidneys, and all diseases of the urinary organs, the Cedar is a specialty. The Cedar is a product of the highest and best medical skill, and has advanced their fame to the extent of elevated the most skeptical. All cases of the

When the Atlantic Was a Continent.

Though separated from the old World by comparatively shallow seas the American continent contains many of earliest civilization, as advanced as those of Egypt or Assyria. In Yucatan, Mexico there are no fewer than 4 of magnificent buildings similar in architecture to those of Egypt, within a square of miles, and covering a space of miles. Some of these are strangely embellished. Time or the weather. There are also ancient ruins

TRAGEDY NEAR QUINCY, ILL.

Dead Bodies of Former Loveys Found on Country Road.

The bodies of Frank C. Dorfner and Louise Strothoff were found in the road five miles east of Quincy, Ill. He was shot through the head and also through the heart. They were found locked and lies quarrelled. She wrote to Herman, who was a well-known young man of Quincy, asking him to call at her home. Herman then met with John Minner as companion. During the evening Miss Strothoff asked Herman to go out in the garden with her to get some flowers. They had not returned at midnight, and as Herman started to look for them Minner came from behind him and hit a mile distant. Herman never noticed a blow and the prosecution is that the weapon belonged to the girl. Whether he or she fired the fatal shot also cannot be known. She is supposed to have been jealous of Herman, who recently had been attentive to Minner's sister.

Mrs. J. E. Thayer Lauds Husband, Who Had Planned an Elopement.

Chicago J. E. Thayer, president of the Lincoln Park division of the Volunteers of Relief, who recently acquired notoriety by a permanent absent account for wife, has been discovered in Chicago. Mrs. Thayer, who is the daughter of Mrs. Dan Hackleberry, is a prominent society woman. It was the discovery of a letter addressed to her by her husband, in which he lauded her to the skies and pleaded with her to meet him in Canada, that caused the Mrs. Thayer from disappearance. Mrs. Thayer, who is a member of the Mrs. Thayer from disappearance, was found in the home of her mother, Mrs. Hackleberry. Thayer also left a letter addressed to his wife, in which he lauded her to the skies and pleaded with her to meet him in Canada. The letter was found in the home of Mrs. Thayer's

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.

Blame Not the Truth.

From the Ottawa Gazette.

Had there should be a great deal of newspaper comment upon the death of ex-Gov. Hazen S. Pingree is natural enough, but that so much of it should be adulatory on the verge of the ludicrous and fulsome far beyond the boundary of the truth, is not less than surprising. A person unfamiliar with the political condition of Michigan the past ten years would suppose from reading these editorials that a statesman had died in whom there was no trace of guile, whose every hearty not only honored but loved, and who had accomplished a plenitude of good for a state that before his time had suffered all the evils of misgoverned despotism.

There is no one who regrets Mr. Pingree's passing, even as they regret that of any man who has family, friends and a country for mourners, nor is there anywhere a lack of sympathy for those who grieve over sundered ties of kindred, nor has anyone a disposition to belittle whatever Mr. Pingree may have accomplished for the public good. Of his latter days was much in his service as mayor of Detroit, and yet he has left behind him in that city, as in the state whose politics he debauched, many tendencies that are very far from conducive to politeness or the public peace.

So far as the results to the state at large of Mr. Pingree's participation in the commonwealth's affairs is concerned, there really is little to be said that reflects credit upon him or has resulted, in a with result, to benefit the people, either the much exploited "common people" or those equally blameless but indifferent, who have once excluded from the right of citizenship by the Pingree code of political fair play and manliness, and who, that the state and men conducted managed, and promising to realize this and reform in every department, Mr. Pingree and his administration, ended in a clash of scandals, some of which were chargeable to the governor than they naturally would to a watchful and scrupulous man, while, moreover, nothing of this nature was discovered in any department of the state government as administered by Mr. Pingree's predecessors. His sense of offices ended in disgrace of many kinds responsibility for which, to any great degree, Mr. Pingree could not escape. There is a sharp difference of opinion as to whether Mr. Pingree had further responsibility for those scandalous conditions than came of his singular ability to select wise and honest secretaries, but none that he cannot speak for himself against the accusations that were freely made on this score, and never refuted, it is quite as well to mention, for neither did this does not imply the propriety of turning all the sharp criticism and intense antagonism which was manifested against him by practically the whole people, at the end into a blanking adulation and sycophantic praise. That Mr. Pingree had almost boundless energy, until within the past two years, must be conceded, but it was usually wofully misdirected. That he was a man of strong convictions was always apparent, but these convictions were far too frequently, for either his good fame or the public weal, founded upon great lack of knowledge of the subject concerned. However strong he was, he had many fatal weaknesses which in the end made wreck of all his hopes and ambitions. He was the very prey of any flatterer, and he seemed utterly incapable of discerning anything of a man's character by his manner, his words or his deeds, and he was prey fellows to the base and most capable friends he ever had. Consequently he came to be surrounded by a lot of incapables, spoils hunters and down right thieves, all of whom fattened upon the public funds, with Mr. Pingree strangely indifferent to when all the real plainly saw, and even permitting the prejudices to make him appear as their champion and saviour when a few of the worst of the lot were visited with the penalty of their crimes.

Mr. Pingree has left upon the statute books of his state practically no trace of his existence. Several of his choices' schemes reached defeats rarely as laws only to perish, while the supreme court made real or their consel unfeasibility. The stipend that can be said is that out of all the agitation, the wrangling the shaking, and the crime, has come (and that but half really) the case law for taxing certain corporations upon the assessments plan. But even this is not yet in force and even the legislature, who enacted it in response to selfish clamor and surpassed party exigency, distrust both its constitutionality and its wisdom, and left to their own judgment, would never have enacted the scheme and abandoned the plan of public taxation. It is not reckless prophecy to say that within a few years the system will be repealed, and even this one slight evidence of Mr. Pingree's misdirected energies will disappear, but with the scorn of civilization propositions he sought to enact into law.

Of the dead Pingree, language which has weakly depicted the live Pingree may well remain unspoken, for its utterance would be not only fruitless, but aggravating to those whose feelings are entitled to respect. But death has altered none of the facts of recent history, and the press, which Pingree ever and over again damned most vigorously for supineness and corruption, but makes itself merit much of his denunciation by ticking the hand that smote it, while hundreds of men hypocritically utter self recreations which they do not feel and which they know to be undeserved.

SCHOOL COMMON COLUMN.

The State Teachers' Institute for Charlevoix County will be held in Charlevoix central school building, commencing Aug. 5th and continue in session eight days. It is expected that all the teachers will govern themselves accordingly.

The Reading Circle year will commence with the Institute. The Teachers' Reading Circle is sure to stay. The teacher who fails to take this into account is a "lack number."

The Dakotas are the only states in which the Teachers' Reading Circle is established by positive law enacted by the legislature. In many other states the Teachers' Reading Circle has a legal status, owing to the action of the state Board of Education. In Indiana still leads all other states in Reading Circle membership, nearly all the teachers of the state in active service being enrolled for the work from year to year.

Charlevoix county ranks among the leading counties in this state.

The Teachers of the future will make a note of the Teachers' Reading Circles as the forces which called into being American pedagogical literature. There was none worth mentioning when the Reading Circle first began. We have four in the English language and in the United States the finest pedagogical literature of the world.

The Illinois issue the year consists of "United States and Foreign Powers" "Teaching the Language Arts by Hinsdale." Our teachers will note that we have had these works in the past. Our teachers who have these books at hand can refer to them frequently, in fact they should be on the teacher's desk at all times. No wonder Illinois thinks it has the best set yet adopted by that state.

The Michigan set for the ensuing year consists of "Psychology for Teachers" by Morgan and Jameson, "The Industrial Evolution of the United States" by D. S. Corey of Lake Carroll Ill. Wright and "Fanciful Tales by Stockton."

Psychology has always been recognized as a most valuable disciplinary study, but it has remained for the students of pedagogy to show the importance of its bearing upon educational problems.

To be really serviceable to teachers in elementary schools, a work upon practical pyschology requires for its author one who possesses a thorough familiarity with the difficulties involved in the instruction of young children. From no other source can the teacher expect such aid as is required. The charm of this book lies in the naturalness of the presentation, and the perfect accord between the subject matter and the method. The student is provided with the proper bases of instruction and the best methods of teaching. Throughout the book allusions are made to the various educational movements of the day. The scope of the treatment is such as to commend itself to the student.

Dr. Frederick J. and Elizabeth Harlan, graduates of the "American School of osteopathy" have arrived in the city and are now located at No. 22 Huron street for the practice of osteopathy. The Ivy Harlan come directly from the Home school and are prepared to treat diseases by osteopathic method known for suffering humanity. If you are suffering from a disease that has failed to respond to other methods of treatment, do not be discouraged, but investigate the new drugless system. Consultation FREE.

NIGHT HAWK.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

George Allison, who was mentioned as having been very low last week died at his home in this township on Thursday morning and in his 52nd year. Deceased was a pioneer of Charlevoix county.

The sixth annual session of the Northwestern Association of Old Fellows will convene in Central Lake, on August 1 and 2, 1901. Extensive preparations are being made by the members of the order in that city for the entertainment of all visiting members.

Henry Wagley last spring sold his farm near East Jordan to his nephew, Ole Wagley. A week ago he wanted to buy it back, but could not do so and disappointed. He found the body of his uncle hanging from a tree on the farm. Disappointment probably caused the suicide. He leaves a widow and one son.

The city council of Traverse City is considering an ordinance regulating bicycles. It gives riders the privilege of riding on all the streets and sidewalks any hour of the day or night, but provides that when a rider meets or passes a person they shall stop, dismount and pass on foot. Each bicycle must have a bell or gong, to be sounded at every crossing, and must give pedestrians the right of way in all cases.

Two real estate deals have just been consummated at Leland by which two fine pieces of resort property are transferred to wealthy parties who will make of them ideal resorts. A wealthy gentleman by the name of Chandler to Cedar Bluffs, Iowa has purchased of Mr. Pickard a tract of five acres adjoining the Walls resort, for the sum of $1,200. A Mr. Gilmore of Chicago has also purchased of Mr. Warner a bluff on the shore of Lake Michigan, for the sum of $500. The deal was consummated Monday morning, and Mr. Gilmore passed through this city on his way home. He intends to erect cottages on these two tracts of land and begin at once. In all 22 cottages will be erected this spring.

White Man Turned Yellow.

Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hegarty of Lansing, Ion. Ks., when they saw he was turn ing yellow. His skin, which changed under one eye, and he suffered terribly. His malady was yellow jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful stomach and liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was entirely cured." A trial proves its matchless merit for all stomach, liver and kidney troubles. Only 50c. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists.

County of Charlevoix. }

At a session of the Probate Court for said County held in the Probate office, in the City of Charlevoix, in said County, the eighth day of July, A. D. 1901. Present, Hon. Frank Fairchild, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of Jacob Hoffman, deceased. On reading and filing the petition of Jacob Hoffman, praying that a final and plain administration account of said deceased be allowed, and that the residue of said estate be assigned to the persons entitled thereto. It is ordered that the twelfth day of August, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for hearing said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be held at the Probate office, in the village of Charlevoix, in said County, on the day and hour aforesaid, and show cause why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted. It is further ordered that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County, for three successive weeks previous to said time of hearing.

FIRE AT NORWOOD.

The Nash Saw Mill and Several Thousand Feet of Lumber Burned.

About 4 o'clock Sunday morning the saw mill at Norwood was discovered to be on fire and in a few minutes was in ashes. The fire fighters then turned their attention to the lumber and dock.

Men, women and children were out and fought the fire four hours in sweep the fire within bounds until the engine could reach there from this city, which arrived about 9 o'clock. There was some difficulty in getting the engine properly placed, but after this was overcome it did the work. Had the engine reached Norwood a half hour earlier it would have saved 500,000 feet more of lumber.

The mill was insured for $6,000 and there was $3,700 on the lumber. On July 1st $2,500 insurance on lumber expired, and had not been renewed.

About two million feet of lumber was burned. The wind was luckily in the most favorable quarter, or the lumber and dock would all have been consumed. The approaches to the dock were destroyed.

What will be done is not definitely known. L. J. Nash was out of town at the time of the fire, but was telegraphed for. It is understood that a portable mill will be secured to cut out the stock of cedar shingles.

This mill was the oldest steam mill north of Traverse City, having been built by Orwin Adams in the fall of 1895.

The blow is not only a hard one for Mr. Nash, who has the sympathy of all, but every resident of Norwood will suffer in a more or less degree.

NOTICE—Night Hawk cigars at pool hall will be lighted by an electric light.

Charlevoix was visited by a large number of automobiles last Sunday. They were excursions here from East Jordan, Boyne City, Traverse City and Petoskey.

Prof. Henry I. Cox, chief of the United States weather bureau at Chicago, is now on a tour of inspection along the lake, and will visit all the stations as far as Mackinaw.

Geo. Newell, conductor of the fish contractors' wind up Grand Rapids last Saturday, returning on Monday. While there he furnished the music at the opening of John Ball park on Sunday.

The new bulwarks on the steamer Hackley improve her looks. It is not a safeguard against accidents, as it lessens the activity of passers when children are up toward. The work was done under the supervision of Engineer Sherman and it would do credit to a ship carpenter.

The many friends of Hon. J. M. Harris, of Boyne City, Judge of Probate of Charlevoix county, were pained to learn of the death by drowning, last Thursday, of his elder son, aged about ten years. The boy, with his brother, was bathing, and not knowing how to swim, stepped into deep water and sank before help could reach him. The funeral occurred Saturday, and was attended by several from here—Judge Mayne, and several order officers being among them. Judge and Mrs. Harris have the sympathy of all in their sore bereavement.

Miss Harris of Ann Arbor is spending a few weeks with her niece, Mrs. D. J. Thisdel.

Every person having the season music concerts will be given at the auditorium pool, the first of which will be given next Sunday. Concerts will begin at 3 p. m. and will be conducted by Prof. Jos. R. Newell of the famous Inn orchestra.

In the justice court at East Jordan last Saturday, two of the young men who were implicated in the assault on young Bigley on Macatawa day were sentenced to sixty days in the county jail. Sheriff Pearson came down with them on the Flyette Sunday and they are now resting with Turkey Hitch.

Some of our exchanges recently received the following letter. "If my wife will stay mad to you in regard to a young lady in your city, do not put it on your paper, as the Ladie will being sinsiber and damages against you. If you do, as she has no need of my wife been jealous of that Ladie as that Ladie is all wrigh, and a perfect Ladie."

Last Sunday morning as the little sailboat Tippy, with two mariners on board, was crossing to Round lake a gentle zephyr struck the craft and blew her right out from under the occupants. After the "storm" the inverted boat, with the two men on top of her bottom, was picked up and towed to safety. Another case of "what might have been."

A Chicago resort cottage had a narrow escape from destruction early one morning last week. Mrs Mellinville was awakened by a roaring sound just back of the cottage. She arose and discovered that the latticed work connecting with the house was ablaze, and that the fire had reached the building. She took her children out of the house and then, with the aid of a stream from the lawn hose, extinguished the flames—a courage and presence of mind truly commendable. The fire started from some ashes that a servant had thrown out.

"Scotty" is back again! He of the 1896, the jolly yacht master. Scotty with the rich mullethoma brogue, Scotty, who makes the thistles in the field bow their crested heads when he passes by. Scotty, who sailed last fall, and who, while we were mourning for him, was in the land of the thistle, among the crags of bonnie Scotland, amid the scenes of his childhood, calling national privilege, and telling the lassies Scotia Proud the lea, and Will Your Luve Continue, and Jock and Jean, and the MacLean and Bob Caldwell. Scotty brings back with him from the "gauld auld" an accentuated brogue and the same robustity he took away with him.

While the family were making strange moves in order from Gibswold to Lincoln, Hugh—the little man in his life began to see how time was the best friend to himself in any new position where the good of others compromised nothing was second of him. He was a bachelor and by himself was permitted to rule. His father would be pleased to see his boy can make guide to manage around the old homestead, and he would do it from Gorham Gossage Martindale government.

Suddenly it occurred to him that he, too, would go with his father, he would be a little strange alone between the two, for I know and when he moved home, home place, and he spoke morning with his mother and Jenny, she should be proud to acknowledge him as a son and brother. Mr. Thomas seemed convinced the correctness, which proved to be true, for never more surprised man had our Henry when he came home from Gorham Martindale with a rich and handsome woman on his left. Gossage was the same old Gossage of the old days, and so was Hugh, who was now a young man, for the years which had passed had not changed him, and he was still the same Hugh Thomas whose mother, Jenny, and Mary loved so well. Of course, Gossage was introduced to the family, and he was very polite and gracious, and Mrs. Thomas was quite sure that he was the most charming man she had ever seen, and Jenny was quite sure that he was more handsome than Hugh, and Mary was sure that he was more than either of them, and Henry was sure that he was a fool.

Two weeks after the return of the family from Gorham Martindale, the family moved from Gibswold to Lincoln, where Henry had purchased a home and where he was to be married to Miss Mary Thomas, and Hugh was to be married to Jenny, and Mary was to be married to Gossage, and the place was quite lively for a time, and Mrs. Thomas was quite sure that she was the happiest woman in the world, and Mary was sure that she was happiest woman in the world, and Jenny was sure that she was happiest woman in the world, and Hugh was sure that he was happiest man in the world, and Gossage was sure that he was happiest man in the world, and Henry was sure that he was happiest man in the world, and Mrs. Thomas was sure that Gossage was the most charming man she had ever seen, and Jenny was sure that Henry was the most charming man she had ever seen, and Mary was sure that Hugh was the most charming man she had ever seen, and Hugh was sure that Jenny was the most charming man she had ever seen, and Gossage was sure that Mary was the most charming man she had ever seen, and Henry was sure that Mrs. Thomas was the most charming man she had ever seen, and Mrs. Thomas was sure that Henry was the most charming man she had ever seen, and Jenny was sure that Hugh was the most charming man she had ever seen, and Mary was sure that Gossage was the most charming man she had ever seen, and Mrs. Thomas was sure that she was the most charming woman she had ever seen, and Jenny was sure that she was the most charming woman she had ever seen, and Mary was sure that she was the most charming woman she had ever seen, and Hugh was sure that he was the most charming man he had ever seen, and Gossage was sure that he was the most charming man he had ever seen, and Henry was sure that he was the most charming man he had ever seen, and Mrs. Thomas was sure that Gossage was the most charming man she had ever seen, and Jenny was sure that Henry was the most charming man she had ever seen, and Mary was sure that Hugh was the most charming man she had ever seen, and Hugh was sure that Jenny was the most charming man she had ever seen, and Gossage was sure that Mary was the most charming man she had ever seen, and Henry was sure that Mrs. Thomas was the most charming man she had ever seen, and Mrs. Thomas was sure that Henry was the most charming man she had ever seen, and Jenny was sure that Hugh was the most charming man she had ever seen, and Mary was sure that Gossage

TO REDUCE THE ABDOMEN.

Its Apparent Size Is Made Less by Corset Pudding.

The apparent size of the abdomen may be made less by a correct standing and sitting position. A lounging position, which sets the body full in a lump at the waist line, crushes the muscles and forces a fatty deposit just where it is most detrimental to the beauty of outlines of a woman's figure in standing. Draw in the abdomen and throw out the chest, letting the weight of the body fall upon the ball of the foot. This will insure a perfect poise, and teach the abdominal muscles to be self-supporting. If these muscles are not permitted to become relaxed, but are held firmly in position by effort of will, there will be an apparent reduction in flesh about the hips and and abdomen before even a single pound is taken off. An exercise which should be taken every night and morning for abdominal reduction and which requires no apparatus, will seldom be never fail, if persisted in. Usually there is a very apparent reduction in flesh within a month, so that the skirt seams have to be altered. Lie flat upon the floor, face downward, arms folded. Raise the body free from the floor upon the elbows and the ball of the toes. At first the bowel muscles may be weak, so that it will be a difficult feat. Rest, then try again. Repeat until tired, resting between whiles. A straight-front, comfortably fitting corset forces the apparent size of the figure. Tight lacing is a grievous error. Billows of fat overflowing above and below a compressed waist never tend to diminish the size. Exaggerated curves are only made by rendering more prominent. The more evenly distributed the excess of fat, the less it attracts notice. Massage rollers and a pint of hot water form a powerful and harmless anti-fat combination. Vichy hot seltzer are also excellent to dilute in place of water to quench thirst.—Stella Stuart in Ledger Monthly.

Pictures That Authenticate History.

The Blessing of the Colors at Washington has called attention to the lack that in the pictures of the Pilgrim Fathers the good ship Mayflower is flying the union flag that came into use in 1606. This anachronism is not unpardonable in naval pictures in the collection of old paintings of sea fights at the Naval Intelligence Institution there are many pictures of battles fought before 1707 in which the British ships fly the union flag of today. The explanation is that some years ago when the older pictures were dusted and restored, the painter "corrected" the flags by painting in St. Patrick's cross over the white St. Andrew's cross of Scotland. The only picture which escaped this bringing up to date is that of the sinking of the Royal George, in which one sees the correct flag of the time flying.—London Chronicle.

Mosquitos Attacking the Mosquito.

Hartford (Conn.) Special: The Hartford Board of Health is endeavoring to stamp the mosquito nuisance through the use of crude petroleum. The South Meadows marsh area is the eastern part of the city, bordering on the Connecticut river, are the breeding ground of the insect. The board of health in accordance with a request by the common council to devise methods for exterminating the mosquitoes, has been agitating the meadows with petroleum. Oil has been passed on the water so that by the action of the wind it permeates the marshy district. It is believed that a considerable diminution of the mosquito nuisance has already been accomplished, and the officials hold the experiment to be encouraging enough that substantial results will be achieved.

Dolphin Caught in a Trolley.

The following accident is sent to life-saving staff by a telephone operator in the Transvaal, where it has gone the rounds of the camps. It naturally lacks official confirmation, but, happily, this does not affect its merits as a story: "Day left a store of fowls and Kitchener's meeting about terms of peace last week. At the old Delta mill. Well, I must be going. Kitchener requires the boys to get ready to travel on a bank a train. Hit that's just what I have got to do, said Botha. And two days afterward a train was held up and bound on the Delagoa line, not very far from the place of meeting."

Who Pulls at the Oar.

I asked a lawyer what he regarded as "the points of the law," or what is meant by "possession is nine points of the law," and he answered in this wise: Because in a lawsuit requires (1) a good deal of money, (2) a good deal of patience, (3) a good cause, (4) a good lawyer, (5) a good counsel, (6) good witnesses, (7) a good jury, (8) a good judge, and (9) good luck.—New York Press.

Passing the Salons.

The following unique letter has been received by the Philadelphia Record: "If my wife will say stuff to you in regard to a young lady in your city do not write her to my town paper as the ladies will bring slander and damages against the husband if you do as they be need of my wife being jilted so that I take as the jurors ladies is all right and a perfect ladies."

Women Professors "Cured Sight."

A "cure sight" has been produced by a woman, Mme. Curie, of the Municipal School of Physics, Paris. It is called radium and is due to the action of certain salts on uranium salts. When treated the substance becomes permanently luminous without heat. Placed in gas, powder it creates a glow, but there is no explosion.

The Father of the British Navy.

Sir Henry Keppel, who was 91 years of age in June, has been passing the winter in Cairo. Of him an old friend of his who is also there recently said, "Herr Keppel is here, full of life and energy. It is as if he was young and well as he appears to be now I shall be quite anxious lest I lose sight of him on the landing. To hear Harry Keppel tell his age—any lead—turns all good life and with many a little boy."—London Chronicle.

Three Days Only.

CONSULTATION, EXAMINATION AND ADVICE FREE.

Dr. McDonald has for years made a study and specialty of chronic and lingering diseases that require skillful medical treatment for their cure. Such cases as family physicians fail to help, and pronounce incurable are particularly solicited, especially those overcome with strong mineral drugs and poisons. Dr. McDonald uses only the purest medicines from the vegetable kingdom. He pays attention to the cause of the disease and instructs his patients the way to health and happiness. Dr. McDonald can show hundreds of testimonials in the handwriting of grateful patients who have been cured by him when others failed. He is so familiar with the human system that he is able to treat all diseases of the mind or body correctly at a glance without asking any questions. Diseases of the eye are being treated daily for diseases that they do not leave, while a few drops of medicine directed at the seat of the disease would give speedy relief, and permanent cure in a very short time. Good health is the most precious jewel in our crown of happiness. With it the world is bright, without it, misery claims us for her own. If you are a sufferer you should weigh well these words: A person who neglects his health is guilty of a great wrong to himself and a great injury to those near him. The name of Dr. McDonald, the well known specialist in the cure of chronic and lingering diseases has become a household word in the thousands of homes which his skill and wonderful remedies have made happy by restoring their ones to health after all hopes were lost. The doctor is a graduate of the highest and best medical colleges, and has devoted a lifetime to the treatment of chronic diseases surprise the most skeptical. All chronic diseases of the

EYE, EAR, THROAT, LUNGS, HEART, LIVER, STOMACH, KIDNEYS, and BOWELS,

COLUMBUS AND HIS SALARY.

Old Architect in Space Shows He Knew Pay of Admiral.

In the building known as the "Lodge" at Seattle, Wash., are preserved the archives of the pioneer days of Puget Sound, collections in Americana from the time of their discovery until a few years ago, writes William H. Harris in the Chicago Record-Herald. There is a mass of papers, such as the commissions which would fill a trunk of every size and in a glass case, open to the without much order or arrangement, for instance, there are signed by Abraham Lincoln, authorizing and indicating the papers, and the Journal of the Congress have been granted permission to publish, and they have an important bearing upon history. Every time while some interesting paper is discovered, it is carefully mounted and the reports of that society. The latest discovery is the original of the payroll of the crews of the galleons of Columbus upon his first voyage. It Takes a Remedy of Uncommon Merit to Draw the Unqualified Praise of a Successful Practicing Physician.

Dr. J. W. Bates of Corfu, N. Y., states: "A most remarkable case has come under my knowledge of late and has fully convinced me of the wonderful power of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills over diseases of the nerves.

"A young lady who was treated for over two years by eminent physicians without benefit, I found that her sickness was entirely nervous. Doctors had pronounced her case hopeless. Two boxes of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills at a cost of one dollar, completely cured her. Since that time she has had a sound and healthy body. She has rapidly improved, she has gained about fifteen pounds in weight, and I do not hesitate to state that Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills have saved her life and restored her to health."

See that the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase are on every box. Price 50 cents per box, 5 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or sent by mail on receipt of price by the Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

NIAGARA FALLS TODAY.

Recent Breakup in Rocky Gorge Falls a Remarkable Spectacle.

Human agency in the rock edge of the Cataracts of Niagarahas first, since the Niagara Falls Power Company, which by the larger part of the Niagara River waters are precipitated, have turned aside the water. Last fall a remarkable breakup of an enormous cataract near the New York side. The mass of tumbling rock and earth was seen from Canada for about one hour. The cataract is now in a comparatively quiet condition, but the breakup of Niagara Falls was supposed to take place in the near future. Some people think that have been connected with the new power company will be the last to see the last of the cataracts. Some of the engineers of the company have made a study of the cataracts and are confident that the breakup of Niagara Falls will come suddenly and without warning. Mayor Has Been Abusing His Family—Attempts to Dynamite Train to Arrest Mine Photographer—Shots Made to Mistake for a Burglar.

Albertus Watts, who was had recently killed in Iowa by Edward de Bernard, the Chicago photographer, who when taken back upon himself proved to be a fugitive from a Kansas jail, and who had been in the employment of the Humboldt Mining company, was buried on Friday afternoon. A mistake was made in the Kansas dispatches which stated that Watts was a brother of Mrs. Bernard, the wife of the photographer. Watts was married and has been in the employ of the company. Watts and his wife had had a quarrel and he had left her. Mrs. Watts is a sister of Mrs. Bernard.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Special of the farmers near Sherman, Wexford county, are experimenting this year in growing peppermint, the culture of which is such a profitable industry in the southwestern part of the state.

Central Lake Torch: It is reported that the difficulties that existed between the heirs of the Harold Ward estate has been amicably adjusted and that now the Detroit and Charlevoix railroad will be completed. This will be a boom to this part of the state, especially to Charlevoix and East Jordan.

Elk Rapids Progress: A. J. Moore went to Charlevoix the Fourth to see his son Milton, whom he had not seen for eight years, and who up to two years ago was supposed to have been drowned in lake Superior seven years ago, when a fishing tug on which he had been working went down with all hands, but it seems that Milton had quit the boat only two days before the disaster. He is now employed by the Charlevoix water works.

Plans have been completed by the Ann Arbor Railroad Co for the new resort at Frankfort. A final building with 350 rooms is almost completed, a large lake house will also be built, supplied from the Frankfort springs, and several summer cottages are to be erected near the shore of lake Michigan. Most of the million dollars will be spent by the railroad company in improvements, and when all this is completed it is thought by that time the resort will rival Point aux Barques, on the Pere Marquette.

A week ago the papers reported a race between the steamers Dalzelle and the Illinois of the N. M. T. Co. It was stated that for a long time neither boat was an entertainer, but that while opening United Traverse bay the Illinois broke ahead. This is explained by the Illinois people by the fact that their ship's course was altered at that point and that thereby the men, if such there was, was sailed. The Northland is of course very fast, but the Illinois can steam the 120 miles between Manitou and Charlevoix in six hours and six minutes, it is said.

A recent dispatch from Lansing states that Milton-more Charles Wright, who was paroled by the late Governor Pingree, reported at the office of the governor. On occasion of his chief demonstration the high sense of duty. Under his parole he was not permitted to leave the state, but he was suddenly called to Wisconsin by the death of his brother. He made his visit as brief as possible, and upon his return promptly notified Gov. Hiles of what he had done, and set at rest the fears of a number of citizens of northern Michigan who have been keeping bar on his whereabouts, and who were complaining because he had been allowed to leave the state.

A Frankfort special says: A work man at the new hotel which is being erected here dug up a golden silver crucifix, which is believed to have been the property of Fr. Marquette, supposedly buried here 200 years ago. The crucifix, which is eleven inches in length, the cross five inches long at arms, is mounted on a base two inches square, heavily plated with gold. It is of French origin and bears the letters I N R I. It is now in possession of Contractor Hoerts, who has expressed his intention of sending it to the East Chicago Historical Society, or Grand Rapids. It is of priceless value as a relic and could easily be disposed of for a large sum. The Ann Arbor people are anxious to get possession of it to be placed in the hotel along with the skull supposed to be that of Father Marquette, and a great scrap is expected over it, as Hoerts refuses to give it up.

The Cup is in Charlevoix.

At the second tournament of the East Jordan Gun club held at that place on the 12th, the Charlevoix club carried away the honors in a cup. There were eight or ten sweepstakes events in which the honors were about equally divided. The great event was the shoot for the cup, which Charlevoix won, and it is now on exhibition at F. M. Sears' store. Following is the score.

Dr. Allan Wilkinson has located at St. James for the practice of his profession. The people of Beaver island are to be congratulated on their good luck. Dr. Wilkinson is a thoroughly equipped physician and surgeon and is a gentleman from top to toe. The people of the island can trust him, and we know that they will show their souls and right for him after he has been there a month.

Lionel Reynolds, inspector of the benefit district life saving service, visited our town Saturday, leaving their efficiency with the oar by boat drill and their knowledge of operations by giving a drill with the life car, firing a line across the outer end of the south pier, sending out a lawyer and attaching it thereto, over which the life car was sent, showing its use values in case of need.

S. M. Moore, president of the "Gage club, authorizes us to state that the club men in Pine auger to the five men it may send all you boats and sail boats. The sands impediments have the exclusive navy privileges. It has been generally understood that all boats were to be prohibited from landing at the dock, said Mr. Moore, relative to have it known, that boats, with the exception of ferry boats, are allowed to land. A man will be kept at the dock to take care of boats.

—Over in Elmwood the ruling topic is the county seat question. The editor of this paper tries to be neutral in this matter, but he cannot forget that twenty thirty years ago he was accused in Charlevoix Traverse on a criminal warrant for editorially blowing unpleasant things about a lawyer of that town. Of course, the lawyer was the one who got into jail, but we cannot forget the day that the sheriff packed us up in "Little Traverse."

—The bridge is completed, and will probably be transferred to the township this week. The contract was turned for the first time last Saturday afternoon. There has been much speculation as to whom would be the first person to cross it. Beaver Island captured the prize—James Martin landing on the north side while some of our folks were thinking about it. The bridge is all right, and the test Saturday demonstrated the accuracy of Mr. Christie's engineering for the foundations. The ends of the structure touched the spot within half an inch.

—Just as the sun was hiding behind the orange and gold tinted bluffs Tuesday evening, as our circle was strolling along the north bank, we observed a party of bathers. Near the edge of the water posed a gem. Grecian of finely moulded figure enfolded in a double gown, assuming a dog and admiring the beautiful sunset. Presently we saw the comely figure of a dignified lady, nearly close, approaching the party at a rapid pace, with outstretched arms. Suddenly the gentleman turned, and, observing the lady, his arms were quickly adjusted to receive the precious burden. The lady, with a slight scream, fell into the arms of the gentleman, either from surprise or overcrowder, the two were carried backward, and probably from a sense of modesty or coolness they went in bathing with their clothes on. A rescue was quickly made and the parties wended their way homeward, a little damp but otherwise all right. This is another convincing incident to prove the theory that a man never gets too old to endorse a golden opportunity.

SCHOOL COMMISSIONER'S COLUMN.

The "Outline of State Teachers Institute for 1901" has been issued from the department in revised form and will be ready for the teachers at the session of the institute. We have tried sending them out to the teachers before the session and found the cost too high for a "dollar and a quarter." They will be on hand and distributed to the teachers at the beginning of the institute August 5.

The Teachers' Institute has a definite purpose. This purpose is the better preparation of the teacher both rural and village teacher, while the better preparation may include study in academic lines, the institute has no excuse for its existence as a mere school. It is not for the purpose of teaching those branches which the teacher is to teach. The purpose is broader and deeper. It deals not with pupils but with teachers. However immature, however poorly equipped in literary lines, the members of any institute may be, the instructors of the institute must meet them and treat them as teachers.

Three things should characterize the work of any institute. It should be inspirational, it should be professional, and it should be academic. In short, the institute is the rural teachers' normal school, and should so far as possible symbolize in act its work the normal idea.

The inspirational element in the institute is of the utmost importance. It is the soul, the throbbing life of every successful school and of every successful institute, and without it professional skill and academic knowledge are merely worthless for the real ends of education. The kick of every dynamo, and the action, whether professional or academic, should possess this element of inspiration, this quickening power.

The institute of today is an outgrowth of the institute of the past. We have had the normal institute, the method institute, and the review institute. Each of these has merits, but each fails short of reaching the ideal institute. We have, however, built our experience into a conception of what it should be, elements of value and combine them, forming an ideal institute. This ideal is an institute of three or four weeks in which all three ideas—inspiration, professional, and education—are incorporated.

It is not possible, however, to have a long institute every year in a county, and promptly as advisable, we have therefore planned to have the three ideas exemplified in the three kinds of institutes. The three day which should be distinctively inspirational, the five day or eight day which should be distinctively professional, but include the inspirational element, and the long term institute which should be distinctively academic but include both the inspirational and the professional ideas. Outline for 1901.

The summer institute will be short and the outlook is much brighter than the old name. However more work is given than can be accomplished.

A STORY OF

ARMY LIFE IN A Western Fort.

BY MAJOR ALFRED ROCHEFORT

Copyrighted, 1902, by Donald McKaye's Sons.

CHAPTER I.

The place was Fort Clark, though there is no fort there, at the time, and hardly the remnant of a frontier post ever existed. A generation ago Fort Clark was the center of the Army at Pagin Sound that came next to the Mississippi Cascade Range.

Well, Fort Clark was not yet old, when Washington Irving came to it, and Washington Irving was the greatest man in the Pacific Northwest, if not in the Union, as the bonds of each other, and as the man and land which angle from the Northern Pacific, made to another in the Sea which lay between the two, one of which the nation knew, anything about, the other, the Pacific, the place of the great for companies, and the Indian, and all things in the wide, fertile.

Cowards and authors, but it gives a cow-bland to that territory as a state, and, in fact, the Indian agents were fully about on themselves for saying, and saying, and saying, that the Indians and men all had happen to be a general, gale and cowardly, and lacking in courage.

When the time came, in New York city, that that Colin Morton had retained as a private secretary, he was roundly cursed and greatly shocked at such conduct on the part of one of his most brilliant young ornaments.

"Not to talk about the Indian question, but to talk Morton, young gentleman," said Mr. Morton, "you are a disgrace to your ancestors, and with the exception of great wealth which I have, you are the most cowardly, lazy, and worthless young man I ever knew."

"Why, Uncle Jim," said the young man, "I don't see why I should be cursed for the crime of my ancestors, and I don't see why I should be cursed for being a coward, and I don't see why I should be cursed for being lazy."

"Because," said the uncle, "I have to be cursed for something, and I don't see why I should be cursed for being a fool, and I don't see why I should be cursed for being a fool."

"Well," said the young man, "I don't see why I should be cursed for being a fool, and I don't see why I should be cursed for being a fool

THE LAZIEST CREATURES.

Intimate Acquaintance Proves That Eels Are Found in Southwestern Waters.

During the recent trip through the inland western section of the country, I met a young man who had recently returned to New Orleans. I believe I discovered the laziest and most stupid form of life to be found anywhere on the globe. It was an aquatic fowl, with a big, clumsy-looking back, in form something like the dodo, but evidently I have spent some time in watching this fowl, which is found in some of the shallow lakes, and the chief point of interest to me was the startling style in which it displayed. They call these things I believe, out West. They generally squat on stumps or logs in the lake, and watch for the smaller fish that play around the surface of the water. They are fairly clever in catching what they want, and they throw out their bills with considerable graceful skill when they dig for game, but they never get to eat what they catch until they have fed at least one, and maybe more than one, member of another kind of water fowl. Whenever a shy coarse to catch fish is caught, the largest water hen will take a place immediately behind him. The fish always lands the fish the water hen simply crushes over and gets it. Without any show of resentment, and without turning around the shag will continue to watch for fish, and this is kept up until the water hen has fished to meal and then if an other interesting member of the same tribe comes along, the shag is permitted to enjoy the privilege of its own sleep or nets it has to have the same one shag feed as many as three water hens before eating a single fish. It certainly a singular display of stupidity, and after having watched the performance a number of times I feel convinced that the shag is actually too dull to even know that the water hen stands behind him to steal the fish out of his mouth.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A Butterfly Farm.

An English entomologist, William Watkins, has the few to raise butterflies on a large scale. For a dozen years the entomologist has been engaged for this purpose has furnished thousands of specimens of butterflies and moths. Mr. Watkins himself has established at the Zoological Garden of London a very attractive entomologic station, where may be found the most beautiful butterflies of the entire world. The butterfly farm of Hammersmith, near the suburbs of England, and it is a place well shut from which covers an area of 1,000 square meters. It is a garden filled with flowers and rare trees and surrounded by a very high inclosure and have flutter at liberty many thousands of butterflies of rare species. From all the countries of the world the farm receives eggs, which are submitted to a special mode of incubation. Then the caterpillars, leaving from these eggs, receive nourishment suitable to their evolution. A certain number of the most perfect insects are preserved as reproductors, while the others are exterminated and mutilated. Some of the rarer insects fetch enormous sums.

Let His Crops Die.

L. N. Calvary was found, dead of heart disease in his home near Fairchild, Wis., recently. His age was 70 years and 4 months. He was a prominent farmer in a state. He was the most successful man in all North Dakota. His farm was 3 miles from Newborgh, N. Y., bought 100 years ago by his great-grandfather, a large house which he handsomely furnished and now his fond home. He worked on his vineyard and truck garden. Healthy, hay never made a shipment. Each year's harvest was allowed to rot. He worked ten hours a day tinkering himself as if working for hire. He recently retired from New York where he had his cash accounts, and the house is much than silverware. He had $100 on his person when found. He left a vineyard vineyard on the Hudson River for $12,000.

Bloody Baseball Helping Golf.

A peculiar combination has contributed to golf's popularity and that is the rowdyism that brought baseball into disrepute. There is no contest that equals the great American game. It has the snap, the science, the skill and every feature that appeals to the quick appreciation and nervous demands of the average American. But Americans do not like profanity and the better classes of them are opposed to paying good money to be insulted by the bad manners and vile language of hired ruffians. Turned from the ball grounds thousands of these men have sought other recreation, and have found it in golf. Some time in the future baseball will be rescued from its low condition and there will be a delightful revival over known in the history of the game. May the day be hastened.—Philadelphia Times.

Economic Value of Birds.

It is averred that the destruction of birds in France has produced these effects upon agriculture, horticulture and the grape industry. In the Department of Herault alone, it has been calculated, the destruction of 10,000 sparrows, to feed upon insects, costs a loss of more than 2,000,000 gallons of wine every year. Some birds consume about 600 insects each day, and a single insectivorous species (Mesange Leveur estimates, may be the means of saving 1,500 grains of wheat and 1,150 grapes per day.

He Dabbled Better Than He Knew.

The lesson and lesson about the prodigal son, and the entire Sunday school had been properly impressed. The superintendent rose at the close and with a view of formulating a lightly moral lesson, asked: "Now, my little friends, who stood by objecting to the prodigal's banquet to the prodigal?" and a voice in a fair corner answered, "The calf."—Philadelphia Press.

WASP STINGS ARE FATAL.

People Have Been Known to Die from Injuries Received.

In an article on the stings of wasps the British medical journal gives the following cases which have come under its notice: A young gentleman died of symptoms of nausea and pulsed blindness and vertigo, which he suffered severely. He recovered in the course of a few hours. Two months later she was stung again, this time on the hand; the face became flushed, she again complained of nausea and blindness, sickness followed very pale, cold and fainting, and she died in minutes after she was stung. Another case was that of a girl of 19 years who was stung by a wasp behind the angle of the jaw. The sting was at once extracted and ammonia applied. In a few minutes she complained of faint and would have fallen if she had not been supported. Her face assumed an expression of great anxiety and a few minutes later she was moaning on the bed, complaining of a horrible feeling of choking and of spasming pain in the chest and abdomen. Instant relief gave no relief. There was nausea, but no vomiting. She rapidly became semi-comatose and died almost immediately. Instances of this kind are not uncommon. In a recent case the patient was a healthy and active man, who had a severe attack of asthma, which was followed by a sudden death. The author also knew of a case in which a man died in a few minutes after receiving the sting. The most probable explanation of such cases seems to be in what is known as idiosyncrasy—that is, the peculiar susceptibility to certain substances. It is well known that there are very much in action on different people. Thus, a lady, who had no fear in San Lorenzo, large to another. The inability of some people to eat strawberries is an idiosyncrasy, and the influence of the sting phenomena. The stings and of the attack is generally believed to be formic acid. It therefore seems very desirable that we should have more accurate information regarding the action of this drug in different species of the lower animals and through them on man himself.

SULTAN AGREES TO PLANS.

Jews May Eventually Call Promised Land Their Own.

At last it seems as if the Jews might get back to the Promised Land and eventually be able again to call it their own. It is thus the founder of the Zionist movement, has laid before the Sultan a scheme for the colonization of parts of northern Palestine, and his plan is backed up by the Kaiser. In return offered fair concessions in return for a definite security of tenure, with internal governing rights over great tracts of land. The payments were to take the form of a certain sum down, with instalments as the work advanced. But on the part of the Jews international securities for the carrying out of the undertaking are demanded, and the leading money is likely to be the Kaiser himself. The Sultan treated Dr. Herzl's deputation kindly, and promised to grant the part of what the Zionists asked. An international congress of Jews will be called shortly to approve the plans made by the leader. The first step taken by the Jews outside will be the rebuilding of the harbor of Jaffa, and then large irrigation schemes will be undertaken. The work will be done by Jews brought from Galicia, Roumania and Russia. The schemes, far from being charitable, is a business venture, from which good returns are expected.—New York Press.

Protecting Fruit Trees.

"I learned a trick while in the Philippines in the matter of keeping birds out of fruit trees," said a well known officer of the possession, "and I must, which may be of value to some man just now, when so many chief trees are being destroyed by birds. It is simple, inexpensive and as far as most observers practical, it consists in stringing a small mirror on the top limbs of the tree. There should be at least six inches of string to the mirror, so that it can swing alone as it is blown by the wind. The flash of the mirror, it appears, scares the birds away. One or two fruit carrying trees in a tree is sufficient, though, of course, more are four would be much better. I was told that this method had worked in the Philippines successfully for many years, and that the birds do not grow tired with it as they do with a scarecrow. Since my return here I find that the mirror trick is not unknown here and that it has been in use in Michigan, fruit growers for many years. I have tried it myself in a small way and it is amusing what a star it causes among the birds."

Commercial men who are in touch with the trade of Japan say that the war has made fortunes for some in Japan. Large fortunes have been made by the war. The traffic in opium seems to be the most lucrative of all the trades. The opium trade of Japan is greatly enlarged by the war. It is thought that the Japanese government will be able to raise a loan of $100,000,000 very easily. Japanese Emperor's Income.

The emperor of Japan has an allowance of something like $2,500,000 a year to keep up the imperial establishment. He has also a large private fortune, having inherited in stocks and a great deal of wealth in land. In addition to the Chinese-Japanese war paid Russian, which his money, he received a great deal of money, the Chinese paid him a million dollars out of the immense paid by the Chinese as a mark of gratitude for his directing the naval and military operations.

Shipment of Mosquitoes.

A box addressed to the Academy of National Science in Washington and shipped from a small station in Southwestern Kansas was covered with gauze and wire netting. Four hundred mosquitoes, the lively ones quite lively when they arrived and were apparently in good health as when they started on their journey from Sonora Station, where they were captured. The mosquitoes are of genus, for scientific investigation.

Collecting Butterflies Alive.

In Japan they have a very simple way of collecting butterflies alive. They stream them with chloroform and anesthetic matter and then the butterflies in the night time are attracted, stick fast and are taken off.

Dr. McDonald has for years made a study and specialty of chronic and lingering diseases that require skilful medical treatment for their cure. Such cases as family physicians fail to help, and pronounce incurable are particularly solicited, especially those overdosed with strong mineral drugs and poisons. Dr. McDonald uses only the purest medicines from the vegetable kingdom. He pays attention to the cause of the disease and instructs his patients the way to health and happiness. Dr. McDonald can show hundreds of testimonials to the handwriting of grateful patients who have been cured by him when others failed. He is so familiar with the human system that he is able to read all diseases of the mind or body correctly at a glance without asking any questions. Thousands of invalids are being treated daily for diseases that they do not have, while a few drops of medicine directed by the right disease would give speedy relief, and permanent cure in a very short time. Great health is the most precious gift of all and cause of happiness. With it the world is bright, without it, misery claims us for her own. If you are a sufferer you should weigh well these words. A person who neglects his health is guilty of a great wrong to himself and a great injury to humanity. The name of Dr McDonald, the well known specialist in the cure of chronic and lingering diseases has become a household word in the thousands of homes which his skill and wonderful remedies have made happy by restoring dear ones to health after all hopes were lost. The doctor is a graduate of the highest and best medical colleges and has achieved more success in the treatment of chronic diseases anyone the most skeptical. All diseases incident of the

The Want of Working People.

When the working man or woman feels sick—liver, stomach or kidneys are out of gear—then Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills do a world of good acting directly on these organs and the bowels.

BAY CITY.

Mr. L. H. Mace, 1308 Columbus Avenue, Bay City, Mich., for overweight and torpid liver, kidneys in his lifetime, brought on an attack of kidney trouble which made it necessary for him to leave off working at times. He underwent treatment for Lame Back, Dropsy, Gravel, Bright's Disease, but was cured by a few boxes of Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. He says: "For years I lived in constant fear that my kidneys would become worse and I would be laid up and dropsy or Bright's disease set in. I purchased a box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for my trouble. They acted well on relieving my pain and backache that I purchased a box of the same medicine for my wife, who was troubled severely by pain in my back and about the kidneys. I can say that Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have made me feel like a new man, and I can do my work without pain or trouble. I cheerfully endorse your medicine."

DETROIT.

Mr. Levi Ensey, 60 Midland Avenue, Detroit, for years suffering from Lame Back, Dropsy and Bright's disease, was cured by a few boxes of Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. He says: "For years I lived in constant fear that my kidneys would become worse and I would be laid up and dropsy or Bright's disease set in. I purchased a box of Dr. A. W. SAVE THE ORCHARD.

Chemist Spraying the Natural Growth Remedies for Bad Parasites.

This has been an ideal season for the spraying of orchards for the benefit of the insects and fungi, Mulcaster and Bordeaux mixture with occasional weaker compositions for problem time; modifications for the different kinds of fruit, and whether it is for apples, pears, plums, grapes, quince or peaches, from the time when they are in blossom to the time when they are ripe. The quantity thus taken is three and quarter pounds of blue vitriol, slaked lime and water, and the Bordeaux mixture is generally used for the fungi, and the Paris green for the insects. The mixture is generally made with the Paris green in the Bordeaux mixture, and the plants are sprayed by covering them as with a film of this mixture and lime in some fashion. This is effected by a knapsack or it stays on

BOY'S LOVE LEADS TO TRAGEDY.

Shoots His City of Six Thousand Fellow-Men Rather Than Part with Her.

At Newton, Kan., Miss Clara Bruce, a young girl of 18 living near Sedgwick, Harvey County, was shot and killed by her sweetheart, Jesse Vessels, a cattle buyer, in the family sitting room, after a long quarrel over the girl's refusal to elope with him. Vessels then turned the gun on himself and died in a few hours. The young people had been sweethearts for two years, and had planned to elope on the day before the tragedy, but at the last moment Miss Bruce had changed her mind and refused to go with him. Vessels had been drinking heavily for the first time in months, and was in a state of mind bordering on insanity when he came to the home of his sweetheart. He had been there but a few minutes when he drew a revolver and fired a bullet into her head. The girl died without a word. Vessels then walked into the next room and shot himself through the temple. He lingered for several hours, but was unable to recognize his friends or give any explanation of the tragedy. Vessels was well known in Newton, where he had been a cattle buyer for some time. He was about 30 years of age. The girl was 18 years of age. Her father is a well-to-do farmer.

RUN IN ALGIN WRECK.

Nineteen Persons Lose Their Lives in Mississippi River.

Nineteen persons were crushed to death and many others more or less injured when the south bound train No. 1 on the Illinois Central road, which is a popular flying train from New Orleans to Chicago, ran into a wreck of a freight train at Algin, Miss., on the Mississippi River, about 200 miles south of Memphis, early in the morning. The entire train left the rails and was wrecked, the engine and tender being thrown across the track, while the cars were piled up in a mass of splinters and twisted iron. The wreck was caused by the conductor of the freight train failing to read the order to wait for the passenger train at Algin. The freight had left Memphis the night before, and was lumbering along at a slow speed when the passenger came whizzing into the wreck. The engine and tender were thrown across the track, and most cars remaining in some way on the track were piled up in splinters. The passenger train was made up of the sleeper, one coach and the baggage car, and all were more or less damaged. The sleeper was thrown from the track and turned on its side, but the coach and baggage car were left on the track. The engineer and fireman were killed, and the baggage master was badly injured. The injured were taken to Memphis on the train that brought the dead. The wreck was in charge of Superintendent Lee, of the Memphis division, who was on the train when it left Memphis. The wreck was cleared at 10 o'clock in the evening, and the train was then sent on its way. The following is the list of the dead:

J. H. Sherrill, fireman, Memphis.
Jesse Lee, engineer, Memphis.
Baggage Master Lee, Memphis.
Mrs. Ed. Ward, Memphis.
Mrs. Ed. Ward, Memphis.

Don't Knock.

Another good thing comes out of Buffalo, a town noticed to exalt its horn. Last week the Commercial Travelers' Association gave a hearing to Mr. Maurice H. Loss, Supreme President and Mr. Clarence H. Lavery, Supreme Secretary and Treasurer, of the order of Good Knocks, which was incorporated March 20. The creative members are Bufflonians. Every person who joins the order solemnly binds himself to pay a fine of one cent every time he is caught "Knocking." The proceeds of the fines are to go for charity.

"To knock" in beginning of the century English the "to backfire," to "speak ill of." It is the purpose of the new society to register a ledger which is always free to common knowledge sometimes from thoughtlessness as much as from malice. Sometimes it seems to be infectious. Let somebody in any company begin to say mean or naked things of some absent person and he is on one hook even still take up the lade and add some to spite.

The amount of suffering that is caused by rattling, backbiting and "they say" especially in small communities where everybody knows everybody and every word of depreciation or scandal is sure to reach its mark, is incalculable. The objects of the order are thus described in the constitution:

Section 1—To continue to its members the deplorable habit of speaking ill of our fellows, either when known or unknown, and to passing old examples tending to induce others to do the same.

Section 2—To better the social and moral condition of mankind to a true knowledge in it members to the extent of chosen by its president alone.

Section 3—To keep the Golden Rule ever in the minds of its members.

Section 4—To treat its members together in a social and fraternal manner."

And here is a little bit of the ballot:

"We believe that the practice of speaking ill of our fellowmen, either when knowing it to detractable, unfairly and unchristable.

"We believe it our duty to correct the imperfections of our fellows, provided their actions are not of great moment to the welfare of the community and do all we can to remove and example to show them where they are.

"We believe that many lives are ruined nightly, that many hearts are made miserable and many men and women driven to desperation by the deplorable practice of 'knocking'.

"We believe that a persistent, deliberate knocker is as vile and as dangerous to the welfare of a community as a murderer.

"We believe that many people judge others by their own standard, and that because they are not tempted or are able to resist doing some particular thing that they consider wrong they feel themselves warranted in denouncing and criticising those who are weaker than themselves or whose opinions differ with their own."

Don't "knock" and don't "rubber-neck" to excess.

The foregoing from the New York sun, describes a new society recently formed in Buffalo, that we trust may spread until auxiliaries are established in every hamlet and village on earth.

A new and novel device in a skirt and waist supporter, interesting to ladies, will be exhibited at J. L. Crane's store all next week.

To Teachers of Charlevoix County.

The Charlevoix County State Teachers' Institute will be held in Charlevoix Aug. 26th, at 10 a. m. and will continue in session eight days. W. H. Stuart of Battle Creek will conduct the institute, and W. V. Snow of Mt. Pleasant will act as instructor.

The institute will be conducted along academic lines, the class system being preferred to the lecture course. Bring your text books, especially on those subjects in which you feel you need the most assistance. The usual credits of one per cent. per day will be granted to the teachers who attend the institute, all the examinations held during the ensuing year.

Board can be had at reasonable rates during the session.

We expect to make this the most profitable institute, to the teachers, ever held in the county. Much depends upon the teachers' co-operation. You are cordially invited to attend.

Respectfully,

A. W. CREW, Com'r.

SCHOOL COMMUNITY COLUMN.

A. A. CREW, EDITOR.

The school is a very ancient institution. We have records of English schools which extend back next to the time of Edward III., while the early schools and famous teachers of Judea and Egypt and Greece and Rome are familiar to all readers of history.

The teacher, had acquired a distinct legal status long before the creation of the school office. Humble and clear minds had become his by dispense of course in matters of contracts, usage and by long usage. These rights are now his by a sort of edicts common law.

In a paper read before the N. E. A. at Washington, a few years ago, Supt. Marble said: There is the same distinction between the powers and duties of office and those of a teacher as there is between the constitution of England, which is known through a body of precedents and the constitution of this country, which is a written document, the same distinction which is found between the officers of an ancient monarchy, who finds their powers in long established usage, and officials of a new republic, where the duty of each officer is specifically defined by law.

The power, said the editor of the teacher in the public schools include everything that is taken out of the office of lawyers in the broad understanding of that term which we have from tradition.

The modern public school teacher is the traditional teacher shorn of certain functions which have been by statute laws imposed upon the school officer.

Traditionally the teacher stands in the place of the parent for all the broad purposes of education. Whatever belongs to the parent belongs to him in this regard, and the parents rights and duties are inferior to no earthly power. For the purposes of the school, and while in school, the teacher assumes all the broad powers of the parents.

No specific duties are assigned to the teacher except the highest duty of teaching a good school. There is a singular absence of all law upon the subject. The only duties specifically assigned to the teacher are of a merely formal character, such as having a license or certificate of qualification to teach, and making out and certifying certain school statistics. All the functions belonging to the teacher are left to be inferred from the traditional notions of what a teacher is, and from the purposes of the school, since are the right nature and training of youth.

The statutes of Massachusetts says: It shall be the duty of all instructors of youth to exert their best endeavors to impress on the minds of children and youth committed to their care and instruction the principles of piety and justice, and a sacred regard to truth, love of their country, humanity, and universal benevolence, sobriety, industry, frugality, chastity, moderation, temperance, and those other virtues which are the ornaments of human society and the basis upon which a republican constitution is founded.

—Special commemoration of Charlevoix lodge, F. & A. M., next Thursday evening, Aug. 1. Work in E. A. degree. Full attendance is desired. Visitors especially invited.

—Fred A. and Hazel M., sons of Col. Francis Gardner, U. S. marshal, are here for the summer, at the Pine Lake cottage. Job Gardner is now a Philippine provincial governor.

—The steamer Gladstone running on the Traverse Bay line, having broken her shaft the last of last week, Commodore has taken her place. Hackley taking the place of the Commodore between here and Traverse City.

—A hard time to the farmers of northern Michigan is the almost total failure of the pea crop. The extreme hot weather baked and shrunk them in the pod. Many fields will yield little more than the seed, and very few will give ten bushels to the acre.

—At the offices of the steel trust it is stated that the strike is practically at an end. The men have Morgan's terms and their leaders have expressed satisfaction with them. The form of Mitchell now depends wholly on the time required for the ratification of the terms by the national advisory board of the Amalgamated Association.

—Among the laws passed in the last general assembly is one granting any ex-union soldier or sailor the right to peddle, vend or hawk any goods, wares or merchandise in any town, village or city in this state without a license. He shall only be allowed to peddle on his own behalf, or for others. The county clerk shall issue the license without charge on presentation of the soldier's discharge and proof of identification.

—The engineers' harbor report is out, and in its statistical tables we are told that on the Charlevoix project $155,500 has been appropriated and all expended but $300. Amount estimated required to complete, $40,000. Of this amount $12,000 is asked for next year for improvement and $10,000 for maintenance. Improvement of Pentwater harbor, $71,000 has been appropriated, and $40,000 expended up to date. Amount estimated necessary to complete, $97,000, of which $60,000 is asked for next year. Now it looks as if Charlevoix would receive an appropriation commensurate with its importance.

—Prof. John H. Hoehe and wife of Grand Rapids, the well known physical trainers, arrived here Monday and are organizing classes in physical culture. See ad in this issue for particulars.

—The number of deaths in Michigan in June was 2,736, corresponding to an annual death rate of 12.5 per 1,000 population. Deaths in Charlevoix county for June, seven, or 8.2 per 1,000 population.

—The editor of this paper has, for the past three weeks, been under the care of a physician. For more than two week he has been off duty. If the readers of the SENTINEL will be patient for a time, we promise to make up for lost time.

—The government harbor improvement authorities notified the village council that the water pipe under the river must go down to a twenty-foot depth. Accordingly, Supt. Grant employed the Gaylord steam scow and large steam hoist, and the work has been going on for a week. The pipe has to be lowered five feet.

—In a collision between a steamer and a schooner loaded with lumber, just on the Sam lately, the towbarge was sunk and the captain and two men were drowned. The captain was Ed. Johnson, who more than thirty years ago was master of the Wilsons, which sunk off the mouth of Lake Michigan, and the two men were Frank Fitzpatrick and Fred Tomey, master of the tender. The sailors will remember Capt. Bob Cipts, Sandy and Fisher lived at Henderson, N. Y.

—Hon. Thos. H. Wright, a leading Harbor Springs citizen, and a pioneer of Emmet county, died at his home in Harbor Springs on the 20th, aged 76 years. The funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock from the Presbyterian church. Mr. Wright was quite prominent in politics when in his prime, and served as a member of the Michigan legislature. For many years he was the leading business man of St. James, Beaver Island, going there soon after the Mormon exodus.

—Half a dozen clerks in the auditor general's office at Lansing will have a busy time for the next six months. Their work will consist in the examination of the delinquent tax registers of the several counties of the state for a period of six years. Every delinquent of land that has ever been returned to the auditor general for non-payment of taxes must be examined, and the fact noted whether or not memoranda put by title purchasers in those years, and if such was relieved by the owner have ever been returned to the payer.

—The new postal laws are such that newspaper can avoid actions for fraud who takes a paper and refuses to pay for it. Under this law the man who allows his subscription to run along for some time unpaid and then order it discontinued, or orders the postmaster to mark it "refused," and have a postal card sent notifying the publisher, leaves him liable to arrest and fine, the same as for theft. Attention is called to this law because there are a few people who have done just what the law says they must not do, refuse their paper after allowing it to run. They are on a par with the man who finds it more convenient to move than pay rent.

—Niles Daily Star: Another desperate effort is being made to dispose of the plant of the Niles Publishing company. The concern is still the property of the syndicate, Editor Hampton not owning any position thereof, except in this way. The syndicate merely turned the plant over to Hampton, taking a mortgage in exchange therefor. It was the intention, through this semblance of a transaction, to deceive the people at large by bringing them to believe that the plant had some commercial value. To the contrary however, the concern is a white elephant on the hands of the syndicate, and never can be sold for the reason that there is no market for its product. Today, a stranger was here here by a vivid picture, setting forth the imaginary desirable conditions of the concern, as sketched by members of the syndicate who are extremely anxious to unburden themselves and get out of this losing venture. The stranger accosted is here for the purpose of viewing the situation, it having been proven to the syndicate that Hampton is a forlorn hope, having failed utterly to revolutionize conditions as he found them. This gentleman's writings are as fast as his feet, and he will soon return to the comforts of village life—down at Charlevoix, where the bull-frogs croak and grass hopper hummers.

A STORY OF ARMY LIFE

IN A

Western Fort.

Jackie Loring was a bachelor lieutenant of cavalry, captain of a ship that traded along the Atlantic coast and at rather much longer of New York for supplies.

Captain Ford was a temperate man, active, with bad intermittent gout, to be taken in the accustomed period of every year. She's a daughter in New York, and Florence's sister, and he and his lady, in spite of Jackie, the judge in his 70th year, and Florence, were in town.

Florence was 18, when she left you and drove out with her father, and we had lost touch on the understanding she should accept no other lover.

Now his first years were so and blind, having seen Florence, he was ready to come to me for advice.

"Why, Florence is more than 20, sir, and her own daughter wanting not to marry a man of forty-three."

"Jackie Loring, being a gentleman, will be a good husband to her, and I'm glad, and, thinking that, you should be his best man."

Saturday, on the cutter and Cross Island, Jackie and Florence were married by the Nestor of the place, and we, the Fords, the judge, and Jackie's men, had a merry time, and I believe Florence was happy.

"But you are from New York?"

"Yes, sir, I am from New York." "Why, I know Mr. Ford, and I know Florence, I know Jackie, and I understand."

"Why, sir, I'm a gentleman, and I'm a gentleman's gentleman." Jackie Loring, sitting with his pipe, on Saturday, on the cutter and Cross Island, was talking to me of his wife, and of the Nestor of the place, and of the Fords, and of Jackie's men.

"But you are from New York?"

"Mr. Valiant, and I understand, sir, I'm a gentleman's gentleman."

"Are you Jackie's man?"

"Yes, sir, I'm Jackie's man."

"Why, Jackie's a gentleman, sir, and I'm a gentleman's gentleman."

"Are you Jackie's man?"

"Yes, sir."

"Being a Harvard Man, sir, you know, and being a gentleman's gentleman, I understand, sir, I'm a gentleman's gentleman." Jackie Loring, sitting with his pipe, on Saturday, on the cutter and Cross Island, was talking to me of his men, and of the Nestor of the place, and of the Fords, and of Jackie, and of Jackie's wife, and of Jackie's men, and of Jackie's men's wives, and of Jackie's men's wives's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men's men's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men's men's men's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men's men's men's men's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men's men's men's men's men's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men's men's men's men's men's men's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men, and of Jackie's men's wives's men

ABOUT INSECT PESTS.

Men Plant Insects with Other Insects in Hawaiian Islands.

Few scientists have suffered more from the introduction of insect pests than the islands of the Pacific. The two chief products of these islands are sugar and coffee, while a considerable amount of fruit is also grown. Along with the imported fruit came (but) insect enemies outside the scale insect and the aphis. In the course of time these increased so prodigiously that their destroyed to destroy the ribbon trees of the country. Man is doomed to a constant struggle against nature, and he is often compelled as it speak to fight her with her own weapons. So it was in the case of the trees were being destroyed by insects remedy support some insects. So in 1888 a certain insect (Vedalia cardinalis) was sent over from Australia. It became completely naturalized and increased prodigiously, leaving on the scale insects, which it soon reduced in such numbers that they became comparatively scarce. But there were other insect pests—aphides and others of different species. The government therefore employed a naturalist to conduct from Geneva. This was brought from Australia, and many of them have established themselves and some good service. One of the most useful is imported which feeds on the aphides, which had accumulated to such a great extent. If has done well, good work that has in every respect it has been twice speedily abroad.—Chemistry Journal.

Two Dangerous Departments.

The two most expensive departments in the New York city government are those of correction and police. The former department cost nearly $1,000,000 a year and the last nearly $4,000,000 a year. The cost per prisoner $1,000, so that there are 1,500 employees of the department of education and 2,700 of the department of police, and that per man is $600 a year. Each of the officers of the department. The average police salary is higher than the average teacher's salary.

Peasant Customs in Ireland.

A certain minister of parentage in the wilder and remoter districts of Ireland still wears something like a national costume. Almost tough black plaid of the linen cut to meet on the coat, and the stockings that would prove to hold their shape anywhere in Irish cities or elsewhere. Knee breeches and shoes are worn by the older fashioned men, and women wear cloaks and shawls, the latter often made of homespun, or the English product of Irish linen the amount is decreasing.—Progress.

A Fish Bigger Than Whale.

A curious fish was recently discovered in Greece in Thessaly. There is a cavity in it, and in it lives a fellow with a fellow. Evidently the spot and swallow, leaving a hole into the cavity when it was quite small and was unable to get out again after it had grown. The hole through which it entered is quite small, whereas the cavity in which the opening for it large and might, indeed, ordinary enough for the tood.

Curiosity of the Cuckoo.

"It will depend upon the cuckoo." Dr. Turbyfield of New York makes a point of being very courteous to ambassador and also of being very hospitable to the cuckoo. He sets aside one hour each day to be at home to callers in general, but he newspaper must be at home at nearly all times—except on Saturday night. That night he devotes to final preparation and therefore he his work of the week morning and his rule has been never to be at home after six o'clock on Saturday evening.

Bishop of Lincoln's Salary.

The bishop of Lincoln's salary is $15,000 a year and the dean, Lord Lamborne and canonries of the university endowments and amounts to one than 15 per cent on that sum so that the bishop is not over reduced to $12,000. Five prebendaries from the regard of a bishop of London to the first year. Poor, paupers for the Salvation Army the palace and a variety of other ends and the rest have a comparatively small income for other purposes.

Electrical Time in Berlin.

There is now time of a month night in diametrically opposite sides, the kind that simultaneous fog tier along and another sound of travel. It is done for during. The man who has taken a little waste to show off and the war of during it is with. Too dollar gun fire, or a minutes. For that cannot not. The extraordinary sounds determination soldiers. If it is good in the streets or restaurants, and it makes the people who will but not Prussian gentlemen be surprised how comfortable.—Philadelphia Times.

FOUR BURN TO DEATH

FATAL TENEMENT HOUSE FIRE IN PITTSBURG.

Mrs. Rafer and Three Children Fall Victims to the Deadly Lost Old Case—Remains Which Had Confronted in Burning Ruins Intact.

An early morning fire destroyed a Polish tenement in Pittsburg. The alarm for help was given by people in the building, and firemen had to use the ladders to rescue the inmates, as the flames had cut off the stairways in the rear. The dead are Mrs. Mary Rafer, aged 35 years, her daughter Josephine, aged 10 years, her son Joseph, aged 7 years, and her daughter Mary, aged 3 years. Her husband, who was employed at the Jones & Laughlin works, escaped by jumping from a window. The building was a three-story brick, and was occupied by about 20 families. The fire is said to have started in the rear of the first floor, and it had gained headway when the alarm was given. The building was soon enveloped in flames, and it was with difficulty that the inmates were rescued. The bodies of the dead were found in the rear of the second floor, and were so badly burned that they could not be identified. The building was owned by Mr. Hogan and the furniture belonged to the Rafer family.

WOMAN WAS ON WANTED LIST.

Rube Simms Tried in Colorado and Should Face Charge.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Special.—Rube Simms, who is charged with attempting to murder Mrs. Lillian Stevens, wife of Charles W. Stevens, a wealthy mine owner, in this city, on the night of Dec. 3, was in the county jail here yesterday. Simms was arrested in Denver by Detective Sergeant Dougherty, of the Denver police force, and was brought here by Detective Sergeant Dougherty and Officer Lee. Simms was identified by Mrs. Stevens, who was in the city for the purpose. Mrs. Stevens was accompanied by her husband, who was formerly a police officer in this city, but who now is a prominent mine owner in Cripple Creek. The people of this city are anxious that the case against Simms be tried here, as the crime was committed here, and all witnesses are here.

SAVED BY HUMAN TOBOGGAN.

Old Recluse by a Hero on a Mountain in Sight of Home.

Miss Esther Hobson of Denver, who was nearly lost on Mount Blanca, was saved from the danger of being crushed to death by a human toboggan. Miss Hobson was in the employ of Mr. Mount Blanca, who conducted a hotel in a large house on the side of Mount Blanca. Miss Hobson had gone to the top of Mount Blanca, which is about 14,000 feet high, and was caught in a storm and lost her way. She was found by a hunter, who was on the top of Mount Blanca, who was in a few minutes had a human toboggan made of himself and the girl, and by the exceptional presence of mind was saved from the perilous situation in which she was placed. NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The cherry crop in the vicinity of Traverse City is very large and some six carloads per week are being shipped from there to Chicago.

Bellaire Independent: Line men were here last week to change the telegraph poles to the other side of the Pere Marquette railroad tracks so that the new East Jordan and Southern railroad terminals could be built and a junction made with our main road. The steel gang began work on the East Jordan end the 19th, the grading gangs having got far enough ahead to keep a head. The graders are now within 100 rods of the fair grounds.

Soo News Record of last week says: Willard A. Smith, publisher of the Charlevoix Sentinel, is a guest of the Park hotel. He came here for a period of rest and recreation. Mr. Smith's paper was the official organ of Chippewa county in 1876 I believe, and his paper was established in this county. Mr. Smith has been in the newspaper harness for 29 years and is without doubt the dean of the fraternity in continuous service in the northern section of lower Michigan and the upper peninsula.

The body of Charles Hitchey was found on the peninsula near Traverse City Sunday afternoon, hanging to a tree, by children picking huckleberries. Hitchey, who has been allowed to leave the asylum to visit with a trustee in town, escaped his freedom in the morning, and grabbed a piece of rope as he started through the woodland. Searchers were out all the afternoon feeling sure he had let load away with himself. Hitchey was formerly employed on the government dredge at Frankfort harbor. He had been an inmate of the asylum six months.

Petoskey Record: A. L. Hassell, the owner of the "Inland Route" line of boats is entitled to credit for his public spirit. He has at his own expense dredged out the sand bars near Alanson, and removed 200 sunken logs from the channel of Crooked river between that point and Burt Lake, putting the river in better condition than it has been for years past. Mr. Hassell has this built a hunting saloon at Oden, with which he can lift the Tolumbus to get at her wheels and driving shafts, in a few minutes time.

The man who introduced the German carp into American waters is already loaded with as big a heap of curses as the man who imported English sparrows. The carp is not a game fish, nor is it a palatable food, and about the best use for it is to plow it under poor soil as a fertilizer. But white worthless in itself it is more destructive to the spawn of bass, trout and other game and food fishes than all other enemies of the spawn beds combined. In many inland lakes and streams the people are trying to kill them by seining them out, and catching them in pound nets.

The sparrow law which has recently been repealed by the legislature, furnished interesting statistics. Since the law has been in force thousands of sparrows have been slain for which a bounty of two cents per head has been paid. The slaughter of birds has been so great and the number of birds has decreased so rapidly the matter was taken up by the legislature and the law repealed. Those in favor of repealing the law advanced the idea that the birds did more good than harm as they kept the worms and other insects from destroying the crops. Since the sparrow bounty law has been in effect it has been very noticeable that the worms and insects have been seen in much greater numbers.

East Jordan Herald: Married, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. John D. Pollmer, Schoolcraft, Mich. Wednesday, July 17, Miss Laura May Pollmer and Roy L. Lorraine of East Jordan. The ceremony took place at high noon under a beautiful floral archway. A wedding breakfast followed, to which only the immediate relatives and friends sat down. Miss Pollmer, who for some time has been a teacher at Schoolcraft, will be greatly missed among the social circle, in which she has been very prominent. The groom, who is publisher of the Herald and well known, has many friends who are pleased to welcome him and his bride to their new home in East Jordan. A future of success and happiness is the wish of their many friends.

It Deserves the World.

The bridge is completed and is in use. It is a fine structure and works well, although three men are required to operate it. The township board is considering the matter of working it by steam.

—Geo. Newell, leader of the Inn orchestra, has had his annual yachting excursion, with the usual result Mr. Newell took a party of ladies and gentlemen out to the naphtha launch Swan one beautiful moonlight evening. They started soon after midnight, and when about 200 feet out from shore the engine broke down. A westerly squall came up about that time and the boat drifted to Horseperch point this side of Boyne, landing among the rocks well out from shore. A gentleman of the party waded ashore to erect a flag of distress, and a cow chased him back to the water. With much discomfort the party remained on the boat until morning, when they hailed the Bluewater and were towed home. George Newell can fiddle, but he is a failure as a mariner.

—If there is anything that will excite the enthusiastic disciple of Isaac Walton and prompt him to brave the intense heat and discomfort of a torrid sun it is the possibility of catching a few of the speckled beauties that thrive in the numerous brooks adjacent to Charlevoix "the beautiful," being contributed to the recent drought of rain that the clouds had finally seemingly broken, after two weeks of thunder showers, and that the streams had been sufficiently awoke to insure a catch, two of our dead game sports collected their tackle, and, securing a rig with the usual amount of hair, started for a nearby trout stream. Arriving near the beaver meadows, where they supposed the finny tribe were lying in wait for the festive grasshopper, and speculating on the time it would take to fill their crates, they secured their rig in a farmer's blacksmith shop, donned their rubber boots and broke across country to the stream. Whether from the effect of the hail or some other cause, the first thing they encountered was a spotted snake, and fearing they hadn't provocative enough for snake bites, they immediately dispatched the snake and pushed on toward the stream, which they reached after wading through a wold of growing buckwheat and tangled weeds that grew on the beaver meadows and so enveloped the stream that it was impossible to drop a hook into the water. Finding it impossible to pitch their seductive charms on the fish at this point they proceeded down the stream which led them through briar bushes, cold climatic vines, thick tamarac bushes and overall wambaks, until their faces were the color of a crimson blanket. When weary and footsore they discovered a clearing. Taking a straight shoot for liberty one of the party mounted an old log that supposed to afford an easy exit, but alas, how uncertain are human hopes. Suddenly the back slipped off from under his feet, next second the air was full of legs and boots, the man was traveling, everything spilling from his pockets his head firmly embedded in the mud between two old logs, and the county was nearly deprived of a very efficient county official. Suddenly pulling himself together with a Herculean effort, he extricated himself and, regained his erect position and limped to the clearing a trusted and sorry looking individual, with the ardor for trout fishing completely expunged from his mind. His companion, having experienced about the same difficulty in his attempt to gain advantageous position on the stream, was only too willing to accept the suggestion that they had had enough. But they got any trout? Wal, we should say not and we think they are both willing to seriously swear that they will go fishing again this season.

SCHOOL COMMISSIONERS.

School boards should see that suitable encouragement is given to the teacher. The school board should have an appreciation of the needs of the teacher. They should not employ teachers who do not feel the need of education, or who do not care to become members of the Reading Circle, or to subscribe for educational journals.

The teacher should be competent to give advice on every matter relating to the school. She should freely and gladly herself with its educational and material needs. She should become familiar with the auxiliary forces of school architecture, lighting, heating and ventilation, according to latest authorities on these subjects. Plans are matters upon which many who have been long engaged in educational work have but little knowledge.

The teacher should be thoroughly acquainted with the requirements of good text books, and the comparative merits of various books in the same line of work, will add to the confidence which the school officer will repose in her judgment.

The teacher should be a competent judge of suitable books for the general reading of children. The teacher should well understand her relations to the school officers, and as clearly as she can her rights under the law. The teacher should not show an attitude of opposition or defiance to the board. The teacher should always yield a willing and ready obedience to the school board in all matters of general management.

In maintaining satisfactory relations with the parents of the community the teacher will find much need of tact. When misunderstanding into the school the things that will tend to the improvement and the good of the children, she must bring the greatest part of the community to see that she is not abusing "finds."

Many a teacher, full of the enthusiasm of her high calling, has applied herself with much vigor to bringing about a revolution in the educational life of her school. Starting in with the confidence of the people, she has quickly turned their confidence to suspicion by attacking the old methods with sharp earnestness.

More is accomplished by courtesy than by lancering or by stubborness. It is better to go slowly and obtain what you want than to demand it quickly and fail to get it at all.

To Teachers of Charlevoix County.

The Charlevoix County State Teachers' Institute will be held in Charlevoix Aug. 5th, at 10 a. m., and will continue in session eight days. W. H. Sheard of Battle Creek will conduct the institute, and W. V. Sage of Mt. Pleasant will act as instructor.

The Institute will be conducted along academic lines, the class system being preferred to the lecture course. Bring your text books, especially on those subjects on which you feel you need the most assistance." The usual credits of one to six cents per day will be granted to the teachers who attend the institute, at the examinations held during the evening sessions.

Board can be had at reasonable rates during the session.

We expect to make this the most profitable institute, to the teacher, ever held in this county. Much depends upon the teachers' co-operation.

You are cordially invited to attend.

Sincerely,

A. W. CHAPIN, Cnty. Supt.

The regular teachers' examination for Charlevoix county will be held in the central school building in Charlevoix, Aug. 15, 16, 17, 18th, commencing at 8:00 standard time. Persons desiring to attend the agricultural college can take the entrance examination at same place Aug. 13.

White Man Turned Yellow.

Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hogarty of Lockville, Ky., when they saw he was turning yellow. His skin slowly changed color, also his eyes, and he suffered terribly. His malady was yellow jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful stomach and liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." County Home and Jail.

In reports of my visits to Charlevoix county poor house and jail in past years I have commented on the condition of both with uniform blushing my annual examination this year, I am happy to speak with only commendation.

The county has acquired a good farm of 80 acres, and is cultivating a first class house. It is built on the true plan—placing the males on one side and the females on the other—the departments being separated by a wide hall. The inmates will be provided with single rooms larger than be common, a suitable room will be for the insane, who more sometimes be temporarily provided for. Steam heating will be a protection against fire. Should the village be lighted by electricity, we hope the house may have the benefit of the plant as a further protection. Some system of ventilation should be introduced. We are told bath tubs will be placed in each wing. As the building now stands it is not practicable to furnish a more particular description, but the liberal scale so far exhibited indicates that the county means to have a home that will compare with our best arranged homes. We suggest that when created it should be known as the Charlevoix county home, as a more deserving title.

Since their removal from Ironton, the inmates have been very comfortably accommodated in the old farm house, and another building which has been added to these buildings will be useful for cases of contagious disease and a class of particularly objectionable persons.

With a good farm, a soil right for cultivation, and with fruit trees and garden, we see no reason why, to a certain extent, self support may not be secured, but at least the citizens will have only pleasure in showing how they treat the county dependents.

The jail has received the long needed improvements, a modern water closet and a bath tub. It is infested with vermin, the only remedy for which would be scrubbing the inner walls. It is impossible to keep them out of sound well cleaned.

—A Williamsburg, golf instructor, announces that all those desiring instruction must apply immediately as he is to leave Friday.

—Edward Whitfield, of the law firm of Whitfield & Shanahan of Traverse City, is in the village, combining business with pleasure.

—George Ralph has opened a general blacksmithing shop next to Washburn's machine shop and is prepared to do horseshoeing and all kinds of boat repairing with skill.

—H. J. Stockman and wife are in Michigan this week, where they will spend two weeks. Mr. Stockman, of Chicago, who is there attending an Epworth League convention.

—Mr. and Mrs. Payne, of Hanover College, who are spending the summer at Bay View, were guests of Mrs. Parmelee Thursday. Mr. Payne was a class mate of Mrs. Parmelee.

—Prof. Carmean of Indian University, Bloomington, Ind., recently received an appointment as head of the department of Germanic languages at Vanderbilt University, Tenn.

—Old settlers will remember Irvin Daniels, who was a pioneer methodist pastor here, and who died in New Orleans years ago. Mrs. Vinnie Ann Mrs. Daniels is a guest of Mrs. A. Hitchcock.

—Lee Lewis, Linn A. Jones and Chas. Sherman left Monday for Detroit, where they will attend the performance "Harry and Jay," however remains in the store for a time. Mr. Lewis will join Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Gale, and Mr. Jones will go to Omaha, Neb., about Sept. 1.

—Harrison Bedford and Will Shepard, with other parties, have purchased the Miller lumber business at Cross Village. Mr. Miller's only daughter died last spring and so deep has been the bereavement that Mr. Miller has decided to retire from active business.

—Jenny Hoehle and his wife, the well known physical culture workers, are doing good work over at Petoskey and Bay View. Jenny is a strong man and has a large number of people in Charlevoix who have passed through Johnny Hoehle's hands who could testify to his prowess. Without doubt Hoehle is one of the foremost of his craft.

—A rare musical treat will be given at the Inn Casino Aug. 15 under the management of Madame Dessoff Newell and his orchestra. Special attractions will be the Indian refrains of Chebonyan, the Herald Trio of musical legends, who begins their social work, do themselves great credit in the viola and cornet, and Master Charles Hosse, the boy soprano.

—T. C. Windsor, as secretary, has sent out notice that the annual picnic of Charlevoix and Otsego county circuits will be held on the resorting grounds at Round lake, Thursday, Aug. 15. It will undoubtedly be the greatest gathering of its kind in this section of the county, and Secretary Wooster is sparing no pains to make it a complete success.

—On Sunday last, at the home of her parents, in Marion, Miss Ella Tibbits departed this life, aged 22 years. The funeral occurred from the home on Tuesday and was largely attended, attesting the regard in which deceased was held. Miss Tibbits was, before consumption compelled her to stop work, a teacher of ability. The parents respect so to receive their gratitude to all those who so kindly extended their sympathy and help.

—The Annual Wenganamieg Indian camp meeting at Ironton began Monday and will last until Aug. 12. Among the leading Indians to be present are Rev. Wm. Pitchaq, Rev. John Jacobs, Joseph Redford, Joseph Lightsky, James Wanagebih, Philip Nagoon and Abram Kewabenis, and Chief Shingaresh and daughter of Drying. Aug. 12 will be Big Sunday, and excursions will be run from all neighboring resorts.

—Miss W. Hayes of Traverse City, arrived here Wednesday and is employed at the Sentinel office.

—A birthday surprise party was given Friday evening of last week on the lawn of the village park in honor of Miss Edith Lawrence. Secret arrangement had been made for corn and marshmallow roast, and at the appointed time Miss Edith was enticed to the park by one of her friends and completely surprised to find the party waiting her. A general jollification followed, and at its close Miss Edith was presented with a chatelaine and turquoise.

—Boyne City was visited by one of the worst fires in its history last Thursday night, when the engine house and machine shop of the Boyne City & northeastern Ry. was entirely destroyed, with a loss of $25,000, three-fifths of which was covered by insurance. The origin of the fire which quickly consumed the building is unknown, for no one was known to have been in the shop less than 8:00 p.m. Operations skilled workmen with a monthly pay roll of $600 will be temporarily through out of employment. The works will undoubtedly be rebuilt as soon as possible.

Every year complaint is made by those who come to Charlevoix for rest and quiet, of the annoyance by unnecessary whistling of the tugs and steamers in the harbor. And only the other day, one of the most prominent reporters noted at the Sentinel office and regularly assigned to the town's numerous visitors, said and that a new comer at the Bayview remarked that this was the noisest resort he had ever visited. Milwaukee has started a crusade against ringing of bells and blowing of whistles. Dr. F. M. Schulz, the health commissioner, saying in a published interview, that many cases of nervous sickness were traced by the health department to noises, and he thinks that a certain amount of whistling is necessary in the navigation of steam vessels, but what they object to is the habit of some captains to blow half a dozen long blasts in the fields, just by of drawing up another passenger.

Dwin C. Addison of Fremont, deputy factory inspector for the sixth district, was in town last week meeting between a line from Kent north to Emmett and the lake shore, called on the merchants and other proprietors of the village Tuesday and instructed them on them on the factory law which it was in force in the state. The original law was passed in 1887 but no provision was made for its enforcement until last winter when it was placed under the state labor bureau, and they now propose to enforce it to the letter. In the meantime it was amended provides that no child under the age of fourteen years shall be employed in any manufacturing establishment, and no child at any person employing children under the age of sixteen shall keep a register in which shall be recorded the name, birthplace, age and place of residence. The law also provides that no child under sixteen shall be employed without there is provided and placed on file a sworn statement made by the parent or guardian, stating the age, date and place of birth, that the child can read and write. No male child under 18 nor female under twenty one shall be employed more than ten hours a day or sixty hours a week. Any violation of the act is punishable by a fine of not less than $5 nor more than $100, and by imprisonment for not less than six nor more than ninety days, or by both fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court. A large number of boys below the age limit were found employed around the stores and shops in this city. Mr. Addison will now be thrown out of employment, but no prosecution will result in the past infractions of the law. The present term of the inspector is for the purpose of warning the employers, but after the next round of inspection, which may be expected at most any time in the future, the law will be enforced through the county prosecuting attorney, who is authorized to begin the prosecution. The law as it stands does not include radios, but Mr. Addison said that he thought it not unlikely that an amendment would be made in the near future affecting this class of employ. There is a considerable sentiment throughout the state against allowing a big healthy man into a small boy to carry a load of clothes too heavy for himself to carry the length of the alley.

A STORY OF

ARMY LIFE IN A Western Fort.

BY MAJOR ALFRED ROCHEFORT

(Copyrighted, 1897, by Robert Bonner's Sons.)

"The Arizona Express" Pulled Into New York Bridge Looking in anxiously for the daughter to alighted.

The frowned rich, puzzled down in a frown. The spirit of the storm was upon them, and a moment of wonder and astonishing was through the crowd.

"Fifty thousand dollars!" cried the judge, in the tone that gets a man down.

My friend and I said Colin Morton, who owned that ship with a 10-foot share in voyage, but before we wanna a mere fifty thousand cents—not a dime!"

"Blessed my stars! I can't worth that! Where are my daughter and I will give you fifty thousand dollars apiece!"

"In the name of humanity," said Independence to Richard, "what is it, man?"

"Why, what is wrong with you?" asked Colin Morton, who was one of the most good-natured men in this friend.

"Nothing, but I know I have to go on the same boat with you," Bonghed Robert Brookbridge, jumping up from his seat from which the original's character had been cut.

"Did they break jail?"

"No! I promised her having done so the judge has seen it to order me on the street. But never mind that. Colin, we gave counsel to stand by each other. I am willing to take your part against your troubles and disgrace as long as I know that you are innocent.

The friends shook hands, and sat down near the gaslight from window, that looked out on the Sound.

Here they remained, talking in low tones till it was so nearly dark that they could not see the landlord, two miles away.

"What are they building drag along the shore for?" asked Colin Morton of the man who brought in their supper.

"Cause," replied the man, "you're so thickheaded at this point to guess the reason."

"What ship?"

AIDS SMALL DEALER.

PROTECTIVE TARIFF A DISTINCT ENEMY OF TRUSTS.

The Future of Protection—Its Real Concern is for the Small Manufacturer and Weaker Enterprises—A Copy for English Free Traders.

Charles A. Moore, president of The American Protective Tariff League, in a recent interview published in the New York Mail and Express makes some statements regarding the tariff situation which will have a tendency to chill the ardor of those Free-Traders who have hoped to make a decisive fight in favor of their "issue" by alarming our Uncle Mr. Moore, who has an industry made of expressible and also thermoskin, to be destroyed the subjects he discusses so pointedly and well. Every American who has the interest of his country at heart should continually keep in mind that it would be impossible to devise any legislation which could destroy the small trusts that would not at the same time destroy every smaller and medium concern engaged in the same business.

These smaller makers of steel products, he says, have their specialties to manufacturing some of them products will sell their output to other concerns that have been amalgamated in the steel trust. Others will continue to retain their customers at home and abroad, but if steel goods were placed on the free list these individual manufacturers would be forced to the wall because the steel trusts of Great Britain, France and Germany, if the tariff barrier were removed, would flood their specialties product upon our markets at prices that the smaller manufacturers could not meet. Only the big corporations could survive, and that consideration of men, who are alone in the several branches of their business, being ended, could compete successfully. I believe, at home and abroad, in saying at the world, with our trusts—provided foreign governments do not insert protective tariff barriers against us."

There is no one in the United States better qualified to express an opinion on this point than Mr. Moore. He has long been a student of the workings of our protective system, and brings to his aid the experience gained in the conduct of a great manufacturing industry. His opportunities to see at the true inwardness of the situation are unrivalled; therefore when he warns the country that an assault on the steel and other great trusts would be an attack on the weaker concerns his warning should not go unheeded. No one will doubt what he says regarding the ability of the steel trust to compete with the manufacturers in the same line in the old world. That has been made clear to us in many ways, but the inquiry arises as to the changed attitude of such men as Carnegie and others toward protection. Very clearly are they do not want it longer, and the true reasons have defined upon their admissions with jeff. regarding them as an infringing of a general disease in the ranks of Annalgamated Protectionists.

Mr. Moore, therefore, has rendered a distinct service to his countrymen by pointing out to them the danger to which the minor industries of the nation would be subjected, by absolute free trade. That points was never adopted by the leaders charge for the purpose of benefiting "other nations." By which time they are pleased to designate the manufacturers of the United States, but to build up an American industry the workers in which would not be subjected to a fierce world wide competition in which the standard of living of the masses would be reduced to the level of that of the toilers of less favored lands. It is because this is true that "every American who, considering the Mr. Moore's argument will carry weight, if prompting our consideration the interests of the great establishments which each stand alone it would have neither life nor support in that event." but as the real "there is in the workshop of the small and weaker concerns, where adequate protection only exists (from of the combinations, it is now for the aids the support of the people, who are willing to sacrifice the interest of future profit by assisting in the promotion of an amalgamation, the outcome of which would inevitably be the reducing of the average wage earner's standard of living—than Free-Trade advocates.

To Prevent Anaesthesia.

A new method for evaporating anesthesia was discussed at a recent meeting of the Medical Society of Berlin. Dr. Waldenmann has constructed an apparatus by which sufficient volatile chloroform mixed with oxygen. It has been found to many experiments and gases with results that are regarded as satisfactory, the disagreeable anesthesia being obviated.

Cured a Scalloway Man.

A male in a park train which was usually loaded with salt, discovered that by lying down when reaching a certain stream and allowing the salt to dissolve he could lighten his burden. The "fetter ones loaded him with sponge instead, which absorbed water when he lay down in the stream and made his burden fourfold heavier. The male was cured of his smartness.

Restitution from Guessis.

When a London lad was asked what she liked best and means to repay mother earth, she was and all the Dodomaites." Not until the examiner had exerted his mental faculties until he was almost a wreck did he notice the elder lad "the Dodomaites" was shortlived for "all that is there is."

TRIES SUICIDE TO BE RID OF HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW.

Wife's Mother Drives Omaha Butcher to Cutting the Throat with a Cleaver—Young Colored Man Threatened with Mob Violence at Lincoln, Neb.

Rose Hook, a butcher in Omaha, attempted suicide by cutting his throat. There is a deep gash in his throat, which he inflicted with a cleaver. He is recovering in the county hospital. He was married a few months ago to a young woman and their domestic troubles began soon after their marriage. Mrs. Hook's mother came to live with the young couple and from that time on there was trouble. Hook was a hard working man and his wife and mother-in-law made life miserable for him. They complained to the police about his conduct and he was arrested on a charge of drunkenness. He was released from the police station on his promise that he would reform. Hook's wife and mother-in-law then began to make life miserable for him. He was discharged from his place of employment and he went home to his wife and mother-in-law. They continued their tactics and he decided that he could stand it no longer. He went to his place of business and cut his throat.

PLAYER THREATENED BY MOB.

JACK NATCHEZ DENOUNCED WITH LYNCHING at Lincoln, Neb., for Murder.

Jack Natchez, an young colored man who was arrested in Omaha, Neb., on a charge of murdering Frank Ricketts, a white man, was taken to Lincoln for safe keeping. It was feared that an attempt would be made by the negro citizens to release Natchez from the hands of the officers. Ricketts was murdered early Sunday morning in a saloon in the city of Omaha. Natchez was arrested in Omaha a few hours after the murder. The news of the murder of Ricketts and the arrest of Natchez spread like wildfire among the negroes of Lincoln and it was feared that they would attempt to release Natchez from the hands of the officers. Natchez is a young man of good appearance and he is well dressed. He denies that he had anything to do with the murder of Ricketts. He says he was in a saloon when the murder was committed and that he was not aware that a murder had been committed until he was arrested. He says he was not acquainted with Ricketts. Natchez is a native of Omaha and has been employed in the packing house there for some time. He is married and his wife is living in Omaha. He is well known among the negroes of Omaha and has been employed in various places in that city for several years. He is said to be a quiet, inoffensive young man and his employers speak very highly of him. Ricketts was a gambler and had been in Omaha but a few days. He was married and his wife is said to be living in Denver. Ricketts was shot through the heart and died instantly. Natchez was not in the saloon when the murder was committed. The murder was committed by a white man who escaped in the dark of night. Ricketts had been in Omaha but a few days and his wife and mother-in-law are in Denver. Ricketts was married and his wife is said to be a very pretty woman. Ricketts was a gambler and had been in Omaha but a few days. He was married and his wife is said to be living in Denver. Ricketts was married and his wife is said to be living in Denver. Ricketts was married and his wife is said to be living in Denver. Ricketts

—H. L. Page, of Bolivar, formerly of East Jordan, is a guest of Ir. LePorte and family.

—Mrs. Wm. Duncan is the proud possessor of a new Francis Daum piano, the gift of the genial captain of the Illinois.

—Ex-Senator Ernest G. Schubert of Chicago, who resorted here four years ago, is again spending his summer vacation.

—A license was issued Monday for the marriage of John M. Kelly of Waterloo, Ia., and Miss Addie E. Kenny, of East Jordan.

—A concert will be given at the Baptist church on Friday, Aug. 23d. Further particulars next week. By order of the committee.

—The farmers of the Grand Traverse Bay region are planning on making an agricultural exhibit at the Pan American Exposition.

—Miss Elizabeth and Will Aldrich of Chicago, the latter accompanied by his wife, are visiting their parents, Captain and Mrs. A. G. Aldrich.

—The steamer Hackley brought down 375 bushels of peas from Cross Village Tuesday, the first consignment of the season from that region.

—Judge J. W. Adams wife and son of Kalamazoo are guests at the Bonabenan cottage. Judge Adams presides over the Kalamazoo circuit court.

—Mrs. J. A. Noble came very near losing the value of a serious accident last Friday night, falling down an eight foot cellar way.

—Harry C. New, managing editor of the Indianapolis Journal, visiting his father, the Hon. John C. New, at the latter's home on the north side.

—Little wonder that Frank Lamphear was all smiles last Friday when it is known that a new member of the family arrived Thursday night. Both mother and the young heir are doing well.

—Mr. Minnie Toth, Bingham, of Chicago, and Miss Pearl Hay of Blanche, Harrison of Traverse City, and Hazel Harris of Gaylord, are the guests of Mrs. Lydia Lahell and Myrtle Miller.

—Prof. J. G. Pattengill, principal of the Ann Arbor high school, accompanied by Miss Pattengill, is a guest of his brother, Prof. A. H. Pattengill, at the latter's summer home on the north side.

—Henry Peterman of Vestaburg, Mich., was hit on the head by falling at the Thumb Lake set, Thursday, and died Tuesday. The body was cared for by the Masonic order and sent to Vestaburg for burial.

—Henry Croft had the end of one of his fingers cut off on a shingle saw in Mose Colquitt's mill the first of the week. Mr. A. Rosenthal was also nursing a mangled hand, due to too close contact with a saw in Crane's mill.

—The bills are out announcing the annual county fair at East Jordan, Sept. 17, 18 and 19. A special feature will be a series of trot races open to all the teams of the county. A $50 prize will be given the winner.

—Among the recent arrivals at the Belvedere are Capt. Hubbins and w. Town of St. Louis. Mr. Stifle is president of the German-American National Bank. The family of C. H. Kitchen, cashier of the same bank, are also guests of Manager Finey for the season.

—Chas. See, accompanied by his sister, Miss Mamie See, left on Monday for Mayfair, Ill., where they were called by the death of Mr. See's father, Chas See, who will be remembered by the older residents here, having resided in Charlevoix some years ago.

—The Charlevoix base ball team is still to be defeated, having won from all the teams, calling Boyne City, in the immediate vicinity. Last Thursday on their home grounds they defeated Bay View 17 to 3, and Saturday, Waukazoo, 17 to 13. Parker and Sutton were the battery in both games.

—President F. M. Seats of the Charlevoix Gun Club, received a verbal challenge Tuesday night from the East Jordan Gun club for a trophy shoot Aug. 28. The trophy cup presented by the citizens of East Jordan is now in the possession of the Charlevoix club. President Seats is awaiting a written challenge, accompanied by rules governing the shoot, when it will be accepted.

—There is no longer any doubt that a mother bear and two cubs are living in the vicinity of Mt. Mesaba. Last Saturday Judge Mayne's boys saw two forms were leaping on the east side of the sand hills and in searching through the bushes, discovered the bear cubs lying in a hole at the roots of a fallen tree. Three of the boys took a look at the bears and then ran for their lives. Later in the day Jay Jones visited the spot and saw the tracks of the bears.

—Ex-governor Joseph Fifer, of Illinois, is building a cottage on the first terrace facing Pine Lake at the Belvedere resort. Other recent sales of land for building purposes are to ex-congressman Snow and L. T. Rupert, of Bloomington, Ill. They will build this fall immediately south of the Gardner Japanese cottage on the first terrace. W. G. Weiss, editor of the Bloomington Pantagraph, who has long been a renter, has purchased the cottage formerly belonging to Kalamazoo college.

—Word comes that a new interdenominational Chautauqua is to be formed at Frankfort, between Crystal Lake and Lake Michigan upon a 400-acre track of land belonging to the Chase Lumber Co. and the Ann Arbor R. R., the latter being principal owner of the enterprise. The sum of $1,000 has been deposited with the State Bank of Frankfort to bind the bargain for the land, and it is expected the details will be arranged within the coming week. A theatre with a seating capacity of 10,000 is included in the plans. Justice Grant of Saginaw Circuit Court is a leading stockholder.

—Has liquor war whoop has been sounded in Lake Michigan between the gasoline launches of shipwright Swain and the John Smith line at last Sunday night a fight was had by both parties will continue in the Charlevoix. Mr. Swain has exclusive ferry privileges at the Belvedere, and is shuttling off Capt. Hubbins' passengers. The latter has just leased from the village council, the right to build and maintain for five years a dock at the foot of Dixon Ave. on Pine Lake. The avenue, as laid out platted, runs through the Pine Marquette park to the water's edge. Capt. Hubbins is constructing a temporary dock costing about $75, and will build a dock that will stand the test permanent. The lease gives Capt. Hubbins exclusive ferry privileges, but not the right to pasture cow, to land as at a public wharf.

—Frank A. Kenyon, register of deeds and wife returned Sunday to the Illinois from Greeley, Colorado, where they have been on a five weeks visit with Mr. Kenyon's cousin, Judge J. T. Jacobs. While in the west the two gentlemen, accompanied by their wives, took a 300-mile wagon trip into the mountains, hunting and sight-seeing by day, and camping by the roadside at night. Their route was along the new state road through Deadwood Gulch, Tie Pass, North Park, a large territory without a living tree in it, and thence to Buffalo Pass where they reached an altitude of 10,300 feet. From there they went north to California Park through the famous Steamboat Springs region, and then south through Hayden, Egeria, Hot Sulphur Springs and Clear Creek Canon to Denver, continuing in all three weeks time. Frank says she saw while they were not in the hunting region made famous by Vice-president Roosevelt, yet they saw plenty of game and at least one bear and sage hen to eat, though he is reticent as to how they were secured. Deer, antelope, mountain sheep, black bear and mountain lion abound in the mountains, but with the exception of the latter, are rigidly protected by law, and can successfully be hunted only on horseback. In fact, as wakeful sentinels the writer met one followed the party for two hundred miles, camping with them every night to see that there were no infractions of the law. The territory through which Mr. Kenyon passed is new, and only recently opened to cattle raising and lumbering for a local market. Anthracite and bituminous coal abounds in the region, and in true green pasture of becoming one of the greatest coal mining regions of the country. The climate is delightful, though the rain at unusual. Mr. and Mrs. Kenyon to become easily enkindled.

TRUE AS STEEL

A STORY OF

ARMY LIFE IN A Western Fort.

BY MAJOR ALFRED ROCHEFORT

(Copyright, 1901, by Arthur Bonner's Sons.)

Dora Mellon was sitting up in the front row, with her mother and Mrs. Bonner, facing the hotel porch. Her face was flushed with the excitement of the occasion—of which even Mrs. Bonner was ignorant—and her eyes were bright and her lips were parted in a way that made Jerry Bonner forget for an instant that he was a married man.

Near them the Thomas women were talking to Major Bonneycastle. Close upon Bonneycastle's right was Lieutenant Hunter, Pierce's adjutant, and among all a few other officers who had come down from the garrison with them.

Jerry Bonner, in dress parade, was the most conspicuous figure on the porch. He was a handsome young fellow, with a pleasant face and a manner that had all the charm of which within the Mellon walls young women and old were wont to say he was too much of a prince.

Of the Dora Thomas women, one was black-haired, fair-skinned, and twinkling from her eyes to her lips with the spirit of the occasion. The other was a little taller, a little more stately in manner, and her face was more pensive than her sister's, though there was a dimple in her cheek that was not there when she was in repose.

Their father was talking with the Major Bonneycastle, a big, bluff, good-humored man, who was the commander of the post, and who was known to his intimates as "Old Bonny." Pierce was talking with Mrs. Mellon, and Mrs. Bonner was talking with Mrs. Thomas, when the Major, looking up from his cigar, said:

"Well, it's on," said the Major, standing up. "Now, come with Jerry and me."

"To the hospital?"

"The hospital can get along without us for an hour," said Major Bonny, with a twinkle in his eye. "Mrs. Bonner, Mrs. Mellon, and Mrs. Thomas, I'm sorry to have to leave you, but I'm afraid we must. Jerry, you and I must be off. Ladies, we must leave you. Good-by, Dora; good-by, Mrs. Mellon. Good-by, Mrs. Thomas. Good-by, Pierce. Come, Jerry, we must be off. Good-by, Dora.

ANGLING CIRCLES INTERESTED.

A Good Story by Captain Jenks of Detroit.

The angler is again in his glory, and many picturesque stories are being scattered abroad of his various and strange adventures with the finny denizens of the deep. Perhaps the prize yarn of all up to date has to answer to Capt. Jenks which is a very popular tenant with local anglers. The story is told by Capt. Frank Jenks, a genial old character who has the name of spinning summer dalliances at the lake, and who makes his home there in July the shores and sparty fish from their kindes. He tells of an idea which is a sincere and sober fancied that can hardly fail to carry conviction. In fact, he could probably work up enough more a sensation upon the truth of his statements. Upon arrival, he remarked he noticed a beautiful pike in the vicinity, and he resolved upon his capture. The small rod and school started fishing in set a fall time for the bonnie and succeeded in landing him. The pike didn't seem to be at all gamey in fact, he seemed rather like his new quarters, and he formed the habit of repeating regularly for his meals even becoming so tame as to feed off his master's hands. Capt. Jenks was thinking of teaching him a few circus tricks but he has found that he is of more value to other ways. The summer's end made accordingly. The captain thought he would use the pike's love for his new home, so one day he took him ashore, and, leaving him in the room for a few hours of his life, he attached thirty feet trolling line, with the customary sinker. Then he took Mr. Pike afield, resolved to see whether he would return. Did he return? Well, on only and the pike came back with it in a few hours, but when he appeared in the lake he was towing a disappointed bass and a three-pound yellow on the trolling lines. Capt. Jenks' new and original method of catching fish is attracting a great deal of attention in angling circles. Detroit Free Press.

Telegraphy and Invention.

Jim Jabo Harbinsky seems to have had a premonition of the practical use to be made of electricity in sending messages. Writing to Miss da Deffand in 1922 he describes a device that with two timepieces, the hands of which are magnetic, enabling the lover of one to place hands to make the other take the same direction, so that by causing one to strike 12 the other will strike the same hour. Yet so approximate this Magnetic Clock proved in the point that their circuit could scarcely be made. Jim's letter, dated 1922, says: "Some time ago we were in the habit of having a clock of hours we had the letters of the alphabet on the dial. Every day at a certain hour we met in the hall, and M. Ward (Miss de Deffand's secretary) pulls together the levers and reads. * * * That idea, Helena, me immediately. It would never be corrupted by anything if it spoke in actions and in politics, but it would be very agreeable in commerce and in friendship." Notes and Queries.

Dignity in the Ministry.

Mr. Sowash, the bright young man who gets the biggest salary of any known, and Mr. Thomas, who recently became president of a New York bank at the age of 28, both agree that time in college is a handicap on earthly success. And both are men who are employing these young men and gave them handsomely for their work, are giving millions to colleges and universities because they know that these places the best training opportunity for the boys and girls who want to make a winning race in life. It is almost as easy to waste time in college as it is outside. It is the boy, not the person, if he does not grind conscientiously in a college course, he will wake him up and dress him in fine raiment and fill his pocket with bank notes.—Philadelphia Times.

Discomfiting Character.

A quack doctor stood on his wagon in Chamberlain, selling his nostrums. A group of people gathered about him, and he launched forth to explain to them the construction of the human "inside that frame." He began "perhaps you didn't know I, but there are two passages in the throat. One is called the oesophagus and the other is called the wind pipe. Now the wind pipe is down in front, the Sophia down in back. Over the top of the passage is a valve, and a hinge from the middle, and when you swallow food it falls down over the oesophagus free open and the little door on the other drops down and you varm while you take a drink of coffee. The Gorgeous proved not much for a farmer, who, shaking with laughter, called out in a loud voice: "Gosh! he thinks doors go flipper flapper when a fellow eats bread and milk."—London Answers.

His Perfect Defense.

I heard a rather good story the other day about a conductor who was once brought up before General Manager Mohlmann on a complaint made by a passenger, said the Albany Press. The passenger was a woman and her complaint was that the conductor had stared at her. "A woman complains that you rudely stared at her while she was riding on our car" said the general manager. "Says I stared at her" replied the conductor. "How did she know I stared at me?" "Pshaw, who knows of sense, now the point, and told the man to go back to his car.

Her Chance for the Boys.

"Just one! They are just like grown-up men," whispered the woman on the elevated train, calling her friend's attention to three small boys who were admiringly eyeing a dainty young woman wearing a waist of such fine sheer stuff that arms, neck and shoulders were all on view. But the women did not understand her nature. Every where she was eyeing the women, who thought she was shocked mouth-breathing the boys made it as a picture of a cavalryman, with drawn sword on the frontal blast of horns beautifully intoned on the dainty young woman's arm.—New York Sun.

Their Secret is Out.

At Sulphurville, Ky., was curious to learn the cause of the vast improvement in the health of Mrs. T. Wiggins, who had for a long time, suffered untold suffering from a chronic intestinal trouble. "Its all due to the king's New Discovery," writes her husband. "It completely cured her and also cured our little grandchild of a severe attack of Whooping Cough." It positively cures Coughs, Colds, Laryngitis, Bronchitis, all Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1. Trial bottles free at E. G. Hines & Co's drug store.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The Michigan Agricultural college has decided to put on the market about 10,000 acres of pine and hardwood land owned by the college and located in Iosco, Alcona, Oscoda and Alpena counties. There is somewhere about two hundred in some of the tracks, while a portion consists of only jack pine and is not worth much. These lands are the remains of the grants made to the agricultural college by the United States.

While a Manistique railroad train was bowling along at a speed of 35 miles a large buck deer suddenly appeared ahead of the engine. It leaped a wild jump and struck against the side of one of the coaches and was instantly killed. Its beautiful antlers were broken. This is said to be the first instance of a deer jumping into a train that has coming to the knowledge, it is certainly a very singular one.

The force of nature used yearly in the United States for tanning purposes, and the tans with which it can be grown on the waste lands of northern Michigan is worthy of thought by farmers and others. The fresh green leaves are stripped, dried and ground in great sacks for shipment. There are localities where the plant is cultivated and forms a very lucrative industry. Sumac, however grows wild and thrifty all over northern Michigan.—Alpena.

Henry Ward is planning to leave Frederic. A passenger train is to run from Bendon to East Jordan, South Arm and Charlevoix in a short time. Mr Ward has finished one of the lesser mills in the country. It is a band saw, to cut stave and hoop mill, and handle factory, and will employ 200 men. He is going to have excursions run to Frederic and have auction sales of lots. A fine hotel is to be built, costing $25,000, and they want a brick and are building houses and business blocks. At a recent meeting at Lansing the state forestry commission decided to commence active field work in the northern part of the state next month. H. H. Sherrard, an expert connected with the national forestry commission will assist. Goodale i.e. $2,000 now already appropriated for the expert special work in the commission, the auditor general has decided to deed the timber in the delinquent tax lands in Hossmann county to the land commissioner, who will without the land from homestead entry until the next legislature shall appropriate them to the forestry commission.—Ex.

Charlevoix County Herald: While making an excursion Monday preparing for the wall to be placed under the new home of the Herald, Frank Hanna unearthed a shell and a few other small bones of a human skeleton. The find naturally excited the curiosity of our fewer people and many theories have been advanced as to the identity of the remains. The bones had evidently been buried in the dry sand for many years and there is nothing to aid in the search for the name of their former owner except the traditions of the Indians. We have made a careful investigation of everything which bears on the subject and have reached the conclusion that these few crumbling pieces of bone are all that is left of Kawgeshawgeshego, a powerful chief of the Ottawas in the early years of the nineteenth century or as the Indian story tellers call him in my grandfather's grandfather's time." Tradition relates that this illustrious chief was slain in a great battle with a neighboring tribe the scene of which is proved beyond doubt to have been on the lands of the Jordan river near the mouth of Deer Creek about a mile and a half from the present of East Jordan, many arrow heads and stone axes being found in that locality. Although they lost their chief the Ottawas were victorious in this battle overcoming their adversaries in a great slaughter and the legend relates that their dead was buried under the spreading branches of a pine tree on the shore of the great water in a sitting position facing the setting sun. This was many years ago and the blackened remnants of a massive pine stump is all that is left to mark the grave of a once powerful chief and establish the identity of his remains.

MARINE NOTES.

All monthly records of Lake Superior commerce through the American and Canadian ship canals at Sault Ste Marie were broken during July. According to the official report 4,751,[illegible] tons of freight passed these waterways, an increase over June, the previous banner months of 201,797 tons. It is a wonderful showing indicating the rapid growth of the trade and the necessity of improved facilities which are projected. The principal items of freight are grain, including wheat, 9,858,777 bus; flour, 1,092,025 barrels; iron ore 9,851,280 tons; lumber, 183,144,000 feet, board measure. The freight was carried by a registered tonnage of 4,091,952. The total vessel passages through the canals were 6211, 14,231 passengers were carried.

Of interest to marine men will be the following recent statement by Harvey D. Goulder of Cleveland, one of the leading admiralty lawyers of the United States, and attorney for the Lake Carrier's Association. On the future possibilities of the great lakes, he said: "The freight and passenger business of the great lakes is still in its infancy. The late Tom Tim and I have been enthusiastic for just this statement, but that our views have been correct is already proved by the marvelous rise of ships now on the lakes and the almost daily launching for new vessels. The large, conservative capitalists of Cleveland and other parts are not rushing into these contracts for new ships blindly. They have looked far ahead and they understand that year after year will see more business done on the lakes. Few of us have an adequate conception of the immense quantity of grain and ore that must come down in future years from the head of Lake Superior. The Algoma locks are now beginning to be opened up, and their products will become greater from year to year. The Canadian terminus of Lake Superior is yet undeveloped and in a few seasons that issue will yield probably more than Duluth's and yet as the Annex terminus are now putting forth. The Canadian for the passenger business on the northern lakes is also a very bright one, and many more vessels will be constructed for that traffic before many seasons. There is a great and growing demand for passenger steamboats from border cities on the Lakes, and the traffic trade is steadily increasing.

A report is being circulated in six fine decline has a catcher of wealth hath are contemplating the purchase of the Lake Michigan passenger lines for the purpose of cutting them and to an investment in short, a passenger steamer trade. Nothing definite has been made, the lines are public, through a number of lines, including the Mackinac, Goodrich and Barry lines, have signified a willingness to sell, but the latter only on a cash basis. The Goodrich & Morrison people in an interview, said that while they did not care to dispose of their property, yet they would name a price. The attitude of the N. M. T. Co. has not been given out. The deal, however, is far from being consummated.

The famous yacht Wayoh, of Alpena, which was purchased and brought up from salt water by the Alpena Lumber Co. was in port two days last week. She is making a cruise on Lake Huron, Georgian Bay and Lake Michigan, and has on board Messrs. Frank Fletcher, of Alpena, F. M. Miller, of Cincinnati, Eli Strong, of Cleveland, H. M. Campbell, George Kenney and Dr. A. F. Steward, of Detroit, and Col. C. A. Craighead, of Dayton, Ohio. The yacht formerly belonged to Andrew Carnegie and cost $150,000.

The Northern Michigan line, Manistique and Saginaw Hackley, have purchased a fourteen inch automatic whistle and will place it on the water works as a fog whistle. It formerly belonged to the City of Duluth which was wrecked off St. Joseph.

The fishing tug Arthur, belonging to Cornelius Hanna of Milwaukee, arrived in port last week and will fish out of here this fall. She formerly sailed at Muskegon.

The passenger steamer F. W. Moore loaded 1450 ties Friday for Huron Harbor to be used in the construction of the new road from that city to Paw Paw.

The steamer Leo A. Cummings was slightly disabled last Sunday off Point Sauble, and had to tow to Petoskey by the Davis Brothers.

A youth recreating at the Belvedere dove from the cross trees of the Jamie Marion Wednesday and struck the water on his back. When picked up, he was bleeding at the mouth and ears, and was apparently badly hurt. Nothing owing has been heard of him, however, and we were unable to learn his name.

Astonished the Editor.

Editor S. A. Brown, of Bennettsville, S. C., was sum immensely surprised. "Through long suffering from dyspepsia," he writes, "my wife was greatly run down. She had no strength or vigor and suffered great distress from her stomach, but she tried Electric Bitters which helped her at once, and, after using four bottles, she is entirely well, can eat anything it's a grand tonic, and its gentle laxative qualities are splendid for torpid liver." For Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, Stomach and Liver troubles it's a positive, guaranteed cure. Only 50c. at F. G. Hixon & Co.

SCHOOL COMMUNE COLUMN.

The State Teachers Institute commenced its session Monday, Aug. 5, with 50 members enrolled. Tuesday morning the enrollment reached 85.

The essential subjects (1) be considered this year are Arithmetic, Reading, Grammar and United States History.

In common matters of supervision, the teachers were enthusiastic in the work. Mr. W. H. Sheret of Battle Creek, conducts recitations in Civics, Rhetoric, Reading and Orthography. Mr. W. W. Sage of Mt. Pleasant Normal School, takes the mathematical work and grammar.

The following are enrolled to date. We expect the number to reach 90 before the close of the institute.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Delos Fall visited the institute on Friday of last week. He spent the day addressing the work and instructing the teachers in regard to certain lines of work he expected to be done by the teacher, and gave some ideas of methods by which the work can be done in the school room. He claimed that more care must be given in the teaching of reading and writing. If the child reads properly it is not a difficult matter to teach other subjects.

Mr. Fall's visit was an inspiration to the institute. He said to the committee on departing: "I am well pleased with your institute; with the teachers and the good attendance."

Rev. T. J. Hughes, of the Baptist church, Petoskey, an old institute worker, visited us on Monday.

The teachers have been supplied with the new State Manual, or Course of Study and Institute Outlines. The examinations in the future will be based on the Outlines, so said supt. Fall; and it behooves the teacher to become thoroughly conversant with the Course of Study and the Outlines.

Excursion to National G. A. R. Encampment, Cleveland, Ohio.

Tickets to Cleveland and return on account of the Encampment will be sold September 8th to 12th, inclusive at one cent per mile, via the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Ry. These will be good for return leaving Cleveland until September 15th with out validation or deposit. An extension of limit to return leaving Cleveland until October 7th can be obtained by depositing tickets accompanied by a fee of fifty cents, thus giving ample time for visiting friends in Ohio and other points. A special train connecting Cousse Point No. 5 of Grand Rapids will be run over the Lake Shore Ry leaving that city Sept. 9th at 7:00 a. m., arriving in Cleveland same evening at 5:30. For any particular information about this excursion or the special train write to C. S. Rogers, Gen. Agt. Pass. Dept., Detroit, Mich., or H. W. Ivins, City Pass. Agt., L. S. & M. S. Local News.

—Hugh McCartney of Chicago is visiting his parents this week.

—W. H. Vaughn, of Duluth, is spending a few days with his family in Hagarty.

—E. Messinger, who has lived in Canada the past few years, has returned to Charlevoix.

—Neil Barry and wife of Central Lake, formerly of Charlevoix, are in the village renewing acquaintances.

—Tom Wood, wife and son, of Chicago, have been the guests of E. Wood the past week. They return home this week.

—First American Engineer Blanchard of Detroit, was in the village Tuesday and went to the South Manitou island on the U. S. Search to inspect the surveying made there.

—George F. Brown, wife and daughter, Josie, returned from Buffalo, where they spent a week at the Pan-American. They were accompanied by their son Guy F. Brown, and family, of Central Lake.

—Supt. Martindale is busy this week putting electric light meters in the residences and stores. The village furnishes the meters, charging 10 cents per hundred watts. Either another dynamo had to be purchased or the quantity of electricity used cut down, and the reckless use of the current in many residences made it apparent to the council that greatest economy would result from making the outlay on pay for what they use.

—The Women's Relief Corps will give a basket picnic and camp fire Aug. 21, at the park. A special invitation is extended to the summer visitors—our city and all members of W. R. C. and G. A. R. of surrounding towns are cordially invited to join the W. R. C. and G. A. R. of our "Charlevoix the Beautiful." Full particulars and program next week.

—Surveys were commenced Wednesday morning for the improvements of the Pine Lake beach of the Belvedere resort which were ordered by a meeting of the resort directors last Saturday. The plans include the construction of a crescent-shaped canal from forty to sixty feet wide in which the children can bathe with safety, and to be used as a row boat anchorage in rough weather. The boat houses on Round Lake will be thoroughly repaired and painted, and a landscape gardner brought from Kalamazoo to superintend the trimming of the trees.

—We regret that space and not permit us to print in last week's issue a full account of the sixth anniversary of the Northeastern Association of Old Fellows, held at Central Lake, Aug. 1 and 2. The celebration was a pronounced success, and did great credit to the spirit and enterprise of the Central Lake citizens. Over $600 was expended in the two days' entertainment, the leading feature of which was the two balloon ascensions by a lady aeronaut. The grand parade was a magnificent spectacle eight blocks long, made up of floats representing the various business houses, and the different lodges, orders and customs of the association. Two sessions of the Rebecca Assembly were held, but no important business, except the initiation of a few candidates, was transacted. Government Band expressed his intention to be present, but at the last moment telegraphed that he had suddenly been called to Washington, D. C.

NO JOKE.

Sanitarium to be Built at Boyne Falls.

Much fun has been poked at the reported healing qualities of Boyne river, and so often has word come from some "rheumatic" who has been benefitted by bathing in the cool big waters, that of late Boyne Falls have been dubbed the "Fountain of Youth." Others, however, have taken the matter more seriously, and recently received from Prof. H. C. Kedzie, state chemist, an analysis of the water showing strong mineral qualities. Thus encouraged, a party of prominent Petoskey citizens visited the place Saturday for the purpose of looking the ground over as a site for a sanitarium. Nothing definite has yet been done, but no overtures are they or the possibilities that it is not unlikely that steps will be taken in the near future to promote the enterprise.

The following is the analysis of Prof. Kedzie:

BOYNE CITY MINERAL WATER.

Total solids in the Imperial gallon 10 Grains. 17.76 Value Chief ol. of Lime 10 Lessing solid residue. 17.15. The Rated Inorganic constituents of

Carbonate of Lime	11.62
Magnesia	3.49
Soda	1.00
Potash	1.20
Chlorine of Sodium (common salt)	2.50
Sulphate of Potash	0.70
Carbonate of Lithia	0.01
Silica	0.50
Soluble Silica	0.10
	20.62

The Carbonate of Lime, Magnesia and Iron Salts are in the form of Bicarbonates in solution. This is an alkaline water and as such will be antagonistic to Lithia. It will probably be found to be beneficial in gravel and Bright's disease and in those predisposed to Gout and Rheumatism.

—About eleven yesterday morning fire destroyed the stores occupied by A. M. Smith's grocery, Bert Smith's restaurant and Fred Alberson's saloon, and damaged the stock of Frazer & Barker's big department store, at Harbor Springs. Resorters occupying the flats in the upper stories were busily engaged with their belongings the greater part of their effects. The steady arrival of the Petoskey fire department saved the business section from destruction. The total damage amounted to $15,000. Otherwise was covered by insurance.

—Those who went to the evening show of the Circus Saturday did not reach home until two o'clock Sunday morning, as the ten o'clock Petoskey train stopped three times on the Belvedere and left a night accident to the bridge. On the return trip around Round Lake, Tuesday, Bert Jackson from the line "got gay" and began to impose upon those around them. He Petoskey was reached a muscular gentleman from Bellaire had tired of the performance and after badly mauling one of the dark complexioned gentlemen's features threw him off the train. Those who witnessed the trouble say that the gentlemanly was justly deserved.

—The Michigan State Agricultural Society, which will hold its annual fair at Pontiac, September 23 to 27, is seeking to encourage the producers of fruit and farm vegetables in the newer parts of the state, and among the prizes to be awarded are the following: For the best exhibit of fruit to be shown in the state fair, from either the counties of Emmet, Charlevoix, Antrim, Leelanau, Benzie, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Manistee, Wexford: First prize, $50; second, $30; third, $20. For the best exhibit of farm and garden products, of grain and vegetables, grain to be shown in peck lots and in straw, and vegetables in half bushel and peck lots variety and quality to be considered, and but one premium to be awarded to any one county. First prize, $30; second, $20; third, $20.

—Mat H. Tatman's Lyceum Comedy Company closed a three night's engagement in Petoskey Saturday night. There was a large audience present and the play was highly enjoyed. The pleasing comedy was well put on and was admirably staged. The characters were in good hands, but Mr. Tatman did not have very one, and the attention was one of the best of the kind seen here in a long time. Mr. Tatman has a very good company of players, and while there are some weak spots they are of a minor character and the aggregation will be strengthened. In any case Mr. Tatman may be congratulated upon the success of his venture and the performances given here indicate that there is a successful future for the company.—Evening Herald.—The company will play in Charlevoix next week. Tickets may be secured of him, the different merchants with complaints.

A STORY OF

ARMY LIFE IN A Western Fort.

BY MAJOR ALFRED ROCHEFORT

Copyright, 1901, by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER VII.

Maj. Cannon had known a good thing in Judge Hallam, who was a man, as he to men who were well and well influential. And, after his fashion, he had formed a great liking for the Judge's daughter. She he was, by all odds, the prettiest "girl" he had met for ever so long.

He learned that she was a graduate, trained in Florence a musician; but he was not overfond of music himself, and was not a little surprised when he found that she was not a mere "bookish" girl, but a good horsewoman and a lover of outdoor life.

Jessie Hallam was a little surprised at the Major's cordial and manly greeting, for she had seen him but once, and that was when he was with her father. Judge Hallam, alone, passed without a word and bowed on.

"What do you think of that man Cannon?" asked Jessie, as they rode parade ground.

"Pretty. Why, I think more of him than this Mag. Harrison or a dozen others. He is a man, and he knows how to behave himself on a horse. If he was dressed in civilian clothes he would be a handsome man. The Indian chiefs around Sacramento dressed in just such, with leggings and moccasins, and looked just like what a gallant soldier should be."

This was the man to whom Jean Marat had given his warning against the Indian redskins, the capitals of the young soldiers, and that incident she had been on the ground he could have gone none with more tact. He, young Wright and young Ward, and dressed "white fashion" being actually clad in coat and trousers, looking

Jean Marat had no trouble in leading Flash into the stable.

"And so you hate this Mormon?" said Flash Hawk, when he had heard the manufactured complaint of Jean Marat.

"I hate him as much as he hates me, and I would kill him," hissed Jean Marat.

"As big as me?" laughed the Indian, and as Jean looked up to meet the young man, and he gave such a laugh, that the Indian laughed in chorus, and gave to it he felt, he done the same thing with his face, for he had never before seen the Indian "laugh."

"And I'll tell you my friends," said the redskin, as crowding their heads, he spoke in a low voice, "I'll tell you and you'll find I'm correct and mind to me."

As they stood there talking, again the young man felt a touch of wonder at the superb dexterity and he had shown getting started with the Mormon, as indeed he had shown in everything.

"Mormon and Brandreth, you are enemies of Jean Marat, and friends of the day at once."

"Do not say that," asked Cleth.

"I do not know, but I think you will be friends before long. Brandreth is a man, Mormon is a coward."

"Coward!" hissed Cleth.

"Yes, coward, but I think you will be brave when I tell you what I have in mind. Brandreth is a man, and he will treat you as a man, if you treat him as a man. Mormon is a coward, and he will treat you as a coward, if you treat him as a man

"John Big Joe," a Horner Savage Indian in the university hospital, refuses to take anaesthetics while the surgeons are hacking tuberculous swellings in his neck, head and shoulders. He pays no more attention to the proddings of the knife than if he were a wooden Indian.—Detroit Journal.

Saturday night the large warehouse belonging to the Wells Bigman Co. at Traverse City, was totally destroyed by fire, at a loss of $20,000. The building was stored from foundation to roof with baskets for the fall fruit trade. Only by the extreme efforts of the firemen was the factory saved. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The annual report of the State Treasurer, now in press, shows a cash balance of $2,527,721.84, the largest for some years. The total receipts were $8,823,976.39, disbursements $8,700,255.55. Following is the condition of the several funds: General fund, $2,082,704.93; agricultural college interest fund, $43,283.56; normal school interest fund, $1,010.14; primary school interest fund, $178,800.26; university income fund, $6,315.22; county deposits account, $7,714.77; war fund, 245; war loan sinking fund, $200,700.00. Total, $2,527,721.84.

A report prepared by pension commissioner Evans for the U. S. Government shows that the number of pensioners on the roll June 30 last was 965,738, a net gain of 4,296 over last year. The total net loss to the end during the year was 45,588, which includes 39,153 by death, 953 by remarriage, 1,962 by minors reaching the age of 16, 1,538 by failure to claim pension and 1,440 from other causes. A comparative table shows that the roll for the year just closed is the "high water mark" in the history of the pension bureau, the next highest having been reached in 1899. Of the names on the rolls during the year, 6,540 were from the war with Spain. The losses include two from the revolutionary, 215 from the war of 1812, 520 from the war with Mexico, and 544 from the Indian wars.

United States District Attorney, George A. Lowell of Traverse City, has been the head of a distinguished party of Federal office holders at his summer home on Long Lake. The party consisted of Senator Burrows, A. G. Wheeler, of Manistee, U. S. Marshal Burton Parker, of Muskegon, special agent of the U. S. Treasury, Samuel Lemon, collector of Internal Revenue, John W. Bridget, Member of Republican National Committee, H. M. Ross, Chief Clerk of the U. S. Senate, and James A. Cox, collector of Customs, the last four gentlemen all hailing from Grand Rapids. The party denied that the gathering had political significance, though the announcement by the Grand Rapids Herald of the candidacy of William Alden Smith for Senator Burrows's seat creates an air of mystery that so many party leaders should get together for a few days fishing at such a time.

Henry Blackman returned Thursday from Minneapolis. He has been absent about a month hoping potatoes for a Chicago house. Mr. Blackman took a trip through Missouri and Kansas and found the potato crop in those states ruined. In Minneapolis ninety cents a bushel is being paid and Minneapolis is supplying Kansas City and other points in states where potatoes have heretofore been a heavy crop. Mr. Blackman believes that Michigan, Northern Wisconsin and Minnesota will have to supply the South and West with potatoes this fall, and that a good demand will prevail in the East. He predicts an unprecedented harvest for farmers in Grand Traverse this fall. Last year at this time only potatoes were being dug twenty cents a bushel, and now slightly in gold. This suggests great possibilities for the fafer crop.—Evening Record.

In these pleasing days in northern Michigan, and the days of the boiling of hardwood ashes, it is interesting and, possibly, saddening to note that during the month of July not one foot of lumber was shipped from Saginaw by water, according to the recent report of the collector of customs. This is the first time in forty years that lumber has not been shipped from Saginaw by water during the month of July. Since the first of January the water shipments from that city have been 3,209,000 feet, while during the corresponding months in 1882 the shipments aggregated more than four hundred million feet. Saginaw, however, unlike many other northern Michigan lumbering cities, has during the past few years, made a conspicuous effort to replace the lumber mills with city industries, and has been assisted somewhat in this work through the exhaustion of mines. The result is that although the city had its period of depression, the time has come when a healthy, stable and permanent prosperity is attending all branches of business in what is now one of Michigan's largest cities.—Ex.

OUR GERMAN TRADE.

STATISTICS SHOW THAT IT HAS DOUBLED IN FIVE YEARS.

Exports Increased Nearly 400 Per Cent Since 1870—Imports Also Show an Advance from $77,000,000 to $103,000,000.

Extract the exports excluding the two months between the French Status and Armistice, and regard the remaining figures (not increased on the footing of the war) and we have a view of the growth of commerce between the two countries. In the twelve years ending with the year 1882 (using for Retail Trade the last six clerks. These figures show that imports rose from $77,000,000 annually (average) to an annual average of $103,000,000 (average) in 1882, and exports from the 1870 to 1882 (average) from $52,000,000 to $103,000,000 (average) in 1882 (or $51,000,000 in 1882 as against $52,000,000 in 1870—a gain of 100 per cent in twelve years, or nearly 8 per cent per annum). The exports of the year 1882 were 100 per cent greater than in 1870, and the imports 33 per cent greater than in 1870. The figures show that American exports to Germany have increased from $27,000,000 in 1870 to $103,000,000 in 1882, and that exports from the United States to Germany have increased from $12,000,000 in 1870 to $51,000,000 in 1882—an increase of 300 per cent in twelve years (taking certainly not of the growth of commerce between the two countries. Of the exports of the year 1882 (average) 40 per cent were of cotton, 20 per cent of tobacco, 10 per cent of petroleum, 10 per cent of breadstuffs, 10 per cent of provisions, 10 per cent of other articles. Of the imports of the year 1882 (average) 20 per cent were of sugar, 20 per cent of silk, 20 per cent of wool, 20

MARINE NOTES.

Captains from Lake Superior ports say that the nights on that lake are already in the fall. The fall storms have already begun.

Tuscarora is the name chosen for the new revenue cutter now approaching completion at Richmond, Va., which is intended for service on Lake Michigan.

The steam yacht Pilgrim broke her shaft Friday afternoon on her trip to East Jordan. The running away of the engine caused the steam pipe to burst, but engineer King succeeded in shutting off the steam before any other serious damage was done. The yacht had about 50 passengers aboard. These were later transferred to the Joseph Gordon, which towed the Pilgrim to Washburn's shipyard.

Last season the steamer Blackstone was equipped with a nail-throat bearing device upon the shaft by the American Ball-Bearing company of Cleveland and the result of the experiment has been most successful. By the introduction of the ball bearing arrangement upon the shaft the steamer has been enabled to make a mile more per hour and the master figures that he saves 320 pounds of coal per hour.

Peter Doran of Grand Rapids and Attorney Pinn and Same of Charlevoix have been at St. James this week, taking testimony in the steamer libel case. After the boat was seized under the libel of Charlevoix creditors and before she was sold, J. N. Gallagher, captain, J. W. Gallagher, engineer, and Bernard Gallagher, seaman, filed libels for services. It is again in these and others that the testimony is being taken. The proceeds from the sale of the boat are still in the hands of the U. S. Marshal awaiting distribution.

The trouble that is being experienced with the Belleville boilers on the North West has given rise to a report that they are to be thrown out of both of the big passenger steamers this coming winter and boilers of the scotch type now in general use on the lakes substituted. The tax upon the staterooms accommodation of the steamers that has been experienced this season in connection with the change of route from Lake Superior to Lake Michigan has also given currency to a report that a second cabin will be erected on each before the advent of another season, so as to nearly double the present sleeping capacity. The patronage of the North West and North Land runs far, both on the up and down trips, has exceeded all expectations, with the result that tickets will show hand. Some profits at the close of the season.

"If I see save ten years from now, I expect to see 50,000,000 tons of ore shipped from the Lake Superior region annually." This statement was made to Capt. H. H. Inman when he was in Cleveland last week, by Wallace, the second largest stockholder in the Lake Superior Shipbuilding company. "I can hardly tell the future of the lake commerce," said the veteran skipper to the Plain Dealer man. "Ten years ago I told my people that, in ten years, they would see 25,000,000 tons of freight taken from Lake Superior through the Sault Ste. Marie canals. They laughed at me yet last year, when my stated ten years were up, those figures were practically attained. Last season I spent several months in Europe and the prediction I make to you now was made to my friends and business associates upon my return. I base my belief and opinion upon what I saw abroad as to the needs and demands on that side of the water for American iron."

In speaking of the proposed scheme to consolidate the passenger steamboat lines on Lake Michigan, President A. W. Goodrich of the Goodrich line said yesterday: "The first I had heard of the revival of the story—for it is an old proposition was in the newspapers. I had half expected to hear of its being brought to life again just now, as everything seems to be tending toward consolidation. The scheme has been in the air many times, but has never gotten beyond the stage of talk so far as I know. Our line was credited with having once proved the barrier to such a consummation of the project, though this is untrue. The plan has never reached the stage where options were asked, and I cannot see how the Goodrich line could have been a stumbling block. The boats and other assets of the company are for sale if responsible parties are willing to pay the price. The same is true of any other line, although the owners will not concede it. A consolidation would be a great benefit, if carried out properly, but I am inclined to think its announcement is rather premature, as we have not been approached on the subject, and it is hardly probable that a deal could have attained sufficient proportions without my knowledge of it."

Tax Commission Assessments. The State Tax Commission completed its review of the assessment of Charlevoix county last Thursday afternoon. The assessment of Charlevoix Township was raised $130,500, Evangeline, $62,500, South Arm, $1,625. The result (equity was reached on a basis of half-cash-value, but assessed to the assessors. The different lumber companies were affected only in respect to their lumber and logs.

The assessments are as follows:

Charlevoix Township

	Boats	Spring Logs
The H. Heald estate of Detroit, Michigan Trading & Transportation Co.	$ 15,000	$ 15,000
Charlevoix Boat and Boom Association	12,000	15,000
Charlevoix Mill Co.	25,000	25,000
Charlevoix Lumber Co.	7,000	7,000
Clark & Whitford	1,000	2,000
J. R. Bennett & Co.	1,000	1,000
Geo. Bennett	1,000	1,000
E. S. Emery & Co.	4,000	4,000
H. Bechtel	1,000	1,000

Evangeline Township.

Willey & Co.	$ 2,000	$ 2,000
Van Platten	15,000	15,000
Wilson Bros.	1,000	1,000
Nellis Estate	1,000	1,000
Geo. Gaskill	1,000	1,000
Geo. Gaskill	500	500
Joseph Lane	1,000	1,000
Geo. W. Lane	1,000	1,000
Geo. W. Lane	500	500
J. M. Parker	500	500
Hodges & Wilson (small mill)	1,000	1,000
M. Sullivan	500	500

South Arm Township.

	Earnings	Tax Land
Bush & Co.	$ 5,000
Michigan Lumber Co.	8,000
Dunn & Stephens	500
Bay Lumber Company Co.	20,000	$ 1,000
Geo. Gaskill	500
W. L. Lovewell	500
Geo. Lovewell	1,000
E. W. Lovewell	1,000
Wm. Lovewell	500
Joseph Hess	500
D. C. Lovewell		200

The decrease of $11,000 in the East Jordan Lumber Co's. assessment is explained by the fact that it was a double assessment, being on logs which were assessed both here and in Antrim county.

SCHOOL COMMA COLUMN.

To the modern idea that spelling may be learned incidentally much poor spelling is due.

There is a book that the father's and mother's used to study in school called the "spelling book"; this same old book should be hunted up and put into use. The trouble is, too little attention is paid to the subject of spelling.

A teacher who misses twenty-five per cent. of the list of words at an examination contest should be presented with a spelling book instead of a certificate to teach school.

The proper function of the spelling book is to teach the correct spelling and the accurate use of words. Short dictation exercises prepared to concentrate attention on these two points should be put in one. Dictation exercises need not be assigned for home study, but may be taken up in the class and made the basis of a profitable lesson on the fine distinctions and shades of meaning of words.

For instance: "A robber makes an open attack, and takes away property by violence; a thief takes property by stealth; a pilferer is a petty thief. A robber robs and plunders, a thief steals. Thefts, larceny and pilfering are secret acts; robbery and plunder open acts of violence. To embezzle is to appropriate money that has been entrusted to one's care."

Dictation. "Wishfulness relates to the body; wistfulness and regretfulness to the mind or will. A person may be wishful without being wistful or regretful; but he cannot be wistful without being wishful."

We study ancient and modern languages and learn Latin or German synonyms, but of a singular how little effort is made to teach our own language as an instrument of expression, a subject of great practical value and an excellent mental discipline.

There is often a moral value in the possession of synonyms, smiling on, as they do, to say exactly what we intend, without exaggeration or the putting of more into our words than we feel in our hearts, allowing us, as one has said, to be at once courteous and precise. Such moral advantage there is, for example, in the choice we have between the words "to felicitate" and "to congratulate," for the expression of our souls, each and either is required to the good fortune that happens to others.

To felicitate is to express to wish him happiness, without offering that his happiness is also ours. Thus out of that general good will with which we ought to regard all, we might felicitate almost a stranger to-day, as we can honestly felicitate one on his appointment to a post, or attainment of honor, though we may not consider him the fittest to have obtained it, and should have been glad if another had done so. We can desire and hope that it may bring all joy to him. But we could not without a violation of truth congratulate a person, then we declare that we are a party in his joy and that what has rejoiced him has rejoiced us also. We have all felt that congratulate is a heartier word than felicitate, and better becomes us to use in soldering the good fortune of a friend.

Felicitations are little better than compliments; congratulations are the expression of a genuine sympathy and joy.

—John Stevenor, chief engineer of the East Jordan & Southern R. R. is in town today, and says that rails will be laid into Bellaire by tomorrow night.

—Chicago street petitions are negotiating with Lee Howland for the laying of 10,000 feet of cement walk from the depot and through the resort grounds. The deal will probably be closed this afternoon.

—The gasoline launch Dolfina, belonging to S. C. Edgar of St. Louis, burned Thursday afternoon off Pleasant Bay. Mr. Edgar, accompanied by Melville Edgar, R. L. Dyer, Engineer Oliver McNab and Pilot Raymond Dudley, was returning to Waquoitong from Petoskey, where the gasoline reservoir had been filled. When about a mile off the New Arlington hotel, an explosion occurred which threw Melville Edgar, who was at the wheel, to the floor. The entire boat was immediately enveloped in flames, forcing the occupants to take to the water with whatever they could get hold of. Fortunately the steamer Leo A. Cummings and just reached the Petoskey wharf, and immediately went to the rescue. With the exception of a severe burn on the hands and and arms which Melville Edgar received, all escaped uninjured. The launch burned to the waters edge and is a total loss. It was valued at $1,000, with $1,500 insurance. No explanation as to the cause of the accident is known, though it is supposed gas accumulated in the bottom of the boat when the tank was filled and that the electric spark caused it to explode.

Coming Excursions.

The first excursions of the year will be run by the Pere Marquette tomorrow from all stations between Chicago and Kensington, Ill. The next one will take place on Sept. 5, to Traverse City, Elk Rapids, Petoskey, Bay View and Mackinac Island, from Toledo, and Detroit to Big City, from Port Huron, to Saginaw and Port Austin. On September 10 to destinations named above from LaCrosse, Ind., to White Cloud, from Allegan to Dowagiac inclusive, from Muskegon to Big Rapids inclusive, on September 10th to Traverse City, Petoskey, Bay View and Mackinac Island, via Howard City and G. R. & I. From Chesbrook, Ithaca and Strong to Hickory, inclusive, from Ewell to Gowen, inclusive.

The first G. R. & I. excursion will take place on Sept. 5, from all points between Richmond and Fort Wayne. Five days later, Sept. 10, they will run another from all points between Fort Wayne and Hood City. Tickets on all excursions are good for ten days.

In Behalf of Business.

Speaking for the business interests of the entire country in deprecation of any and all attempts to reopen the tariff question, the New York Commercial wisely says:

"It would be extremely unfortunate to precipitate a national agitation that would call a halt on the country's business just at a time when popular feeling over the outcome is most hopeful and confident. But if there really is an ear-wing in the Republican party—one demanding a lowering of duties or their repeal in some instances, and the same demanding to stand by the policy that has built up American industry, and, incidentally, the party, why, the sooner the thing is fought out to a finish the better, perhaps. But no American business man wants to see the next session of Congress given over to an acrimonious debate that would result in the passage of tariff legislation that the business of the country is raving for—on the technical ground, for instance"

If there is one thing more than another which business does not want it is tariff tinkering.

There is nothing unconstitutional in the Ohio platform stand, between the protective tariff and reciprocity. For that reason the Republican party is in favor of reciprocity, and we have no doubt that Congress at its next session will assist the President in carrying into effect, in as large an extent as possible, our ideas on that subject. Those people who affect to believe that the President has changed his ideas on any change on the tariff question need only to read carefully the platform adopted by the Ohio Republicans.—Philadelphia Press.

—The proposed electric railway from Traverse City to Old Mission is now an assured success, as Peninsula township Monday voted to issue bonds for the construction. The promoters have said all along that if the people carried the Westinghouse people stood ready to put the line in. The vote was remarkably close, 130 to 182.

—The life saving crew saved its first life Monday, when Jesse Palmer rescued Guy Totten, who was seized with cramps while swimming in the bath tub of the south pier about half way to the outer end. Totten had loaned the young man's cap and threw a plank to him with which he swam ashore.

—Bishop Fallows held three Sunday services at the jail. At the first service there were five prisoners; at the second, four, and at the third, three. There is a field for medicine here that should not be neglected. Those who have magazines they do not care for, might send them to the prisoners.

—Thomas H. McInnerney and Miss Jessie McGillivray of New York City, were married at Mackinac Island Aug. 19, and are now spending their honeymoon at the Inn. Mr. McInnerney is manager of the drug department of Siegel & Cooper's large New York store. Miss McGillivray is a niece of the editor and well known in Charlevoix. They will be at home after 91 W. 97th St., New York City, after October 1.

—A much needed improvement was begun yesterday morning when the town sprinkled the mud holes in front of the post-office with gravel. If late it has been almost impossible to walk along the sidewalks without being splashed from head to heel with mud by the horses stamping. Those hitching their horses night, with a little care, help to avoid the condition, but the great part of the blame is to be laid to the ancient. A few dollars judiciously expended would do away with the nuisance. It is the little annoyances that leave a bad impression of the town.

—The Charlevoix Red and blue Club lost the East Jordan trophy cup to the East Jordan club in the club trap shooting tournament. The final score stood 49 to 48; and was made by follows: Charlevoix—Worthington, 21, Kirkpatrick, 15; West, 24; Chamberlain, 18; Sears, 16. East Jordan—Sowers, 22; Matthews, 18; Lewis, 20; Hennard, 19; Gaskins, 19. Traverse City entered no team. Four 20—shot exceptionals and six ten—shot exceptionals were shot before the trophy.

—The reported limestone deal at Petoskey has finally been consummated, whereby Captain H. G. Hoe disposes of his quarry holdings to the Michigan Lime co. of Grand Rapids, a corporation with quarries, capital, which filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state Saturday. The list of stockholders includes the following Grand Rapids men: Hon. William Alden Smith, G. R. Salsbury, E. D. Conger, E. M. Ponz, Lewis H. Withey, W. H. Anderson, L. C. Bishop and George A. Johnson. The company of the Com. pany comprises seven kilns and three quarries, situated at Petoskey, on the eastern shores of Little Traverse Bay. The rock is tight and available lime lies contained by competent experts to exceeding 1,000,000 tons.

A number of Charlevoix's Scotchmen have gathered together within the past two weeks and launched a new organization of Scots. Saturday night they met at the Dixon hotel and elected the following officers: A. McNeil, president; Robert Gall of Boyne City, vice president; Andrew Ross, secretary; A. A. McKinnon, treasurer. The secretary has been instructed to correspond with the order of St. Andrews, a large Scottish organization, to see if a charter can be obtained. In time it is hoped that the membership will include all Sons of Scotch blood in the vicinity and extending as far as Traverse City. A branch of the Order of Robert Burns already exists at the "Soo" and not long since they held a celebration that was unique in its kind. The new organization has similar plans in view, and as one, as it is assured success, will appear with caps and kilts. The saturday night meeting closed with the "Highland Fling" by "Scotty of the Inn" and Robert Gall of Boyne City.

While excavating back of the life saving station the last of the week one of the crew came upon part of a human skeleton. Deeper digging exhumed two large skeletons and the remains of a child. Dr. Arms strong examined the bones and now has the largest skull at his office. He says he is certain they are the bones of Indians, the skull in his possession having high cheek bones and a massive jaw. The frontal is low and the skull round down, showing the quality and hard usage. The skull bones are thick and heavy. The theory was advanced by some that they were the bones of sailors buried one thirty years ago, but Dr. Armstrong says that some of the old settlers who knew he has talked recently both burial, and the fact of the child's skeleton being with the other and makes this impossible. The absence of any trinkets, which are often found in Indian graves, is accounted for as the custom then of near Platte or Marquette carry among the Indians.

Dummy Wrecked.

The dummy coming in collided with a work train on a sharp curve at Comfort near Bellaire Sunday morning. It was the early morning trip of the dummy and fortunately no passengers were aboard.

The dummy was supposed to have the right of way in Comfort and the engineer of the freight was trying to make Bellaire, and had gone by the station where the dummy expected to pass the freight. The trains came together while the freight was going at a good rate of speed. The engine of the dummy was making about the same time. Both engines were completely demolished, the caboose of the freight train made into kindling wood, the baggage car of the dummy badly damaged and the passenger coach of the dummy was hardly touched. The trainmen all jumped into the ditch and none upon the dummy were hurt except Norton who was in the baggage car. All the men on the freight were more or less injured as follows:

Walter Burnham of Traverse City, brakeman on work train, sustained severe back strain and scalp wound. His condition is critical. Jake Hesse, of Traverse City, fireman on engine 14, took injured in jumping from engine. Burt Hogg of Rapid City, car repairer, arm bruised and hand cut. Ray Williams of Traverse City, conductor of work train, gash on cheek; Handcaster Thos. McCloskey, head cut and bruised by falling; Conductor Beckman, right hand cut and left knee injured.

Engine No. 54, the one running with the freight, is the one that killed one man at Grand Ledge the other night, by piling him out at Mankins junction in the spring and killed a fireman, and it has killed four other men on the road in its time, 'so on the Saginaw division and two on the Detroit, Lansing and Grand Rapids division.

Notice to Stockholders.

Stockholders in the Charlevoix Cheese Manufacturing Co. will take notice that the fourth and fifth assessments of eight and twenty three per cent. are due, to be paid not later than Sept. 10.

A STORY OF

ARMY LIFE IN A Western Fort.

BY MAJOR ALFRED ROCHEFORT

Copyright, 1900, by Robert Bonner's Sons.

The main street has been laid out by Mars, always mindful of the fitness of things, to be as wide as the law should fall by some accident, with no excuse whatever apparently in opposition or his critics.

Scarcely was the sun setting on Thursday morning when the entire garrison, and all within sight of the fort, had assembled in the parade ground. The occasion was the raising of a pole and some large standard on the reduced post flag staff, which was to be used for the purpose, and which was the pride of the post, and which had been presented to the regiment by the ladies of the post, and had been duly christened "Mary Ann." But we had anticipated the ceremony, which was to be performed by the ladies, and which was to be followed by a dance in the evening, and which was to be followed by a banquet, which was to be followed by a dance on the following evening, and which was to be followed by a dance on the following

Established by the Ward Estate in Crawford County.

NEW LUMBERING TOWN.

A project inaugurated by the Ireland Ward estate recalls old times in lower Michigan—times supposed to have vanished forever when lively lumber towns sprang up almost in a single night around the places selected as the site of their sawmills by lumber operators. There are few of the older residents of the state who will not grow enshrouded of forest scenes and half forgotten faces as they read the details of the project.

The anachronism of establishing a new Michigan lumber town in the twentieth century is what the Ward estate will undertake. The new town will be located in Crawford county. At the same time the estate is preparing to add to Michigan's railway system a short but important and convenient trail.

The new town is springing up from the earth almost, with a sawmill as its center, a cluster of houses for the employees and a store or two. It will not, however, be the wild and wide-open town of the days of great lumber operations a generation ago, for the Ward estate owns all the town and all the standing timber which will feed the mill, and in these pious days the morals of the place can be better confirmed. The saw logs and postoice is named after the late Ihavid Ward. Orthographically, it will appear to the eye as Deward. Unlike most of the hamlet towns of the earlier days, it bids fair to have a permanent existence, for there is much good land throughout the region for the farmer after the timber has been cut. Deward is about eight miles northwest of Frederic, a Michigan Central railway station, eight miles almost due north of Grayling.

The town is established primarily for the handing of an immense area of timber, 70,000 acres of it in Crawford, Otsego and Kalkaska counties, an area of three townships. The tract contains a variety of pine and hardwoods and it is on the lands grown with hardwood that the farmer will follow the lumber cutters. The mill is the finest in Crawford county, and is nearly completed at cost of $100,000. It will be started within a month and there is 25 to 30 years of work before it, and the town will have plenty of time in which to grow and change from a lumber headquarters to an agricultural center. George S. Rust, a son of the late Charles Rust of Detroit, son-in-law to the late Ireland Ward and one of the executors of the Ward estate, will be in active charge of affairs in Deward.

Deward is to be the headquarters of the Detroit & Charlevoix railroad, the name given a new passenger and freight line which intends to begin road which runs through this great timber domain of the Ward estate, and which is built entirely on the estate's grounds, with the exception of one and one-half miles now building to south Arm, on Pine lake in Charlevoix county. This road has been in use for years for hauling logs from other tracts of the well-remembered Ward timber lands as they were stripped of their forests.

The importance of the Detroit & Charlevoix railroad is a regular line is that it is the only connecting link between the Michigan Central and G. R. & I. and the south and western sides of the state, from Bay City to Mackinaw on the east side and from Boat City to Manistee on the west side. To pass from one side of the state to the other residents of all this northern country now have to make a loop trip to Mackinaw via the Michigan Central or G. R. & I. and back southward on the other line to their destination. The cut-across which the Detroit & Charlevoix line will give will afford a great saving of time and distance.

The Detroit & Charlevoix railroad runs from Frederic, Crawford county, where a junction is formed with the Michigan Central, northwesterly to South Arm, Charlevoix Co., on the south arm of Pine lake. The south arm of the lake has a channel of 10 or 17 feet and any vessel which can enter Charlevoix harbor can pass on to the terminal dock of the railroad. The Michigan Central and the Detroit & Charlevoix combined will make an almost straight line from Detroit to South Arm, through Saginaw, Bay City and Grayling. The Detroit & Charlevoix offers a junction with the G. R. & I. at Alba, Antrim county.

To develop the new railway line, Clark Brown for 20 years with the Michigan Central, has been engaged as general superintendent. Mr. Brown started in with the Michigan Central as a message boy in Jackson and was advanced through the positions of telegraph operator, train dispatcher and trainmaster until he became assistant superintendent of the Bay City & Mackinaw division, with headquarters in Bay City. A number of men who have been with Mr. Brown since the largest point. The forecast is as follows: "The crop of early potatoes in this state has been nearly a failure. Early in the season it was too wet and cold and later too dry and hot, so that the crop was about a third. The conditions of potatoes at the present time is low, but when it is remembered that the bulk of the late crop was planted in June and that conditions since then have been favorable, we have good reason to expect a fair crop this year unless something unexpected happens. The condition of potatoes in the southern counties is 76, in the central counties 76, in the northern counties 86, and the state 77. One year ago the average condition for the state was 91.

Preparations are now under way for the erection of what will be the most uniquely constructed building in Petoskey. It will be built for Mr. Norton L. Gates, by Mr. Dudley McIlvane, and the well known contractor, on the lot just across the alley from the rear of Magee's grocery and Boyington & Corbett's cigar factory. The building will be of considerable length and two stories in height. The walls are to be constructed of cement, the shape of hollow cement brick, about thirty inches long, twelve inches high and seven inches wide. These brick are now being made on the site of the building. Mr. McIlvanie informs us that their use reduces the cost of a building about one-fourth from that of brick. In the matter of freezing and from great superiority is claimed for the cement brick over the common ones. Another feature about this building is that a chimney can be had anywhere in the wall by simply cutting a above pipe hole, the flue being formed by the hollow part of the brick. It thus plan proves a success, for one and there seems no reason why it should not. It would appear that the construction of buildings will be revolutionized. At any rate the venture of Messrs. McDonald and Gates will be watched with more than a passing interest.—Independent Democrat.

Excursions to National G. A. R. Encampment, Cleveland, Ohio.

LIFE SAVED BY A RAT

BOY FALLS FROM A SECOND-STORY WINDOW

Alighting Upon the Head of a Passer Pedestrian, the Youngster Escapes The Unusual Incident—Hudkins, S. D., Excited Its a Thousand Murder.

Frank Nance, one 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kerns, of Hudkins, had an experience last week which left the children of the Hudkins Business Men's Association, of which he is the honorary member, a larger group of admirers than ever before. The boy was playing in the second story of his home and upon leaving the house to go to school, he slipped and fell from the window. He was caught in the arms of a passer-by who happened to be standing in the street below. Unfortunately the man was knocked down by the force of the boy's fall and both rolled to the sidewalk in a heap. The man was not injured, but he was so dazed by the occurrence that he did not realize that he had caught the boy. He was carried into a nearby store and upon being told that he had caught the boy he fainted. The boy was not injured, but he was so frightened that he was taken home in a carriage. It was later found that a rat had jumped from the window sill to the head of the man, which he mistook for the boy, and he had caught the rat instead of the boy. The rat was killed by the man who caught it. The boy's father is a well-known farmer residing near Hudkins.

Woman Teacher Sings Tributes to the War Department.

A girl living in Nebraska remembers that the War Department was good to her. Writing its praise from her home near Lincoln, Miss Ella Fitzgerald, a school teacher in Nebraska, says: "I have been employed at the Department for the past two years. Last year I was in the Division of Mail and Messenger Service, Washington, D. C., and I was promoted to the Division of Appointments, where I am now employed. I like the work very much indeed, and I feel that I owe my promotion to the War Department. I am very much better off financially than I ever was before, and I am able to do much more for my mother than I could have done if I had not been employed by the Government. I am very much better in health than I was when I left home, and I believe that I owe much of my good health to the fact that I have been employed in the Government service. I am very much better off than I would have been had I not been employed by the Government, and I owe

MARINE NOTES.

Vessels now engaged in the lumber trade on Lake Michigan are at present bothered over the prospect of another advance in seamen's wages on Sept. 1. They say that they have only just arrived at a point where shippers will pay good enough freights to offset the last advance in wages from $1.75 to $2, and now there is great probability of the union's ordering another increase of 25 cents a day. The owners claim that if they were getting any profit out of their gross receipts they would not care. If they do get it anywhere there is a small margin of net it goes to the sailors in advanced wages.

A report has gained currency in marine circles that arrangements have been made by the Northern Michigan line for the purchase of the Nutmeg Steamship company steamer North Star. Should the report prove to be true the North Star will undoubtedly be provided with first-class cabin and stateroom accommodation for the Northern Michigan passenger trade. She is a steel steamer of 2476 gross tons measurements.—Evening Wisconsin.

About a year ago the government decided on a new style life-boat for fresh and salt water, and after an investigation a few of these were built. One of them was placed in service at the Buffalo station, and because of the good work that can be done with it, the government has decided to build many more. The boats are 36 feet over all, 9 feet beam, and draw 22 inches of water. They carry a crew of eight men, and are propelled by oars. The boats have few and all water and air-tight compartments, and are non-capsizable and non-sinkable. The frames of the boat are made of white oak and the other woodwork is Honduras mahogany, the toughest wood in the world, and capable of being bent like steel. This wood is placed in the frames diagonally instead of in the usual fore and aft method, and is thus better able to stand the water.

The lifeboat, it is stated, can withstand any storm that ever swept the surface of the lakes, and it would be possible to rig the boat with sails so that even on a 60-mile gale if it is not necessary to work to windward, they can be sailed. Ten of the boats are now being constructed at Port Huron and will be ready in a short time.

The tug A. V. Taylor, with a scow, is engaged in picking up for the Two Rivers Manufacturing company logs scattered along the green Bay shore of the Wisconsin peninsula.

Capt. A. A. Jensen of Chicago has won the distinction of being the first mariner to guide a vessel from Lake Michigan to San Francisco by way of the Straits of Magellan. The craft in which he made the voyage is the steamer Tampico, which was built at Toledo in 1900 for the great lakes carrying trade. In a letter received by Lieut. W. F. Fullam of the United States hydrographic office, Chicago, Capt. Jensen chronicles his safe arrival at San Francisco after being at sea 97 days. The Tampico is 247 feet long, 42 feet wide and of 2136 tonnage. The steamer was sold to a Pacific Ocean syndicate last fall with two sister boats, the Eureka and Monsor. They were purchased for service in the freight trade between San Francisco and Honolulu.

The fishing tug Elliott of St. James was launched Tuesday at Washburn's shipyard, where she has been given a thorough rebuild of frames, stanchions, planking and upperworks from the water line up. The Martin Bros. now have an excellent boat for their business and may well feel proud of their work. The tug will immediately engage in the fall fishing.

The Cheboygan News says that the closeness of terminal of the Grand Rapids steamers from that port to Petoskey is only temporary. The reason for withdrawing the Chippewa from Cheboygan was for the purpose of seeing if the business between Petoskey and the Soo would warrant running two boats. The company is well pleased with the experiment and they have determined to build another boat very similar, which will be a duplicate of the Chippewa and the Iroquois, one is to be built expressly to run between Cheboygan, Mackinac Island and Les Cheneaux Islands. She will consign at the island with the Chippewa and Iroquois, thus giving Cheboygan a better service than ever.

Bids to Operate New Bridge.

SEALED BIDS Will be received in the office of Commissioner of Highways of the Township of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, on the 14th day of September, A. D. 1901, at 2 o'clock p. m. of said day, for the purchase of Bridge the opening, incorporating the Township of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, for a term of Twenty-five (25) years from the date of sale, thereof, to be sold to the highest responsible bidder, upon the following conditions, viz: The said bridge to be operated and maintained in good and sufficient order for the term of Twenty-five (25) years, and the same to be left in the condition of the premises by the purchaser upon the expiration of said term.

The right to reject any and all bids is reserved.

JOSEPH STAFFAN,
Township Commissioner of Highways.
Dated, Charlevoix, Michigan, August 27, 1901.

SCHOOL COMM'R COLUMN.

A. N. CHIP, COM'R.

Some of the teachers who wrote at the recent examination went below the standard in some branches. Their average standing, plus the credit given for institute work, would bring them up to the minimum mark, but the board of examiners cannot grant certificates to those who go below the minimum mark.

A teacher must come above the minimum, then, if his average is below the standard and his institute credits will bring him up, the certificate will be issued. We hope this phase of the work will be understood. We do not intend to lower the standard by institute credits, but will give due credit where it belongs.

A teacher from another county writing for a certificate in this county and who claims to have been teaching ten years, presented a manuscript so full of grammatical errors, and errors in spelling, that the board could not grant a certificate, even though she made the average standing, which she did not. She asks for a special to teach in this county. I kindly informed her that such blunders in language and errors in spelling would not be overlooked. She missed 20 words out of a list of 50—common place words—and these aspects to teach in Charlevoix county! No, I do not want a teacher in the schools, if we can prevent, who habitually misspells the English language. To this course we attribute a great deal of the poor spelling among our pupils. They have been in the keeping of such teachers long enough. We say that the board of examiners should present a spelling book and grammar to those teachers instead of a certificate.

Norwood Notes.

The Ladies Aid of Norwood served ice cream at the village hall on Wednesday, Aug. 21st, clearing $15.00.

At a recent meeting of the Quarterly Conference of the Norwood circuit, Rev. Aylesworth was invited to return a second year. Dr. M. D. Carroll, the Presiding Elder, expressed himself as well pleased with the work accomplished during the year.

Mrs. W. W. Aylesworth, of Norwood, entertained the Ladies Aid of the Barnard M. E. church on Wednesday, Aug. 21st. A sumptuous dinner was served on the lawn and an enjoyable time had by all. About forty were present and Mrs. A. was presented with five dollars as a gift from the ladies individually.

A NEW RAILROAD.

Charlevoix May Become Western Terminus of Alpena & Western Railroad.

Warren R. Jones of New York, a railroad expert; Chief Engineer F. R. Davis of Gettstown, N. Y., Secretary T. N. Goodbourne of New York; and Director G. N. Babcock of Gaylord, were in town Sunday and Monday looking Charlevoix over as a prospective place for the western terminus.

The road will run from Alpena through Montmorency and Otsego counties to Alba, and from there to some lake port. Frankfort has been talking a strong bid for the new road, but the officials expressed themselves as favorably impressed with the advantages offered by Charlevoix, although the engineering difficulties from Gaylord west will be greater to Charlevoix than to Frankfort. The county is so rolling and the descent of 500 feet made within such comparatively short distance that the cost of the road will average $25,000 a mile. From Gaylord east, the cost per mile will be about $15,000. After the proposed route has been thoroughly inspected, Charlevoix will be approached with the proposition and if sufficient inducement is offered the principal western terminus will be located here. On the other hand should Frankfort secure the plum, a branch will in all probability be run from Bellaire to Charlevoix.

The leading promoters of the road are New York parties, many of whom are interested in the New York, New Haven & Hartford R. R. John C. Comfort of Alpena, is treasurer, and the mayor of Alpena a leading stockholder. Surveys have already been completed for 40 miles west of Alpena, and by the agreement under which the company is operating, 40 miles must be built this year. The total length of the road will be about 125 miles and will tap the hardwood timber region of Montmorency and Otsego counties, the greatest hardwood timber track in Michigan.

The object of the promoters is not alone to afford transportation facilities for their product, but to give a short cut across the northern part of the state for passenger service, and with this in view the road will be equipped with 75 pound rails, the heaviest in use in the state. The country through which the road is to pass has a rich soil and is rapidly being settled. Its completion is now assured and but a question of time. Should the officials decide to come to Charlevoix, trains will be in operation within the next two years.

—Mrs. E. M. Sears has as guests her father, W. W. Campbell and two nieces, the Misses Sparrow, of Port Huron.

—Attorney Lisle Shanahan is enjoying a visit from his mother, Mrs. Kim Shanahan, and Mrs. Chas. Albert of Kewaskum, Mich.

—Supt. Tice has completed the school census which shows the number of children of school age to be 815 as compared with 797 of last year.

—Married, on Thursday evening, Aug. 29th, in Charlevoix, by the Rev. George D. Gillespie, Wilford George Lovell of La Belle, Texas, and Ellen Phelps Beach of Crawley, La.

—Foreman Gallagher of the Mackinac Island water works has discovered a spring on the Island near Arch Rock that supplies water of a temperature of 101 degrees Fahrenheit.

—D. J. Doney of Elk Rapids, who has been on trial at Bellaire for the murder of Pete Hugli, was acquitted Saturday. Two ballots were necessary to reach the verdict. self-defense was the plea.

—A. M. Byers of Alexdo, Ill., president of the Farmers, Bank, is to open a loan office in Charlevoix under the charge of John Ward. The loans will be short time and only on gilt edge paper and chattel mortgages.

—Engineer Hubert B. Wrege of the light house service has placed a new Funkhaup lamp in the light house last week. The old lenses are retained, but the new lamp is 40 per cent stronger than the old.

—There is a strong agitation in State military circles for the selection of Mackinac Island as a permanent camp for the Michigan National Guard. Gov. Pingree, and the great majority of the officers favor it.

—School will be resumed Monday, Sept. 9. All students who received conditions in last year's work will report for examination on Saturday Sept. 7. Sept. 7th will see students at the office any afternoon of next week.

—The swimming pool has closed for the season and Leopold Fisher, who has been in charge, has left for Toledo. Before his departure he contracted to retain next season providing improvements to the extent of about $1,000 are made.

—Miss Winnifred Beman of Ann Arbor, who has been spending the summer with her parents at the Mantier cottage, (Belvedere,) returned home Tuesday. Miss Dimon is an M. A. from Michigan University and has an appointment as professor of history in Downer College, Milwaukee.

—The Labor Day celebration at Boyne City, under the auspices of the Longshoremen's Union was a great success. The circle of attraction was the base ball game, Boyne City defeating Boyne Falls 12 to 5 in the forenoon and East Jordan 25 to 6 in the afternoon, thereby winning the $20 cash prize.

—Auditor B. B. Mellroy of the C. H. & I. railroad surprised officials from Chicago and St. Paul, visiting Lakeman last week backing the ground over for the proposed railroad to Northport. The gentlemen stated that the road would be built if Lakeman would give a bonus of $12,000. Should the railroad be built Northport will undoubtedly become the port of our lake service to Manistique, thus opening up direct communication with that part of the upper peninsula. The plan is as yet, however, in the air.

The deceased had been suffering with rheumatism and on the night in question took a dose of paris green for medicine he had been using. The deceased had been a resident of Hayes for 28 years and leaves a widow and five children to mourn his loss. The funeral was held Sunday 40 O. A. M. from Hayes school house.

—The Pere Marquette since its consolidation has gradually increased its rolling stock until now there is little danger that there will be a lack of equipment such as occurred last year in the past. At least this year Illinois locomotives have been put into commission and 11 more are to be delivered in November and 10 in January. Of these new cities 14 are to be freight, 4 fast passenger and 3 switch engines. In addition the company has just received 500 new standard box cars and 100 coal cars, which make 1,000 box cars added during this year.

—Another yarn caught by the Thursday squad was the Weidemann boat on Pine Lake. Alfred and Chas Weidemann and the Misses Mary Elizabeth and Margaret Weidemann started in an Alcadonia and so they won't lay. When in the middle of the lake they were broadside and seeing the crisis coming the young ladies were put aboard the Rhoenix and taken to Boyne City, where they stopped for the night at the Lewis House. The boys finally reached the town triumphantly drenched and were compelled to purchase a complete outfit.

—The district Christian Endeavor convention closed at Northport last Thursday night and was a very successful meeting. There were forty four delegates present and among other things they voted to take the next meeting in Frankfort. The newly elected officers are: President, Levi I. Pennington, Traverse City; vice president, Gerald Whalley, Kewadin; secretary, M. E. Holley, Traverse City; treasurer, Francis Holmes, Traverse City; junior superintendent, Myra VanSlyke, Bellaire; mission ary superintendent, W. H. Barth, Omena.

—Evangelist Hoskins' big revival at Uncle Tom's Cabin will be seen at Lyons Opera House on Saturday, Sept. 7th. The just concluded revival of this famous attraction justifies lovers of good substantial amusement in coming to enjoy an evening's entertainment. It is vastly different from any similar attraction now here. It produces the famous play just as written. Every detail is a painstaking management and nothing is attended to, all the costly scenery, the lifelike mechanism of actors, blood-hounds, the most laughable of trick donkeys and a company of real artists packed for the part they represent, and the same magnificent production that has been seen in all the large cities. This big attraction is meeting with unmounted success everywhere, and as this will be its only visit into this country, lovers of good wholesome entertainment cannot afford to miss it.

—Major Dimon, Ft. Thomas, Ky., in a pamphlet issued Monday, on unnecessary diseases and death of United States soldiers, gives startling statistics. In the armies of the United states from May, 1898 to June, 1899, there were 382 deaths from typhoid; 2,776 from typhoid fever, and 447 1,202 through homicide, suicide and gunshot wounds. The list includes the battle casualties in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines. The cause of this is, he says, the present system of medical treatment in the army. Under present conditions the surgeon can only suggest. He can order nothing, and the officers have the power disregard requests.

The squall of last Thursday night caught the small sloop yacht of Dr. Victor C. Vaughn, dean of the Medical Department of the University of Michigan, off Fisherman's Island, and only by the greatest effort was the party aboard able to keep the boat from filling with water. The party consisting of Dr. Vaughn, wife and four sons, Dr. Gunberg, professor of organic chemistry at Ann Arbor, his wife, daughter of Regent Dean of Ann Arbor, left the Manistee where they have been counting the season, at 10 a. m. for Charlevoix. When off Fisherman's Island they saw the squall coming and after sailing closely reefed in the hopes of reaching port before the storm broke just struck them, were finally compelled to take in all their canvas and give their entire attention to pumping and bailing. The small craft which they had in tow filled and was cut loose. The yacht finally reached Charlevoix at 10 p. m. The party returned Saturday.

—Attorney-general Oren, has given Coame and Fish Warden Morse an important opinion relative to the size of mesh of nets used by commercial fishermen. The statute provides that the meshes of the parts of pound or trap nets, commonly called the lead, the funnel and the heart, shall not be less than five inches between knots, and the meshes of parts commonly called the pot crib or pocket, being that part in which the fish are finally caught, shall not be less than three and one-half inches in extension. There has been much discussion as to whether this size meant the size as the nets are hung or the size as the nets are stretched. The opinion of the attorney-general is that the meshes of the parts of pound or trap nets, commonly called the lead, the funnel and the heart, shall not be less than five inches between knots, and the meshes of parts commonly called the pot crib or pocket, being that part in which the fish are finally caught, shall not be less than three and one-half inches in extension. There has been much discussion as to whether this size meant the size as the nets are hung or the size as the nets are stretched. A STORY OF

BY MAJOR ALFRED ROCHEFORT

Copyright, 1901, by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER X.—(Continued.)

The day that Mr. Hermann met with Under Murray was also the day that he met Miss Paul. Paul Martin had an open-hearted, frank, manly face, and she had been taught from her cradle to trust and love the world.

Well, what another? asked the young girl as he paused for a moment in his delight and she looked.

Why, I was trying to think of the name of that Irish Major commanding the post, you know, Mr. Murray mentioned to me the other day, when we were talking about the Fourteenth Infantry.

Major Dunn, I think, you mean.

Yes, that's the man. Major Dunn, I am sure I shall remember it now. Do you know him?

I have met him, of course, at the post, but I do not know him well. He is very busy, I fancy, and very—

Very what? asked Paul, as he paused again.

Very much like a man who has a great deal on his mind, I should say.

Well, I suppose he has, if he is commanding the post, and I suppose he has, if he is the father of a family of daughters.

Why, what do you mean? he asked, with a sudden sharp ring in his voice.

Why, I mean that I have met a young lady more than once with him, and I thought she was his daughter.

Paul, Paul, I think you must be—

Well, what? she asked, as he paused again.

Why, I mean that I have met a young lady more than once with Major Dunn, and I thought she was his daughter.

Well, what another? asked Paul, laughing at her in her turn

HE IS REMINISCENT.

SOME FOURTH OF JULY TALK BY UNCLE SAM.

Tells How He Manages, from Washington to Michigan, Have Everything Smoothed with Protection, Lame and Failed with Free Trade.

It Will be remembered by all that the Fourth of July was a most auspicious one for a good talk with Uncle Sam. The beauty and hale and goodness has been his since it left us good as longevity is only one for a representative of the American. Doubtful Sagacity as Interview on the Fourth and it was granted. I found him surrounded by a small pack of boys with their firecrackers and pistols.

"Don't you mind the noise?" I asked.

"Bless you, no," he replied. "They can't make too much noise on my birthday. This is the one hundred and seventy-sixth Fourth of July I've celebrated and in three different centuries."

"They have done some wonderful changes since your first celebration," I remarked.

"Well, I should say so. Sometimes I can hardly realize it myself. I'm not going about as gradually and as easily as I have been doing all my life. I can remember when a boy like this was not safe out in the street, making noise enough to drive a man crazy. Why, I can remember when it was no little matter they would tear a hill into bones, sinews and sighing, as there would be enough to do business with. That latter 1th 1812 when the people gave the William Henry Harrison for a campaign and a Protective Congress. In 1842 Protection began again to bring prosperity, and in 1844 my manager, Polk, although he was a Free Trader, had to acknowledge that in numerous and wealth and the happy condition of the people and in prosperous and greatness we were ahead of all other nations.

"But there was trouble ahead. I don't want to say anything against any of my boys, but some of them down South were mistaken. The question of slavery began to bother me, too. Well, in 1848 the people elected Polk my manager, and with him a fellow by the name of Dallas, and I must admit that there was a little double shuffling during that campaign. It's all past and gone now, but I thought Free-Trade again, and Free-Trade brought hard times. I don't like to think of those times from 1846 to 1850. If it hadn't been for the gold discovery in California and the famines abroad I don't know what we would have done. At it was we had to send our gold out to Europe about as fast as we could get it. The old people can remember those times. They were awful, awful awful. But I'm too happy today to more than just recall them to mind.

"In 1860 the boys got back to Protection again, and with the exception of three years it has stood still now, and I can tell you I hope want to see Free-Trade again.

"Now, come the boys as you call them, to make a Free-Trade law in 1894, in the face of the success of the McKinley Tariff.

"Oh the people got restless, and then the election came. It was in those seasons that our last. That it was 1894. Texas and Vice-Pendleton in the South, and Polk Dallas of the Tariff of 1842 in the North. Well, I was worken throughout the same way, and then, the day I propose I could not to say it the Democrats did some pretty tall telling in 1892. Why, Mr. McKinley like was the best Tariff we had ever had, and everybody was prospering and happy. But the people gave me a Democratic again for a change. He had not time enough to do the first thing I could take hands I discharged his company I found a better manager in Mr. Harrison, but when we warmed over gave me a Democratic Population. Moreover, then Free-Trade Congress came in and wanted again to try the competition free-trade. Well, all business was thrown out of chance. But I lost $10,000,000 to twenty-four years, and I wasn't sure from bad to worse, till in 1896 the people gave me Mr. McKinley for a manager, and I've kept him ever since. Renewed the contract last March for four years. So we are all of them more happy July Fourth."

"Well, Uncle this little Tariff talk, it's all very interesting, and now I want to talk over my own business."

"Well fire away."

"Why do you consider the been long because as you call the good deal?"

"Well now, that's a hard question to answer. Washington said, Jefferson said, Jackson said, and, I guess, Polk said, but I'm not sure. I'm like Mr. McKinley, given as good a day of war. He don't quite so clear, I guess as Polk Jackson, was so good a man in matters of public affairs, I'm not sure a mighty good man. He's a good man, I know, and he's got all liberty and happiness, and I know what the people like."

"Well, Uncle, what do he is a little shaky on the Tariff, I noted."

"What! Mr. McKinley shaky on the Tariff? Why, I had rather put a sore on my tongue than say that. Why, he's mighty good. Why, I was at Lincoln's Tariff, and I know what I'm talking about. Why, I was there when Mr. McKinley gave his speech. Why, I was there when Mr. McKinley gave his speech. Why, I was there when Mr. McKinley gave his speech

THIEVES STEAL BOAT.

ROBBERS QUIETLY ACCOMPLISHED IN THE NIGHT.

Taken from Docks at Sharpshoe, Md., as an Ocean Tug, Without Waking the Village Marshal—Central Train Wrecked Near Rainsville, Ohio.

A three-masted schooner named Mary, of Baltimore, was taken from the docks at Sharpshoe, Md., early last Saturday morning. The schooner was loaded with a cargo of lumber and was to have sailed for Boston that morning. The crew of the schooner, consisting of Captain Jones and two men, had been ashore the night before and had returned to the vessel about 10 o'clock. The men went below and the Captain was left on deck. At 2 o'clock he went below and called the cook to go on deck. When he came up he could not find the Captain. The cook then went below and called the other men, who came up and searched the vessel from bow to stern, but could not find the Captain. The men then went below and went to sleep, thinking that the Captain had gone ashore. When they awoke they found themselves in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean, with no land in sight. The men then went to the cabin and found a note addressed to the mate, in which the thieves said they had taken the schooner for a pirate cruise. They had taken the Captain's clothes, but had left him his money. The note said that they had left the Captain on a small island in the Chesapeake Bay, and that they had taken the schooner for a pirate cruise. The note was signed "Captain Kidd, Jr." The mate of the schooner, who is a native of Sharpshoe, Md., and who is well known there, says that the schooner was a fast sailer and that she could be made into a good pirate. The mate says that he and the other two men will go to Sharpshoe and try to find the Captain. The schooner is owned in Sharpshoe, Md., and is well known there. The Captain is also well known there. The schooner was worth $10,000 and was insured for $5,000.

CLEVER SWINDLER CAPTURED.

Supposed Who Robbed Postal Tresure in Lower Canada.

J. J. Logan, the man who is supposed to have robbed the Postal Telegraph Company of $5,000 in Montreal, Lower Canada, on Dec. 3, was arrested in Boston on the 10th by Chief Inspector Hennessy, of the Pinkerton Detective Agency. Logan is wanted in Montreal for the robbery, and the police have a strong case against him. The robbery was committed by a man who came into the office of the company in Montreal and asked for a blank form of a money order. While the clerk was busy with the man he drew a revolver and ordered the clerk to hand over the money in the cash drawer. The clerk did so, and the robber ran out of the office and escaped. The money taken was in bills of small denomination, and the robber had no difficulty in passing them. The robbery was at first thought to be the work of a gang of Montreal thieves, but the Pinkerton detectives have since learned that the robbery was the work of a single man, who came from Boston. The description of the man given by the Montreal detectives fits Logan, who is well known to the Boston police as a clever swindler. Logan is a native of Montreal, and is well known there. He is about 30 years of age, 5 feet 8 inches in height, and weighs about 150 pounds. He has a fair complexion, light hair, and a light mustache. He is a good talker, and is said to be a clever swindler. He is said to have been in the employ of the Postal Telegraph Company in Montreal, and to have left that city about a month before the robbery. The Pinkerton detectives have had notice from the Montreal police to look out for Logan, and he was under close surveillance when he was arrested in Boston.

LAW BAN ON PICKETS.

UNION MEN ENJOINED FROM ACTING AS SENTINELS.

Restraining Order Taken Against the Striking Machinists by a Chicago Time-Action Commenced Upon by Leaders on Both Sides of Controversy.

For the first time in Chicago since the famous Pullman strike there was a peaceful strike of the Illinois Railway Union's member will not a court trial is a social judge preventing the citizens from interfering with the operation of business.

Judge Kohlsaat, sitting in the United States District Court, issued an injunction restraining the strikers from acting as the war against certain railroad companies in connection with the Pullman strike. The order was issued at the request of W. J. Calhoun of the firm of Calhoun & Calhoun, representing the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe.

This week is to witness effective action the court, the opportunity to decide whether it should be made permanent. Judge Kohlsaat will set a date for the hearing of arguments in the point. The injunction was issued against the National Association of Locomotive Firemen, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, Martin Mahoney, John Mitchell and the national officers of the Knights of Labor.

Mr. Calhoun, in his application, presented to Judge Kohlsaat affidavits showing that the Santa Fe company had been unable to get men to take the places of those who had left the employ of the company. In Illinois, Texas and Mexico Mahoney, Mitchell and the other officers of the Knights of Labor had been active in the work of persuading men to quit the service of the company. The affidavits showed that the men who had left the company had been induced to do so by the action of the officers of the Knights of Labor.

The order issued by Judge Kohlsaat is in the form of a restraining order, and it is to be in force until the court can hear the arguments in the case. The order

MARINE NOTES.

At Duluth the big dredge Napoleon has established a record of 6982 cubic yards in one day.

The U. S. S. Michigan, having on board the Cleveland Naval reserves, has been at Mackinac island the past week drilling, and this week is at Fox Islands surveying.

The barge Manila, in tow of the steamer Manitou, arrived at Sault Ste. Marie last week with 7000 gross tons of iron ore. This beats the record of the William Edenborn at Conneaut by eighteen tons.

The big car ferry Sainte Marie, which recently grounded on Graham shoals in the Straits of Mackinac, has gone into drydock at Detroit for repairs. Her damage is more serious than at first anticipated. The keel ward wheel must be replaced and her main shaft removed and straightened. A new plate must be put on forward and there are many minor repairs.

Models of the Michigan Central car ferries, Sainte Marie and Michigan Central have been built for President Leibrard of the M. C. R. R., who will present them to Kaiser William of Germany. The models are on a scale of a quarter of an inch to a foot and measure about six feet in length and are perfect in every detail. It will be remembered that the Sainte Marie is the car ferry which so favorably impressed the Russian engineers that the powerful crushers used on Lake Baikal, Siberia, in connection with the Trans-Siberian R. R. were built after her lines.

When the schooner Hand was lost on Lake Michigan, early in the spring, carrying from captain Hugh Jefferson, and his daughter, Miss Daisy, there was a serious question as to whether a $10,000 insurance on the life of Mr. Jefferson could be collected unless the body was recovered. Weeks rolled by and all efforts to find the body failed. The order was not legally bound to pay, but the trustees paid to Mrs. Jefferson the money in full upon receipt of affidavits from Miss Florence Smith and Geo. Weaver to the effect that Capt. Jefferson had crossed in person from Charlevoix and that the tug Wheeler towed the Hand out on her fateful voyage.

The latest thing in the way of a vessel lost is being tested for the time on fresh water, and the big passenger steamer North Land has it on board. The big of the invention of Capt. A. N. McGray. The principle is entirely different from that of the tugs in general use, inasmuch as it is an electrical device which registers the distance on a dial in the pilothouse or in the captain's quarters, and a glance at his dial will enable the navigator to tell in an instant exactly how far he has travelled. Mr. Howe of the North Land said he has watched the apparatus closely and thinks it is the best he has ever had an opinion. The new tug is a brass tube, attached to 250 feet of insulated half inch cable, which contains an electric circuit-breaker operated by an ordinary rotator fixed to a right and left handed screw which shifts a carriage back and forth, one stroke to every twentieth of a mile, so that every time the distance is travelled the circuit in the cable is closed which actuates the indicator on the bridge, in the pilothouse or in the captain's cabin. The principal advantage in the new tug over the old style is the uniformity in registration. It is not affected by low or high water, and the cable is made of the finest nickel steel wire tested to a breaking strain of 1200 pounds or 400 times greater than that of an ordinary line. Capt. Brown in speaking of the new invention, said that in a run of 250 miles the new log had not varied one-tenth of a mile.

Capt. James Davidson is still in quest of a site for the steel ship building plant which he proposes to establish in opposition to the American shipbuilding company. His desire is to locate either at Fire or Buffalo. About twenty-five acres of land are wanted, and upon this he proposes to erect a complete plant, drydock, building, machine shop and engine works and have sufficient space to build four of the largest types of boats at the same time, and that the capacity of the yard would be from 12 to 14 of the largest boats on the lakes, and that he could build several more of the smaller class. "The plant will be put up regardless of cost, everything will be of the best, the machinery will be strictly up-to-date, and I think that I can turn out vessels cheaper than they are now being built and still make a large margin, giving the benefit to the customers," he said when asked as to about how much money he intended to put into the plant. When asked as to what he expected when he entered into competition with the American shipbuilding Co., the shipbuilding trust of the great lakes, he said that this company had bought its competitors at a high price, that there was lots of watered stock, and that if the trust could pay dividends and keep up its interest on its bad issue and still have a surplus, he did not see why a clean-cut individual plant out not to make a lot of money. Capt. Davidson said that he had no partners in the new deal, but would go it alone and expected to be able to turn out vessels by the spring of 1903.

The steamer M. Sicken, which just finished unloading a cargo of hardwood lumber from Huron City, was sunk at the marine elevator at Buffalo Friday by the steamer S. S. Curry in a remarkable manner. The Sicken was moored outside of the Warrington and lay 35 feet from the dock. The Curry came in from Erie, going to a coal dock to load. In making the turn into the Blackwell canal the strong current swung the Curry's stern around so that her propeller struck the Sicken amidships. A big hole was cut in the Sicken's side, through which the water poured into the hold. The steamer went to the bottom in 15 feet of water in 20 minutes. She was not loaded. The Sicken started for Ashtabula, and has a valuation in inland lights of $125,000. A peculiar legal point is likely to be raised over the accident. The government officials have issued orders that two boats shall not lie alongside of dock in this part of the harbor. The Sicken was lying outside of the Warrington clearly in violation of the rules. On the clear hand it has generally been held that when a boat tied to a dock is struck by a moving craft the latter is liable for all damage done. The Curry is owned by Hawgood & Avery of Cleveland, and is valued at $125,000. The wheel was damaged, but that was all the injury sustained. The Sicken is owned in Marine City, and an attempt is being made to secure compensation.

We have received from Supt. Tim a complete list of all unclaimed letters in the Gladwin Pearl Harbor he announces to wait until Monday to insure what you send. Let your letters now and be ready when the tug comes, and avoid the rush. F. G. Hines & Co.

George A. McCarthy, Writer of His Experience on the Philippines.

Madison Square N. Y. June 28-1901.

Dear sons at Home.

As you see we have moved, the headquarters reached here June 1st. I came on ahead with my outfit as far as Caloocan, where I stayed until more important matters were attended to and I could get transportation to come up. Was at Caloocan ten days.

Malabon is situated on an island, the highest point of which is not more than four feet above high tide, so you can imagine it is a pretty damp place even in the dry season. What it will be when the rains come in dead earnest, I don't want to think about.

I weighed a couple of weeks ago and went 174, which is, I believe one pound more than when I enlisted, so you see I haven't lost much in the way of flesh. I eat with "D" company—they are garrisoned in Novaliches, an adjacent island. It was not possible to secure quarters for them on this side. I go over to decide in a "banca" or what would be a dugout in the states—two of them are lashed together, making a pretty good ferry, the guard goes back and forth that way.

I see that some of the folks at home have been including some of the crazy anti notions. I think most of such timidity cut comes from an utter misapprehension of the character of these people, and I think that there must be considerable misconception of our own people to account for such foolishness as talk of hanging "Aggie." The government in the Philippines is not in the business of hanging disloyalists. The men who have been hanged here are of the kind who should have been hanged in the persons of their ancestors several generations before they were born, for the reason that what civilization and education they have has only served to emphasize and make more dangerous the treacherous, cruel natures of their forebears the Malay pirates that it took all the civilized world to subdue. As to the right of these people to govern this land, that might sound all right speaking in the abstract in the states, but when you know even a little of these people such a thing is ridiculous, and, if it should be tried would simply result in a condition compared to which the worst Spanish misrule would be perfection of government. These people have absolutely no conception of administrative justice and honesty. A public office is political power to them is purely and simply immunity from law, privilege to punish others in the interests of the official and his friends. I type with the American government and live over them they are hunted up every day for crooked work of some kind or other, and if they had their own way you can imagine how it would be. Lattonen would be able to rob every body not in an official position to punish them, and officials would get rich off the laborers, that is presuming that the entire population did not turn lattonen as their natural instincts would prompt them to do. And they want to get the notion out of their head that Aggie is a "strong character." He's a character and that if the trust could pay divi. just like the rest of them and has been a figurehead and dat's paw for the gang that got a taste of official jobbery under the Spaniards and wanted a bigger graft yet, but who could not take the front rank because he so wrong give the whole shag away, and Aggie was quite a popular idol and just titled the tall.

JULY 7. This long have I let this lie around waiting for the writing mood to strike me, and now I guess I had better mail it up and send it on, mood or no mood.

The civil authorities took charge in the Fourth without raising much "bulldoksn" about it. Of course its too soon to see any change to speak of and that is one of the best of indications to my mind. Changes are going on all the time and new facilities are being introduced—reforms that are really great and so far reaching that one cannot see the end, are being made—and all without any jar or any of the radical flip-flops that would tend to disrupt social and financial conditions. And I really believe that the American government is gaining more and more every day the confidence of the people, and I am sure that they now have it to a greater extent than any government in these islands has ever had it before, and to a greater extent than Aggie's government would have, ever reached, because the natives are naturally suspicious and afraid of each other, and so jealous that if one of them gets up a little in the world, his neighbors and friends want to hale him, not necessarily to step into his shoes, but an amount of pure jealousy.

—The cowardly dog pension is giving the distantly trail-again, several of the best dogs of the town having fallen victims. Evidently the perpetrator does not know the penalty attached.

—Mrs. F. S. Chapel has as guests, Mrs. Ida M. Davis of Lansing, state secretary of the Science Assembly, Mrs. Elmer A. Wilkeson of Flint, president of the Home Association and chairman of the State Hygiene Committee of the Science Assembly and Mrs. L. H. Jones and Mrs. Clarke of Thompsonville, who with Mrs. Chapel are members of the hygiene committee.

—Grand Rapids will celebrate on Oct. 7-12, the eightieth anniversary of the signing of the treaty between the Federal government and the Indians which opened this section of the country to organized settlement and religious work. The program will include a pageant illustrating the history of Grand Rapids for eighty years. The lowest possible railroad rate will be offered.

—Plans for the Boyne Falls Sanitarium are fast maturing. Recently a party of Petoskey and Boyne Falls gentlemen met and decided to incorporate with $50,000 capital stock. The promoters propose to purchase a site of one hundred acres of high-angle wooded land, east and south of the village and pump the water to the sanitarium and swimming pool with a hydraulic ram. Those chiefly interested are Messrs. J. Buckley, C. F. Hankey, Frank Vorwerk, Jas. Parker and Noah of Petoskey, and H. H. Eastes and Dr. Hopkins of Boyne Falls.

—On Monday Agent Shepperson sold postage No. 2, at Lindsay Park to Truman H. Aldrich of St. Louis, who has been resorting at the Belvedere. Mr. Hulbert will improve the grounds and build a large addition to the house this fall.

—Daniel Weed, a well-known farmer of Charlevoix county, dropped dead from heart's disease Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock while on a errand to a neighbors. He was 41 years of age and leaves a wife and six children. The deceased was brought up in Charlevoix and had the respect of all who knew him. The funeral was held Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. from the Hilton school house under the supervision of the masonic order of Charlevoix.

—Charlevoix will add her contribution to the various efforts made by sending the following young men and ladies. The Misses Lelah and Myrtle Miller, Mattie Bedford and Flora Caldwell will attend the Michigan Seminary at Kalamazoo; Miss Mabelle Dennis will enter the Normal school of Northwestern University at Evanston; and Miss Clay Gulick is to study as a school for trained nurses at Ann Arbor. Messrs. Dave Burke, Burt Bedford, Bodie Lewis and Will Bellinger will enter the preparatory department of Kalamazoo College, the former two to prepare for engineering and the latter two for law. Sam DeForest is to attend the Kenyon Military Academy, Gladwin. Charles Jones enters the engineering department of Purdue University, to take a course in civil engineering.

—Many resorts boast of entertaining leading citizens of the day, yet few enjoy the honor of having the original character of one of the modern novels living in their midst. This fate Charlevoix is the person of Prof. W. H. Smith, head of the mathematical department of Tulane University, New Orleans, who has a cottage at the Belvedere. Prof. Smith is a personal friend of James Lane Allen, the author of "The Reign of Law," a story of the lonely fields of Kentucky. The story is the main at account of the religious experiences through which the young man, David, passes. He leaves the farm with the intention of studying for the ministry, but at college receives new light and gives up forever all ambition in that direction. A pretty romance is of course woven in the story. Prof. Smith is said to have passed through such a religious experience, but that the romance is purely fiction.

—The Michigan State Forestry Commission has been making an inspection of the Michigan pineries with an eye to establishing a reserve. Prof. Davis of the new chair of Forestry at the Michigan University is one of the experts of the commission and in speaking of the possibilities of northern Lower Michigan forests he said: "Our investigations will cover the nature of the original growth and the possibilities of the future. Of course this is only the beginning of the work, it takes not in a small way, but I hope to publish a preliminary report in coming years. For pasta it may possibly take 25 or 30 years, but for lumber purposes it will take at least 100 years. We have been cutting the pine timber in Michigan that is from 150 to 300 years old. It may seem a long time but nobody can tell what lumber will be worth a century from now. It certainly will not be very cheaper. Here we have the land that is carrying nothing now. The State Agricultural college has had an experimental station at Grayling to try and see if the pine lands could not be made profitable for agriculture and this has failed. Then the lands have been tried for grazing purposes. This would be all right if one could raise food stuffs on it by using the stock alive in the winter. The only thing left is to grow trees on the land and that is just what we are starting out to do. This generation will not get much profit from the investment, but the lands, but it is necessary for us to do something for the future."

A Night of Terror.

"A few months ago I felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from Pneumonia before Daniel Webster Burnham, Co. E, Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of Consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further she entirely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at F. G. Hines & Co's drug store.

PRESIDENT McKINLEY SHOT.

By an Anarchist at the Pan-American.

WILL RECOVER.

The nation was plunged in sorrow Friday afternoon by the news that an attempt to assassinate President McKinley had been made at the Pan-American Exposition, Buffalo. The terrible crime was committed in the presence of thousands while the President was holding a public reception in the Temple of Music.

The expedition authorities had been fearful lest something should happen to mar the President's visit, and it was against the desire of friends that he consented to meet the people in an open thoroughfare. At his right stood President Milburn of the Exposition and on his left Secretary Cortelyou, while immediately in front of him, two secret service men were stationed to guard against just such an event.

It was shortly after 4 p. m. when a medium sized man, dressed in black approached to greet the President. His right hand was heavily bandaged with a red bandana handkerchief and as he e. tended it to the President two shots were fired from a 38-calibre revolver concealed beneath the handkerchief. The President retreated a step and then turned and walked to a chair while the assassinated himself. Secretary Cortelyou and President Milburn were immediately at his side, and assisted the President to a recumbent position. The emergency ambulance was called and the President removed to the service hospital.

For a moment after the shots the throng of people paused in the great auditorium and then pandemonium broke loose. Women screamed and men yelled and pushed one another in an attempt to get a nearer view of the platform on which the tragedy had been enacted. In the meantime the assassinated had been hemmed in by guards of the secret service detectives and a large force has had just shaken hands with the President. Before the crowd had time to fully realize what had happened and before a thread of branching had been heard, the prisoner was hustled away to police headquarters. The prisoner gave his name as Czolgosz of Cleveland.

Eminent surgeons including Dr. Mann of Buffalo, Dr. Mathew Mann, Dr. Dowley, M. Huey, the McKinley family physician, and others were immediately called and operated. The bullet struck the President on the upper portion of the breast bone, glancing and not penetrating. The second bullet penetrated the abdomen five inches below the left nipple and one inch above and to the left of the median line. The abdomen was opened and the track of the ball of the bullet was found. It was found that the bullet had passed through the stomach and was lodged in the muscles of the back. The openings in both the front and back walls of the stomach were closed with silk stitches.

The bullet has not yet been removed and it will be a long time before it is. The President survived the operation successfully and passed the crisis on Tuesday. Positive hope was what was most heard not so the symptoms has yet appeared there is little apprehension of further trouble on that score. Secretary of Commerce and Labor, one of the most prominent Cortelyou in America, is in the Cabinet. The President is secured, and that in three or four weeks he will be able to resume his duties is hoped.

For the present President McKinley is at the home of President Milburn, where he will be taken immediately after the operation. That portion of the city is under surveillance of the U. S. Secret Service, and absolute quiet thus assured.

Mrs. McKinley has borne her sorrow with great fortitude and as yet shows no signs of giving way under the terrible suspense of the past few days. Her health has always been precarious and the President's constant thought has always been of her. It may be her fond fear that the blow would be too much for her, and in their sympathy the people have

The Cascade Mountains are a continuation of the range known in Northern and Oregon as the Sierra Nevada mountains, or in Spanish for "snow-covered."

It was the young Captain Dennis and Clara—after the jaded Fort Dodge was named—who in 1866 named their district, thus adopting the Spanish name for the range.

The Cascades are the Switzerland of Oregon, presenting the same picturesque scenery, the same magnificent mountains, the same lofty peaks, the same rushing streams, the same dense forests and lofty pines.

The Columbia River, which divides Oregon from Washington, and which, rising in the Rocky Mountains, flows through a wide valley, and, after receiving the waters of the Snake and Willamette rivers, empties into the Pacific, flows through a gorge in the Cascades, which, for grandeur, is second only to the Yosemite Valley.

Fleetwood Lodge and Jennie Ford were situated in a picturesque valley, surrounded by the Cascades, and, consequently, in the Sierra Nevada, and, consequently, in the Rocky Mountains, and, consequently, in the Pacific Ocean, and, consequently, in the Western Hemisphere.

COMFORT WHILE TRAVELING.

Little Things That Make a Long Journey Less Fatiguing.

When one is about to start on a journey that will take several hours it is well to thoroughly equip one's self that one may be as comfortable as possible. Especially is this necessary when there are little children to consider as well as silly persons. Among all things be sure to provide yourself with a pillow. Get it if it is for from attractive to think of stinking from the same one as is used by any one who chances along. Next to importance is a small bottle of good but plain Cologne water. A soft free cloth may be wrapped around this, and when tired and dusty from the heat gently bathe the face with the Cologne water, and you will be greatly surprised to find how cool and comfortable you will feel. A small fan that runs into a pillow stick, and which takes but little room in your bag, should be the said article to find a resting place. Some plan a speed of thread and some needles and a few buttons will possibly be found useful on occasions when there are children. If one is more fit by the motion of the train a bottle of lavender salts will often relieve the headache. For this purpose it is also well to carry a few salted or other plain crackers for the children is often caused to an empty stomach. The breakfast has possibly been hastily eaten, or perhaps only a cup of coffee has been taken. Toward lunch time one will experience a ravenous hesitance. Before the headache become established the weaker should be eaten and the remainder will probably disappear, for not, however, to carry any great amount of meats with you, but place the rest of it in a closed bag that may be securely fastened around your neck under the dress. A sufficient quantity for three days would may be carried in the bag. A night dress should certainly be placed in the hand satchel, for trunks have been known to go astray.—New York Sun.

The Faithful "Bill."

When parter of a church in one of our missing towns where there were a large number of Dorcas classes was called upon to baptize an infant at the close of our Sunday school session one afternoon. That there might be no taken bewildering carefully acquired the name of the child and was assured that it was Anna Belle. Thus fortified, when the solemn baptism was presented I proceeded with all confidence to perform the ceremony. When I said, "Name this child," the father responded quite clearly "Anna Belle" and everything passed smoothly. Not after dinnertime an Anna Belle appeared at the door and inquired why I used the pronouns she and her in baptizing her child and I confessed that it was a boy "A boy?" I gasped, remembering its name, "Anna Belle—Oh, as I wash I was thunder!" That fatal "Bill" had intervened to—Bill Nye.

Cheap Voice Aids.

It is now generally realized that the production of loud and good tone in cross stitches by the combination of attachments, whether in one of the late massive constructions of the frame, but such is now the case. The cheap horns of amplification are by means of an inflated elastic carrying bag attached to the mouthpiece, and the sound of the voice is thus amplified. Some have adopted a cone of tin, which is fitted into the ear, and the vibrations are thus attributed

MADE COIN IN PRISON.

MINNESOTA CONVICT A WORKING COUNTERFEITER.

Finished Successive Moulds in Platform-Every Dollar Issued and Circulated Is Through Confederates—Bricken and Long Sentenced to Six Years Imprisonment.

United States Senator Knute Nelson, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Vanderlip and Secret Service Chief Wilkie were present in Judge Lochren's court in Minneapolis when Frank Bricken and Frank Long were sentenced to six years' imprisonment in the penitentiary for counterfeiting.

Bricken and Long were the men who made the counterfeit dollars which were circulated in the Twin Cities and throughout the Northwest. The counterfeiting was done in a room in the rear of Bricken's saloon, and the counterfeit money was passed by confederates who were located in various parts of the country. The plates were made in Chicago and were sent to Minneapolis in sections. The moulds were made in the room in question, and the coin was made of a composition of lead and other metals. The counterfeit money was of a very high order of excellence, and it was only by the most careful examination that it could be detected. It was in circulation for a long time before the officials of the United States Treasury Department were able to get a clue to the source of the supply. The clue was finally obtained by the Secret Service men, and Bricken and Long were arrested in the act of making the counterfeit money. The men were taken to Chicago for trial, and they were there convicted of the offense with which they were charged. They were then brought back to Minneapolis to be sentenced by Judge Lochren. The men were represented by Attorney Frank Rowe, who made a strong plea for them. Mr. Rowe said that Bricken was a man who had been leading a good life for the last few years, and that he was married and had a family. He said that Long was a young man who had been led into the business by Bricken, who was his uncle. He said that Long was a young man of good family, and that he had never before been in any trouble. He said that Long was married and had a family, and that he was a good workman and had been working at his trade when he was induced by his uncle to engage in the business of counterfeiting. He said that Long was a young man who had been led into the business by his uncle, who was a man of more or less means, and who had been leading a good life for a few years. He said that Long was a young man who had been working at his trade when he was induced by his uncle to engage in the business of counterfeiting

—Rev. E. H. Green, who just returned from the G. A. R. encampment at Cleveland, and the Pan-American, reported a telegram Tuesday day from Catoosha, Pa., conveying the sad news of the death of his sister, Mrs. Stoneybridge. Mrs. Green was in Buffalo at the time of the death of the President.

—After more than two months of illness, the clerks at the desk again, not fully recovered, but able to make a fool at work, for a time hopeful of many years of activity. Three months of income have been expensive, and we take this opportunity to remind our friends that accounts are the rule. This will be gladfully received. Call to and disbursements.

—Fred Smith Jr., son of Fred Smith of Hayes, was drowned in Pine Lake near Horton's Bay last Sunday. With his brother he had started out in a small sailboat. When half a mile offshore from shore the boat capsized. Both started to swim ashore, but Fred sank down just as they were about land. Deceased was an exemplary young man, and was respected by all who knew him. Mr. and Mrs. Smith have the sympathy of a large circle of friends.

—Following are the M. E. conference appointments to charges in this vicinity: Charlevoix, A. F. Nagler; Bayne City, A. E. Kellett; Horton Bay and Clarion, L. B. Carpenter; Central Lake, J. D. Dorts; East Jordan, L. E. Sprague; Ida, Rapids, J. W. Hart; Horton's Bay, A. A. Darling; Ironside, N. H. Kendall; Nine Mile, W. W. Appleyard. The annual conference will be held in Traverse City.

—St. James is making giant strides in the matter of a harbor. The town of James McGown is one of the best in Northern Michigan, and that of James is bound to be, little by little, big. Mr. Bennett's new hotel will be ready for opening next spring. Besides a large summer trade, it has 20 dwelling houses. Up at the council, Rev. Father Zagelbo is building a fine home, pastoral residence and a frame dwelling for the five Sisters who are doing such excellent work on the island. Many other improvements are being made and others contemplated.

—We have heard of but two persons in Charlevoix county who expressed satisfaction at the shooting of the President. One was a Charlevoix saloon keeper, who rarely tried to shut down after his month went off, and the other was an inbred up near the south border of Manistee. The first we do not know, the second we do. He should be tied to a post and spat upon every passer-by and, had he been in Charlevoix last Friday night, he would have got worse than that. He was tried in 1896, and taught discretion and civics from its birth. He should be fitted into his forty nest and there made to remain.

HONEST AS SAFE.

The statement by the President that he should "continue absolutely unchanged" the policy of the late President McKinley, was received by the country with great satisfaction.

Following this comes the announcement that the president has appointed McKinley's cabinet for the entire presidential term.

This action proves President Roosevelt to be a wise man in his day and generation.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Hindman of Mobile, Ala., whom the doctors said she would die from Pneumonia combined with Grippe. Mrs. S. H. Lawson, who attended her that fearful night, says she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had once before saved her life, and cured her of Consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further she entirely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at F. G. Hixon & Co's drug store.

CHARLEVOIX SHORE NOTES.

The U. S. lighthouse tender Tulip has completed the refloating of the Wauwatosa off.

The tug Wheeler pulled the schooner J. V. Taylor of Milwaukee, off the beach four miles west of the Harbor light Saturday night.

Capt. Weaver left yesterday to release the schooner Hiawatha of Milwaukee, which is ashore at North Manitou where she was loading.

The schooner Sun Tom went ashore near Manitowoc Monday night and is a total loss. When about 2,000 feet from the pier a heavy squall struck the vessel. It was accompanied by a dense fog, which shut out everything from sight. The ship was quickly driven on the beach. No lives were lost.

The United States survey steamer Search reports a boulder shoal with a depth of twenty feet at the present stage of the lake, from which North Manitou light bears north, 20 degrees east (true, at a distance of 4.4 statute miles, south Manitou light bears west, 2 degrees north (true, at a distance of 4.6 statute miles.

The steamer gage and tide well at Frankfort which were hung the great storm last saturday was the same as many domestic, the Search reports, which was the washing of the hull down vessels at Port Huron. The large freely, formerly belonging to P. H. Campbell, lodging in Manchester, went ashore two miles above the mouth of the river, unlocking sights on the beach for the river lights. The steamer Wyandotte, with the Whaleback 202 in tow, was following the Tuxedy, and as there was no gale there the distress signals of the latter could not be heard in time to save the Wyandotte had her tow from going ashore. This came the Quito coming in the schooner Page, the latter being added to the number of beached vessels. The Quito succeeded in getting away, but the tug Sarah while trying to remove the Page was herself thrown on the beach by the sea. So high did the surf roll that the Whaleback drifted twice in those seas of water farther in shore than was ever known before in the case of a steel vessel. It will require one of the great wrecking jobs to take marvelous history to release her, which will be done by jacking her up and launching her on slides. The Wyandotte is a total loss. Fifty-six lives were saved, with no losses.

A movement which in the end will mean an entirely new survey of the great lakes is now under way and the work in this district is under the supervision of Maj. W. L. Fisk, of the United States lake survey, says the Detroit Free Press. The major has just returned from a trip to upper Lake Michigan, where he completed a survey of the South Fox island shoal and lake in that vicinity. The engineer corps at the present time is at work getting a lake chart which will be printed in color and they will replace the old charts that are now in existence. The general plan is to resurvey all the lakes to meet present and future conditions and for the guidance of deep-draught vessels. Another interesting work upon which Maj. Fisk and his staff of engineers are engaged is the gauging the flow of the Detroit river to ascertain the amount of water which passes through the river. Similar work is now progressing at the Soo, while that in St. Clair river has been completed. The gauging of the St. Lawrence river and Niagara river has been completed and that at Detroit will probably be completed in about a year. Speaking of the talk that has been current for several years to the effect that Lake Erie levels are falling and that before long something would have to be done to maintain the level, Maj. Fisk said that conditions are not at all alarming. He said that there is no danger that the power plants at Niagara would consume enough water to materially affect the lake level.

FORMER DONNELLY ATTORNEY.

Many Charlevoix people will remember Zachariah Gerhart of Bejhoe City, as a permanent attorney of this county. The following taken from the Detroit Tribune will be of interest to those who knew him:

Zachariah Gerhart, once prominent citizen of Montcalm county and afterwards justice of the peace at Bejhoe City, is today working as a laborer on the Lorpth avenue paving job. Gerhart's change of conditions is due to a break-down of his power to remember, following a severe attack of grip. He can recall the incidents of his childhood with vivid distinctness and all his life up to four years ago when, after a severe attack of grip, he found himself unable to remember even a month or a month after he recovered. His memory of law and the contents of his law books is retentive to a high degree, and he can give the details of cases which he tried in great many years ago.

"I had excellent health until an attack of grip came six years ago, which left me in quite a weakened condition," said Mr. Gerhart. "A year later I had another attack, and four years ago a third one the worst of all. I attribute my mental failure to that attack. I noticed that a difficulty in remembering things was growing upon me, but did not realize how serious it was until I was trying a case in the circuit court, and had counsel interrupt examination of witnesses. When I came to argue the case I found that I couldn't remember a single word of the testimony nor anything that had taken place during the trial. Because of this I had to drop the practice of law at once. I had recovered to some extent when I came to Detroit, thinking I could take a new start. I did not begin to object as I thought I had to try it a little first, but I found that I had not yet recovered my power of memorization. I went to work at something and am earning a living, but my general health is quite good, and I anticipate no difficulty in getting over the hops to regain it entirely, but my wife thinks relative positive."

He lives at 1035 Fifth avenue.

PORTLAND CEMENT.

The State Labor Bureau has issued a bulletin on Portland Cement industry, giving a roughly summary of the industry in Michigan. Together with the plants in operation and those in process of construction and the companies which companies have been organized with a view to immediately commence work, the number will be 25, and these authorized capital stock will aggregate $23,865,000. Estimated by the cost of those already built the magnitude of the undertaking completed, and the plans of those about to be commenced, the construction of these 25 plants will aggregate a cost of about $11,000,000. They will aggregate a daily capacity of over 25,000 barrels.

Practically into what are constantly being made show the Michigan Portland Cement is superior to the imported article. The raw material is of a better quality and improved machinery, used in the American process, of manufacture turns out a better article for all uses than has ever before been on the market.

Although less known than in Michigan there was raw material in quantities to furnish the world's supply of Portland Cement, the only question being its satisfactory at a cost warranting the enormous outlay in the construction and operation of the plant, for its manufacture. The discovery of the new process for making the cement was a long step forward in this direction and now an native American cement to compete with foreign in the latter's markets. The one case of manufacture has been closed in per cent and its sue plus extended into all lines of construction.

SCHOOL COMM'R COLUMN.

In teaching arithmetic there is danger. The degree if approach to accuracy by a pupil does not depend so much upon the amount done, as upon the character of the work done.

Indeed the pupil must feel he cannot be innocently mistaken at all. If one figure is wrong the work is wrong. It must be impressed upon him from the beginning that objecting in which there are errors has no value whatever. His task must be, not the solution of a few problems with but few errors, but as many problems as he can solve without making any mistakes. His seat work in arithmetic should be something he knows how to do, the question being, "Can he do it accurately?" In this way the proper emphasis can be put upon the importance of accuracy and absolute correctness.

It is the custom and has been the custom to mark a paper 90 if only one problem in ten contains an error.

Usually the pupil has been taught to believe that 10 per cent of accuracy is good. If only one figure was wrong the paper was marked 95 per cent, and 95 is excellent. This goes on until the pupil leaves school. For six, eight or ten years he has been led to believe that 95 in figuring is excellent; 90 is good; 80 fair; and even 70 was passable.

He goes out into the world to learn that 90 per cent of accurate figuring, instead of being good, is absolute failure; that there is no place in the world for a 90 per cent accountant, that good paying markings in the school room and gained much credit, but in the store he is worthless.

He can solve problems and explain them, but his work is invariable if he makes errors. In the primary grades make the tightening work very light, and insist upon perfect accuracy.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

PRESIDENT SHOT.

Thought of for as often as of the self being President.

As soon as they were acquainted with the news of the assault upon the President, the cabinet officers and vice-president Roosevelt hastened to the President's bedside. Telegrams of sympathy from prominent citizens all over the country and from the crowned heads of Europe crowded the wires. The feelings of the American people regardless of partisan lines have been deeply touched and pin have nowhere more aptly expressed than in the words from the pen of William Jennings Bryan in his Commoner. He says: "Beneath the partisanship of the individual lies the patriotism of the citizen, sometimes dormant, it is true, but always active in hours of peril or misfortune. While the President's life hangs in the balance there are no party lines. The grief of personal friends and close political associates may be more poignant, but their sympathy is not more sincere than that extended by political opponents. Although some but his family and his physicians are admitted to his room, all his country men are at his bedside in thought and sentiment, and their prayers ascend for his recovery."

The assassin, Czolgosz, now confesses that he had no accomplices in mind and a woman who preceded him in passing the President, but refuses to reveal their identity. He says that he considered it his duty to kill the President and thinks bring about a change in government. He admits that he is a disciple of Emma Goldman, who is now under arrest in Chicago.

Czolgosz will be tried for assault and battery with intent to kill, the maximum penalty for which in New York is ten years imprisonment, and this may be reduced to six and a half years by good behavior.

The attempted assassination has aroused the civilized world against the spread of anarchy, and from the expressions of leading statesmen and newspapers it is not at all unlikely that steps will be taken at the coming session of Congress to make an attack upon the President's life, high treason, and to up the labors of that character of people from foreign shores. It is the one question upon which the nations might with harmony to agree in an international arrangement for its destruction.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The apple crop of Michigan promises to be a very short one. The varieties that produce best are Baldwin, Northern Spy, Fim Davis Greening, Wagner, Russet, Wealthy, Snow and Canada Red. Of the early sorts the most promising are Duchess of Oldenburg, Maiden Blush and Red Astrachan.

Respecting the reported scarcity of potatoes, the Chicago Packer says: "Despite all the talk of famine in the crop, well posted potato men assert that the late crop of potatoes will be sufficient to supply all demands at a fairly good price. This of course, provided there is ordinarily seasonable weather with the usual amount of rains. In such case nearly all the potato states produce a good crop."

Within a few months Gaffney will have three more manufacturing plants in operation than she has now. A veneering and basket factory, which will pay out $1,000 or more in wages every month, is due; a shingle mill employing thirty men, is another and the third is a factory of the Gaffney Handle Co. which will be results in a much larger scale than the old plant mentioned in the several months ago.

Members of the United states fish commission have lately been at Northport investigating a disease which is playing havoc with the fish in the hatchery. About eight or 1,000 of the breeding trout have died from some unknown cause. Other stations have been similarly affected and Mr. Marsh and Supt. Frank Clark, of the Commission, have come to the conclusion that the fish die of bacteria which get into the wooden pottle in storage.

The Grand Traverse Herald says that the Ellis recently bought 150 Angora goats for his place near Sugaw, and that A. J. Fields of Kansas has been in Traverse City arranging to ship a carload of the goats early this month. It is declared that Northern Michigan is an excellent place for raising these goats and that they will be profitable for farmers. The fleece of the Angora goat is long and silky and brings much higher prices than the fleece of the sheep. It finds a ready market at good prices and those who are engaged in the industry in the west are said to realize good profits.

In speaking of the rolling stock of the new East Jordan & Southern R. R., the Bellaire Independent says: "The East Jordan company now own three locomotives. One is a passenger engine of about 40 tons weight, which they procured of the Northern Pacific railroad. It is a very good engine equipped with air brakes and air sig nals, and is quite a comfort engine and plenty heavy enough for passenger traffic on this road. There are many locomotives in use on the Pere Marquette so heavy and no better. One of the other locomotives is a low type freight engine of 35 tons weight, and the other is a somewhat lighter engine purchased from off one of the elevated roads in Chicago, and probably more suitable for a switch engine than for regular trains. The new railroad company is somewhat at a loss what to do for passenger coaches. The car shops of the company are now so busy on that it is impossible to get the two coaches built which the new railroad will need at first, and it is now extremely probable that the Pere Marquette will lend them a coach or two until they can procure some of their own."

Blind Death Oil.

E. E. Munday, a lawyer of Henrietta, Tex., writes: "I found a grave digger. He says: 'My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters, and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life.' This remedy expels malaria, kills disease germs and purifies the blood; aids digestion, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints, gives perfect health. Only 50c at C. L. Hess & Co's drug store.

NEGROES BELIEVE IN LUCK.

Many Amusing Superstitions by Which the Race Is Governed.

Many of the negro superstitions in Kentucky are quite interesting. An old philosopher told me with great gravity: "If you want popsicle to grow, you must get mad. My old mamma, she had a spot, and I went right out and planted my popsicle as they come right up!" Still another saying is that popsicle, to prosper, must be planted by a red-headed or by a high-tempered person. The negro also says that one notice such a person, on Friday, try the best venture his fortune made by "luck yer finger" on that day. The three signs in which the negroes place implicit trust are the well-known ones of the silkworm's appearing above ground on the 22 of February, that a bee must not be carried through a house or a cinch will follow, and that potatoes must be planted in the dark of the moon as well as all vegetables that thrive in the ground, and that corn must be planted in the light of the moon. Pass a gooseberry or dogwood, "it will make your fingers." A negro will not have his picture taken if a tree that has struck by lightning, for fear that his image will have or be struck by lightning, if a mirror falls from a house it brings bad luck. If a crackle or a turtle carries your loss it will hold on till it thunders. When a child I was told by a black nurse that if a bat alighted on your head it would stay till it thunderd. This was so terrifying that even now I have an unnecessary fear of being clutched by a bat. To make soap, stir it with a sassafras stick in the dark of the moon.

Origin of Agricultural News.

A writer in one of the prominent magazines gives a very curious origin of the name of Agriculture, the Philippine agricultural. Its source is found in the Phoenix words, "Ah gri! I am sent!" the cry used by the Israel priests in their sacrificial ceremonies when going out to call the populace at the new York. In popular speech this phrase was pronounced Agriculture, and was carried over into the Spanish, where it makes its appearance as "Agricultura," a Christmas box or present given to the children of the holy days.

Sleepiness Shrub.

No housekeeper should fail to make shrub for a refreshing summer drink. Pour a quart of good vinegar into two strongly over four quarts of raspberries, and allow to stand twenty-four hours. Drain them and add twenty-five minutes, cool and add a small wineglass of brandy to each glass of shrub, keep in bottles. Many prefer to omit the brandy. A wineglass of shrub to a glass of ice and water makes a most refreshing drink.—Ella Morris Greenhouse.

British Captains' Wages.

Of the British Steamship lines the captains receive from £300 to £1,200 a year, without perquisites. If at the end of the year, a British commander's boat has met with no accident he receives a bonus. The British lines think this system of reward has a tendency to make commanders more careful.

ORCHID DRINKS WITH HOSE.

A Plant Which Takes Drinks of Water When Thirsty.

"That is probably the most singular plant ever discovered has been found by E. A. Carmichael of Philadelphia. Mr. Carmichael has for some years been making journeys to South and Central America, where he has secured all the rare orchids and other plants. The amazing orchid which has been found by him is a plant which takes a drink of water whenever it feels thirsty by lifting down a hose into the stream beneath it. The time when and the place which suits up for the plant. One hot afternoon Mr. Carmichael was down in a boat beside a lagoon on the Rio de la Plata. Near by was a forest of tall palm trees, which, had actually been choked to death by orchids and climbing cactus. In front of him and stretching out over the warm waters of the still lagoon was a branch of one of these dead trees. The branch was about a foot above the surface of the water, and floating upon its decaying wood were orchids and cacti the plants which had caused to death. Here and there were clusters of the common plants did agree, and twining all around it a network of green cacti. Among the orchids was one different from the rest, which immediately caught Mr. Carmichael's attention. The leaves were of the shape of a sharp lance head. They grew all around the root and radiated from it. From the center or axis of the plant hung a long, slender stem about one-eighth of an inch in thickness and one-quarter of an inch wide. The lower end of this stem was in the water, in the depth of about four inches. It was unlike any orchid Mr. Sweetrop had ever seen or heard of, and he went nearer to examine his discovery. He touched the plant, when, to his surprise, the stem which had been in the water gradually contracted and rolled itself up in a coil on the top of the plant. It was a little and as it rolled itself up it deposited the water, which had been taken in by the pars of the tube submerged, on the roots of the plant. The discoverer now watched the plant, and found that when it was thirsty it let down its hose into the water and dipped up the stream until its thirst was satisfied, when the tube remained coiled up like a hose until it was time for the orchid to take another drink. Generally the coiling process is slow, the plant drinking like a a gentleman and taking its time about taking its refreshment. But if the plant is touched the coiling process is accelerated.

BREAKS FORCE OF THE WAVES.

Mattresses are Strung Together in Two Rows Nearshore.

At many of the favorite seaside summer resorts in this country the business men have to take precaution against the ravages of the waves. The most effective method of protecting from washed each constitutes has been discovered. As a result the merchants and others any morning and find that the pleasant stream on which they strolled during the previous evening, has, during the night, been miles away in the ocean's wash. Now, however, an ingenious Hungarian has devised a method for the protection of such beaches, a method which, he is confident, will prove effective. It consists of a number of mattresses, which are formed of flexible material and which are so constructed that the tension of warps and bars. The mattresses, thus constructed are laid on the beach, the warps and bars being placed in such a manner that the long, heavy roller is kept well and unobtrusive. As a further safeguard, however, strong hawsers are placed here and there and by means of them the mattresses are anchored firmly to the beach. The mattresses are arranged lengthwise in the direction of the current, and the warps and bars are so arranged diagonally. The object is to break the force of the waves and prevent them from washing their full force on the beach. Experiments, it is said, are to be made in Hungary of this kind of a mattress, and if the result is satisfactory, it will be put to use on the Hungarian Fish Estuary, Tata-Tovaros. It seems assumed that assuming such a mattress can be made, it will be found to be of great value in other places than the Hungarian Fish Estuary. Tata-Tovaros.

ORIGIN OF FAMOUS HYMNS.

Implications Most Low Devout People in Their Composition.

The origin of many of the popular hymns that are sung with such sincerity by Christian people assembles in other ways to show that it is greatly dependent on the interest or both the words and the musical notes and that, in spite of the kinship of human souls, that divine inspiration has written familiar hymns in a few simple verses and tunes. Bishop Heber's hymn to song, "Rock of Ages," was written in 1776 by the Augustine Toplady, a very learned English divine who died at the early age of 38. The hymn in the opinion of some spiritual critics is revealed in his daily life. In the last verses he said: "I cannot find the "unknown time." I feel in my soul, that are good expressions. It will not be long before God takes me for my mortal state can live after the flesh which God has manifested to my soul." The mantle taken over his great sight. "Rock of Ages, Cleft for Me." Mrs. Vanalstyne, better known as Fanny Crosby, the blind poet wrote the hymn "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" for music in twenty minutes, but into it was put the essence of her whole life of faith. Miss Crosby, after a day's jollities, through the city streets, guided by some loving hand, stopped to her little room and poured forth her soul in song. Of the many hymns written by Mrs. Sarah Flower Adams, the only one that has survived is the hymn, "Nearer, My God to Thee," based on the Bible story of Jacob's vision at Bethel, the journey of which he relates, I believe most faithfully. One day Charles Wesley was sitting at an open window, looking over the beautiful fields when his eyes fell on the present for a book. The song birds sang and frightened, in seeking to escape from the storm, flew into the room and found refuge in Wesley's bosom. As the poet was then in great trouble and needed the society of a refuge, the consolation of help from a higher power than his own, the spiritual answer to his a refuge and this inspired, he wrote the famous hymn, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul."

Imitation Wood Carvings.

The Germans are imitating wood carvings in shades, brooks and other materials, so as to produce effects in imitation of other materials. In the last, it produces perfectly the tones and pores of the wood models. These are usually made of papier mache and the new plan is to cover their outer surface with a solution of 5 per cent collodion, which, when it dries, forms a film more or less separable of the wood, analogous, while it renders the mass of wood. The coating is then presented with in the usual way.

New Talk Science.

Dr. Hugo Meyer, assistant and Wilhelm Ingenohl, Carl Pfannkuhl and M. Victor Rolf claim to be able to read thoughts along the earth's surface to an unlimited distance. Tall poles are put up at not two observations, separated by distance varying with the separation of the stations and are located at each end of the line. The magnetic being placed on a object of about the poles. The barbed three-or four poles in the north, and the two connected with the telegraphing apparatus. A successful trial in Florida was made over a distance of about 600 yards.

Cooper in Science.

William Lonsdale Cooper received the medal of a non-saving which he obtained a state age as an experimental chemist in the Atlantic ocean during the Pacific coast. The new chemistry was five years. During his year of experiments Mr. Lonsdale secured more than 40 specimens of which he exposed to France and Germany. The Prince gave Lonsdale, also of the Mr. Armstrong, author Cooper Lonsdale received medals of Dr. Cooper prizes.

Nerve Slavery.

It is generally conceded that bearing burdens of work upon the nervous system is the most fruitful cause of breaking up of health.

Men who so many men and women, who are far, as age in years is concerned, in the prime of life, are broken down, worn out, and feel that great source of the body, the nervous system, is giving way.

Dull, heavy, painstaking men, Sleepless nights, Worrying dreams, Nervous fears, Trembling sensations, Irritable, Indisposition to exertion, Sluggish appetite, Digestive ills, Indecisive, nervous, irritable, Weak hearts, Loss of flesh and muscular power, Weak memory, Lack of self-confidence, Other despondency.

Nervous exhaustion, but easily changed to one of brightness by use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills. They build up the nerves and supply nerve force.

The above is the greater package of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills, per cent the best. Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Company, Buffalo, N. Y. Price 50 cents.

LOST GIRL IS FOUND.

MOTHER DISCOVERS CLUE IN A PHOTOGRAPHER'S EXHIBIT.

Portraits of Beauties Who Have Appeared with Theatrical Company Leads to Reunion in Her Mother—Double Tragedy in Toledo, Ohio.

A photographer placed a number of his pictures in the window of his studio in Toledo, Ohio. That Manuel was the result. Among the pictures was one of a young girl who had appeared with a theatrical company in Toledo. The photographer had taken the picture in his studio and exhibited it in the window as one of the beauties who had appeared in his city. The picture was seen by a lady who had been in poor health for many years and who had been confined to her home for the past six months. She was so much pleased and astonished at the picture of the young girl that she had her husband buy it and bring it home. The lady showed the picture to her husband and asked him if he knew the girl. He said he did not. The lady, a warmhearted, motherly woman, said she would give her life to find her child. The husband then telephoned the photographer in Toledo, Ohio, and ordered the picture sent to him. The photographer wired back that he had no more of the pictures, but that he would be glad to send the girl's address. The husband then wired back that he would come to Toledo and see the photographer. The photographer then wrote the girl's address on a card and sent it to the husband. The husband then wired his wife that he had found the address of the girl and was coming home. The woman was so overjoyed at the news that she died before her husband could reach home. The husband then wired the photographer that he was too late, that his wife had died before he could reach home. The photographer then wrote the girl's address on a card and sent it to the husband. The husband then wired the photographer that he would be there in a few days

The President Dead.

The noble heart of President McKinley ceased to beat at 2:15 Saturday morning.

Early Thursday evening symptoms of collapse appeared to the practical eye of the surgeons, and throughout Friday the decline was steady and marked.

"It is God's way. His will, not ours, be done," were the words of the President to his devoted wife, and "Good bye all, good bye," were the last words to those about him. Then, faintly chanting the hymn, "Nearer my God, to Thee," the gentle kindly spirit of William McKinley went to rest, in whom he had always trusted. Only from the moment the bullet lodged in his vitals he was broken in the finest, strongest sense, a fatality that could not be prevented. The other statesmen of the world were from earth with a Christian hymn and a Christian prayer upon his lips.

In the hall of fame the name of McKinley will be written with those of Washington and Lincoln. A great President and yet a gentle, tender character, one who would speak ill of none nor fondlingly treat upon a warm. A Christian gentleman, and one who loved his country and his countrymen.

Call our his soul!

And now when we have done with weeping, let us take up the work of God and mailed hand to the writhe and vipers which infest the country, spawn and sin. Who utters words of anarchy does murder. The pestilent doctrine has been the fresh promulgated. Let laws be enacted that shall make it a felony to hold meetings where anarchy is preached. If the vacancy which must be well or not, fill them.

Because of our boasted freedom of speech and press, America has become a refuge for assassins, a central school for the education in anarchy of such as he who robbed us of our President.

For the love of Heaven and for the loved country, let it be stamped, crush the hydra-headed monster into the earth or drive it into the sea!

A mad manifestation of grief the funeral of the President were taken to Washington Monday. Tuesday morning, under the dome of the capitol, the state obsequies occurred. Wednesday, again our dead president was taken to Canton, Ohio, where, today (Thursday) the martyr was laid to rest.

"God Reigns and the Government at Washington Still Lives."

Theodore Roosevelt is President of the United States.

The people are yet weeping over the loss of McKinley, and they can not truly turn to salute the new chief as they watch the beloved form moving to the tomb.

We cannot soon forget our sorrow, but we must soon turn from the dead McKinley to the living Roosevelt, who takes up the burdens of the fallen dotary.

There is no lack of confidence in the new President. A man of culture; a citizen of irreproachable character, an official of statesmanship, a soldier of courage, a Christian gentleman and a true patriot. Theodore Roosevelt comes to the presidential chair equipped as no succeeding, can possibly was ever equipped.

As civil service commissioner, as police commissioner, as assistant secretary of the Navy, as governor of the imperial state of New York, and as a soldier, Theodore Roosevelt has had a training in public affairs that few can boast at his age.

The American people can trust Roosevelt. He is equal to the occasion, and will do not the highest hopes of the party that placed him in the line of possible succession.

The day before he fell McKinley uttered words of great import—words that rang around the world—words that emerged a new national policy. McKinley gave his country a new place in the line of nations, and raised it to a new and higher commercial plane.

His last public address marked out a new path of commercial progress. Will Mr. Roosevelt follow it?

We believe he is wise enough and strong enough to follow in the way he was McKinley pointed out in that memorable address.

And now, may yellow journalism and unfair criticism and partisan prejudice retire to the rear for a time, and let all good citizens give the new chief magistrate words of cheer and encouragement.

That he will be an honor to his country and himself we firmly believe.

CATARRH OF KIDNEYS

Quickly Develops Into Bright's Disease.

(PE-RU-NA CURES CATARRH WHEREVER LOCATED.)

"After suffering for two years with kidney trouble I received relief and a cure from using your wonderful medicine, Peruna.

"For months I was unable to walk on account of a severe pain in my back, and when I was able to do anything I was in pain and distressed most of the time.

"Hearing so much of the good results people had obtained through the use of Peruna I determined to give it a trial and it was a lucky day for me when I did so. In one week I could easily take a few bottles of Peruna."—John Herberger, 707 Commercial street, Neenah, Wis.

"For years people suffering with catarrh of the kidneys have been prescribed for by the physicians of Washington, D. C., and Vice President of the United States Hobart, who is a native of Paterson, N. J., and who is well known in the Northern States, has been a sufferer from kidney troubles for years. The Vice President has been treated by the best physicians in Washington, D. C., and has taken the waters at Saratoga, N. Y., and Hot Springs, Ark., and has had the right medicine and treatment been prescribed for his case he would have been cured long ago. The Vice President is now taking Peruna, and it is doing him a great deal of good. The Vice President is a man of great influence, and his endorsement of Peruna is worth much to the manufacturers of Peruna and to those suffering from kidney troubles.

"Peruna is one of the best medicines I ever tried, and my family should be without your remarkable remedy. As a tonic and a catarrh cure it is the best I ever tried."—J. H. Blankhead.

Samuel S. Saunders, Justice Peace, Washington, D. C., writes: "I have used Peruna for catarrh of the kidneys and find it a good remedy."

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The Manistee Herald is authority for the statement that the acreage of potatoes in Antrim county this year is small but the yield will be enormous, while the corn crop will be the largest in 10 years.

The work on the "V" connecting the East Jordan & Southern road with the Pere Marquette was begun Friday morning and is being rushed. The new railroad experts one of its new passenger coaches next week.

Old tree ensilage of Dennis Gill's take much stock in the old theory that lightning never strikes twice in the same place. It are is one house in that city which has been struck six times in the last twenty-five years.

From the Resident we learn that Harbor Springs is to have a new and modern hotel next season. The Emmet house is to be moved back on Main street, and on the present site fronting the bay will be erected the new structure. Also that Hotelling Block hotel will be enlarged by the addition of fifty rooms, putting in elevators, etc.

Peter Clayton, one of Emmet county's some prominent citizens whose home was a short distance east of Harbor Springs, and who was at the time of his sudden death, highway commissioner of Little Traverse township, was instantly killed on the G. R. & I. track near Page, by a Pere Marquette train, last Monday morning at 8.45 o'clock.

It is said to be practically settled that the Michigan building at the Pan American exposition is to be moved from Buffalo to Mackinac Island at the close of the exposition. Col. Bernard Kaufman, of Gov. Bliss' staff, said that the expense of removing the building would be paid by the exposition commission. The building is to be used as headquarters for the Mackinac Island commission.

At Petoskey the $11,000 Mitchell street bridge across the Bear river hangs in a slight embankment of earth, which is all that sustains it from collapse. Last Friday night's storm washed away the eastern approaches and nearly undermined the property of E. P. Rose, situated on the high bank near the bridge. The street is closed, and prompt repairs will probably save the bridge.

That the farmers of northern Michigan have been exceptionally fortunate this season is proven by the following averages of the outlook and result of crops. Rye in the southern counties, 11; in the central, 11; in the northern counties, 10. Wheat, 10 in southern, 10.5 in central and 10 in northern. The average of beans in the southern counties is 9.5, in the central 9.7 and in the northern 9.2. Potatoes average 9.2 in the southern counties, 9.5 in the central and 9.6 in the northern. In the crop of clover seed, the north is ahead, the average being, for the southern counties, 9.2 for central counties 9.1. Northern Michigan is forging ahead in agricultural facilities and farmers are the brighter prospects before them now than ever before.

Grand Traverse Herald: Prosecuting Attorney A. F. Donnan of Leelanau county arrived in the city Friday from Charlevoix, on his way home to Empire. He closed the trial of the manslaughter case against the counties of Leelanau and Charlevoix before Judge Mayne, and the case has been taken under advisement by the court. The case, it will be remembered, are for the payment of some of the old Manitou county bonds that were supposed to be outlawed and were not assumed by Leelanau and Charlevoix counties when Manitou county was partitioned between these two counties. It is claimed that some speculators bought up these old bonds at a very low figure for the purposes of speculation, and they are now suing the counties for their payment. Kane, Fitch & Fitch are the attorneys for the relators, A. F. Donnan for the board of auditors and the two counties. Mr. Donnan succeeded in defeating most of the claims before the board, so that if the case is lost, there will be less than a third of the original claims for the two counties to pay. The original claims amounted to over $4,000 while the total now is between $1,200 and $1,300.

SCHOOL NOTES.

James Gallagher of Beaver Island has started in school this week.

Work on the new high school building is rapidly progressing, the second story having been started.

Ira Denton who has been working at Harbor springs the past summer has returned to school this week.

The senior and junior girls have contributed money for the purpose of buying pictures for the recitation room and hope to make it a bright attractive place.

Rev. Mr. Hughes of the Baptist church conducted the morning exercises on Monday. His talk was on the purity of the heart and was very interesting and inspiring to all.

The first meeting of the Lyceum for this year will be held Wednesday evening, Sept. 25. There will be a short program and also an election of officers for the ensuing year.

The girls of the high school, thinking that they needed exercise as well as the boys, have formed a basket-ball team soon expect to begin practice. With both basket-ball and foot-ball teams, Charlevoix ought to have some good games this fall.

On last Wednesday the students of the high school who wished to attend the county fair were given a vacation, also on Thursday the schools were closed because of the burial of the President.

The Extemporaneous Class has been organized this year, meetings are held every other Wednesday evening. About twenty belong to the class. A debate will be held at the next meeting on the question, "Is foot-ball more scientific than base ball?"

Herbert Heath who has been sailing the yacht Valiant the past summer has returned to school and is now enrolled among the ranks of the diligent students. He is a valuable addition to the foot-ball team and all are glad to see him back again.

Mr. Tice has just received some new physical apparatus, comprising of 1 Air thermometer, 1 counter tube, 1 Grading glass, 1 Expansion rod, 1 Gyrometer, 1 Electrical Plate, 1 piece Iceland Spar, 1 Bottle Imp, 1 Leyden jar.

On Monday morning, Sept. 23, Mr. Tice mentioned the fact that Miss Bishop the instructor in music of the Charlevoix schools would conduct a class of the high school students, if a chorus could be organized. Those wishing to join the chorus are to put their names on the

The shelf in the front of the high school was very appropriately decorated last week in memory of our martyred President. Mr. McKinley's picture was draped in black, while underneath were stream wreaths and flowers. The effect was touching and impressive and was typical of the feelings of particular devotion.

The Charlevoix foot-ball team has been practicing for a week. The boys have all turned out regularly and the prospects for a record breaking team are very bright. They play the true game next Saturday with East Jordan, the game is to be played at Greenman Park. Admission three cents, everybody come out and help us win.

The school library has been improved by a copy of Crank's Modern Attic, containing complete series of maps of modern geography, exhibiting the world and its famous political divisions at one glance at the present date. The atlas also gives a carefully prepared description of every state and of every country, giving the latest population of all the cities and towns of the world, with a carefully prepared index system.

CALLA WILBUR.

SCHOOL COMM'R COLUMN.

Supt. Fall received the following suggestion at the beginning of his term of his office written by a western lawyer and published in the Modern Law:

"Now that you have entered a different field of labor for a time I want to make a suggestion which springs from my own experience. That is, that you inaugurate a more thorough study of the English language, not only its history, its authors and speakers, and the books, but the language itself. Start a course in the early grades in teaching the young how to use this wonderful instrument.

Make a hard course similar to those in foreign languages to be pursued through a term of years; let it include composition, the study of the form of the language, a critical study of the meaning of words, synonymes, etc., and speaking extempore.

I spoke but yesterday at Oswego and five at Lodi, but I could give half I am worth if as much time had been spent in the study of our mother tongue, and I take of my hat to the street fakir who can hold an audience of a hundred people for two hours and sell them a lot of stuff. I count that man a genius who can come to my office and sell me a book I do not want. The very fact that the gilt tongued fellow gets along at school with half the study of his fellows, is a conclusive argument that he has a faculty to be desired since the works, even the dignified professor."

A good workman does not find fault continually, with the tools he must work with. We do not think it is proper for a teacher to antagonize the rules adopted by a school board, or the text books selected for the schools, these functions are given to the school boards by the statutes and should not be interfered with by the teacher.

LOST.—On Mair or Bridge street a pair of gold mounted eye glasses. If found, leave at Dixon hotel and receive reward. Mrs. F. H. WHITE.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful misery took flight for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Hartford, Ala., when the doctors said she would die from Pneumonia before morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of Consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at F. G. Hines & Co's drug store.

THE FUTURE OF THE SOUTH.

Depends Upon the Development of Her Broad Farm Lands.

The future of the south is a question which has prominent capitalists and thinkers since the reconstruction period. There is no doubting the fact that the material growth of the south is not keeping up with the north's rapid development. The south is essentially agricultural and in the judicious cultivation of her soil lies all her hopes. One of the greatest hindrances in this line is the continual exodus of the energetic young white man to the north or west. They are inclined to struggle hard for an education and when they have school in variably choose to enter the more enterprising fields of inter-land drag out a slow, weary life in their own southland. Farming has never been conducted in the south on scientific principles. Hitherto the farm lands have been worked on the same plan as mines—everything dug out and carried off and nothing put back. Under such treatment the farms in many of the southern states have been exhausted the soil has grown thinner and little, and it is found necessary to put more acres under cultivation in order to maintain the usual yield. This plan is carried to such extremes that more acres are put under the plow than can be worked and soon reach a condition where they have to be abandoned. And then new fields are cleared at a heavy expense. Thus the process goes on and on without enriching the farmer but wearing out and impoverishing his land. It is safe to assume that not more than 10 per cent of the land in the south is cleared and less than 5 per cent is under cultivation. The prairies of the west offer an equally inviting field to the young southerner, and the quickest he realizes it the better. Should the southern farmer begin to colonize in the south, and, clearing wood timber lands create a fine farming community, then the southern young man will see the folly of leaving home to search out a creative employment farming will become fashionable and be a profit the south will become prosperous people less and as powerful as the northern Pennsylvania, Gill.

A Fish 3 Inches Tall.

Hassan Ali, an Egyptian twenty-five years old, who is 3 feet 2 inches tall with his recent shoes off, got into trouble with Customs House inspectors in Jersey City recently. Hassan he said tempted to bring 2,000 cigarettes into this country in the false bottom of his trunk. The giant arrived on the steamship Nomi America of the La Veloce line from Naples, on his way to the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo, where he says he expects to make a fortune by placing himself on exhibition. When the inspector tackled his baggage Hassan gazed down upon them and smiled good naturedly until they penetrated to the cigarettes. Then he got nervous. He stoutly denied that he had any intent of smuggling. He said that he was very fond of the brand and brought the cigarettes with him for personal use. The cigarettes were separated and later the giant paid the duty on them and left Jersey City. Hassan said his father, who was killed in the Soudanese war, was 3 feet 7 inches tall. He has a sister, who is only 7 feet in height.—New York Sun.

Great Production of Coal.

It is not at all surprising to learn from the statistical gentlemen at Washington that the United States leads the world in the production and consumption of coal, now that the output for the last year of the nineteenth century exceeded that for any previous year. The statistics themselves are very impressive, however. The quantity of coal mined reached the enormous total of 261,543,833 tons, valued at $247,959,000. The increase over the previous year's venue was 16 per cent. Familiar as Pennsylvanians are with the magnitude of the coal industry in this commonwealth, it is still worth while noting that this state produced more than half of all the coal mined in the United States. The rapid development of the Pocahontas region of West Virginia is seen in the fact that that neighbor reached a production of 20,950,000 tons for the first time, and thus was the largest relative increase.

Premature Widows.

The new woman in Denmark calls herself premature widow, or woman of progress, and if we are to believe a writer in the Boston Transcript, who seems to know about her, she instituted for state to the little only by sacrificing her husband's instincts. She is, in other words, rather too advanced to be of any real benefit to society. We are informed that she apparently despises the homely arts of her grandmother and by way of compensating her originality she has taken with tobacco and a clear pipe. She is price, says the writer, to regard the caring of a family as a rather tiresome and unpleasant task. Instead of her husband's being looked upon as her sun, and she is becoming, more jealous of the manly freedom and independence of man in political and personal.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Question of Pay.

A traveler in England stopped at dinner at a roadside inn and took tiresome. The landlord was a social person, and after presenting his guest with a bill of fare, he said to him, "Well, by the way, I'm bitter said after a while, "what is your name?" "My name," replied the landlord, "is Partridge." "Ah," returned the traveler, with a humorous twinkle in his eyes, "by the length of your bill I should have thought it was Woodcock." This would appear to be a recent book by a distinguished English diplomat is credited with having a famous Bismarck.

Our Own Kangaroo.

A miniature kangaroo has been discovered in the far west. It plays around like a kangaroo, making great jumps on its hind legs which are long and powerful. It also has a marsupial pouch, and, which adds to the resemblance to the kangaroo, after which it is named.

Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy.

FIND WATER IN THE DESERT.

Flowing Then in Stream in Mojave Desert by Prospectors.

The Mojave Desert, located in the southern portion of the state, long been regarded as synonymous with hot volcanoes for any number of years. San Francisco Examiner. Time it was known that the arid land could be rendered fertile by means of irrigation, but there was no water there and some could be obtained without a heavy expenditure. The only task imposed that prospect relief was the construction of numerous reservoirs in the mountains to retain the storm water for a long distance during the summer. This meant a heavy initial outlay and aroused the state government nor the federal government has yet experimented with irrigation to irrigate. Lots on the desert when not positively dangerous is crowded with hardships, but hardships have no deterrent effect upon the searchers for gold, and lately the waste places of the desert have been invaded by an army of prospectors for oil. The theory upon which they proceeded was that the Kern river oil belt extends through the Mojave desert. Whether or not there is any virtue in this theory, the facts so far developed have not justified it. Oil has been found but water in considerable quantities has been struck and at the present time this is more valuable than oil would have been. Artesian water if a sufficient quantity can be found is much better than the refined and diluted alum water would have been since there is less expense for hauling and less loss from evaporation. Three wells have been developed already. The third struck the water at a depth of 195 feet. Water is much more shallow than would be required for an oil well. All of them are said to be "gushers" and the latest flowed 325 miners inches. If this water has should prove to be permanent and attract a rush to this region and something very like a land boom may be looked for.

Pioneer Developed in Darkness.

Mr. Washington has found as a result of some recent experiments that flowers developed under the influence of darkness open later than is usual when they have sunlight, and that the color is in general less intense. This, however, varies considerably in different species. In some the change is little, while in others they lose nearly all their color. In darkness they are generally smaller, but the petals are frequently more developed. He also found that the size and weight of the flowers, including the petals which support them, are usually less in darkness than in sunlight, except in some fair varieties.

American Extravagance Abroad.

The English have been severely criticising American incomes for the reason they consume more food and for other reasons cost more to run than machines of English manufacture. Yet the growth of our export trade in iron, machines continues to grow. In year 1895 were exported valued at $5,000,000, in 1900 were exported valued at $12,000,000. Equally satisfactory record has been made in the manufacture of machines and yet the number of them. The value is still slightly in advance of the value of American manufacture exports. Yet the American trade is fast gaining on the English.—World's Work.

Women Physicians in America.

It is a fact not generally known that there are more women physicians in the United States than in any other country. In the hospitals in New England employing women almost exclusively, either their power or their sex, and somewhat as the reason therefor that women can be dispensed on to be the mistress of the head of the company. No job hands in whatever line are to be obtained at the union of carelessness, cooking, or housekeeping. Man was educating clerical, empty women in different vocations.

Large Gifts to Colleges.

Institutions in the form of educational institutions of the East have been so liberally endowed by private gifts of late that Harvard has received $1,000,000, Cornell $1,000,000, Dartmouth, Yale, Williams, Columbia, Brown, Bowdoin, Wesleyan, Rutgers, Princeton, Vassar, Williams, $50,000, Detroit, $100,000. This list is far from exhaustive, including the large colleges, while institutions of greater or smaller size have been given in donations of less removed in many parts of the country.

Our Skill in India.

The Sir American Innovations now in use on the Bengal Circuit railway in India are giving fair satisfaction. They were at first feared by natives a great deal more than British engines, but after repeated trials and experiments have been made the locomotives were supposed to the American railway and with the full truth and Rohilkhand line, as well as for the Burma railway.

A Good Disinfectant.

When the atmosphere is so thick that become close and impure one may easily relieve it of sweet and healthful by placing small saucer of spirits of turpentine on a table in a room. In a wide-mouthed fancy jar or bottle and leaving it uncovered. This makes a pleasant deodorizer and disinfectant filling the room with a delicate perfume which will be soothing to the nerves and senses.

Honest Finds.

A Bismarck party of friends has been informed by Pierre Mashon, member of parliament of Orange, Con. County Wilhelm Tressel. The weapons were seen in the Waterson year by Daniel O'Connell on the day he fought with D'Hearne, in which the latter was mortally wounded. O'Connell had characterized the Dublin corporation as "beggarly." D'Hearne, a member of the City Guild of Merchants posed as champion of the civic body and was the challenger. O'Connell took the fatality greatly to heart and vowed he would never again engage in a duel.

TRAIN IN DIRE PERIL.

OVERTAKEN BY WATERSPOUT WHILE CROSSING TRESTLE.

Fortunately, No Lives Are Lost. Tidal Wave and Lightning Portent—Incident in Department Women, by Experienced Counsel of Female Sojourner.

Hundreds of feet of railroad bridge, a warehouse, two freight cars, three other damaged box cars, and a portion of a train load of lumber is the total of casualties occasioned by a waterspout which burst over Twenty Mile Creek, near Fort Collins, Colorado, on the night of August 12. Fortunately, the accident occurred in the mountains, which, because of the rarity of human habitations, left the storm free to burst forth its fury unseen by any human being. The train was crossing the bridge at the time, and the fact that it was not swept from the rails is a matter of congratulation. The train was bound from Denver to Fort Collins, and was made up of a locomotive, a baggage car, a coach, a sleeper, and a Pullman car. The train was moving very slowly when the storm burst, and the motorman, realizing the danger, ran the train across the bridge and stopped it on the other side. The storm was of great violence, and the rain fell in torrents. The waterspout, which was seen by the train men, burst on the mountain side a little above the bridge, and the torrent of water, mingled with boulders, tore down the bridge, and, rushing on, left the train standing on the rails. The train men, who had seen the waterspout, ran back to the train, and, with the aid of lanterns, made their way through the storm to the nearest habitation, which was that of a ranchman, who lives with his family in a lonely canyon. The ranchman and his family were astonished at the appearance of the train men, who had walked through the storm for a mile and a half, and had to wade through a stream which was swollen to a depth of from two to three feet. The ranchman and his family had not seen the waterspout, but had heard the roar of the storm, and had felt the force of the wind. The train men were taken to Fort Collins, and reported the matter to the railroad company. The damage to the bridge was not great, and the train was soon released from its perilous position.

WOMEN'S COMMON SENSE.

Experienced Counsel of a Female Sojourner in Department Stores.

Hundreds of girls and young women, employed in department stores, are now on their vacations. Many of them will return with a little money saved from their salaries, and will be anxious to invest it to the best advantage. Many of them will be tempted to invest it in some fancy scheme which promises to double the money in a few weeks. Experienced counsel to the sex would be to keep the money in a savings bank. Women, as a class, suffer more than men from the effects of financial losses, because they are less able to recover from them. Women are not, as a class, as well able to earn money as men are, and, when they have lost their savings, they have a harder time than men in getting back the money they have lost. Women are not, as a class, as well able to withstand the effects of a financial loss upon their health as are men. Women are not, as a class, as well able to withstand the effects of a financial loss upon their happiness as are men. Women are not, as a class, as well able to withstand the effects of a financial loss upon their ambitions

CURRENT TOPICS.

President Roosevelt still continues to demonstrate his ability to preside over the affairs of the nation, and from north and south, east and west, come expressions of manifestations of his new chief executive. Leading statesmen, especially, predict for him a successful administration, and all are loyally supporting him by discouraging words. It is evident that Roosevelt will be president of the republic in the fullest sense of the term.

The floors are yet making the British plenty of trouble in south Africa, and King Edward's people are challing. The Dutch in Natal are seriously threatening revolt, and the situation is extremely vexatious for the English.

We are very glad to learn that the senate progress is expected Senator Wellington of Maryland, for his luminous comment on the death of the President. The consensus of opinion is that a man who will let his president lie unburied for such a time, is not big enough to sit in the U. S. senate. We sincerely hope he will be made an example of.

On the first day of the session of the next Congress a $100 pension will be voted Mrs. McKinley. Following this will be the introduction of a bill making an attack on the person of the president punishable with death. Bills will soon be introduced and promptly passed, dealing with anarchy, making it a felony to preach or print seditious attacks on the government.

A movement having its initiation in Lead in Canton, has been started, to erect a magnificent monument over the grave of McKinley, and another national movement has for its ideal the erection of a great memorial arch at Washington, to cost a million of dollars. No president since Washington has rendered his country greater service than Wm. McKinley. Indeed, it may be said that the nation had a new birth under his martyrly administration. The love and gratitude of the American people will manifest itself in lasting marble. Wm. McKinley is one of the immortals.

The Schley court of inquiry is in progress in Washington, and thus far the deal is not favorable to Schley. Prominent naval witnesses seem to prove the error in the famous "loop," and that Schley's blockade of Santiago was not what good tactician would have made it. Of course we are hearing but one side, Schley has his say yet.

The last act in the great tragedy will soon occur. The assassin of McKinley was convicted of murder on the first degree on Tuesday, and yesterday he was sentenced to be electrocuted.

The American people, indeed the world, will rejoice to the fact that Mrs. McKinley is bravely standing up under her terrible bereavement. The gentle lady has risen near to the hearts of the people. She was a "martyr lover," and all the world loves a lover. As the widow of the great McKinley she will have a place in the affections of the American people so long as she lives, and may that be yet many years.

PROFESSIONAL TESTERS.

Every Community Needs Safeguard Against Useless Brands.

What we need in every community is a competent assayer, friends of all kinds is a museum of expert profession, at tasters, or experimenters. It may be under the direction of some election by every organized whose wind is as good as your head. It should be their duty to give a fair trial to every new article offered for the amelioration of misery or fundamental conditions, and honestly state their conclusions to the public. For instance, there is a cheap advertising broadcast that for $5 Appalachian worth, he (name that will take at least one-half your coal bill) will make as it ready to guarantee it. Him your cash to buy, and many thousand half-dollars are expanded in an utterly worthless contraption that never should have been allowed to pass through the patent office. One expert, too, could have saved all that money, for the thrifty would have learned the thing by it. Some one called on attempting to do the same the other day and finding it rigged for him. It was an experiment to move, but the loss. Tonight Tom would give it off, so I bought two prize. Ever since I have been kept busy part of the day with school and crowing. Prying the Wonderful invention off the fence. It sticks closer than all the prizes, and when you get it you find the fence covered with something that looks like sticky hair which must be scraped away at a loss of a few points of fragility. The Bureau of Professional Experimenters would have saved my dollar, and put a check into my vocabulary.—New York Press.

Received Valuable.

Few publishers take as much interest in the welfare of their clients as does Mrs. Mary Lee of the Beehive, White Waltham, near Maidenhead, England, who is the oldest licensed victualler in Berks, and who recently celebrated her jubilee as a dispenser of ale. As long as her strength and health permitted, it was her habit every Monday evening to carry her numerous family jubs into the taproom, place it reverently on the table, the visitors making room for it by pushing their beer-jugs to one side, and to read a chapter in the assembled company, who always uncovered while the sacred book was in the apartment. The proceeds of the Beehive greatly enriched the old lady for her efforts to give them moral instruction, and although her occasional comments might not commend themselves to the following, it was to called the Bible certificate, they were homely and to the point. Mrs. Lee also displays in the taproom a notice intimating that any one using impolite language or displaying a risky tendency would be promptly expelled. Altogether, the venerable lady seems to be a model licensed victualler.

Gen Tyler's Time Piece.

Fifty Pioneer Lodge of Philadelphia says: "I know of no scientific reason for it, but it is an ineffable result that where a pine tree is cut down an oak springs up in its place. These sons never attain any great size, remaining in a dwarfed condition, and growing only as remarkable to the farmer in making a clearing. Another strange fact is the rapidity of the scrub's growth. The ordinary forest, monarch rises slowly and with clear firmly tall."

It is too years or more since golf links were established at Cairo and there most of the British officials, including Lord Cromer, Sir Edgar Vincent, the late Sir Gerald Porter and others were to be found at one time or another. Until recently there were no links in Vienna, but the emperor has now granted a tract of land near the Prater and a club is being organized by the members of the British embassy.

BISMARCK'S GREAT DUEL.

The Young Fellow Was Disappointed Because It Was Bloodless.

That Bismarck even in his youth deserved the characterizing adjective which led subsequently to the distinguishing term, "the Iron Chancellor," is manifested by a passage from "The Love Letters of Bismarck." In which he "cooks of his famous duel with Vincke in 1852. Bismarck was the offending party, and the undivulgeness he confesses to does not enhance admiration for his character. He writes: Vincke wished to defer the matter for forty-eight hours, which I granted. On the 26th, at eight o'clock in the morning, we rode to Tegel, to a charming spot in the woods, by the meadow. It was beautiful weather, and the birds sang as gaily in the meadow that, as we entered the wood, all sad thoughts left me, only the thought of Johanna I had to drive from me by force, so as not to be affected by it. It was agreed before the duel began that the conditions should be changed, and that there should be but one shot apiece, instead of four. Then it was proposed that the whole thing should be declared off if I would say I was sorry for my remark. As I could not truthfully do this, we took our pistols, bled, and both missed. Did forgive me grave sin that I did not at once recognize his bravery. But I cannot deny it, when I looked through the sights and saw my adversary standing erect, a feeling of disappointment possessed me from participating in the general rejoicing. The mortification of the challenge surprised me, and I would have gladly continued the conflict. But as I was not the insulted party I could say nothing. It was all over and an almost bauda—Youth's Companion.

He Wouldn't Subscribe.

A subscription paper for the purpose of establishing a restroom for farmers was passed to a merchant at Pratt the other day, says the Wichita Eagle. "When you get a cash out of me, for that sort of thing," said the merchant, "let me know will your restroom. Restroom for the farmer, and has with, eh? And I with my little halfpenny on sugar and my quarter-cent on tomato, goods and my nothing on vegetables that put on my knees an carpenter to shoes on the office back for the comfort of the man who is thrashing the sweat of what has the load of his crack, and a billion for of pies, and time money in a lump of which I am borrowing money. Well, I rather guess that I'll join up the hoof for rest."

Live Independent, Live Long.

Without making any claims for it against exercise, an investigator who has taken the pains to examine into the age at which eminent men died, found that general philosophers, astronomers, statesmen and clergymen of the higher or more contemplative class philanthropists, literary men, or independent means and others whose lives were not likely to be marked by an excessive degree of muscular activity, have generally had the longest lives.

Tomahawed the Lawyer.

It has been against the law in Minnesota to kill a gambler if he has been cheating and will not retain his money to his victim. At least a case in Granite Falls was recently decided to be just. Jerry Whitter killed his pal and chum, a gambler with whom he was playing cards, because the gambler had refused and refused to pay the money on demand. A jury declared upon oath that Jr. Whitter was not guilty of murder.—Chicago Journal.

A Friend of Crippled Children.

The crippled children of Boston have found a friend in A. C. Harrison who has loaned Benedict's cannot from Harvard university for 500 years, and will build a hospital on its old tracks for a free summer home for the helpless children of that city. The island is near Hull. It was given to Harvard college by Samuel Ward who was a friend of John Harvard. The terms of Ward's will were such that the land could not be sold outright.

Jap Early Appreciated the Drama.

National drama began its career in England and Japan at about the same time. In 1576 there a priestess who ran away from the temple that made her peace with the god Omoyama by devoting part of the revenue to repairing his shrine, gave her first theatrical performance at Kioto. In 1576 the "Earl of Leicester's servants" opened the first public theater in Blackfriars—London M. A. P.

To Dislodge Bees in Vienna.

In these days of much fast eating, some remedial suggestion for the possible emergency of a bone in the throat is worth remembering. This is that a raw egg swallowed at once, when a fish bone is caught in the throat beyond the reach of the finger, will dislodge and carry it down.

The Joy of Nature.

Have you ever seen the rim rise? Have you ever heard the free birds singing in the open forest? Have you ever felt any real attachment for the forest world, for the world of nature? If you have not, then something is you is out of tune, you are not in right relationship with the world, of which the world of trees and birds and flowers is the greater half. Much of the sickness and discomfort of our society is due to the unnatural relationship we establish with the free world. We creep into the cities and shut out the light by erecting high buildings, enclosed patches of dirtiest. We forget that beyond we a sphere of life from which we can earn much good which the best things of life are based.—The American Mercury.

Elephants in Indian Army.

Elephants in the Indian army are fed twice a day. When practicing archery they are drawn up before pieces of food. Each animal's breakfast includes ten pounds of raw rice done up in five two-pound packages. The rice is wrapped in leaves and then tied with grass. At the command "Attention!" each elephant raises its trunk and a package is thrown into its capacious mouth. By this method of feeding not a single grain of rice is wasted.

A correspondent of the London Times, discussing suggests that some enterprising individual could get abundant wealth by starting an angleworm farm. In the height of the season an Rangoon these worms sell at $1 a basket, and the supply is never equal to the demand.

Remains of a Mammoth Found.

Report comes from Siberia of the recent discovery of a mammoth which will be taken to St Petersburg. The mammoth is unique of its kind. Its hair, skin and flesh are entirely preserved and there are remains of undigested food in its stomach.

Stanley Daniel's Modest Life.

Senator Daniel of Virginia, lives in very modest style in Washington. He can not afford to spend much money, because everything he gets goes toward the payment of his father's debts. Daniel has owed thirty years paying off these debts, and it will probably be a lifework. His father was Judge William Daniel of Lynchburg. He was considered well-to-do, but when he died it was found that his fortune had been swept away to the panic of 1873, and that his liabilities were more than $100,000 in excess of the assets. Although Senator Daniel could have repudiated these debts, he chose to assume them. That was nearly thirty years ago, and all that time Senator Daniel has been paying off the debts with interest.—New York Times.

Dead Death off.

E. B. Mowbray, a lawyer of Henrietta, Tex., once foiled a grave-digger. He says: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters, and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life." This remedy expels malaria, kills disease germs and purifies the blood, aids digestion, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints. Grand 50c. Best on earth. Only 50c at F. G. Bliss & Co's. drug store.

—The annual plowing match, and grange sale will occur at the Mills farm in Marion, Oct. 12th. The event promises to be a pronounced success. The dinner will be at Robert Tillotson's as usual. The usual large list of prizes are offered by Charlevoix business men.

—Group H. Wood, of this village, dropped dead of heart disease, on the sidewalk fronting Tillotson's livery barn at 10 o'clock a. m. Saturday. Mr. Wood had not complained of feeling ill, and had been a morning before been talking apparently as well as ever. Much more extended notice will be found in another column.

—The following dispatch, dated Grand Rapids, appeared in Monday Detroit Free Press, and will be read with interest by Charlevoix people, Hon. Hog Gillespie being very well known here: Bishop George A. Gillespie returned from Mendon today where he had services Sunday in Episcopal church. He told the report that he was attacked by heart trouble while administering the sacrament was wrong. He said his trouble was acute indigestion. The venerable bishop looked unsupported from the train to his carriage and said there is nothing in his present condition that need alarm his friends.

—Mrs Henry Sherman is in Toledo visit her sister.

—Wm. Taylor, of London, Ont., is the guest of his sister, Mrs. Lillie Hatch, of Marion. Mr. Taylor and his sister last met 52 years ago.

—The Louisiana county fair at Maple City this fall was not a success, and the announcement is made that it will be a natural death, or go elsewhere for its health.

—Speak Dunlap is out of the woods, so to speak. Trains are running on the East Jordan & Southern to Intermediate, and to Frederic on the Ward road. We congratulate our East Jordan friends.

—The new arrangement of terms of circuit court for Charlevoix county is as follows: First Monday in March; fifth Monday in May; third Monday in September and second Monday in January.

—Mr. Stallman of the Petoskey Log Co., has just closed the contract for blending and relaying the thousands of yards of fine carpets in the Inn and the Bayview at Charlevoix.

—Married Sept. 25th, at the home of W. J. Pearson, by Rev. Hughes, Miss Nellie McFarlane and M. B. Byram of Petoskey. Miss McFarlane, Mrs. Pearson's aunt, has lived in Charlevoix for some time, where she makes many friends who join in hearty congratulations. The wedding was a quite one, only the immediate relatives of the bride being present.

—We have no desire to unjustly criticise the council, but we wanton to ask why the space between the water works and Main street has been left unsightly and cumbered with rubbish of all kinds, regardless of flies or mosquitoes is not a desirable neighbor. With the building nuisance on one side, and the pack on the other to say nothing of closely contiguous residences, we cannot understand the council's action. We protest.

—At midnight Friday the boiler works of Henry Barth, on the south side of the harbor were destroyed by fire. The building was about when discovered, and the fire department could do but little else than save adjoining buildings. Mr. Barth had about $1,000 in machinery and tools, and only about $1,000 of the outfit will stand the fire. There was no insurance. Mr. Barth, with his usual energy, will rebuild the plant at once and expects to be at work again the fall.

—Grand Traverse Herald: Charlevoix High school foot ball team wants to meet the high school team of this city for a game there in the near future, with a view to a game Thanksgiving Day. Without any question the Charlevoix boys will be accommodated, but their team's contest, Charlevoix has a team that year that was not scored against, and they want to make the same record this year, but after they have met Eddie Boyer and Pat Thanker they and the others may think differently.

—An exchange says that Ben Barker, of the Bird City Clarion, tells a story. It is to the effect that a subscriber who was three years in arrears had shipped that newspaper without paying up, and that a few evenings ago the editor, hearing the voice of the delinquent, stepped into a church where the latter was joining heartily on the soul-stirring hymn "Jesus Paid it all." "He might have been mistaken" says the Clarion, "but his earnestness impressed us. The next day we sent him a receipt in full, begging his pardon for not knowing he had made no mistake."

There were a few moments of silence. Then the colonel, with a sigh of relief, dropped his pipe and rose to his feet.

"Well, Mr. Lawton, I think we have had enough of this for one night. We have a long day before us to-morrow, and I want to be up early. Good night, gentlemen."

"Good night, Colonel," said Mr. Lawton, as he rose and extended his hand. "I am very much obliged to you for your hospitality. I shall be glad to see you at my quarters whenever you can spare the time."

"Thank you, I will," said the colonel, as he shook the proffered hand.

"Good night, Mrs. Lawton," said the colonel, turning to the lady and bowing low as he spoke.

"Good night, Colonel," she replied, with a smile and a bow.

"Good night, Mr. Hale," said the colonel, as he shook the young man's hand.

"Good night, sir," said Hale, as he returned the pressure of the colonel's hand.

"Good night, Miss Lawton," said the colonel, as he turned to the young lady and bowed low as he spoke.

"Good night, Colonel," she said, with a smile and a bow.

"Good night, Mr. Rochefort," said the colonel, as he shook the young man's hand.

"Good night, sir," said Rochefort, as he returned the pressure of the colonel's hand.

"Good night, Miss Rochefort," said the colonel, as he turned to the young lady and bowed low as he spoke.

"Good night, Colonel," she said, with a smile and a bow.

DEATH OF A PIONEER.

The death of Orvis D. Wood, removes from our midst a man who has long been closely associated with the growth and development of the Charlevoix region. The suddenness of the call, and the fact that it was entirely unexpected, was a shock to the entire community, and created an impression that has seldom been equalled by the death of any prominent citizen.

Orvis Dearborn Wood was born in Milton, Vermont April 8th, 1829. His father and mother were of sturdy New England stock, having long resided in Connecticut, and descended from English parentage. The subject of this sketch was the third of a family of seven children, five sons and two daughters. Of these, three brothers Henry L., Amos and Orvis Wood, and two sisters, Mrs. Ellen Ellsworth and Mrs H. E. Robinson survive.

As a boy, he was usually slight of build, and his parents gave him an education better than the common, preparing him for professional or business pursuits. In the fifties, he went to Winnebago Co. Wisconsin, where he was employed for sometime in a store, afterward going into the mill business with his brother Amos. In 1860 he came to Michigan, settling at Antrim, removing two years later to Norwood, where he built a mill, and with other parties engaged in lumbering, and acquired extensive landed interests, much of which he held at the time of his death. In 1880 he came to Charlevoix where he has since resided. He has held the office of supervisor and other positions of trust in our community. He was for a long time connected with the Charlevoix Savings Bank, and was at one time President of that institution.

Mr. Wood was twice married, his first wife Philomela I. Rohr, and an infant son by the same marriage, died in 1861.

In 1862 he married Mary H. Bennett, daughter of the late Henry Bennett, of this place. The children by this marriage are Ella, Henry H. and Mary (Mrs. Fred Clark, of Grand Rapids,) all of whom with their mother, survive. To these the bereavement is specially sad, as none were with him when he passed away. Mrs Clark had returned only the day before, from a visit here, to her home in Grand Rapids and Henry was at his home in Norwood. Stricken as he was upon the street, life was gone ere before the hasty message could reach his wife.

Mr. Wood was a man of quiet, even, reticent bearing, so that he was little known socially, but his attachment to his home and the members of his family was strong and deep, so that the truest estimate of his worth will be made by those who knew him best in his home life.

The sentiment of sympathy for the afflicted ones is universal in the community where they have been so long known and highly esteemed. All the children and a brother, Alson, were able to be at the funeral, which was held on Tuesday from the house. Rev. D. Hyslop officiating. The remains rest in the family lot in Charlevoix cemetery.

UNION MEETING.

A Union Temperance Meeting will be held on Sunday, Oct. 6, at 7 p. m. at the Baptist church. Brief addresses will be delivered as follows:

"Shall the Army Canteen be retained?"—Rev. A. P. Nagler.

"The Relation of the Liquor Traffic to Anarchy"—Rev. D. B. Hughes.

"The Responsibility of the Church"—Rev. J. Hyslop.

Good music will be provided. All are cordially invited.

CURRENT TOPICS.

The first of the series of international yacht races Saturday, resulted in the winning of the race by the Colonial, defeating the Columbia, by five minutes and 10 seconds.

The President keeps on in the even tenor of his way, still winning golden opinions from his countrymen.

At the late meeting of the grand order of the Eastern Star at Detroit the charter committee's report showed a remarkable increase in the order during the last three years. Chapters have been established in India and in Scotland. Charters to the number of 64 have been granted to subordinate chapters, including a chartered membership of 2,000. Six new chapters have been established in as many different states, and two states, Vermont and Connecticut, in which heretofore the order has existed, independently, have been added to the general grand chapter as grand chapters.

Emma Goldman having been released by the Chicago police, has issued circulars announcing a series of lectures. An officer and squad of police has been detailed to attend the first lecture, and at the first incendiary utterance the high priestess of Anarchy will go back to jail. That is right! Keep it up all along the line. Let the head of the serpent be crushed!

It is a tender and touching thought that over Wonder Castle and Wonder minister Abbey the British flag was half staffed for McKinley, and that the German navy half masted its flags and displayed the American flag on every ship.

The world rejoices that Mrs. McKinley continues to improve, and that she will survive her great bereavement.

The Schley court of inquiry is still dragging along. An important witness Monday was Capt. Bob Evans, and his testimony, to say the least did Schley no good. Indeed, the evidence thus far, all of government witnesses, of course, is decidedly damaging to the world-be hero of Santiago.

The steel strike is settled, and which side is the loser? There never was a strike that had so little excuse for its inception, Schwab not a true friend of labor, as has been proven by all the evidence.

The wood disaster since the American occupation of the Philippines, occurred on the island of Samar lately. The garrison of one company, while at breakfast, was attacked by 400 bolomen, and of the 75 men, but 36 escaped death. The brave Americans killed 150 of the enemy, from Higbee at once organized a punitive expedition. Samar is just southwest of Luzon, and is as large as Ohio.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Council Room, Sept. 27, 1902.

On the above date council met pursuant to adjournment, there were present: President Hosmer, Counsilors Eaton and Wilber.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved as read.

On motion trustee Conlier was elected Pres. pro. tem.

The application for cement sidewalks by M. M. Ellis, Mrs. Elizabeth H. Noe and H. Bidford were approved.

CURIOUS ENGLISH LEASES.

Make Terms Dependent Upon the Life of Some Third Person.

A real estate broker who has just returned from a visit to his old home in Devonshire, England, tells of a curious situation there, which is due to the death of Queen Victoria, says the New York Times. He says in Devonshire and some of the other southern counties when a tenant wants to lease a farm or other property he does not go to the owner and ask for a lease for twenty-five years or for any other definite term. He simply says that he wants the property for as long as some third person—not interested in the property—shall live. If the person the third party is agreeable to the landlord the lease is drawn up and if the conditions are set forth that the tenant shall hold the property as long as the third party named shall live, he is happy. In instances where the large land owners have for a number of years made leases to last as long as the Queen lives they have found that which tenant on favorable terms they have secured a lease that has lasted years of good fortune, while the owners of large estates have made many mistakes. The same land owners are now making new leases to last during the term of King Edward's life. All such leases are not made on the life of the king or queen, but on one of the smaller beatings the third party named is some man or woman who is a member of parliament. Which gives the tenant a chance to bet on the gamble and is decidedly inadvisable, yet the people interested seem anxious to hold on to the life of the old feudal system.—Cottage News.

MY LADY'S COMPLEXION.

The Juice of Lettuce Used as a Face Bath.

The juice of lettuce is highly recommended by French women for its beautifying properties. Lettuce possesses a peculiar odor, which is not agreeable to some people, but the juice, if properly prepared, is free from this odor. The juice is obtained by the following process: Take a quart of boiling water and pour it over a pound of lettuce leaves, cut into small pieces, and let them drain off the water and wring the lettuce free of it by a little clean cloth and wring out all the juice that you can. Strain the juice through a cloth and let it stand for a few days in a cool place, when it will be found to have formed a gelatinous substance that has settled on the bottom of the bottle, and the clear liquid can be poured off into another bottle. The lettuce juice is a gentle laxative and is very beneficial for the complexion when used as a face bath. The lettuce juice is also used in the form of a cream. Boil the lettuce juice down to a thick consistency and add to it an equal amount of lanolin and a little rose water. The cream should be stirred until it is cool, when it will have the consistency of a very delicate cream. It should be kept in a cool place, and will keep for a long time. The cream is very beneficial for the complexion, and is used by many women who are particular about their complexions.

ESKIMOS HAVE NO OATHS.

Queer Are Further of Civilization and Rank Race Development.

Jack London, author, from Dawson, says that among all the arctic and subarctic natives of Alaska and Northwestern Canada, he has never heard an oath, nor yet any word which is equivalent to an oath. Nor do he find any word which is equivalent to a curse. The Eskimo, when they are disappointed or angry, The English language contains profane words, blood curdle for all to hear. The Lapp tongue, and all the French, Teutonic and Italian, are rich in curses, yet he met on the river reserves, like a language without an oath nearly up to the mark. Indeed, Eskimo seems to be the same always. This, he thinks, is phenomenal, considering the great experience in the humans of the Eskimo as it does in the fiery temper of the Lapps. But that is just where the exception is. There is no oath in the Eskimo language. That "the man with the broken hand" stood in front of the make-believe temples of the Sitting Gods on the north Mikado at Hondo. Lift was trying to stand up alone, with the help of his long walking sticks which Tiffin presented himself upon "Unpromptedness." In spite of the pain he felt, he refused the wicked something that I ever heard," said a horrified visitor. "Do you swear?" said Commissioner Tiffin. The word corresponding to an oath is not in the Eskimo language. The approximate meaning, I have just heard, is "Darkness." The lack of terms in the Eskimo language is merely characteristic of the native mentality at the moment, as all human cases.

QUEER FREAKS OF A FLOWER.

It Blooms Unexpectedly When Placed in Fresh Water.

One of the most singular freaks in the flora department has recently been brought to the country. It is a flower of unusual beauty. For the moment this is not so much to be known as an amusing or novel. It appears when at the conclusion of the experiment flower is a marvel, or pleasant fact or such novel character as. When a flower possessing the attributes of a rose is placed in fresh water, it opens and blooms in from twenty-four to forty-eight hours, and continues to bloom for a week or more. Instead of a rose it is a lily, or some other flower, and the experiment has been made with cactus and other specimens of the flora family, and always the result has been the same. The flower in question is a cactus, the name of which is not known, but it is known that it is a native of Mexico, and that it is a very hardy plant. It is known that it is a native of Mexico, and that it is a very hardy plant. It is known that it is a native of Mexico, and that it is a very hardy plant. It

TRAIN HURLED INTO A COLORADO CANYON.

Engineer is Killed and Twelve Others Injured in the Smashing Wreck. Heaviest Excess National Aid to Irrigating New Mexico Desert.

One man was killed and twelve or two injured in a wreck on the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad near Glenwood Springs, which plunged a train into the canyon of the Colorado River, crushing the baggage car, the mail car and the first coach into kindling wood. The train was bound for Kansas City, which the broken rails failed to reach. Engineer Jim Dunn, of Glenwood Springs, was killed, and the fireman, Charley Jones, of Grand Junction, was badly scalded and bruised. The train was made up of a baggage car, a mail car, a coach and a sleeper. Dunn had his left leg broken and was pinned in the wreck by the scalding water from the boiler. Jones was scalded and bruised. Dunn died before he could be extricated. Jones was taken to the hospital in Glenwood Springs. The train was in charge of Conductor Lewis. The train was made up of a baggage car, a mail car, a coach and a sleeper. The rails were torn up for a mile. The wreck was caused by a broken rail

MUD IS FOREVER BOILING.

"Paint Pots" Among the Wonders of Yellowstone Park.

Among the wonders of the Yellowstone National park none excites more interest than what are known as "the paint pots" or boiling mud springs. Into one of these California Dan walked unknowingly but not with serious results. There are several groups of these springs in the parks one of the largest of which covers a space 200 yards in length by 50 in width in what is known as the basin of Alum creek near the Upper Geyser. A second group where it is believed the tourists were wanders is near the west of the grand circle of the Yellowstone, four miles south Yellowstone lake and six miles from the Fissure mills. This group occupies a space three acres in extent, and it is said the springs present a magnificent sight when in the course of eruption. The principal spring is called the Inner Mud Pot and is thirty-five feet in diameter. It is near the large sulphur spring and when in a tranquil state looks like a lake of tinted mud. The contents of the spring are more than twenty feet in depth and are constantly in motion, the mud like a consistent paste of the same proportions of the spring varying in from of consistency are found ranging from the muddy water which is a thickness of common mortar. The second group of springs contains every possible variation of color. There are perhaps a dozen of the springs in the group, all within the inner circle which are covered with a thick layer of cool mud. This mud has a tendency to cover the deposits and seems to be being at all times the agent in the same point greatly competition taking on paint, and the mud is thin, smooth and pale while in color.

Prosecution of Fools.

Commissioner Crunden in a recent communication to the State Department on this the subject of the prosecution of violators, suggests has reminds much experience with reference to the prosecution of fresh fruits on cooling in the Washington Blue Peters and peaches. He says in the delivery to one for shipment he saw were subjected to the process of the dressing gas. The fruit were then taken out of the boxes and were fatally wrapped in tissue paper. Some of them were again treated with the gas, and the whole put into a room of a dry room at a temperature of 60 degrees and kept there for seven weeks when the fruits were taken out. They were in an excellent state of preservation, especially those that had been treated with the gas a second time. Not only the pears but the peaches felt hard to the touch, between their lowest temperature and coloured no decayed spots, as the germs had all been killed by the gas.

Collecting "Corpse Rings."

The Dublin Freeman's Journal calls attention to a curious and unique what gruesome development of the collecting fad. A Ballinasloe man has, it seems, made a collection of saints' "corpse rings," featuring one of most curious pieces in existence, the habit of wearing a thick silver ring on the little finger. These rings are engraved inside with the owner's name and place, and are to identify his body in the event of death by drowning. The collection of "corpse rings" is a fairly large one, and curiously enough it is stated, both obtained from the relations or comrades of the drowned sailor. The fad of a well-known statesman, so rumor says, for the collection of false teeth is known in its singularity by this piece of the collecting craze.

The Invasion of Buckfast.

The Buckfast cultivated recently established in San Francisco, is not all of the invasion, writes a correspondent in the Philadelphia Press. A beauty, the founder of the mission in this country, Sonoda, is in Berlin, where on April 3 Japanese chosen, accompanied by and travelers joined to the celebration of Buddha's birthday. Sonoda, who came as Buddhist assistant, is the director of cultivation, and was sent to the establishment of missions at Sacramento and Fresno. Sacramento a temple is about to be erected, the other. Tuesday, so stated, Sonoda's plan has 2 per cent. and Kaku 7. These are the status of the Buddha party.

Big Rapid Transit Tunnel.

One-fourth of the excavation of New York's rapid transit tunnel was completed recently. The far 17,316,000 has been paid out on the 20,000,000 contract. English Gardener's Wants.

A gardener in Lincolnshire has placed the following boastful notice on the corner of his garden:—"Notice—Anybody found stealing vegetables from this garden will be shot—By order, gardener." Commenting on this, Hardy "Man-traps and spring guns" pale into insignificance.—Montreal Herald and Star.

Southern and Northern Weather.

New Orleans is lower any hotter than Duluth, says the cooler Northerner. It only seems so because the gulf coast air is so much moister. A temperature of 99 degrees is the highest either city has ever reached.

A New Bureau of Forestry.

It is confidently expected that before long all of the forestry work of the government will be placed in the hands of a single forestry bureau. At the present time matters pertaining to forestry are divided between the department of the Interior and the department of Agriculture. A division of the department of Agriculture has charge of certain technical work in regard to the forests, and at the making of working plans for removal lumbering, and the land office of the Interior department has an allowance of $200,000 annually for administering the Forest reserves. The department of Agriculture and the Interior are agreed that it would be much better to refer all of the forestry work, both administrative and technical, to a single bureau.—Saturday Post.

ORIGIN OF CERTAIN WORDS.

How Our Language Acquired "Canter," "Canter" and "Canter."

The best time was take a place this year (1903) is when the Saints had to make a journey to the grave of a hale man or saint, and at Canterbury England, was one of the most good shrine—one of the great Christian allies. People made allies to worship there. They would make an period and have many times as their rule among telling time and singing hymns, chorus. Chaucer the "Father of the English language," wrote of these pilgrimages in "The Canterbury Tales." The word "canter" then origin at that time. The gentle pace top of their horses on the road to Canterbury needed a special name. That word makes us think of "canter." It has comes "easy going," and it was born about the same time as "canter" and in connection with the same class of people. Only this time the journey was to Jerusalem, the rich land of the French called it "Saint Terre." Now there were many reckless people run over the pilgrims, as an excuse for a tender occasion, happy-go-lucky life, and then they called "holiday." Saint Terre "canter" or "holiday." Now we again go to the pleasant, sunlight walk of a gentleman's day a street. A person who is seeking something only it is not so good, so people, in "measure." Just by your map of Asia Minor and there go through to a place, "canter" the spring through called Monday. It was a place for its plants course and then came to in a caring "as crooked as the river Meander." Then people times to use it as a verb. They would say "and the river Meander." Then people proceed. "Now the Hudson River has many bends. Wouldn't it sound cute to say that a river "Indented?" Or see the" in another time country.

THE AMERICAN MAN.

His Physical Condition as Compared With That of Europeans.

The most important, because the most impartial, of comments concerning the awaking of the American man, concerning his physical condition as compared with that of his kinsfolk beyond the sea. As to this point the evidence is so clear that it needs little discussion. It is evident that the American Indian is now entirely out of the record for many thousand years before the coming of the Europeans, has lained the most dangerous, fierce savages they were remarkable well developed, and though confined to steady labor, their bodies were well made and enduring. Taking their place, the north European represented by a wide range of local varieties, English, Irish, Highland Scotch, German, Scandinavians, Neumans, French and many other groups of old world peoples have since their transplantation a hundred years or more had shown that the area of the continent from the Rio Grande to the far north is as suited to our kind as is any part of the earth. This is sufficiently proven by the stamina of American soldiers gathered during the civil war, the American white man of today is heavier in this country, in the sense of a larger frame than his European sire from the increase being mainly in the size of head and chest. It is further indicated by the endurance of these men in the trials of the soldier's life and by the remarkable percentage of recoveries from wounds. This endurance of wounds was regarded by the late Dr. Bryson Sequard, as a feature common to all the mammals of this continent, being as he claimed, on the basis of an extensive experience, as characteristic of American rabbits as of American men. Moreover the statistics of life insurance companies doing business in this country appear to indicate that the expectation of life is greater here than in the old world.—International Monthly.

Joseph Chamberlain's Birthplace.

The house in which Joseph Chamberlain was born sixty-five years ago still stands, and not far from it, is a quaint grave at Camberwell, in the house in which he lived to April and write his name. Close to them both lives the old lady who has still a vivid memory of the Monday morning when Joseph Chamberlain first went to school. For a year the mother of Mr. Chamberlain's mind was in the care of this lady, on whom Mr. Chamberlain more than once called since he became a famous man.

The Wages of Bombay.

India is the home of the mason tropical zone. They are found with it, the jungles and are highly esteemed in Bombay and Madras. Good in grounds and lovely grounds. The mason of Bombay is especially characteristic of the Indian mason. Use Not Keep a Condition.

There is a young man in this city who, since 1897, has been trying to keep one position for a year but he has failed consistently to do this and today, in fact, he is out of work altogether. Of evidence he was rather wild, but after his promotion he settled down somewhat, and became engaged to marry a very pretty girl. His father, who is rich, then said to him: "If I let you marry, John, as soon as you prove to me that you are a man, find a job and hold it a year and I will have faith in you. I'll give you a house and $2,500 annually, but you must show me what you are before this comes about." In five years the young man has had eleven positions, none of which he was able to hold longer than his probation. Two or three times he seemed on the point of success, yet at the very end he quarreled with his employer or neglected his work.—Philadelphia Record.

Large Forests in Old States.

It is not the robust states which have the smallest forests. Of those which border the Atlantic, Delaware is the only one in which the forest is less than 1 per cent. Ohio is 6 per cent of the entire state. The Gulf states extend to Texas, and two-thirds wooded, the percentage varies from 62 (Louisiana) to 75 (Alabama). Even Texas has 21 per cent of woodland. In the other states it ranges from 12 per cent wooded in North and South Dakota the amount rises to 1 and 2 per cent. Nebraska also has 2 per cent, and Kansas 7. These are the states of the treeless plains.

First Idea of a Balloon.

It is related that the hot air balloon had its origin in a pottlecot. Mrs. Montgolfier had washed her garments, intending to wear it in a great festival the next day and hung it over a chafing dish to dry. The hot air swelled out its folds and floated it up into the air. The lady in astonishment called her husband to see the sight. He at once grasped the idea and was on hand in producing the hot air balloon.

Luxury for Mrs. Schwab.

Mrs. Charles M. Schwab, wife of the steel trust man, has a great fondness for traveling on private cars. When Mr. Schwab was younger Mrs. Schwab often expressed the wish to be able to have a special car and ride all she pleased. It is with quiet satisfaction that Mr. Schwab says he has felt able to get a private car at his wife's disposal for the past year, and hope to be able to do so as long as she may wish it.

A Giant 100 Feet High.

The largest plant in the world is probably the giant seaweed, called by scientists macrocystis. This plant often grows to a height of 100 feet. It grows around the South Sea islands where the cattle feed on it for hogs.

Area of the South.

The South includes one-fourth of the total area and one-third of the population of the United States. Its cotton and cottonseed alone gave it an income last year of $545,000,000—the largest value of any single crop in the world. Its corn and its lumber product brought it the snug sum of $200,000,000. Moreover, the South raises 80 per cent of all American cotton, mines 70 per cent of all its coal, produces 55 per cent of its iron, has 38 per cent of its total railroad mileage, and a steadily increasing percentage of its manufacturing.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

C. G. Turner, of Traverse City, in an interview with the Grand Rapids Press says that Charles T. Wright's pardon does not go into effect until May next. His parole is until the expiration of the sentence years to which his sentence was commuted by Governor Pingree and that seventeen years does not expire until May. So, he explains, he has to be convicted it will not be until May. Mr Turner states that Wright is now enjoying for a farm implement house and that he reports regularly once a month at the government office in Lansing, according to the conditions of his parole.

The new game law reads as follows. Open season Nov. 1 to 30, inclusive, in each year, except on the island of Isle Royale, and the counties of Upper, Huron, Monroe, Sanilac, Tuscola, Macomb, Lapeer, Gratiot and St. Clair, where deer cannot be hunted until 1906. No non-resident can land deer without first procuring a hunter's license, $25. Resident's license can be had for $2. Use no dogs in hunting, pursuing or killing of any fawn in the spotted coat or the killing of any deer in the red coat is prohibited. No use of any artificial light in hunting, pursuing or killing deer is unlawful. No deer or a portion of a deer can be lawfully shipped unless a license tag accompanies same. No hunter or person can kill more than three deer in any one year. The sale of venison is also prohibited.

THE MICHIGAN ISLANDS.

And now the proposition comes from a high quarter for change the name of the Philippines to the "Mckinley Islands." Why not? They were named Philippines in honor of King Philip of Spain, why should the name be retained? McKinley made them an American possession, and to bear his name as a memorial through the ages, of the great president, who raised his country to the status of a world power.

SCHOOL COMMUNE COLUMN.

Bun to G. Glenn, of Georgia, in the last Journal of Education says:

The last children of the state are costing the state a great deal more money than the children who are saved and made useful. The expense of trying, convicting, and punishing a bad boy is raised by a local tax. The cost of every jail is raised by a local tax.

Why not enforce a local tax to save these children before they go to the jail? The cost of saving children is less than the cost of losing them.

Fulton Co., Georgia, has made the following six boys for the present year: To maintain and support prisoners fifty four thousand dollars; to pay prisoners twenty-four thousand dollars; to pay expenses of county thirty-two thousand dollars.

At least half of the court, and jury expenses must be credited to the cost of these same prisoners. Fulton is, therefore, spending this year on her prisoners eighty-two thousand dollars.

In the county's budget there is not a dollar for schools. The state gives the county fourteen thousand dollars. The average number of prisoners in Fulton Co., is supposed to be about two thousand.

The school children of the county by the last census was six thousand eight hundred and fifty. These school children are at school at a cost of fourteen thousand dollars, and two thousand prisoners in prisons or in the chain gang at an annual cost of eighty-two thousand dollars. What a lesson it ought to be for the wise legislators! If the truth could be known, everyone of these prisoners is a criminal because was a neglected child.

The legislature should see to it that the antecedent history of every criminal in this state should be ascertained and recorded in the prison records in order that we might know how far heredity and how far environment is responsible for crime.

Right educational processes, intelligently applied, would cure most of the defects due to heredity, and would certainly save many a child who is now the victim of an unfortunate environment.
